COSTELLO GUILTY; TO HANG

RESERVES LEARN SERIOUS ART OF WAR AT SPARTA

Problems of Battle Taught in Field.

Not handling men scientifically and tactically means sending them to their death instead of winning battles with them.

COL. NOBLE B. JUDAH.
(Commanding 332d Field Artillery.)

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Sparta Military Reservation, Wis., Aug. 15.—[Special.]—"Gentlemen, if you will give me your attention, please."

A young, thin lipped regular army officer with a gift for incisiveness is speaking.

Maps damp with the morning's mist are pressed smooth on saddle pommels. They are war department maps and cover in minute detail the 14,000 acres of unpeopled, untilled terrain lying in southwestern Wisconsin, 25 miles east by north of the great river and the town of La Crosse.

A weirdly silent area, now that the guns have ceased hurling shell and shrapnel against the bruised faces of far hillsides. No note of bird anywhere. No chatter of squirrels. No scurrying of any living thing through the scrub. Occasional faint baying of remote farm dogs, their nerves still jumpy from the long morning of cannon fire. Occasional neighing of artillery horses, growing querulous as noon draws on.

Scene of Austere Beauty.

Otherwise thick silence, mist-laden, and under the silence the rugged, austere beauty of the unpeopled terrain—precipitous knolls stepping back to the lines of hills, leagues of stunted scrub oak and pine, deep hollows well carpeted with fern, and hundred foot knolls sparsely clad with oak.

The thin lipped young regular army officer resumes:

"During this morning's lesson on organization of positions, gentlemen, there was altogether too much galloping around on the terrain—with officers exposed—with the result they would have been badly shot up."

At this there is a touch of spurs, and the group of mounted reserve officers draw close around their teacher. His utterance has the crispness of good machine gun fire—neither leisurely nor wasteful. Hence that touch of the spur, and men bending forward in the saddle when he speaks.

Plies Them with Questions.

He fires questions:

"Do you want a great deal of time to put on camouflage?"

There is murmur of answers and counter-questions. A horse nervously paws the sand, then snatches at a twig of scrub oak. "Still, Blackie," his rider whispers. Blackie subsides.

The human machine gun resumes:

"Under the conditions of this morning's problem—shall field ranges come up—or stay back?"

Again murmur of counter-questions and discussion.

Question and answer and comment continue half an hour, winding up with: "Any further questions? All understood?"

A reservist speaks—a man in middle life, an important man at home:

"I'd like to say one word, sir."

"Gladly"—from the machine gun.

Discussion Is Specific.

Then more explanation and discussion. Much punctilio and unwearying patience mark the interchange on both sides. Nothing is left vague. All is specific, pointed, exact. Even the unorganized civilian mind that is soaking up scene and colloquy can comprehend that every answer is a life saver for troops in action or going into action.

And every one of those serious-faced, serious-minded, earnest, persistent, patient, searching reserve officers is worth his weight in gold to his country when crises come.

Cipher it out for yourself. Fifteen thousand gentlemen—and they are gentlemen—of the Reserve Officers' corps are this summer taking the grilling training that goes with John Pershing's scheme of an instructed citizen army. They tip the beam at two million seven hundred thousand pounds of gold—and not troy weight either.

Noon comes.

Back to the Mess Hall.

And with it the spanking three mile gallop back to the tents, barracks, and mess halls of Camp Robinson, located on the western edge of the Sparta military reservation, and its administrative point.

Pine tables in the mess halls, and on the tables a meal that has at least the merit of simplicity—fresh beef, creamed potatoes, boiled beets, good

SEEK ARREST OF 24 CHICAGOANS FOR OIL FRAUD

United States Commissioner James R. Glass yesterday issued warrants for the arrest of twenty-four oil stock promoters in Chicago against whom secret indictments were voted recently by a federal grand jury at Fort Worth, Tex. Investors all over the country, including many Chicagoans, are said by postal inspectors to have been defrauded of hundreds of thousands of dollars through the operations of the men, whose names were withheld.

The company represented by the alleged swindlers was the Kosse Mutual Ownership pool. Inspectors C. B. Johnson of Austin, Tex., and V. E. Alberts of Chicago stated that the Kosse company was only one of a number of similar promotion organizations now being investigated by the government.

The Kosse Gusher syndicates No. 1 and No. 2 and the Kosse Gusher Lease pool, at the time described as subsidiaries of the Revere Oil company, were named in a fraud order issued by the postoffice department in June, 1923.

As soon as the men named in the Chicago warrants can be apprehended they will be taken to Fort Worth for trial.

REVEAL ALTERIE $75,000 BACKED SHEPHERD FIGHT

Denver, Colo., Aug. 15.—[Special.]—Louis Alterie, Denver's "Diamond Jack," gentleman rancher, and Chicago's "Louie," ex-lieutenant of the late Dean O'Banion, tonight was revealed as the financial "angel" back of the defense of William Darling Shepherd of Chicago in his trial for the murder of Billy McClintock, Shepherd's millionaire foster son.

Alterie, "on a sportsman's chance," put up $75,000 to save Shepherd and to save the McClintock fortune for Shepherd.

This came out when William Scott Stewart, Chicago attorney and Shepherd's counsel in the long battle, arrived in Denver to be the guest of Alterie at his ranch in Jarre cañon, near Sedalia.

"It was 'Diamond Jack,' king of good sportsmen, who made Shepherd's victory possible," said Stewart, "and Alterie did it as a pure gamble. If Shepherd won, he was to get his money back, while if Shepherd was convicted——"

Stewart paused and flicked the ashes from a gold banded cigar.

"'But Shepherd was not convicted,'" the attorney went on, smiling, "so Alterie will get his money back. He bet on a man's innocence and won."

DECORATION BY KING DECLINED BY MADISON MAN

Madison, Wis., Aug. 15.—[Special.]—Prof. Rasmus B. Anderson, Madison, former minister to Denmark, has just refused to accept decorations from a king of Norway for the second time in his life.

Several days ago Prof. Anderson was informed that King Haakon would confer the Order of St. Olaf on him for his contributions to Norwegian literature if he would accept it. Prof. Anderson replied that he did not think he ought to accept the honor because of his American citizenship.

Although his reply to the Norwegian king was couched in polite terms, Prof. Anderson declared today that he did not believe in decorations.

"Decorations are humbug," he asserted.

$500,000 FIRE PERILS 'YARDS'

Blaze Subdued After a Four Hour Fight.

Half of Chicago's fire department, handicapped by low water pressure, fought for nearly four hours yesterday afternoon to subdue a $500,000 blaze that for a time imperiled the entire stockyards district.

The fire began on the second floor of the five story packing plant of the G. H. Hammond company, extending along 45th street from May to Morgan streets. The central section of the structure, approximately 150 feet long and 100 feet deep, was totally destroyed from roof to basement. The east and west sections were saved by firewalls two feet thick.

Thousands Watch Flames.

Smoke from the burning building was seen in all parts of the south side and thousands of persons attracted to it rushed to the scene. Police reserves were called out and a cordon was established to hold back the throngs. Prominent among these were several scores of civilians wearing special fire marshal's badges, who insisted on getting close to the blaze. Several of them were forced back by firemen just in time to save their lives when the walls fell.

The fire was discovered by H. A. Spence, chief of the Hammond company's fire department. He rang a special alarm and five companies, under the command of Chief Thomas Ryan of the 11th battalion, responded. As the engines went into the district by way of Racine avenue to 45th street and turned into the latter thoroughfare, they found that a Chicago Junction train was blocking the way. This caused a delay of several minutes.

Battalion Chief Ryan, as soon as he saw the headway that the flames had gained, and the low pressure in the mains, sounded a 3-11 alarm that was followed by eight special calls. Practically all the south side companies and many others from the west and near north sides were called out later.

Estimate Loss at $500,000.

At 7 p. m., although the flames were apparently well under control, twenty companies were still pouring water on the nearby buildings. Fire Marshal Arthur Seyferlich, who took personal charge of the fight against the flames, said that no cause for the fire had been discovered. His estimate of the loss, $500,000, was submitted to officials of the concern, which is a subsidiary of Swift & Co. Although expressing a disinclination to discuss the matter, they stated that they believed the chief's figure was low and that the total might reach $750,000.

The second floor of the building was used as a stock room and contained hundreds of thousands of pasteboard cartons used in the marketing of butterine. These burned rapidly, and the flames spread up to a restaurant on the third floor and to the cattle and sheep kills on the fourth and fifth floors. The company's offices are on the first floor.

Only a few employés were in the building at the time, and according to Spence, none in the section that was burned. A workman reported that 250 cattle and nearly 400 sheep were killed, but this was declared incorrect by the officials, who said that only a few animals were in the place. More than 600 hogs in the west section were driven down runways to the yard.

The east section of the structure is used as a butterine factory, and huge quantities of the material were standing outside in freight cars. Melted by the intense heat engendered by the blaze, this flowed out along the ground and into the south branch of the Chicago [illegible]. The water for several blocks [illegible] a yellow, greasy mixture of the characteristic butterine tint.

After a portion of the south wall collapsed, Chief Seyferlich ordered all firemen to keep well back from the portions of it still standing. The crowds, held back by the police, occupied the viaducts leading to the stockyards.

SIR ADAM BECK, CANADA CABINET MEMBER, IS DEAD

London, Ont., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Sir Adam Beck, a member of the Ontario cabinet and long prominent in the industrial and political life of the province, died at his home here late last night.

He had been ill several months from pernicious anemia and was for some time a patient at Johns-Hopkins hospital at Baltimore. He was born in Baden, Ont., in 1857.

Sir Adams was a member of the legislative assembly from 1905 to 1919. Before this he served as mayor of London from 1902 to 1904. He was gazetted a colonel of Canadian militia in 1912.

As chairman of the Ontario hydroelectric power commission he was a leader in the fight to prevent diversion of 10,000 cubic feet of Lake Michigan water by Chicago.

WEST'S DARING THRILLS HUGE RODEO THRONG

75,000 See First Two Performances.

Men and women of redoubtable courage, splendid nerve and sinew, bodies of spring steel, booted and spurred and flamboyant in big sombrero and chaps, hurtling in quick succession across the picture; three hours of intense action; dominion of man over beast; thirty-five thousand excited and yelling watchers—men and women and children—that was Chicago's first rodeo, inaugurated in Grant park stadium yesterday by Tex Austin of New Mexico, under the auspices of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

A spectacle to rouse the blood. Something of the romance and daring and hardiness of the old wild west that is almost but not quite gone, brought into the city for those who know the plains and the sagebrush only through the story books—and the city responded. The cheering was constant and thunderous and everybody seemed excited and happy.

Continues Through Week.

The show was given again last night and will be reproduced afternoon and evening each day up to and including next Sunday.

The casualties of the day's roundup were two. Jack Wilson, a cowboy, was gored in the side, had some ribs broken and his arm lacerated while wrestling with a steer in the most dangerous of the events, known as bulldogging. In this same event a camera man who ventured too near to one of the steers was knocked down and trampled, but only slightly hurt.

The events opened with a colorful and picturesque parade of the 125 contestants.

Parade Opens Event.

It was a unique parade of men and women in all the colors of the spectrum, all on spirited and prancing horses kicking up a cloud of dust and tossing manes and tails and blowing ferociously out of their dilated nostrils.

First come the judges, Capt. G. M. Jones of Las Vegas, N. M.; Ed. McCarty of Cheyenne, Wyo.; and Johnnie Mullens of Bozeman, Mont. Big, bronzed and keen-eyed men tanned by the sun and wind and wise in the way of the range.

Next in line was Tex Austin himself—a rancher from Las Vegas. Tex is tall, wiry and handsome in his checkered black and gray lumberjack's shirt, his cocked cream colored sombrero and his tan boots and khaki trousers. Beside him rides William H. Mann, general manager of the wholesale department of Marshall Field & Co. Mr. Mann has the tan of the golf course upon his square face. He also wears a hat, high, wide and handsome as anybody's there. His shirt is a colored velour, needle-worked. And he doesn't look at all like the manager of a great store.

Crowd Cheers Mr. Mann.

Mr. Mann is smiling and having a lot of fun over this bit of play acting and he bows with a sweeping, correct cowman's gesture as he is introduced to the crowd, which cheers him.

Another rider, who sits as easily in his saddle as any there, is Chauncey McCormick. There appears to be a purpose in Mr. McCormick's ride in this parade, for as M. D. Johnson, the announcer, introduces him he says:

"Ladies and gentlemen, the next rider is Mr. Chauncey McCormick, a director of the Anti-Cruelty society."

And loud cheers went up as Mr. McCormick rode dashingly to the center to take his place beside the rest who had been introduced. There are those who would have stopped Chicago's rodeo on the grounds that it is a cruel and unnecessary spectacle. Perhaps these cheers were meant to show the sentiments of those who were there.

Dawes Is Introduced.

Now a mighty cheer goes up as Vice President Charles G. Dawes, guest of honor, is introduced. And another cheer as Col. A. A. Sprague, commissioner of public works, representative of Mayor Dever, arises and bows.

Gen. Dawes and Col. Sprague are smiling, too, and exchanging spirited repartee which cannot be heard above the din. The spirit of the sunny afternoon of excitement and galloping horses appears to have caught them with the rest.

But there is no lagging at this roundup. Action is the keynote, and no sooner is one thing over than another is on.

Event No. 1 is announced: the bareback bronco riding contest, and in a moment all eyes are directed upon the releasing pens at the south end of the stadium.

A big gate swings back. There is a

Fake Dry, Aids Bind Women, Take $18,000

Representing themselves as federal prohibition agents, three well dressed men were admitted to the apartment of Mrs. Frank Canfield, 935 Winona avenue, yesterday afternoon, bound a maid to the bed and forced Mrs. Canfield to open a wall safe from which they took jewelry valued at $18,000.

Mrs. Canfield is the wife of Frank Canfield, wealthy president of the Canfield Manufacturing company.

The bandits appeared at the apartment and demanded admittance, saying they had a warrant to search the premises for liquor.

Tie Maid to Bed.

After they gained the entrance on the second floor they tied a maid to a bed. Then at the point of a revolver they forced Mrs. Canfield to open the wall safe.

After looting it they bound and gagged Mrs. Canfield and escaped in an automobile waiting in the alley. Mrs. Canfield was so hysterical that she was unable to give the police a complete description of the men.

She said part of the jewelry was insured.

Woman's Story of Robbery.

Mrs. Canfield managed to free herself shortly after the robbers had fled and notified the Summerdale police.

"When I encountered the men," she said, "one of the three pulled back his coat and showed me some sort of badge. 'We're federal officers,' he said, 'and have been instructed to search this house for liquor.'

"I was surprised, but admitted them to the house. When they had entered the living room they turned on me with a gun and tied the maid to the bed in another room. They gagged me after forcing me to open the wall vault and fled in an automobile."

Two Other Robberies.

Two holdups in quick succession were staged yesterday afternoon by a pair of robbers, who obtained $1,500.

Abe Balaban, 4742 North Central Park avenue, an insurance broker, was held up by two bandits as he entered his car after leaving the Lawndale State bank, 3205 West 22d street. Balaban surrendered $500.

A short time later, two robbers, believed by the police to be the same men, held up Sam Steinfeldt, 4020 Cullom avenue, a building contractor, and robbed him of a $1,000 pay roll. The second holdup occurred at 19th street and Marshall boulevard.

BIG 5 OF GARY RUM CONSPIRACY TO BE PAROLED

Gary, Ind., Aug. 15.—The first of the "Big Five" defendants in the Gary booze conspiracy case will be paroled from the Atlanta federal penitentiary on Aug. 28, it was learned today.

Lew Barnes, former president of the board of public works, is to be paroled to Harry Arnold, Democratic politician.

Dwight Kinder, former Lake county prosecutor; B. A. Lucas, and Clyde Hunter, attorneys, will also be eligible to parole on Aug. 28 and their release is expected with that of Barnes or soon afterward.

Roswell Johnson, former mayor, will not be eligible to parole until later in the fall.

Hearst Buys Famous 12th Century Castle in Wales

[Copyright: 1925: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Aug. 15.—William Randolph Hearst has purchased St. Donat's castle in Glamorganshire, Wales, one of the most famous castles in Britain, dating back to the twelfth century, according to the News of the World. It is understood Mr. Hearst saw illustrations of St. Donat's in an illustrated weekly, liked the place and cabled his representatives to purchase it. It will serve as a home for the Hearsts during their visits to this country. The castle contains twenty bedrooms, eight bathrooms and a huge banquet hall.

GIRL'S SLAYER CONVICTED IN RECORD TIME

Trial Ends 36 Days After the Crime.

Raymond Costello, ex-convict, was found guilty last night of the murder of 16 year old Madeline White. The jury fixed his punishment at death. It deliberated an hour and thirty-two minutes and reached its verdict on the fourth ballot.

It was said to be one of the swiftest murder trials ever heard in the Criminal court. It is just thirty-six days ago that the torn and bruised body of the girl was found under a porch at 5931 South La Salle street. The verdict is the fifth to prescribe hanging since the first of the year.

Victim's Relatives Weep.

Gregg White, father of the slain girl, who recently returned to the family he had deserted four years ago, wept when Clerk Edward Goodman read the death verdict. Genevive White, his daughter, who was with her sister a few hours previous to her death, also wept.

"It was the only kind of a verdict," both cried as they wiped their tears away. "We are satisfied."

Mrs. Anna White, Madeline's mother, lay on her cot in the tuberculosis ward at the county hospital and rejoiced at the verdict between spasms of coughing.

"It can't bring Madeline back," she sobbed. "Nothing can do that. But that verdict will perhaps save other innocent girls from being attacked and killed by that brute of a Costello. And it may keep wicked men from taking advantage of girls."

Statement by Crowe.

State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, when notified of the verdict, congratulated his associates, William McSwiggin and Henry Ayres, the prosecutors.

"It is the fourth hanging verdict Mr. McSwiggin has obtained in three months," Prosecutor Crowe said.

"I sincerely hope," Mr. Crowe continued, "that no other department whose duty it is to enforce the criminal law will let this man go scot free."

"I am preparing to file an insanity petition," Attorney J. J. McCarthy, Costello's attorney, said as he left the courtroom. "I will have it ready some time next week. I have learned that Costello's uncle died in Dunning asylum, and his grandfather died in the asylum of Kankakee."

Strong Appeal by State.

After Assistant State's Attorney McSwiggin made a dramatic appeal to the jury either to hang Costello or turn him out on the street—no halfway measures—the court read the instructions.

These instructions offered four possible verdicts: Hanging, life imprisonment, not less than fourteen years, and a verdict of not guilty. It was 4:58 p. m. when the jury filed out to deliberate the fate of Costello, who is called "Baldy" by his acquaintances.

As soon as the jury retired, James L. Morris was chosen foreman. The jurors debated over the exhibits. These consisted of a polka dotted handkerchief, a blue shirt, a torn brassiere, a torn underskirt, and several pictures of the place where the body was found.

Foreman Explains Exhibits.

There was no loud talking while the jurors deliberated. The foreman explained each article. The polka dotted handkerchief was the one Prosecutor McSwiggin said had been stuffed into Madeline's mouth. The shirt, with mud at the elbows, was the one Costello wore the night he admitted meeting Madeline. The underskirt had been worn by Madeline on the night she was strangled to death.

After each article had been explained a ballot was taken. It was to determine Costello's guilt. It was unanimous for guilt. Shortly afterward another ballot was taken. It was 10 to 2 for the death penalty.

The jury then went over the evidence. Another ballot was taken. It was 11 to 1. Another debate. The next vote was twelve for the death penalty. A juror rapped on the door, signifying that a verdict had been reached.

Smiles on Entering Court.

Costello was brought into court. He smiled toward his mother and father, who were occupying a seat with the girl that Costello claimed to be his wife, although they never went through a marriage ceremony. The clerk read the verdict.

"Tell my mother not to worry. I still have a chance," Costello said to Bailiff Michael Smith as he was being led back to the county jail.

"My boy must be insane," cried the father as he left the courtroom.

Attorney McCarthy asked that the jury be polled. He then entered a motion for a new trial. Judge Charles A. Williams set the date for the hearing for next Saturday.

Found Strangled to Death.

The body of Madeline White was found by a milkman on the morning of July 10. Physicians said she had been strangled to death after being criminally assaulted. On July 20, Costello was indicted for murder. Aug. 20, he was placed on trial. It took three days to choose the jury. All the evidence was heard Friday.

Assistant State's Attorney Ayers opened the arguments for the state when court opened yesterday. He outlined the law. Then he went into the details of the case. He told how Costello confessed the day he was arrested.

He said Costello told Assistant State's Attorney George E. Gorman and Michael Romano that he had been out with the girl the night before her bruised body was found. He said he met a man by the name of Andrew Brick, who had just been released from Pontiac reformatory.

Told of Detective Ruse.

They telephoned Madeline and Genevieve White, according to his story. Costello said he was a detective. He gave the name of McCarthy. They met the girls. Soon after Genevieve left with another youth. Brick then went home. Costello took Madeline to Washington park. The girl repulsed his attempts to attack her.

A South Park policeman ordered them to leave the park, Costello was quoted as saying. On the way home he met a man whose name he said was Mulholland. Costello said he gave him his polka dot handkerchief. Then, he said, Mulholland attacked her, and Costello helped him to drag her under a porch.

Wrong, Mulholland, He Says.

One Mulholland, whom Costello said he knew and whom he met on his way to meet the White girls, was taken into custody. Costello said he was not the man. The police checked up many Mulhollands, but could not find any one to answer the description given by Costello.

"Mulholland is Costello," Prosecutor McSwiggin said. "Hang the dirty rat. No other verdict will satisfy the state or the good people of this community. If you don't think his crime fits the death penalty, then turn him out on the street."

"If you take the word of Costello, who now denies his confession, against the several women and Mr. Romano, who all testified they heard Costello say while reënacting the slaying: 'There's where I placed the body,' then find Costello not guilty.

Demands Noose or Acquittal.

"Let him go out again into the streets to attack some other 16 year old girl, your sister, my sister, somebody else's sister, God forbid. But if you believe this man guilty, again I say hang this murderer, this moron, this pervert, and rapist."

Attorney McCarthy in his closing address said his client was innocent of the crime. He said Costello has the mind of a 12 year old child, but that he would not commit such an atrocious crime where he was well known and within five blocks from his home. McCarthy said his client was a victim of a conspiracy and that the charge was a frameup.

Michigan Y.M.C.A. Worker Takes Englewood Post

J. F. McFarland of Ann Arbor, state secretary of boy's work of the Michigan Y. M. C. A., has been made executive secretary of the Englewood department of the Chicago association, at 65th and Union streets, it was announced yesterday. Although the building will not be ready for occupancy before winter, he and his associates, P. M. Springer, just appointed secretary in charge of boys' work, and Don Shumaker of New York city, religious work secretary, will take up their duties Sept. 1.

Bundesen Warns Small Ice Cream Plants to Clean Up

Warning to small ice cream manufacturers that violations of sanitary regulations and particularly those requiring the use of pasteurized milk will be followed by summary closing of their plants was issued yesterday by Health Commissioner Herman N. Bundesen. Large manufacturers are scrupulous in their compliance with the regulations, the commissioner asserted.

WOMAN WATCHES BLASTING; KILLED BY FLYING STONE

Sandwich, N. H., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Mrs. R. Gravener Hutchins Jr., 52, of New York, wife of the New Haven railroad director, was fatally injured when she was struck by a flying stone here today on the grounds of her summer home.

Mrs. Hutchins and her husband were inspecting improvements being made on the grounds and were standing a considerable distance away from where workmen were blasting. After a blast, however, Mrs. Hutchins was struck on the head, receiving a fractured skull.

Besides her husband she is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Roy G. Burnstein and Mrs. John Beal Bishop, both of New York, and Mrs. Henry Hemmenway of Watertown, Conn. Before her marriage Mrs. Hutchins was Minnie Jeffrey, member of a prominent Columbus, O., family.

THEFT STARTS QUEER ROMANCE; WEDDING TODAY

Russian Baron's Daughter Becomes Bride.

Because her purse was stolen, leaving her penniless and with no work, Miss Nina Rezine, 20, this morning will become the bride of Edward Canfield, said to be a man of some wealth, after a three weeks' romance that began when Canfield read about her plight in THE TRIBUNE the following day. The marriage license record gives Miss Rezine's age as 22, and Canfield's as 43 years.

Miss Rezine says she is the daughter of a Russian baron, and fought in the Battalion of Death after her father was killed by the bolsheviks. She was wounded, she says, and that is why she came to America and incidentally the reason she lost her pocketbook.

How Romance Developed.

It all came about like this:

When the revolution broke out in Russia in 1917, her family scattered, although only 17 years old, Miss Rezine enlisted in the famous woman's battalion with which she spent one winter. She made her way to Vladivostok where she sailed to this country. Here, despite her terrible war experiences, she decided to try to be happy and begin life all over again.

Because of her attractive appearance Miss Rezine obtained a position as a model in a fashion show, with which she toured the country. When the season closed, she came to Chicago.

Three weeks ago, while in a loop theater Miss Rezine found that her purse, containing $85, the entire capital left from her earnings, had been stolen. In an effort to recover it she came to THE TRIBUNE office and appealed for help.

Letter Starts Romance.

In response to her story came a dozen letters from persons offering to assist her. Among them was one from Canfield which she answered and thus began the romance.

It was only last night, when friends at the Streeterville apartment, 195 East Chestnut, where he is living, heard that the two were to be married this morning. The ceremony is set for 9:30 at the St. George Russian Orthodox church, 917 Wood street.

CAB PASSENGER ATTACKS COP AND GETS BULLET

Policeman Alexander Langford of the Fillmore street station attacked by two men who resented his criticism of the driving of the taxicab in which they were riding, shot and probably mortally wounded one of them. At the West Suburban hospital the man was identified as A. B. Reilly, 1054 Center street.

Langford told the Austin police that he was in civilian clothes and was driving west on Madison street in his own car when the cab, driven by Samuel Marsala of 927 Sedgwick street, forced him to the curb through the driver's recklessness. He pursued and caught the vehicle at Waller avenue.

"I got out of my car and gave Marsala a bawling out," the policeman said. "He agreed he was wrong and I was going to let him go, when out stepped the two men. I showed them my policeman's badge and Reilly asked me what of it. I told him to be quiet; that he was drunk. Both of them hit me and knocked me down. I got up once and they struck me again. I fired at them then. One fell and the other escaped."

Reilly was struck in the head and was unconscious when he was picked up. Marsala, quizzed by the police, told the same story as Langford.

BATTERY'S FIRE IMPERILS YACHT OF VANDERBILT

New London, Conn., Aug. 15.—[U. P.]—Almost directly in the path of ten inch shells which a Massachusetts national guard battery was firing at a moving target, Commodore Harold Vanderbilt's yacht Vagrant narrowly escaped destruction off Fisher's island.

Frantically waving an American flag as he clung to the rigging, a sailor signalled the battery, about five miles away, to stop firing after a 1,600 pound shell had hit the water within 100 yards of the Vanderbilt yacht.

The guardsmen delayed further target practice until the yacht was out of range.

SPIRIT COLORED RAPIST AWAY AS MOB THREATENS

Indiana Harbor Aroused Over Girl's Attack.

Quick action on the part of sheriff's men at Indiana Harbor yesterday probably saved from lynching a colored man who had been identified by a 4 year old girl as the one who had kidnaped her Friday while she was playing outside her home, carried her to a nearby basement, and there attacked her.

The colored man, whom a mob of over six hundred persons, including many of his own race, loudly demanded be hanged from a tree, is John Allen, 47 years old. The girl who named him as her assailant is Waunell Crockett, daughter of Edward Crockett of Indiana Harbor.

Spirit Captive Away.

As feeling grew high outside the jail where Allen had been taken after his capture, officers realized that the temper of the crowd was ugly. While policemen kept back the mob outside, Allen and his guards quietly slipped out to a waiting automobile at the rear and sped away, presumably to the county jail at Crown Point.

Waunell was playing with other child companions on the street Friday when a Negro rode up on a motorcycle. He grabbed the child and sped away.

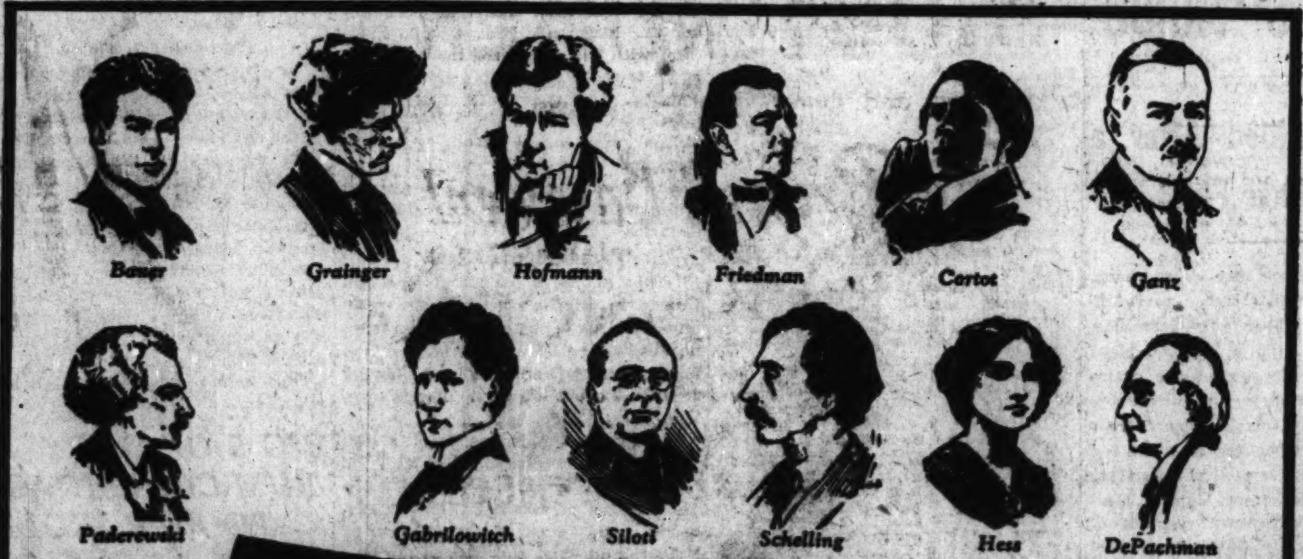
Waunell was taken to the basement of an empty house and attacked by her captor, who left her there. Hours afterwards she was found and taken to her home, where physicians said she was in a dangerous condition as a result of the brutal treatment she had received.

Motorcycle Leads to Capture.

Saturday morning Allen, who lives in Indiana Harbor, was arrested. It was said the motorcycle had led police to him. He was taken to the jail and a procession of child companions of Waunell started there. All without hesitation named Allen as the kidnaper.

Then Edward Crockett, obtaining medical permission, rode to the jail with his child wrapped in blankets. As he and a guard walked through the mob, expressions of hot resentment against Allen, and urgings that he be "strung up" were heard. Once or twice a surging of the crowd toward the jail started, and police reserves had to be called out to hold back the crowd.

Colored people of the community are as incensed against Allen as the other residents.



75% of the world's greatest pianists records for the DUO-ART Exclusively

ALMOST the entire list of great pianists now before the public are today using exclusively the Duo-Art as the medium for carrying their musical messages to the world. They have chosen this instrument because of its perfection — because of the fact that in its marvelous method of recording, it alone, of all similar instruments, presents their playing to the public with absolute fidelity.

It is important in the purchase of a reproducing piano to make no mistake. Every music roll in the Duo-Art Catalog made by these 75% of the world's concert pianists can be played only on the Duo-Art. Not to possess the Duo-Art, therefore, means the exclusion of this great array of talent from your home.

Their endorsement of the Duo-Art has made the selection of the right reproducing piano simple and easy for you. 75% of the world's greatest concert pianists, all exclusive Duo-Art artists, advise you to make the same choice that they have made. The story of the Duo-Art is one of great interest. Send for illustrated brochure.

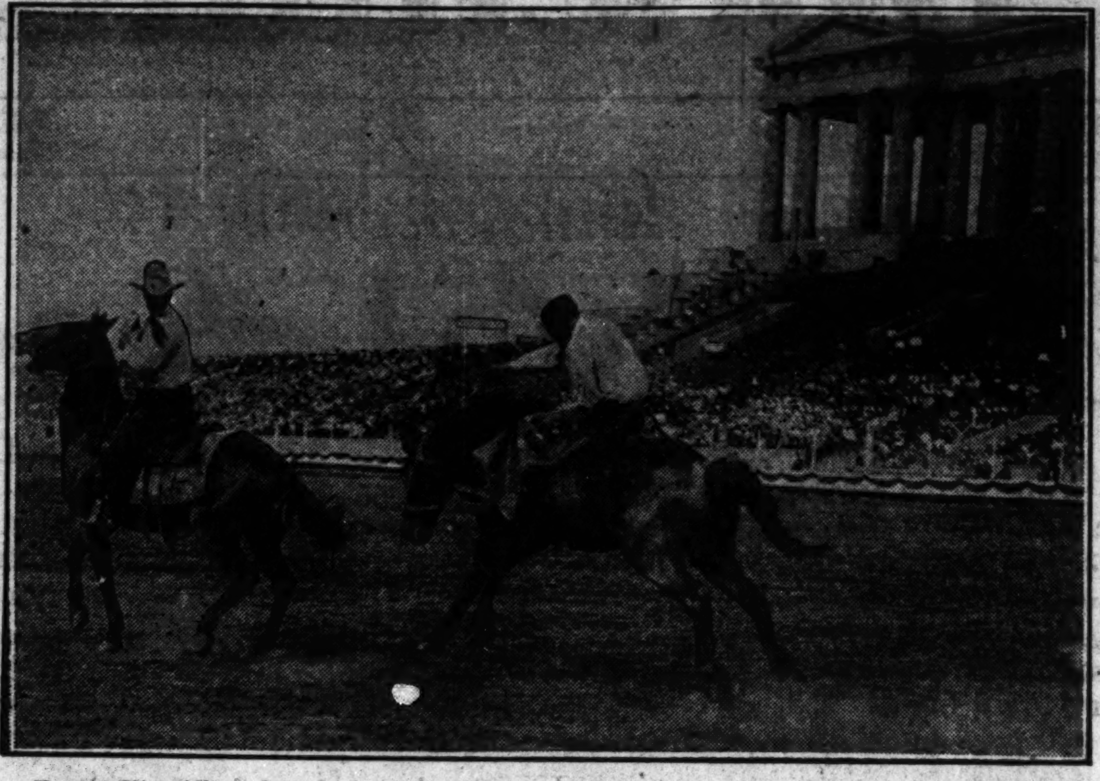
THOUSANDS SEE OPENING OF WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP RODEO



Nowata Slim riding a broncho in cowboys' contest at Grant park stadium. The picture shows a section of the vast throng that saw the opening performance.

15,000 WOMEN SHOUT APPROVAL AS RODEO OPENS

Comprise Half of Crowd at Brilliant Spectacle.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

Queen Victoria stopped her carriage in Rotten Row to chat with John L. Sullivan. But she never had a ring side seat at any of his prize fights.

Carmen sang a beautiful aria while her toreador was having a bad half minute with the bull. But she lingered outside the gate the while.

And Helen of Troy, for all the grief she started, remained discreetly away from her own war.

But Chicago women, grown more courageous, piled into the grandstands at the Grant Park stadium yesterday afternoon until they made up almost one-half of the 35,000 spectators at the opening performance of the rodeo. And the shouts of approval that hit against the sides of the Field Museum and bounced back again were just as soprano as they were deep bass.

Cow Girls Do Their Stuff.

The matriarchy established itself both in the enclosure, and up in the stands. For a dozen or so cow girls, straight, agile silhouettes in bright red, vivid yellow or deep purple, did their stuff and did it well. And 15,000 or so women, of all kinds of silhouettes, in every possible color, sat in the grandstand and did their stuff, without too many mistakes.

The lady in the taupe chiffon ensemble costume, sitting there, second from the end in the seventh row, soon learned that "blowing a stirrup" was no orchestral feat. But that it referred, quite simply, to the loss of a stirrup which disqualified a contestant in that particular event.

And the omniscient looking, in sedate black, didn't waste many minutes until she had found out that a man killer wasn't a Chicago wife; but was merely a wild horse with a homicidal mania that goes after mounted or unmounted men alike.

Flappers Grow Professional.

Even the flapper who stopped chewing gum long enough to confide to her escort that those "darling brass tips" on the horns of the steers were "just too cute," even she grew professional when she talked of a "sun fisher." Nothing difficult about that, she explained pridefully to her dancing partner. It simply meant a "bucker that twists his body in the air so the sunlight hits his belly."

But perhaps she'd peeked in the cowboy's lexicon before she started her lecture.

Anyway, it was a great day for the suffrage amendment.

When the cowgirls' trick riding event came around and the lithe girls shot out at crazy angles from the neck, the ankles, the flanks of their horses, cut daring geometric figures in the air, and swam into position on top of the animal, then the fattish lady toyed with her bag of candy and mused:

"Gee! That'd be a swell way to reduce."

Mabel Never Gets Hurt.

Apparently it is, for the cowgirls don't have to worry about getting on the scales.

Take Mabel Strickland, one of the most famous and best liked girls from the west. She's ever so slim; but back home she can rope a 1,500 pound steer and never have to go to a sanitarium with a nervous breakdown after it's over.

After the girls' relay race, in which her championship record was just edged out yesterday by Miss "Tad" Lucas, Mrs. Strickland punctured a few of those balloons of tradition which float about the public's opinion of a cow-girl.

For Mrs. Strickland doesn't romp up and down the prairie yelling and swearing. She stays at home and takes care of her six year old daughter, April. She teaches April to ride a pony, against the day when she will have a big horse. In the winter she, and her husband, J. H. Strickland, who is also with the rodeo, go down south and rest up for the round-up.

Roped Biggest Steers.

She has roped some of the biggest steers in the west; she has ridden some of the toughest horses in the country; yesterday she did some of the most dangerous tricks in the game. And when it was all over she pulled a powder puff out of her black satin blouse, fluffed up her curly bobbed hair, which had been pressed down tight under the big black sombrero, and admitted that: "There's one thing I'm afraid of. And that's lightning."

The western girls in riding boots didn't know much about the eastern women up in the stands. And the eastern women in the stands didn't know a great deal about the western women: But east met west in the person of Mrs. Tex Austin, wife of the director of the show. Seated in a box near the judges' stand, Mrs. Austin, in her pale yellow frock and her quite Parisian black hat, looked as if she had only seen a wild broncho on a postcard.

Mrs. Austin Knows Game.

But when she waved over at Tex as he rode by, a gigantic man on a gigantic horse, she would make a comment on this or that entry that showed how well she knew the game. Then, in the midst of a technical discussion of a "community loop" or "eating gravel," Mrs. Austin would swing the pendulum back to femininity. As for instance, when she saw Tex's royal purple neckerchief fluttering in the wind, she remarked:

"I told him that purple scarf of his was certainly in style these days."

Near Mrs. Strickland sat a girl in red. She was Mrs. G. M. Jones, bride of a week of "Butch" Jones, one of the judges. She nearly wore her wedding ring out clapping her hands in appreciation of every event.

And No One Faints.

Brides, sweethearts, wives, mothers, a grandmother or two, everybody was there, it seemed. Nobody fainted. Nobody shuddered. About the only thing that distracted the feminine attention away from the main stunts in the rodeo was the color display in the cowboys' shirts. The gay colors furnished forth many a fashion tip.

And, while we're on the subject, for the benefit of the several hundred women whom we heard go into ecstasies over the tall, husky man in the pale pink velvet shirt, all embroidered with red roses; yes, he does look just like a cowboy, but he lives right here in Chicago; and is an executive of a big loop department store.

SOCIETY INTERESTED

Even the thrills of the rodeo couldn't lure society as a whole from its weekend golf and tennis, its house parties and its rural festivities. But those of its members—and they were, for the most part, the younger generation—who did attend, filling the boxes next the wire railing, found plenty to amuse and interest them.

One of the gayest groups was that in the Frederick H. Scott box, where Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Welles [Mrs. Welles is the former Betty Scott], Miss Barbara Scott and her fiancé, Donald Welles, were hosts to a changing crowd of visitors. Mrs. Welles, who is petite and blonde, wore a frock of figured crepe, in black and sapphire blue, with a black wrap and hat, while Barbara, who is as fair haired and blue eyed as her sister, had chosen paprika red crepe and a silver and red turban, for the occasion.

Mrs. John Lee [before her marriage, Lydia Beckwith] and Miss Marion Holt, occupied the two other seats in the box during most of the show, the former in green and black, and the latter in navy blue with a small red hat.

Wm. Dawes' Family Attends.

In a box a little to the north, sat Mr. and Mrs. William M. Dawes, with two pairs of young marrieds as their guests: Mr. and Mrs. Neil Dawes and the Carl Fargos.

In the Frank Wetmore box, the young Horace Wetmores were hosts to the Ralph Hussaghs, Miss Gwendolyn and Frank Foss. Mrs. Wetmore was charming in a brown outfit, with a close fitting gold hat.

The H. F. Perkins and the Robert McArthurs were watching the various events together, and noticed in the audience were Mrs. Clair E. More and the B. W. Lords, the Gardner Catlins, the John Kings, the Robert L. Scotts, with Robert Jr. and the Charles Greys, the Richard Henry Littles, Benson Dushane, Russell J. Matthias, James Dougherty, Wilson Killough and William H. Comstock.

U. S. STUDIES HOW TO MAKE $1 BILLS LAST LONGER—FOR ITSELF

Washington, D. C., Aug. 15.—[Special.]—Intensive studies to find out how to make your $1 bills last longer are being conducted jointly by the bureau of efficiency and the bureau of standards.

Annually the government manufactures twenty carloads of these bills, but due to the quality of the material now used they wear out oftener than the experts think they should. Methods of preventing or retarding this wearing out are the subjects of the studies now being made.

The paper used by the government is made from rags, about 75 per cent linen and 25 per cent cotton, but experiments are being carried on to see if the government cannot employ other bases such as wood pulp, manila hemp, an African grass called esparta, ramie and Kansas wheat straw. Other manufacturers have been using these while the government has been clinging to rags.

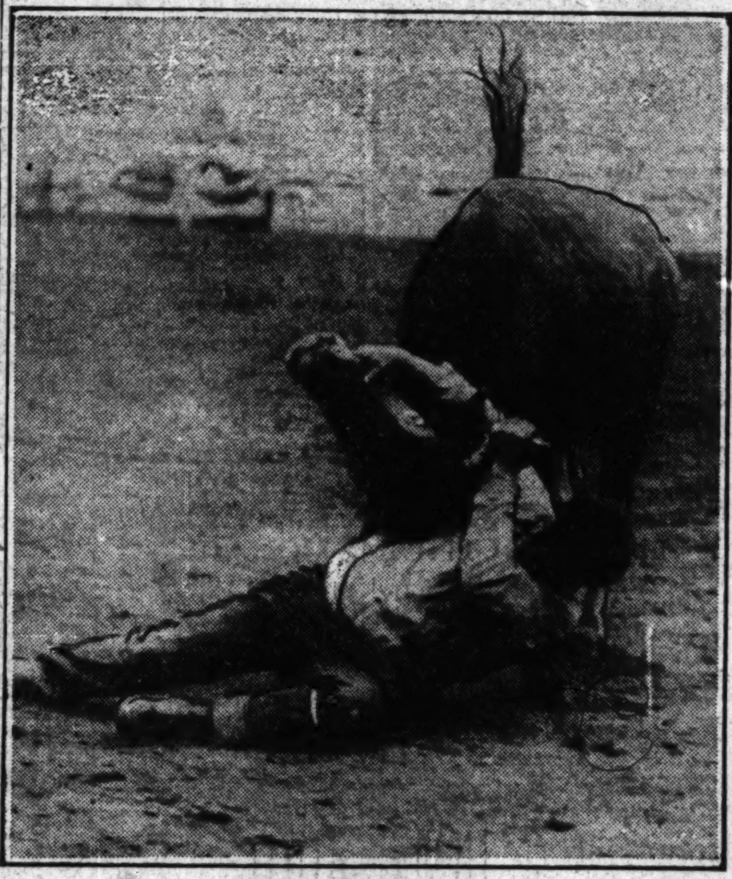
Hardships which paper undergoes at the bureau of printing and engraving are being studied. The veteran printers at the bureau claim the paper gets "tired" through the processes it constantly goes through while being made into money.

U. S. to Attack Problem of Oil Film on Sea Surface

LONDON, Aug. 15.—The American government intends soon to call an international conference to discuss the question of oil on the sea, which is killing thousands of birds and fish as well as annoying seaside residents and vacationists, according to information reaching the Evening Standard from a reliable source. Lord Rayleigh, a well known scientist, has estimated that a half million tons of oil is enough to cover the whole ocean area with a film of oil.

NEW OIL BURNER SELLS AT REMARKABLY LOW PRICE.

A remarkable new burner which costs only a few dollars and which heats any stove or furnace perfectly has been perfected by the International Heating Company, 119 South 14th street, Dept. 432, St. Louis, Mo. This amazingly simple and sturdy device works without electricity or gas. It burns a cheap oil, gives one of the hottest, quickest, and safest fires known, and can be easily slipped into the firebox of any stove or furnace by any one. The manufacturers want agents and offer a 30 days' free trial to every one. Write them today.—Adv.



Mr. Steer gives up in grip of Ed Herrion in one of the most thrilling of the events of the opening day, the steer wrestling contest.

RODEO BRINGS ROMANCE, DARING OF WEST TO CITY

sudden scurrying for cover of those around the pens and in the next moment a horse with a man astride comes charging wildly, kicking and rearing, plunging and twisting, into the arena. The man up, as they say in racing circles, is Calgary Hank Upton, and he appears to be a rider of parts, for in spite of all the horse can do he sticks until it is plain that he can stay as long as he wishes—and then he hops lightly off of his own free will and accord.

Calgary Hank is followed in quick succession by eight others, and here the crowd is given thrills galore. It is a conglomeration of men and horses hurtling through the dust, and it is evident that either some are not so accomplished as Calgary Hank or else they have tougher broncs, for at least half of them are, in the parlance of the range, soon "eating the gravel."

Action Every Minute.

And the events also are crowded one upon the other. This is action. There is not time to wait. Next comes the fancy roping and then follow in quick order the cowgirls' bronc riding, calf roping by the men, trick riding by the cowgirls again, more bronc riding—this time with saddles—by the men, the cowgirls' relay race, bulldogging or steer wrestling by the men, the chuck wagon race, steer riding, cowboys' trick riding, and, lastly, the wild horse race.

The girls are as supple and as accomplished as the men. Their relay race is an event of intense excitement in which, changing horses at given points, they dash at breakneck speed around the course; and in their trick riding they are over and under and all around their mounts galloping wildly.

The calf roping contest is one of speed and skill. The calf is released, the rider follows. The idea is, in the least possible time, to rope the calf, leap from the horse, and tie the animal so that it cannot move. It was done by the various entrants in from 27 seconds upwards.

Some of the humane societies say this is a brutal thing. The cowmen do not think so.

"Watch this," says one, as a man dashes after a young cow. The cow is caught on the lariat and thrown to the ground. The man is upon it and tying it fast.

Cows Wag Tails.

"Watch it," says the cowboy "See? It is wagging its tail. A little scared, but not hurt, and still wagging its tail during the whole business."

The most dangerous of the events are the steer wrestling (or bulldogging) and riding. In the former the steer is released and two men on horses dash along side it as it plunges along. Suddenly one man seizes the heavy steer by the horns, drops from his mount and drags along until the animal stands still. Then by main strength and skill he must twist its head until it gives way and falls.

Each man must catch and throw his steer in two minutes or less or he is disqualified.

Steer Riding Dangerous.

But despite the possible danger inherent in the events Wilson and the slightly injured photographer were the only casualties of the day.

Last night's performance was attended by more thousands and it was estimated the attendance for the day could be conservatively estimated at 75,000 or more. The hours of the show each day, including today are 3:30 p. m. and 8:30 p. m.

ADDRESS L C 103, TRIBUNE

FOUR ARRESTED IN $5,000 THEFT OF LAMP SHADES

With the arrest of four men, police of the South Clark street station believe they have solved the mystery surrounding the disappearance of $5,000 worth of shades from the plant of the Colonial Lamp Shade corporation, 538 South Wabash avenue.

Sergts. Michael Morley and James J. Sullivan arrested William E. Addleman, 3342 West 15th street, on a tip from his brother-in-law, B. E. Miles, secretary of the Colonial corporation. He was employed for several years by the firm.

A little later Barney Addleman, 2104 Washburn avenue, a brother of William, was taken into custody as he was attempting to sell a truck load of fixtures and shades. Harry Reskie, 626 Waveland avenue, and Jacob Ribsen, 1901 South Sawyer avenue, were also arrested. William Addleman is charged with stealing the merchandise and the others with receiving stolen property.

Navy Dirigible May Go to Hawaii in October

HONOLULU, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the bureau of aeronautics of the navy department, today said it was probable that one of the dirigibles, the Los Angeles or the Shenandoah, would come to Hawaii in October.

"READER OF SKY" SEES A BRITISH REPUBLIC IN HER STAR-GAZING

[Copyright: 1925: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Aug. 15.—"Interrogation of the heavens," in which Miss Belle Bart, a New York astrologist, specializes, has just revealed an amazing future for Great Britain, which includes nothing less than a British republic with Lloyd George and Winston Churchill at its head.

Miss Bart, who is director of the New York Academy of Astrology, has just arrived in London to read the horoscopes of politicians. Her advance information shows the following world-stirring events in store for Great Britain:

Lloyd George will come back, Stanley Baldwin, British premier, will not. Ramsay MacDonald might—but only for a short time. Winston Churchill has come to stay. Lord Balfour will be powerful until his dying day.

England will abolish free speech Sept. 29 this year, and the British republic will dawn in 1928 with Lloyd George and Mr. Churchill at its head.

In 1926 there will be improvement in the British export trade, Miss Bart says. A radical director of Mussolini's type will appear. Then the British republic will be established, to be followed in 1944 by permanent world peace, with one power ruling both hemispheres from a world parliament in America.

WOMAN AIDS IN MOONSHINE GUN FIGHT ON DRYS

Colorado Springs, Colo., Aug. 15.—[United Press.]—A spectacular gun battle between federal prohibition officers and moonshiners, with a woman fighting with the whiskey makers, took place in the mountains last night near Divide, Colo., resulting in one moonshiner being killed, officers returning here today, said.

Bullets whizzed thick and fast as five of the alleged bootleggers and the woman gave battle to four who had been waiting at the moonshiners' den.

Two of the alleged whiskey makers are in jail at Cripple Creek, a third in jail here and a fourth escaped.

William Riska, 45, rancher was killed.

Mrs. A. P. Fryslie, who had been living in a cabin near the scene of the fight with her husband, took part in the firing until the officers opened fire, when she is said to have dropped her gun and surrendered.

Three hundred gallons of whiskey, 1,500 gallons of mash and a still were confiscated.

AGED AUTO DRIVER HURT.

Warsaw, Ind., Aug. 15.—Orville Ball, 81, of Momence, Ill., was probably fatally injured near here today when he drove his auto into a truck traveling ahead of him. Mrs. Ball, who was with him, was unhurt.

MISSING FLYERS ARE SOUGHT IN DUNES REGION

Plane Said to Have Fallen There.

Search for three young aviators who have been mysteriously missing since hopping off from Chicago on July 28 for Detroit, Mich., was turned to the dunes region skirting the southeastern shore of Lake Michigan yesterday following a report that a plane was seen to fall toward the water near Watervliet, Mich., on July 29, the day after the boys set forth.

Dr. J. R. Brown, a Hammond, Ind., physician, reported seeing the plane fall. He said he thought little of the incident at the time, assuming that the aviator was merely going through a difficult maneuver. It was only after the recently renewed search for the lost airmen got under way that Dr. Brown attached significance to the plane's apparently dangerous dip toward the surface of the water.

Father Leading Search.

Dr. E. N. Cathercoal, professor in the University of Illinois school of pharmacy, is leading the search. His son, Morris Cathercoal, recent graduate at Kelly's flying field, Texas, is one of the missing aviators. The others are Earl P. Banker and Eugene Coutellier.

Dr. Cathercoal, together with the mother of the Coutellier boy, and other relatives and friends of the missing airmen, spent yesterday in combing the lake beach between Gary and Michigan City, Ind. They expect to make a thorough search of all the low sandy region bordering the beach as far as Ludington, Mich., some distance above Muskegon.

Before giving up the quest the searchers are determined to go over every inch of ground or water which would have covered the natural course of the aviators in their Chicago-Detroit flight.

Will Not Give Up Hope.

Dr. Cathercoal and the others refuse to believe the boys' plane dropped into the lake and that they were downed. They will leave no stone unturned to find the boys alive, they declare, persisting in the hope that the youths may be unconscious in some hospital. Another theory is that the boys decided while en route to continue eastward beyond Detroit. In this event, the searchers hope, they have simply neglected to communicate with their families.

DANGERS CIRCLE FRANCE; WAR IN MOROCCO GROWS

Army of 500,000 Needed to Crush Krim.

BY RAYMOND FENDRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Aug. 15.—The war in Morocco is causing the French government the gravest anxiety today. Not only the vast French possessions in northern Africa, but all the new foundations of Europe which Woodrow Wilson, Georges Clemenceau, and David Lloyd George laid down in 1919 are at stake, according to French statesmen.

The situation briefly is this: Abd-el Krim, backed by Turkey, Russia, and Germany, through the central Islamic committee in Berlin, has refused to discuss peace terms unless France and Spain recognize in advance the complete independence of the Riff and the Moors as belligerents instead of rebels.

The French and Spanish governments have flatly refused to accept these terms which would throw the whole Moroccan question wide open.

Sultan Is Theoretical Ruler.

In the Algeciras convention, which is an international treaty signed by Americans among the other powers, France and Spain recognized the full sovereignty of the Sultan of Morocco over their protectorates, and it would be a direct violation of the treaty to take away the sultan's theoretical sovereignty over the Riff. In case of a new deal both countries fear Italy will insist on a hand, if only to get concessions in Tunis and elsewhere.

Spain has little more to lose in Morocco, and the only alternative left to France is to fight Abd-el Krim to a finish.

What France Faces.

France is confronted by the following situation:

MOROCCAN FRONT — There have been local French successes, but Marshal Petain has reported to the government that it must mobilize several classes and send a total of 500,000 men to pacify the Riff.

SYRIAN FRONT—The Druse uprising in southern Syria is spreading, the situation at Damascus is very uneasy and the Turks are waiting to seize northern Syria.

INDO-CHINA FRONT—Strikers at the naval arsenal at Saigon refused to repair the cruiser Jules Michelet enroute to Chinese waters and the voyage was abandoned.

Red Mutiny on Warship.

NAVAL FRONT—It is reported that a communist mutiny broke out on the destroyer Montmirail, blockading the Riff, and the commander landed and jailed nine mutineers.

RUHR RHINE FRONT—The Rhine has been stripped of troops for Morocco and the Ruhr, which is a vital strategic region on account of its railways and war factories, has been abandoned.

POLISH FRONT—Germany and Poland, which is an ally of France, are at each other's throats over the exchange of populations.

There is a real danger, the French leaders claim, that at any moment Germany may suddenly annex Austria and demand the evacuation of the Rhine. The French army is the keystone for the Versailles peace settlement, and if France is unfortunate enough to become deeply involved in Morocco and Syria, Germany may be tempted to annex Austria and to commence a new European scheme of things.

Fear British Aid to Germany.

It is openly feared in France that England, which is anxious to secure German help against Russia, which is rapidly undermining the British empire, will not only permit Germany to annex Austria, but may even return many German colonies. The most clever French diplomats are convinced that England would sell her soul to get Germany's aid against Russia in the approaching war.

The French cannot permit Abd-el Krim to occupy a large slice of the French protectorate longer, because this would increase Krim's prestige with the native population and lessen France's.

As the rains begin in the middle of October, a French offensive must be started in earnest by the beginning of September. The French government must know soon whether there is any chance of peace or whether an offensive will be necessary.

Marshal Petain is going to Morocco about Aug. 18 to complete the reorganization of the French army and to supervise the operations. M. Malvy, who drew up the agreement with the Spanish government for the two countries to coöperate against Krim, has been sent to Madrid again to discuss better terms to offer to Krim.

5,000 Tribesmen Surrender.

TETUAN, Spanish Morocco, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Five thousand rebel tribesmen surrendered unconditionally to the French and Spanish forces which captured the Sarsar heights position. The prisoners constituted the entire Riffian garrison, which held the formidable and strategic Sarsar upland. The surrender is believed to have ended the Franco-Spanish military problem in the region where the two armies have joined forces.

French Take Town.

EL ARASSH, Spanish Morocco, Aug. 15. — (AP) — Combined Franco-Spanish military operations on the Loukkus river continued yesterday. The French troops captured the town of Tamalo without resistance. Natives of nearby villages met the advancing Franco-Spanish forces and submitted without fighting in order to avoid artillery and aerial attacks.

HEAT FELLS TROOPS

BY FLOYD GIBBONS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

FEZ, French Morocco, Aug. 15.—With the menace from Sarsar Heights removed on the west and the pressure relieved on the Ouergha valley in the center, the general situation along the north French Moroccan front has greatly improved, permitting immediate concentration against the eastern sector, where Riffian infiltrations still operate behind the French lines in the region north of Taza.

French reinforcements have taken part in the successful operations of the last few days around Ouezzan and they have performed remarkably well in the excessive heat. In the Sarsar fighting young white officers commanding Sengalese and Moroccan troops toppled over in the fields from the withering heat of the African sun.

Two days ago at Casablanca, where more reinforcements are still disembarking, 100 poilus marching through the center of the town from the docks fell in the street from sunstroke. There have been several reports of Senegalese Negroes being overcome while on the march on the road with heavy equipment.

Air Pockets Menace Flyers.

It is this heat with its accompanying dangerous air pockets that the members of the American escadrille will have to face. They are now in training at the Casablanca airdome.

Aviation has been of the greatest aid to the general staff in the last week and it has been responsible for the prevention of great losses among the infantry. Advancing through the burning ruins of air bombed villages, the poilus found the populations remaining in the greatest hysteria—unable to offer the slightest resistance.

The French officers are enforcing the strictest discipline against the Moroccan troops under their command. These troops consider looting as one of the natural prerequisites of the victor.

BRITISH WRITER SAYS FRANCE CAN PAY IF IT WILL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 15.—"With her finances properly and prudently managed and with a will to face taxation comparable to that of England, France can undertake the task of repaying the capital she borrowed both from us and America," Lord Bradbury, chief British delegate on the reparations commission and one of the foremost authorities on European finance, declares in the Sunday Express.

Lord Bradbury considers that under an arrangement comparable to that between England and America, but at rather more generous terms, France could discharge the bulk of her obligations without imposing an undue burden on the French people. France, he asserts, is relatively richer than before the war and 90 per cent of her war damage has been restored.

"I should be disposed to propose a funding arrangement on the lines of the Anglo-American settlement, but a rather lower rate of interest, more particularly in the early years," he writes. "The more generous interest rates I suggest would give France an abatement of at least 40 per cent, making a total sum to be repaid of about 380,000,000 pounds [$1,900,000,000].

FENG CRIES FOR YELLOW UNION AGAINST WHITES

Chinese Leader Turns on Christian Faith.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

FENG YU-HSIANG.

PEKING, Aug. 15.—A curious and interesting change of view on the part of Marshal Feng Yu-Hsiang, China's Christian general, who has an army of 200,000 men, of whom 50 per cent are Christians, with 99 per cent of the officers Christians, has taken place since the conflict with the foreign powers as a result of the clash in the international settlement of Shanghai.

There are signs confirmatory of rumors that he is about to abandon Christianity as a failure, and now he openly advocates a union of the yellow races against what he terms the aggression of the whites. While for a time trending toward bolshevism, he seems to have changed and to have cast his lot with the Japanese as the best hope of China.

Courted Christians' Favor.

Feng Yu-Hsiang never has had until the last few weeks any use for Japan and has courted assiduously the favor of Christian peoples—in other words, the white race, and particularly the Americans, whose missionaries have labored so hard for the Christianization of his fast-growing armies. One of the chief workers in this connection, aside from the Methodist missionaries, is Robert B. Galley of the Y. M. C. A., who has spent the greater part of his time in the last five years with Feng and his troops.

Since the departure of Mr. Galley the change in Marshal Feng has become more pronounced. On June 29 he issued a circular telegram in which he declared for warfare against unequal treaties, in which he said: "I had rather fight to the death than be controlled and ill treated. Therefore, I would like the military men of China to forget their factional differences and wage a war of liberation. I will not desert until the last man of my armies has perished."

Soldiers Chant War Yells.

On the next day, the first lunar anniversary of the Shanghai clash, he sent out his troops, marching in Peking, Kalgan, Suiyuan, and other cities he controls, armed with beheading knives and carrying appropriate banners reading, "Die Rather than Be Slaves."

On that day also, addressing several thousand of his soldiers in Kalgan, Marshal Feng delivered an impassioned address in which he declared his readiness for warfare upon Great Britain. Just a week later he issued a manifesto addressed to the Christians of the world pleading for justice, in which he said that Chinese were being killed "like chickens and dogs," and yet, while receiving the sympathies of non-Christians, labor unions, and like organizations, nothing had been heard from the Christians.

"Why is this?" he asked. "Is it because of race prejudice or because you Christians are afraid to speak out? I ask you Christians of the world whether the evening of your day is at hand." He read this manifesto to 17,000 of his soldiers at Kalgan, at the conclusion of which each soldier said he was willing to die in a war upon Great Britain.

Got Soviet Munitions.

A further change came over the Christian general late in July. He always has been regarded as anti-Japanese, and lately, since his feud with Chang Tso-Lin, who plainly had Japanese friendship, Feng Yu-Hsiang had inclined to Russian sympathy and did actually receive some aid in the way of munitions sent by the soviet.

When Feng Yu-Hsiang issued his challenge to Christianity Japan lost no time in playing up to the Christian marshal. Numerous Japanese agents journeyed up to Kalgan from Peking, with the result that all the Japanese journalists in Peking received an invitation from Feng Yu-Hsiang to be his guests. Here it was that he urged a union of the yellow races against the so-called aggression of the whites.

Marshal Feng said that China, though long offended by Japan, now was in a position to shake hands with her; there was no alternative for China, especially in view of the ever increasing aggression of the white peoples.

AUTO CRASHES INJURE MANY; ONE MAY DIE

More than 20 persons were injured, one possibly fatally, in automobile crashes in Cook county yesterday. There were no deaths in this county, however, up to midnight and the toll for the year remained at 456. In Lake county an auto went into the ditch killing a man.

Mrs. Louise Wiedmar, 24 years old, Laporte, Ind., suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries last night when an automobile in which she was riding collided with a southbound Cicero avenue car at Cortez street. At St. Anne's hospital it was said her chance for recovery was slight.

Many Others Hurt.

Five other member of that party, including the husband and 3 year old daughter of Mrs. Wiedmar, were seriously injured. Witnesses told the police that William Wiedmar, the husband, who was driving, failed to see the approaching car and drove straight at it. The automobile was demolished.

Two automobiles crashed head-on at 72d avenue and Higgins road, slightly injuring nine persons. William Wachsning, 2348 Palmer street, his wife and their two children, with Mrs. Wachsning's mother, Mrs. Dora Ketelson, were taken to the Dunning hospital. So were Axel Carlson, his wife and two children, occupants of the second car. The Carlsons live at 6257 Bradley avenue.

Two Held to Grand Jury.

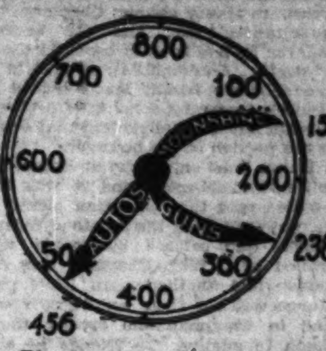
Ivar Lindgren, 5250 North Clark street, was held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter and Arthur Stock, 2008 Isabella street, Evanston, on a charge of accessory to manslaughter by a coroner's jury investigating the death of Miss Sarah Miller, 55, of 4242 Clarendon avenue, a school teacher. She was struck Friday night. The men fled after taking her to the Lake View hospital.

Crash After Gay Party.

Three youths and three girls, returning from a gay party at a north side café early yesterday morning, were injured when the car in which they were riding crashed into a tree at Sheridan road and Grace street. The injured are Dorothy O'Brien, 3524 Rokeby street; Riddell Lanserman, 7063 Greenview avenue; Dorothy Starke, 7640 Bosworth avenue; Hal Price, 1339 Albion avenue; Fred Schultz, 6524 Greenview avenue, and Kathleen Reinhart, 3230 Eastwood avenue. The latter is the "Patches" Reinhart whose name was mentioned in the Leopold-Loeb trial.

James Malget, who lived on the Waukegan road near the Cook-Lake county line, was killed between Deerfield and Clavey, in Lake county, when a second hand car he was testing with a view to purchasing turned over in the ditch beside the road.

HANDS OF DEATH



The hands of the clock indicate the number of deaths by autos, guns, and moonshine in Cook county since Jan. 1. Yesterday was the two hundred and twenty-sixth day of 1925.

RUSH RIOT SQUAD ON HOT TIP FOR CHAPMAN'S PAL

Order All Muncie Police Ready for Action.

BULLETIN.

Muncie, Ind., Aug. 15.—(AP)—All day policemen were ordered to headquarters shortly after 9:30 tonight and all men patrolling beats were ordered into the station. A few minutes later forty officers armed with riot guns started away from the station in high powered automobiles. Chief of Police Randolph refused to divulge the destination of his men, simply saying, "We have a hot tip."

Muncie, Ind., Aug. 15.—(AP)—The Nemesis which followed Ben Hance, 46, since he turned informer against Gerald Chapman early this year, caught him yesterday, and today, twenty-four hours after he with his wife were slain, George [Dutch] Anderson, accused by Hance of the double murder, is still at large.

Officers today tightened a circumstantial net around Charles [One Arm] Wolfe, Muncie man, arrested in connection with the slaying, by offering evidence to refute an alibi. Hance, dying, said Wolfe and Anderson shot down him and his wife. Wolfe, apprehended a few hours after the tragedy, said he had been in Muncie all afternoon yesterday. He is held in default of $100,000 bail.

Three residents of Yorktown, a small town four miles from where the shooting occurred, identified Wolfe as one of two men in a coupé they saw in Yorktown a few minutes before the murder. The fuel supply of the machine was replenished at Yorktown, they said. The other occupant of the automobile fitted the description of Anderson, they said.

Find Driver of Red Auto.

The driver of the red automobile which eyewitnesses said stopped near the scene of the shooting has been identified as a traveling salesman of Noblesville, Ind., but police declined to reveal his name. This man told officers he left Muncie late yesterday afternoon.

A few miles out of Muncie, he told officers, two small cars passed him and he believed they were racing. One of the cars drove around the other and stopped. The salesman said a man, who he believes was Anderson, walked back and engaged in a struggle with the man in the rear car.

As he approached to inquire into the trouble, the salesman said, a shot was fired at him by the man he identified as Anderson. The next shot was fired at Mrs. Hance, who fell. Several other shots were fired, the salesman said and then Anderson drove away rapidly. Police said they had permitted the salesman to return to his home.

If the slayer was Anderson, wreaking vengeance on one who had turned up his pal and accomplice, supplying evidence to bring about his conviction and condemnation to death, he had completely disappeared today.

Hance knew he was a marked man from the time he went to Hartford, Conn., to testify against Chapman, acquaintances say, and for several months he has lived in constant dread of death. Accomplices and friends of the debonair bandit leader added to Hance's terror by sending him covert threats and reminding him that death is the portion of the betrayer.

Hance lived on a farm at Eaton, ten miles from Muncie, and it was this isolated spot that Chapman picked to hide himself from the scores of federal officers and private operatives who trailed him. With Chapman was Anderson and another man. They paid Hance well for their board and room, and in Chapman the farmer found much to admire. To friends he said he did not like to testify against Chapman, but that he had to "clear my conscience."

Policeman Threatened.

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Policeman Alfred E. Atwater of New Britain who testified in the Chapman trial that he was an eyewitness to the murder of Policeman James Skelly of that city last October, intimated today that threats and attempts at intimidation have been received by him since he swore on the witness stand that it was Chapman he saw fire the fatal shot.

FIRST HOBO OF THE AIR BUMS 300 MILE FLIGHT

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 15.—[Special.]—Jake Richman, 17 year old Polish lad from Milwaukee, is the first hobo to "ride the rods" of an airplane. That is exactly what Jake did yesterday, twisting arms and legs around the undersupports of Maj. C. C. Moseley's plane at Las Vegas, Nev., and stealing a 300 mile ride to Los Angeles.

Sergt. Wood accompanied Moseley, who is commander of the California National Guard air service.

"I noticed a heavy drag on one side," Moseley said. "It made us take the air in a circular sweep. All at once Wood began pounding me and yelling and pointing at the wing end. As I live, there was a boy's head sticking up.

"We were high in the air, and I couldn't land with him underneath. It was the goshawfulest shock I ever got in my life. We motioned him to climb up, which he did slowly, and rode in the wing the rest of the two hours."

Richman's soft shirt was completely torn off his back by the wind.

ACID HURLED IN GIRL'S FACE; RIVAL FOR YOUTH HELD

Huntington, W. Va., Aug. 15.—[U.P.]—Elizabeth Cunningham, 23 year old stenographer, tonight is hovering between death and a life that would be marred by terrible scars on the face and body resulting from carbolic acid thrown on her by another woman today.

The girl was assaulted in the office of W. R. Hall, father of her fiancé, and while occupants of the building rushed to her aid her assailant escaped.

It is said the girl's life has been threatened by a person who demanded she return the engagement ring which young Hall had given her only a few days before.

The Cunningham girl blames Augusta Dorothy Loudenslager, 20, a department store sales girl who is being held by police. Dorothy was engaged to young Hall until a few weeks ago. Dorothy, claiming innocence, says she was at a dentist's office when the assault took place.

6,600,000 IN 1950.

Oscar Hewitt comes back from a series of inviews with officials of the public utility companies serving Chicago with the information that they are planning to serve a community of 6,600,000 in another twenty-five years. When the utility men talk about the Chicago of 1950, Mr. Hewitt explains, they are thinking of a homogeneous community which will extend far beyond the present boundaries of the city and far beyond the county lines. To the companies supplying electric power, for example, Chicago will reach into ten counties in three states.

To Chicagoans we do not believe the forecast will appear at all fanciful. It is made by hard-headed men who are staking their fortunes and their reputations upon it. They know that business and industry in Chicago are prospering because of Chicago's geographical position and they know that physical growth must follow. It is impossible to walk through any section of the city without becoming acutely aware of extraordinary building activity. Every part of the city is undergoing phenomenal development.

Of the 6,600,000 people who will be here in 1950, it is safe to say that 5,000,000 will live in Illinois. Cook county today has half of the state's population; in 1950 the population of Cook will approximate two-thirds of the total population of the state. The facts have merely to be stated to show the inevitability of political changes. Cook county today, with half the population, has a third of the representation at Springfield. When Chicago has two-thirds of the population, is it still to have only a third of the representation? And when Lake, Will, Du Page, and Kane counties have a million more residents than they have today, are they still to be given only the number of seats they now hold?

As a matter of fact, there are plenty of indications that if the matter were left with the legislature which has rejected the plain mandate of the constitution for fifteen years, the injustice would be continued. Downstate for some reason which we cannot entirely understand has a genuine dread of domination by Chicago. We are convinced that the downstaters have no grounds for their fears, whatever they may be, but we would be stupid, indeed, if we did not recognize that their feeling in this matter is strong.

It is equally true that Chicago will not put up indefinitely with the present unjust apportionment and that Chicago's clamor for justice will be echoed in the neighboring counties, whose representation cannot be increased without increasing Chicago's. We hope the injustices can be righted through constitutional means, but the time may come, if downstate persists in blocking progress, when the right of self preservation will be asserted by whatever means of resistance to injustice and state exactions a great community can use.

We already have suggested that a solution of the problem might lie in making a new state of Chicago and the neighboring counties in Indiana, Illinois, and Wisconsin. That suggestion was met with assorted jeers from downstate. It is significant, however, that the idea was favorably received in Chicago and in the great cities of the country generally. It attracted particular attention in New York City, which is also the victim of interference in municipal affairs by a state government in which its voice is arbitrarily limited.

This response suggests another possible solution. New York and Chicago surely, and perhaps other cities, might be given federal charters establishing their independence as municipal corporations. For this purpose New York would extend into New Jersey and Connecticut and Chicago might be extended to Milwaukee and Grand Rapids. With the constitutional considerations we are not at the moment concerned. We wish merely to point out that the development of New York and Chicago is not a matter of concern only to the states in which they chance to be placed. New York and Chicago are great cities and will become greater ones not because of contributions to them from New York state and Illinois but because of their strategic position with respect to the United States. Chicago and New York already are aware that their orderly growth and usefulness are being hampered by state interference and we believe the time will come when the rest of the nation will see that it is for the general good of the United States to give New York and Chicago a generous measure of autonomy. Federal incorporation may thus be the means of liberating the key cities from a hampering tyranny. Under such a scheme residents of Milwaukee would still vote as citizens of Wisconsin in an election of United States senators, but would be considered citizens of the district of Chicago in municipal affairs. The states concerned would not suffer materially and the gain for the cities and the nation would be great.

RAILROAD GUNS.

The announcement was recently made that the army is preparing to move the largest railroad gun in the world, a 14-inch rifle, from the proving grounds in Maryland to the Pacific coast.

It is natural that the railroad gun should reach its highest development in this country because it is here that this type of cannon has its greatest usefulness. Our country is susceptible of invasion from either ocean. It has so many harbors that the expense of fortifying all of them would be enormous. The railroad gun helps solve the difficulty by its mobility. It can be sent where it is needed. It has the additional advantage of being hard to silence. When the enemy appears to be getting its range it can move out of danger.

Railroad cannon are now a part of the defense of Hawaii and were commended following the recent naval maneuvers in the Pacific. They should prove of inestimable value, as well, in the defense of the Panama canal. For that reason we should complete a railroad line from Texas to Panama, by government subsidy if necessary. Over such a line the guns which defend our coasts could be sent to the defense of the canal should an emergency arise.

WHY THE PEOPLE LIKE COOLIDGE.

"Coolidge is as strong as he was last November," writes Arthur Evans as he is bringing his tour of observation in the midwest and west to a close. "In three weeks and 4,000 miles of travel not one word of criticism has been heard against the President and the comment is uniformly reflective of ace high satisfaction."

The phenomenon is persistent and general. It astonishes the callow "liberalism" which prevails among our writing folk. It irks the impatient reformer. It puts a muffler on the politicians whose tune is the sorrows of the plain people.

We do not think it a mystery. Our present prosperity is not all the explanation as the cynic avers. The President cannot be cheated of the credit for winning an approval seldom equaled by a political leader or conspicuous official. Mr. Coolidge's popularity is based, we are confident, on the fact that he has shown he is primarily and practically interested in the prosperity of this country and its people. He has shown that he respects the constructive forces which are creating and maintaining that prosperity and intends as far as he is able to free them from unjustifiable restrictions and exactions. He has insisted upon economy in public expenditure and he has tried courageously and persistently to lighten the tax burden in such manner as to encourage enterprise and productive effort. He has shown determination, all the more appreciated because it was not sensational, in opposing the politics of prejudice and class interest on behalf of sound principles of tax revision and he has voiced the general desire of the people to be let alone by politics and official beadleship.

Mr. Coolidge, it is quite evident, is under consistent pressure to turn from these important domestic interests, from this preoccupation with his grave duties as President of the United States, to the consideration of hypothetical responsibilities for saving Europe from itself, for the monitorship of its affairs and the underwriting of its peace and recovery. But the silent satisfaction in the President's course, which so astonishes the theorists, is as impressive evidence as a popular statesman has ever had that the nation is in no mood for international crusadership either of the emotional variety preached by some of our citizens or the more practical more quietly by others. Mr. Coolidge is approved as few Presidents have been because he seems to be minding our business and his own.

WHY IS A CRIMINAL?

There are today confined in the various penal institutions of the United States two hundred thousand persons who have been convicted of crimes ranging all the way from petty theft to first degree murder. And, assuming that the majority of crimes go unpunished, there should be nearly half a million people under such restraint.

Based on the annual increase in the number of murders throughout the country during the last five years, it may safely be stated that during 1926 there will be twelve thousand persons murdered in this country. If all these twelve thousand murders were to be perpetrated by a band of ten thousand criminals in a single day, the public reaction would serve to stamp out ninety per cent of the crimes in this country within thirty days. But because these killings are sporadic and scattered, the public consciousness is in no case awakened to a point where it attains an appreciable volume or potency.

In dealing with the crime problem various agencies have attacked the subject from different angles. Some have gone on the assumption that a criminal is a criminal from choice. Their contention has been that he prefers to be a criminal to being a law abiding citizen. They have gone on the theory that he would rather be immoral than moral.

Perhaps in the case of some this is true. But it does not apply to the vast majority. There are certain fundamental reasons why a criminal is a criminal. But none of these reasons can be regarded as all inclusive.

Environment has come in for a large share of credit as the cause of criminality. Yet we know that a child can be reared in an environment that is unquestionable, but if it possesses criminal tendencies they will assert themselves sooner or later. On the other hand, a child that is fundamentally sound will be left unaffected by the most vicious environment into which it could be cast. True enough, environment does in certain instances play a part, but we do not believe it has the importance that has been ascribed to it by many. We are coming to agree more and more with those who contend that a criminal is unmoral rather than immoral. His criminal tendencies are inbred—not cultivated. He is a criminal for the same reason that a lion is ferocious and a horse is docile.

There are certain basic embryologic, anatomic and physiologic reasons for criminal tendencies. Frequently these manifest themselves in the physiognomy of the individual, creating the so-called criminal type. Not always, however. A Wisconsin sheriff and his son were conducting two criminals to the penitentiary, and a man who knew none of the quartet was asked to point out the criminal. One of his selections was the son of the sheriff. Which goes to show that criminal tendencies do not necessarily leave their imprint on the face of the individual.

We are convinced, however, that there are certain fundamental causes of criminality that operate in certain individuals, and that the individual is in a certain measure powerless to resist. In other words, one so constituted is in a certain sense bound to become a criminal. Nevertheless these criminal tendencies could be held in check to a large degree in the same manner that all human beings are obliged to restrain those evil propensities of a minor character which lie dormant within all of us.

There is no question that the fear of punishment and the hope of reward are the most powerful deterrents of crime that we have. And since it would take generations to rid humanity of criminals, our only hope of reducing crime lies in the employment of those measures that will serve as an effective check on their operations. A criminal is just as amenable to suggestion in this regard as is the normal human being. And he will submerge his criminal tendencies very largely if he realizes absolutely that swift and certain punishment will follow his commission of a crime. But so long as he is led to understand that the chance of being caught is one in ten and the chance of being convicted one in a hundred, there is no effective brake on his natural and inborn tendencies.

The speediest way to reduce crime is to punish the perpetrator. And in the meantime we can consider and employ the ways and means that promise eventually to rid humanity of the criminal himself.

THE COMMUTER'S TICKET.

This part of summer is particularly and peculiarly the cottager's behind his garden walls. There he is the child of golden fortune with his garden truck at its best. This is his harvest home. The corn silk has dried and the roasting ears are full. The limas are full in the pod and the pot is kept boiling. The cottager knows that as a self sustaining being he is an illusion, but it is a sunny illusion full of brightness and wholesome loamy odors. He played his golf with a hoe.

The produce of the garden requires a close by kitchen. The middleman changes the chemical nature of the garden truck. It can't be helped. Time is the essence of quality and the cottager can step from his garden plot to the kitchen with his corn and beans. His estate is as good as that of the neighboring baron. Cottagers and kings are in equal days when the corn is ripe and the cicada sings.

NOT THE WAR OF THE ROSES.

The horticultural board of the department of commerce decreed three years ago that after Jan. 1, 1926, no more narcissus bulbs should be imported. The time for the embargo to be effective is approaching, and importers and friends of the narcissus are beginning a fight against the decree.

Importation for propagation is permitted, but the people who want the narcissus say it will take years before the home production can supply the market. Dutch and French growers sold about 80,000,000 daffodil bulbs here last year, it is said, and the American production was less than 1,000,000. That cannot supply the American home garden and the flat dweller's Christmas bowl.

The paper white narcissus is about the easiest flower a city dweller can produce for the house in winter. A few bulbs and some pebbles in a bowl of water will give him the odorous blooms which match the snow outside in the first ten minutes of the latter before the soot gets to it. In the garden the daffodil comes at the first call of spring.

The narcissus is being barred to protect the onion, and thus the conflict of interests and emotions becomes stupendous. The horticultural board says that the imported daffodils may introduce the eel worm, and if that gets into the onion beds there will not be so many American citizens trying to step wide of the people to whom they are talking. Friends of the daffodil say that the narcissus has been coming to America for two hundred years and has yet to hurt an onion.

The volume of protest is directed to President Coolidge and Secretary Jardine. It is represented that international reprisals are threatened. Many citizens will find their heartstrings torn by opposing pulls. It may come to a plebiscite, being a most proper subject for popular determination. Pro daffodil. Pro onion. Give us both.

AMERICA THE COLONY.

Rear Admiral Fiske stated a blunt truth the other day when he told the Association of Republican Women that this nation is incredibly quixotic in its foreign relations. "The very men," he said, "who would not sign any agreement in private life unless they were sure it could be enforced have seemed willing to bind their country to any attractive agreement whatever with a foreign nation."

This is a thrust at the New York banking houses which specialize in international finance. These bankers, their lawyers, and their social satellites are the leaders in the attempt to internationalize America. They fancy themselves high minded patriots and pursuers of peace, but in fact they are the unfortunate victims of a mental habit which may be called colonial-mindedness. For several generations they have served as the American agents of European financiers, investing Europe's surplus capital at the highly attractive interest rates afforded by American transportation and industry. These bankers have come in time to think of this country as a colony of Europe, created to make Europeans rich and happy. The bankers will not say so; but their action in urging the United States to disarm and join the league and the world court clearly indicates their belief that it is our duty to sacrifice our own interests if need be to benefit the countries which really hold their allegiance.

In another generation the bankers trained to think of America as Europe's to exploit will have passed. Their successors may be counted upon to think differently, because this country is financing itself now, and is in addition exporting capital. Americans meanwhile must be on their guard against the propaganda of the colonial minded and their more or less pious proselytes.

A FEARLESS GENERATION.

[Peoria Transcript.]

One thing this scientific era has done for civilized man; it has removed his superstitious fear of new and strange objects. To a generation which accepted the advent of the airplane and radio with much enthusiasm but very little awe, it seems impossible that a mere steam locomotive could have inspired people with panic fear.

During the recent celebration of the centenary of the railroad in England a picture of an early steam engine was shown, accompanied by a description of the popular reaction to its first appearance. The train was known as "Locomotive No. 1."

"The immortal No. 1, having been constructed at Newcastle, was brought to Aycliffe in a large truck drawn by many horses. In many bosoms the arrival caused the greatest consternation. They fled in abject terror, many hiding themselves in the church, others seeking consolation in the bottle, while some of the more courageous climbed into trees and at a safe distance from the monster's claws watched it pass."

Some persons fear that the spirit of wonder has been outlived along with this unwarranted fear. This would be regrettable if true. But is it not possible that a finer spirit of wonder will develop as fear is outgrown and deeper understanding takes its place?

SHE WAS.

Mistress (indignantly)—Jane, whatever did you mean by wearing my low necked evening dress at the bus drivers' ball last night? Really, you ought to have been ashamed of yourself!

Jane (meekly)—I was, mum. You never 'eard such remarks as they made.—Bethnal Green News.

THESE FLAPPERS!

He (in pessimistic mood)—You know, old thing your father will never hear of our marriage.

Modern Girl—O, he's not a bad sort, I think we ought to tell him!—Passing Show, London.

How to Keep Well.
By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, if matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. Where space will not permit or the subject is not suitable, letters will be personally answered, subject to proper limitations and where a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. SNAKEROOT POISON.

GOV. SMALL has ordered a campaign against white snakeroot in his state. This is because within recent months several people have died in Illinois from drinking milk produced by cows poisoned by this weed. The name of the disease in human beings is milk sickness. In cows, it is called "trembles."

White snakeroot is a weed 1 to 2 feet high and with white flowers. The weed grows on shaded, wet land, usually near the borders of pastures. Cows will not eat it, as a rule, until rather late in summer when the pastures are dry, the grass is poor, the flies are bad and the weather is hot. In these circumstances they will sometimes eat this weed rather than go out into the hot sunlight after grass.

Dr. Mark Greer reports two fatal cases. Mrs. M. B. W., after drinking milk from a sick cow, became restless and weak, developed nausea, vomiting and intense thirst. This lasted a few days, then she went into a coma which lasted twelve days. She died.

The cow died the next day. Soon after, Dr. Greer saw another family poisoned by milk in a nearby neighborhood. The mother died first. Three days later a 16 year old daughter died. The father, three boys and a 3 year old baby were very ill with the same symptoms. These five members of the family eventually recovered.

Mr. M. had lost 50 cows and 25 sheep from "trembles" during the time he had lived on the farm where his wife and daughter died.

Milk sickness was formerly very prevalent in the United States. Many prominent men, including Abraham Lincoln, Gov. Chase Osborn and Dr. M. C. Clay have lost members of their immediate families from it. That it is again causing trouble may be due to a tendency to neglect pasture lands.

After white snakeroot had been proved to be the cause of the disease the University of Illinois undertook to find out just how poisonous the weed was. A cow, fed 12 pounds of the weed on each of five days, died in one week with "trembles." A horse fed 6 pounds a day for five days died on the sixth day.

A ewe, nursing a lamb, was fed a pound a day for 13 days, and died on the fourteenth day. The lamb died on the ninth day.

Dr. Greer advises the following method of preventing milk sickness:

Refrain from drinking milk and eating butter from cattle that graze in infected pastures.

After July 1 advise farmers to pull the white snakeroot. If the plants have seeded, they should be pulled out and burned.

Pasture no cattle in infected fields after July 1 of each year.

SUNBURN—BEFORE AND AFTER.

Sunburn writes:

1. Will you kindly publish the best treatment for severe sunburn?

2. Is there anything that will prevent it?

REPLY.

1. Grease with any soothing ointment except those which contain carbolic acid. Dust with dusting powders. Avoid heat and bright light.

2. Grease your skin before you expose it.

CALL FOR WATER MAINS.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—[Friend of the People.]—In the Forty-first ward they are putting in water extensions between Austin and Sixty-fourth avenues. On Meade avenue, close by, are four houses. Why can we not have the water mains extended out here? P. W.

Regarding water pipes on Meade avenue, a survey recently made shows that there would not be sufficient revenue to warrant laying a main in this street under the present city ordinance. As soon as more buildings are constructed, such a main will be laid.

H. L. LUCAS,
Superintendent Water Pipe Extension Bureau.

SQUEEZING THE TURNIP.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I recently placed an order with a machine shop for the construction of a mechanical model and gave a deposit of $20 on the work. A few days later a mortgage on the shop was foreclosed and the owner put out of business. He claims he had done work on my order to the amount of the deposit, but this work was not turned over to me, and I wish to know if he can be compelled to return my deposit.

J. R. O.

If it was understood that the model belonged to you while it was being worked upon then you would be entitled to claim the model itself, but if you were simply to receive the model when it was completed then your present claim is only for damages for breach of contract which presumably would be uncollectible. A mortgage previously placed upon the shop would not cover your model.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

NORTH AVENUE CAR LINE.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—[Friend of the People.]—Is there any prospect of having transportation on North avenue from Austin to Harlem in the near future?

B. S.

The extension of the North avenue line west from its present terminal, Austin avenue, is not at present contemplated.

LEO J. WINIECKI,
Commissioner of Public Service.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

60 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 16, 1865.

NEW YORK.—Great excitement prevails in financial circles and a number of failures are reported, among them Charles Graham & Co. and Morris Ketchum & Son. Explaining the Ketchum failure one statement was that Edwin Ketchum, a son of Morris, had abstracted bonds and securities to the amount of more than $2,000,000 and left for parts unknown. Another was that he had forged gold certificates to the amount of $2,500,000 and that the forgeries had been passed on to banks which will be the principal losers. Young Ketchum had been in charge of the Graham business during Graham's illness and it was said Graham has been victimized $285,000. It seems certain the son made way with not less than $2,000,000.

CHICAGO.—Gen. Grant left Detroit yesterday afternoon for Chicago. Dispatches from cities along the route are that he is making a triumphal trip, large crowds having greeted him at Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor, Jackson, Albion, Marshall, and Kalamazoo. He is due to arrive here at 6:30 this morning and will remain here two days.

ST. LOUIS.—Gen. Sherman is in the city. After his arrival a number of his old friends started a movement to purchase him a home here. In a short time $20,000 was raised. Later, however, it was decided to deposit the money to his credit in a bank and he was directed to make his own purchase with it.

WASHINGTON. — Chief Justice Chase is expected to arrive here within a few days to confer with President Johnson on the time and place of holding the trial of Jeff Davis before a civil jury.

CHICAGO. — McVicker's theater, which has been remodeled and refitted during the vacation, will reopen tonight with Boucicault's comedy, "Old Heads and Young Hearts."

CHICAGO.—The ball committee for the opening of the Chamber of Commerce on Aug. 30 organized as follows: President, George M. Kimbark; vice president, S. D. Cogswell; treasurer, H. Botsford.

CHICAGO.—W. L. St. John, superintendent of the Chicago and Rock Island railroad, died of consumption at the age of 33.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 16, 1900.

WASHINGTON.—Correspondence of a treasonable nature, giving aid and encouragement to the Filipino rebels captured by Gen. Funston in one of his raids was made public. It proves beyond a doubt that Montague R. Leverson of the Anti-Imperialistic league of Boston not only encouraged the Filipinos in their war against the United States, but recommended that some American army officer be seized and tried for piracy. Leverson advises the Filipinos that President McKinley is carrying on the war without authority.

WASHINGTON.—It was said on reliable authority that the Peking government would designate some high official to meet the commanders of the allied armies at Tung Chow and agree with them on measures for the safe conduct of the members of the foreign legations at Peking.

NEW YORK.—As the result of the fatal stabbing a few days ago of Policeman Robert J. Thorpe by a Negro, a race riot of the most serious character is in progress in the Negro district. From 26th street to 50th, between 9th avenue and Broadway every Negro who showed himself was badly beaten. The Negroes were dragged off the cars, beaten and stoned. Chief Devery rushed 400 police reserves into the district which is being overrun by mobs. The police freely used their clubs. The Negroes are all barricaded in their homes.

LONDON.—To circumvent the coal ring extensive works are being erected at Barking to make fuel out of ordinary Thames river mud. The new combustible will be sold under $4 a ton.

CHICAGO.—Miss Jane Louise Winslow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Z. R. Winslow, and Charles Laurence were married at St. Alban's church. Another wedding was that of Miss De Etta Arlina Fisher, niece of Mr. and Mrs. J. Le Roy Francis of the Hollenden hotel, and Victor M. Herrick, which took place at the hotel.

CHICAGO. — The home of Daniel Levi, an artist, at 357 Thirty-Fourth street, was destroyed by fire and Levi, his sister, Mildred, and their cook are missing. They are believed to have perished.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 16, 1915.

LONDON.—The entry of Bulgaria, Roumania and Greece into the war is expected momentarily as a result of the massing of Austro-German forces on the Serbian frontier within striking distance of Roumania. The crushing of Serbia and the forcing of a way through the Balkan peninsula to Constantinople is believed to be the object of the large armies gathered by the central powers in southeastern Hungary.

WASHINGTON.—The United States has rejected the Austrian demands for an embargo on the exportation of arms and ammunition. The Germanic nations have been told that under no circumstances will this country take action to curtail such exportation, which it holds would be unneutral.

CHICAGO.—"There is no reason why dirt should not be flying right away in building loop subways," Mayor Thompson said as he announced that his fall message to the city council will feature subways and schools.

CHICAGO. — John R. Thompson offered $100 to a healthy man who will give some of his blood for infusion into the veins of Adolf A. Doleys, superintendent of the Thompson restaurants, who is near death from a stomach hemorrhage.

CHICAGO.—The poolroom of Buck Weaver, star shortstop of the White Sox, was going at a little too merry a clip at 5 o'clock in the morning and the police raided it. Eleven men were booked for "gambling with dice," and Lep Hartford was charged with keeping a gambling house.

CHICAGO.—It was announced that the marriage of Miss Imogene Helen Colby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Colby, 1253 Thorndale avenue, and Percy G. Chandler will take place on Aug. 21 at St. Rita's church.

NEW YORK.—The Rockefeller institute announced, through the Academy of Science at Washington, a discovery by two of its investigators whereby immunity from cancer, it is hoped, may be obtained.

BERLIN.—The North German Gazette officially denies the stories circulated from London that Emperor William, through the king of Denmark, has offered peace to Russia, which the latter country has rejected.

ALGONQUIN.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—Just a word of praise for the work and workers at Camp Algonquin. It is a wonderful place and a great piece of work is being done there. Many of the workers are not paid for their services in money, but the joy and satisfaction of doing for those people and of seeing them enjoy themselves is certainly the most gratifying pay one could receive. A great deal may be learned from those people. So many nationalities are represented there and they all live together, each gaining somthing valuable from the other.

And the superintendent! She's little, but, O, how full of energy, willingness, and ability to do whatever there is to do! She is a joy to all with whom she comes in contact.

ONE WHO LOVES THE WORK.

RAVINIA.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—Regarding your editorial, "Ravinia Park," in today's paper, I beg leave to say that we music lovers all appreciate the hard task Mr. Eckstein has to bring about year after year the constantly improved performances. Words must fail in expressing Chicago's music lovers' appreciation, but——

Chicago has not Ravinia. To an ordinary music lover a trip to Ravinia, even once a week, is a prohibited luxury—$2 North Shore fare, $1 admission, and at least $1.10 a seat, totals $4.10, plus carfares to and from North Shore Electric. Only those living in the north shore suburbs or Chicago folks who are blessed with automobiles get the benefit.

I have a simple plan. Why cannot the county build a shell or wooden theater at the Randolph street bridge near the Desplaines river, a spot that equals Ravinia in all its aspects, get the county to appropriate enough money for it, and get artists who will sing for less than $1,000 per night and will render just as good performances as some of the pampered stars? No, it is not a dream—it could be done. Then Chicago would have a Ravinia of its own, accessible by street car, "L," and auto, twenty-five minutes from anywhere. The investment will do more to the gratification of Chicago's inhabitants than sea lions, bears, and hippos which the county is now supplying the forest preserve.

SIDNEY GLASS.

A HERO AND A GOOD CITIZEN.

Riverside, Ill., Aug. 7.—I do not know whether you know what a Slip Scraper is or not, so I must explain that it is one of those tools that is used to excavate basements with. It has two handles attached to a scoop, is pulled by horses, and the operator holds onto the handles while the scoop is filling with dirt. The operation of a scraper is considered a hard job for any man.

Near Barrington, Ill., I saw a one armed man doing this work, and doing it well, so well that I stopped to talk with him, and doing so I noticed that he had lost one eye. The only complaint that I could get out of this man was that his scraper was old and dull. He was cheerful, and evidently contented with his work.

On inquiry I also learned that he has been without his arm for twenty years, that he lost an eye while working a few years ago, that his wife died about two years ago, leaving him with three young boys, and last fall he was left without a home when his house near Plato Center, in Kane county, was burned down.

The above seems to be enough for one man, but not to this one. He received a wound in the side somehow, that has never really healed up, and he cannot afford to give it the proper time to heal. He acts as a night watchman on a concrete road job near Barrington, to make extra money, and the thing that makes this man do all this, is that he does not want his children to have to go to a charitable institution.

If this man is not a hero, and a good citizen, I would like to see one.

RICHARD EMMETT.

THIS LAND OF SCHEMERS.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—Being a student of history, I am unable to control myself after seeing the cartoon in Sunday's TRIBUNE. This cartoon is but a variation of the general type of all your cartoons based on international subjects in which the United States as a lamb (innocence) is among wolves (scheming diplomats of European countries).

To begin with, this is an insult to the intelligence of the great men who have run the machinery of our diplomatic department in years past and who are running it now. The diplomats of the United States have so guarded the interests of the country in the past that one cannot recall an instance where we got the worst of the bargain.

The lamb is just as able to take care of itself (witness our industrial domination of the world) as are the wolves of Europe. Our position in the commercial world of today could not have been reached had not our diplomats schemed to meet the scheming of foreign diplomats.

In your editorial, "For Minding Our Own Affairs," you say we have minded our own business. The reason is it has been to our advantage to mind our own business. Now our commerce makes it our business to deal more with other nations than we have in the past. We now control the gold of the world. It is not likely that a nation which has the brains to do such a thing will, through its innocence, let it be stolen by scheming foreigners.

I think, too, that the United States is nearer perfection than any other nation. We are not, however, perfect. This may seem un-American, but without criticism a nation becomes self-satisfied, the first step on the road to utter decay and downfall. Moral: The United States is a schemer, too. THOMAS E. GARRISON.

FREE—WALK IN.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—The other evening I was with a friend at Riverview park. Walking around, we saw a sign reading, "Free—Walk In." It was a world war exhibition. There was nothing in it that we hadn't seen before, so we walked toward the exit, where there was a sign, "Supported Entirely by Donation." I always understood that one could give whatever sum was convenient, as a "donation," and that a "donation" is not compulsory.

Leaving, we gave a dime to a woman in charge—or supposedly in charge. As we were making our exit this woman grabbed my friend by the arm and wanted to know "how he got that way, by giving only a dime." He asked what was wrong, and she said, "You're not getting away with that, young man. You give a quarter or you can't get out." She wouldn't let go of his arm until he paid the quarter. MARY A. LANG.

THE ZOO.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—I have visited many zoos throughout the country, generally with a feeling of sympathy for the animals enclosed therein, but every visit to the one at Lincoln park is not alone a privilege but an assurance of the welfare of the animals. Their quarters are so commodious and well cared for, the animals, every one of them, show the happy result of kindly personal attention. And their feed, of its varied kinds, is always prime, the best the market affords. I have frequently visited the zoo at feeding time.

RODNEY RICHMOND.

THE POOR USE HARD COAL.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—The optimism of your editorial on the pending anthracite coal miners' strike was without question unphilanthropic.

"Why worry?" you ask. The poor classes of this or any American city, for that matter, have only one means of winter heating, the coal stove, in which hard coal is the principal fuel. Surely these, the impoverished, have need for worry. WILLIAM KAUFFMAN.

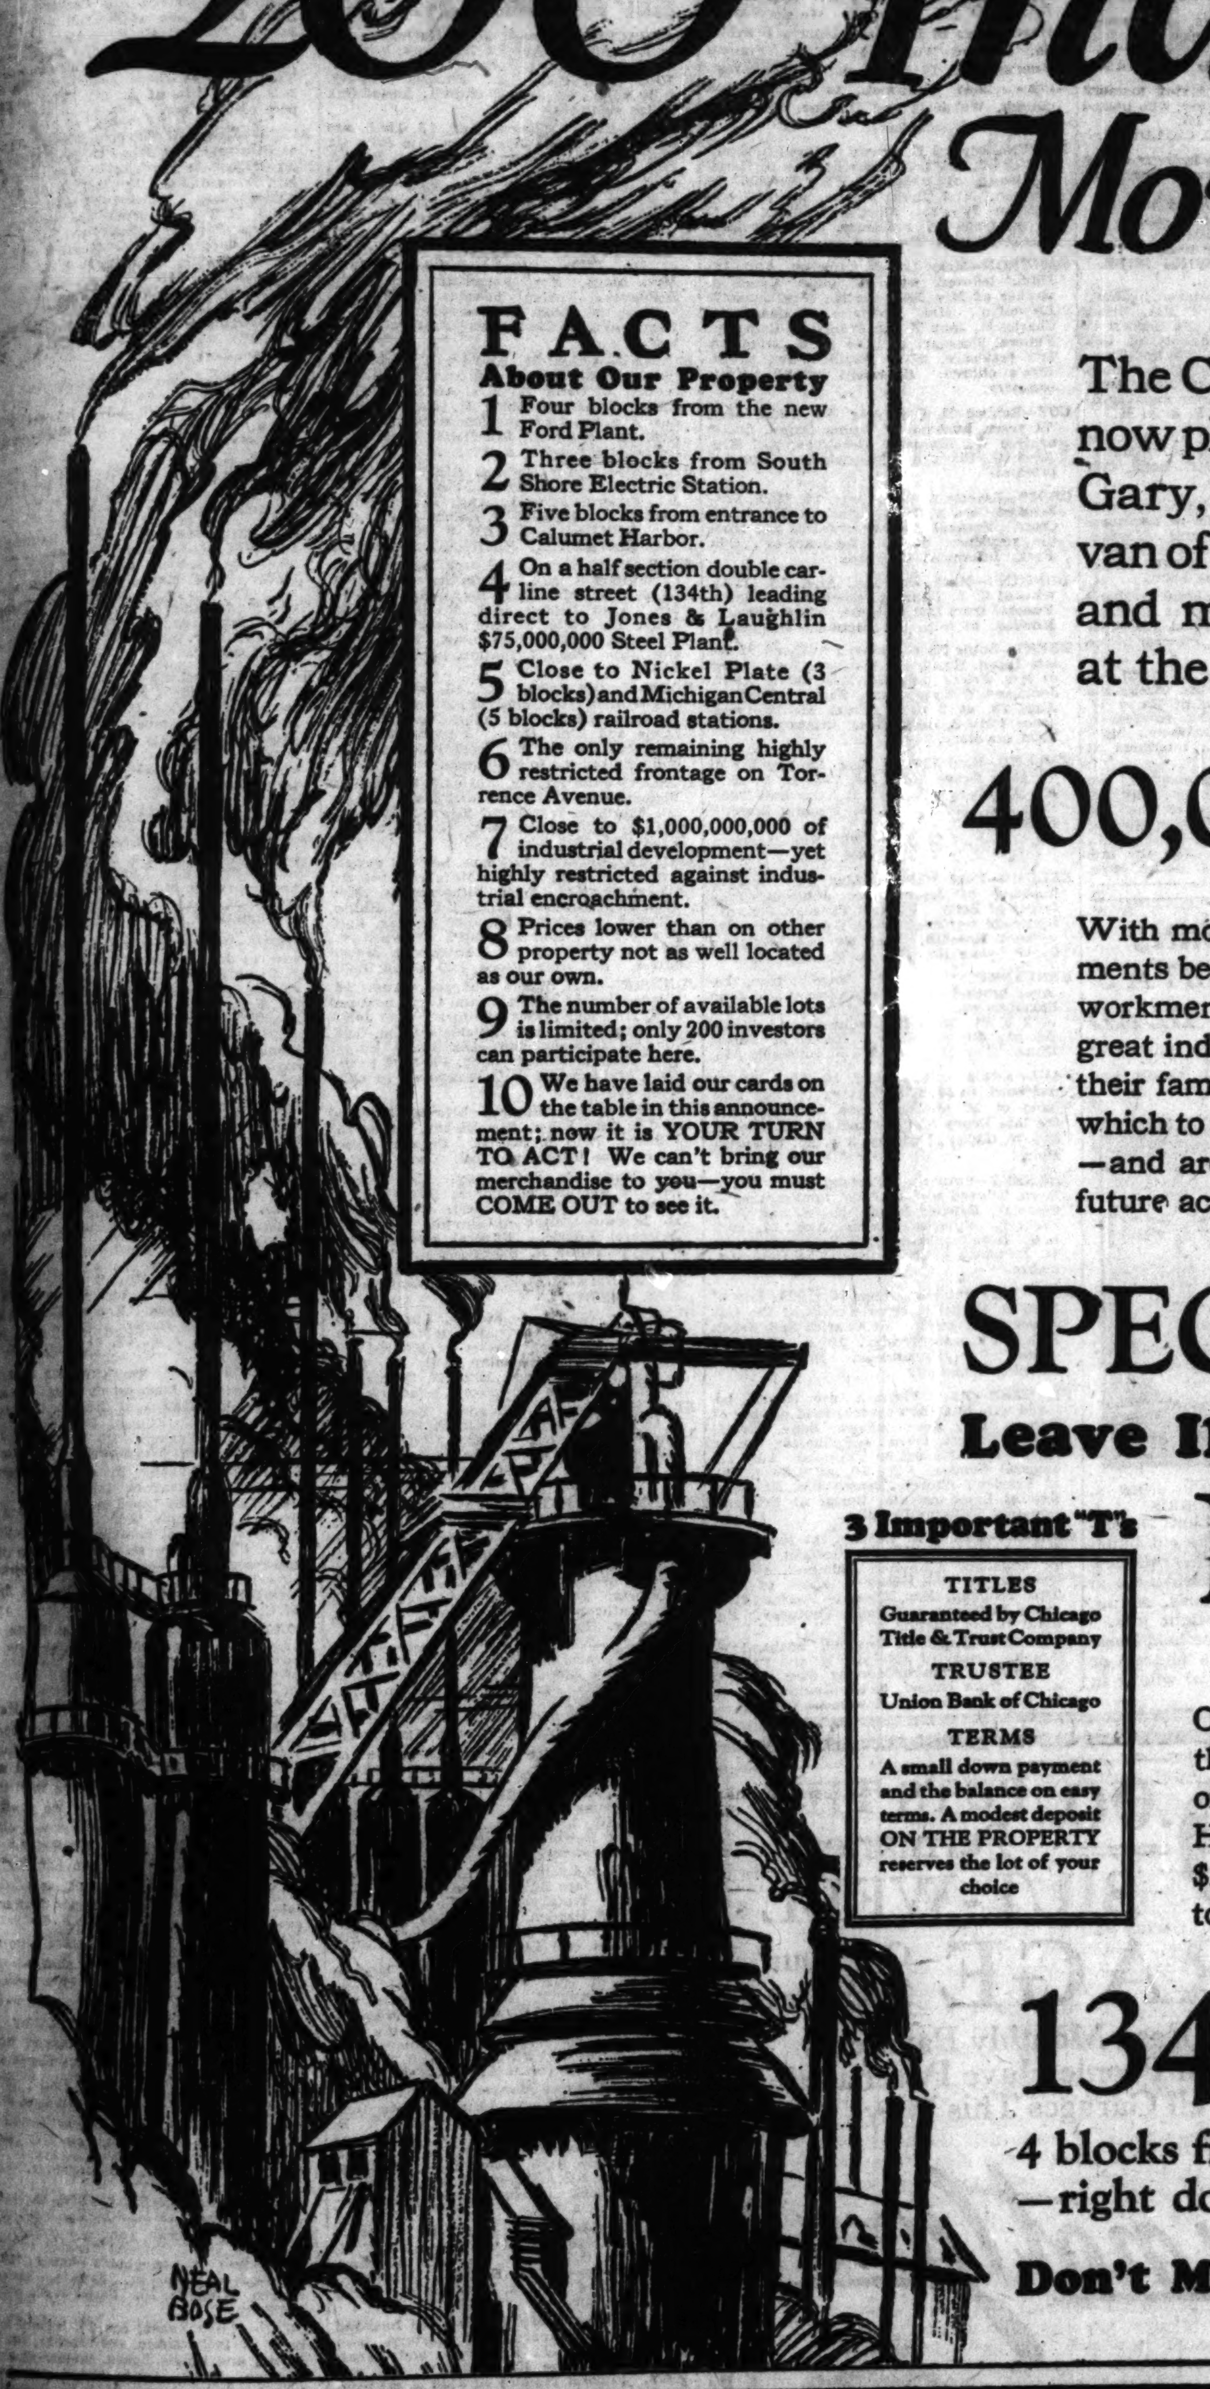
200 Industrial Plants Moving into CALUMET



FACTS
About Our Property

1 Four blocks from the new Ford Plant.
2 Three blocks from South Shore Electric Station.
3 Five blocks from entrance to Calumet Harbor.
4 On a half section double car-line street (134th) leading direct to Jones & Laughlin $75,000,000 Steel Plant.
5 Close to Nickel Plate (3 blocks) and Michigan Central (5 blocks) railroad stations.
6 The only remaining highly restricted frontage on Torrence Avenue.
7 Close to $1,000,000,000 of industrial development—yet highly restricted against industrial encroachment.
8 Prices lower than on other property not as well located as our own.
9 The number of available lots is limited; only 200 investors can participate here.
10 We have laid our cards on the table in this announcement; now it is YOUR TURN TO ACT! We can't bring our merchandise to you—you must COME OUT to see it.

The Calumet Industrial region is alive with activity. More than 200 plants are now planned and under construction in this great zone of industry. Ford, Insull, Gary, Markham—names that stand for ACTION and PROFIT are leading the van of capitalists and builders who foresee the gigantic possibilities for business and manufacturing profits afforded by CALUMET'S STRATEGIC LOCATION at the junction of rail and water transit—"the industrial heart of America."

400,000 Workers Protect Your Investment

With more than $1,000,000,000 in projected developments being rushed into Calumet, more than 400,000 workmen will be required to man the plants of the great industries locating there—and these men, with their families, must have HOMES and STORES at which to trade. Shrewd investors foresee this NEED—and are BUYING RIGHT NOW at the hub of future activity.

The bird's-eye map at the bottom of this announcement shows a magnified conception of our choice property at 134th Street and Torrence Avenue—and its relationship to Calumet INDUSTRY, to THROUGH HIGHWAYS—to RAIL and WATER transportation. You can see this great property, the CREAM of CALUMET, at no expense or obligation to yourself by taking our special trains to and from the property TODAY—as our GUEST.

THREAT TO FIRE SEWER WORKERS MAY END STRIKE

Budget Forbids Meeting Demands.

Striking city sewer cleaners and repairers were warned yesterday by Commissioner of Public Works A. A. Sprague to return to work tomorrow morning if they would avoid dismissal from the city's service. Col. Sprague's ultimatum to the men who walked out last Wednesday was delivered by his spokesman, George E. McGrath, superintendent of sewers, to a delegation of the strikers headed by Peter Fosco, president of the Sewer Workers' union.

Budget Exhausted.

In view of the city's present financial condition no wage increases nor more than five days a week employment may be expected by the sewer workers for the balance of the current year or until the necessary financial provision can be made in the 1926 departmental appropriation bill. The $40,000 required if the sewer workers were employed six days a week until the end of the year was not included in the midyear supplemental appropriation bill for the department, in keeping with Mayor Dever's demand for strict economy in all municipal expenditures.

Will Return.

Leaving McGrath's office yesterday, Fosco intimated that a majority of the 130 strikers would return to work under the commissioner's assurance that their case would be presented to the council finance committee for consideration as soon as that group undertakes to prepare next year's budget.

Sells One Drink to Cop; He Pays $100 Fine P. D. Q.

Convicted of selling one drink of whisky to a policeman, George Woronoff, 2427 South Whipple street, barkeeper in the Dearborn Coffee shop, 111 North Dearborn street, was fined $100 and costs by Judge Joseph L. McCarthy in the South Clark Street court yesterday. The case of Edward Weiss, 7740 South Shore drive, the proprietor, was continued.

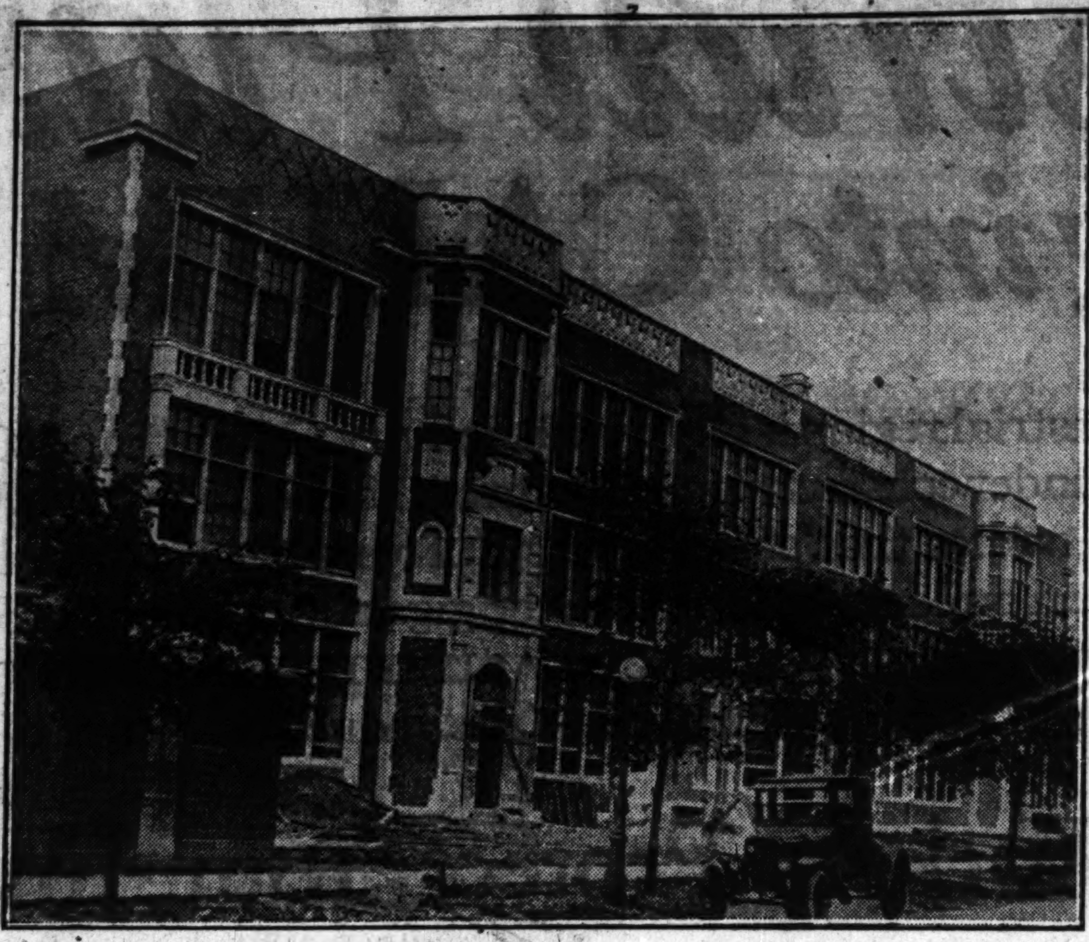
Man Shot in Hip; Police Investigate His Story

Investigation of the shooting of Oscar Pabst, 30 years old, 515 West 62d street, who was shot in the right hip yesterday afternoon, was begun by police yesterday. Pabst appeared at the Washington Park hospital with a story of being shot by a man at 92d street and the Illinois Central railroad. Police disbelieved this story after learning that a gang of workers on the railroad had heard no shooting.

Hold Rites Tomorrow for Cartoonist Briggs' Mother

Dixon, Ill., Aug. 15. — [Special.] — The funeral of Mrs. Ella Briggs, mother of Clare Briggs, cartoonist, will be held here on Monday afternoon. Mrs. Briggs died in the east.

JUNIOR HIGH NEARS COMPLETION



Stockton Junior High school, Montrose avenue and Beacon street, to be ready for use when Chicago system opens Tuesday, Sept. 8. Fifteen new school buildings, with a seating capacity of 11,000, will be opened for use at that time.

PLAN MILITARY FUNERAL RITES FOR BANCROFT

The Fourth Presbyterian church, according to arrangements completed yesterday, will be the scene of the Chicago funeral services for the late Edgar A. Bancroft, ambassador to Japan, whose body, aboard a Japanese warship, will arrive at San Francisco Aug. 22. The Rev. James G. K. McClure will officiate here. Three o'clock on the afternoon of Thursday, Aug. 27, has been set for the church services.

Probably a cavalry escort will meet the funeral car and the body will be taken to the church instead of the Bancroft home, 77 East Cedar street.

The Japanese ambassador to the United States and Secretary of State Kellogg, it is understood, will attend the funeral if possible.

After the funeral services, the body will remain at the church, but on Friday morning will be placed aboard a train for Galesburg, Ill., for burial in the Bancroft family lot.

HONOLULU PAYS TRIBUTE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, Aug. 15.—Japanese societies joined with federal, territorial, and city officials and American citizens in paying tribute to the memory of the late Edgar A. Bancroft of Chicago, ambassador to Japan, when his body arrived here aboard the Japanese cruiser Tama.

Two airplanes darted overhead as the cruiser, with flags at half mast, entered the harbor bearing the flag draped casket guarded by Japanese sailors in a specially constructed cabin on the gun deck. The casket was surrounded by 200 wreaths sent from Japan.

The Japanese chamber of commerce and other organizations sent wreaths. Capt. Demitsu of the Tama eulogized Mr. Bancroft and expressed the regret of all Japan at his death. The cruiser will reach San Francisco on Aug. 22.

MRS. MORGAN'S FUNERAL TO BE HELD TOMORROW

New York, Aug. 15.—[Special.]—The funeral of Mrs. J. P. Morgan, wife of the banker, will be held at 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon. It will be private with only members of the family attending. Burial will be in the Morgan plot in the Locust Valley cemetery, Locust Valley, L. I.

The services will consist of the simple burial ritual of the Protestant Episcopal faith. They will be held in the Little Church of St. John of Lattingtown, Locust Valley. It was while attending service in this church on Sunday, June, 14, that Mrs. Morgan fell ill. She died at noon yesterday at the Morgan estate, Matinecock Point, East Island, near Glen Cove. She had been unconscious for two months, suffering from sleeping sickness.

The rector of St. John's, the Rev. Dr. Charles W. Hinton, will conduct the funeral, which will be in surroundings as dignified and simple as was Mrs. Morgan's life.

of Furniture & Floor Coverings

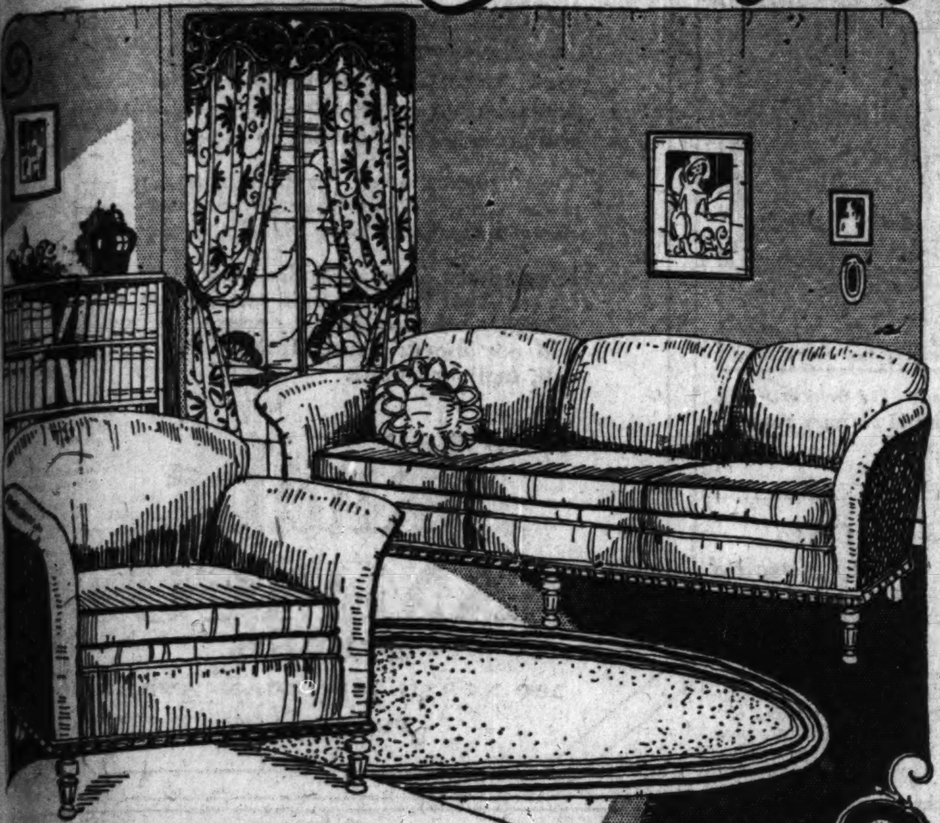
50 Years of Business Experience and Integrity

Radio Talks by Our Decorative Advisor, Walter Murray, have been resumed Every Wednesday and Friday —Subjects Shown Below



Quality and Reputation

Quality is sometimes apparent, but reputation can be judged only by association. The two essentials must be combined to assure lasting satisfaction.

For over half a century the name of O. W. Richardson & Co. has been recognized for a high standard of quality, confidence-building transactions and low prices which are due to the combined purchasing power of our extensive wholesale and retail business.

The personnel of this old organization today consists of men whose years of experience, observation and study have qualified them for determining the quality, styles and designs which will continue to build Good Will and insure consumer Satisfaction in the years to come.

Right now we are having an August Sale which we believe represents the best values ever offered throughout our store. All items are of Standard Richardson Quality.

Come in and look through our six floors of Furniture, Rugs, Carpets and Linoleums, as only in that way can you appreciate our values.

RESERVES LEARN SERIOUS GAME OF WAR AT SPARTA

Schooled in Field for Battle Problems.

bread, pretty good butter, abundant gravy, and a custard for dessert.

Bankers, lawyers, merchants, Armour executives and statisticians, editors, engineers, and brokers survey it gustily and exclaim, "By George, the commissary is certainly being good to us!"

They also eat gustily.

Though it is mentioned in no captious spirit, the fact remains that the fresh beef would make a fairly enduring boot.

But the bankers, lawyers, merchants, executives, administrators, statisticians, engineers, and brokers are now reservist artillery colonels, lieutenant colonels, majors, captains, and first and second lieutenants in active training. They have been up since six o'clock and at work since seven.

The two facts seem entirely to shift their point of view as to the resilient beef. In ten minutes none is left.

Face Another Problem.

One o'clock and back in the saddles. This time another three mile gallop to another knoll—fair sized hill, indeed—that looks toward higher hills a mile and a half and two miles distant.

The morning problem had to do with the movements of artillery with the advance guard and its covering of a deployment and support of an attack by a preparation and successive concentrations.

The afternoon problem, or series of problems, has to do with phases of preparation of fire, terrestrial observation of fire, and conduct of fire.

All afternoon the guns at the base of the hill are talking in terms now of shell and now of shrapnel, to vague, tricky, teasing natural targets—a patch of sand, or a clump of three trees, or the elbow of a gully—two and three thousand yards distant. At the observation point, far above the guns—to which they talk by telephone—reservist officers are working out firing problems and putting their solutions to the test of actual firing. A blackboard is handy. Books of firing tables are strewn about. A fresh group of instructors from the regular army is on the scene. Punctilious, precise, patient, like the morning men. But not easy-going. After some rather dashing guesses by a reservist officer, who was making "terrestrial observation of fire," a regular army officer remarks to the wide and rugged landscape as follows:

"You can work yourself into some pretty non-solutions by trying to outguess the terrain."

The tone is perfectly detached; the intimation, however, is severe.

Questioning Is Resumed.

The fire of questions directed at the students by the teachers is steady.

Thus:

"Now, gentlemen, what three things can you do on observing a mixed salvo?"

You can take it for what you think it is worth, that numerous American gentlemen went to France to fight in the world war as captains of artillery who did not know the answer to that question. And there they confronted numerous German gentlemen who had given much of the best thought of the best years of their lives to finding the answer to that question and similar questions in all their varying possibilities.

And again:

An instructor points to an isolated patch of greenwood a mile and a half away and, turning to a Chicago reservist officer by his side, says:

"Evidently some observers in there major, for you caught the glint of sunlight on instruments. What are you going to do to it?"

You don't learn the answer to that in a day, either.

Every Word Important.

Every word spoken, every observation made, is important. Every trick and variance that the wind and the guns play with a man's calculations are promptly noted down and eagerly argued.

"Now let's watch," an instructor says with the intensity of a lover speaking of the endearing whims of his lady—"let's watch how a bracketing salvo changes to a non-bracketer."

Again the guns speak.

The reservists watch. Wide smiles of comprehension accompany intent observation.

Phases of a given problem vary with the passing of minutes, and variance is instantly caught up with a sentence like—

"Now, gentlemen, we have got to use a little of our axial knowledge, with lateral application."

And while they are with patience, exactitude and celerity using their axial knowledge with lateral application, an onlooker on that wind swept height is wondering how much axial knowledge those million men who, Mr. Bryan used to say, would "spring from the ground" in case our country were attacked, could use with a lateral application after they had made their spring.

Or any other application.

RESERVISTS LEARNING THE ART OF WAR IN TIME OF PEACE

One of the quick-firing instructors from the regular army telling a group of Chicago reservist officers that they can now "use a little of their axial knowledge with lateral application."

Col. Noble B. Judah of Chicago, commanding the 332d field artillery, giving and receiving criticism of artillery fire at Sparta military reservation, Wisconsin. He does both with equal equanimity.

Governor Denies Ladd's Widow Will Be Senator

Bismarck, N. D., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Gov. A. G. Sorlie today flatly denied a report that he might appoint Mrs. Edwin F. Ladd to succeed her late husband as United States senator.

Motley of Races Cared For by County Hospital

More than forty thousand patients were taken care of in the county hospital in 1924 according to a report made yesterday to President Anton J. Cermak of the county board. Every nationality was included, among the patients being Arabs, Chinese, Croatians, Egyptians, Hindus, American Indians, East Indians, Koreans, Macedonians, Persians, Assyrians and Turks.

A Notable Group
—the celebrated Mason & Hamlin
—the artistic Conover
—the famous Ampico

BECAUSE it is our exclusive privilege to offer to the people of Chicago two such famous Pianos as the Mason & Hamlin and the Conover, together with that glorious combination, the Mason & Hamlin with the Ampico, we consider ourselves most fortunate. To music lovers who prize mellowness, resonance and singing quality of tone, these two Pianos rank as acknowledged leaders.

The MASON & HAMLIN

The Mason & Hamlin, with its famous Tension Resonator, a tone-retaining device possessed by no other instrument, has attained the leadership of the music world. That continuous usage only enhances its original beauty is but one of many factors which have established the Mason & Hamlin as musically the most beautiful Piano the world has ever known. Combined with the Ampico it is a musical instrument that has no equal.

The CONOVER

Made in our own great factories in Upright, Grand and Reproducing models and sold direct from our store and Factory Branches, the Conover is more moderately priced than any other really great Piano of today. With less care, a greater factory output could be attained, but there is neither hurry nor substitution in the building of these artistic instruments.

Small term payments and liberal credit on your old Piano make ownership easy.

—home of the oil heating industry—and the most competitive market in the world, more Kleen-Heets were installed last year than oil burners of any two other makes combined!

That's because Kleen-Heet is the simplest of all oil burners, instantaneous in action, completely automatic, scientifically correct. Protected by over 100 patents. It burns the cheapest grade of clean oil. Installation involves no change in your heating plant.

Back of every Kleen-Heet is the permanent responsibility of the Winslow Boiler and Engineering Co.

Perfect Oil Heat

Kleen-Heet's exclusive method of vaporizing oil in its scientifically constructed fire pot insures instant combustion efficiency. No oil burner without such a fire pot can operate efficiently under automatic control. Kleen-Heet is made either with gas pilot or electric ignition. Its satisfactory performance in more than 20,000 homes is your guarantee of its efficient dependability.

ILLINOIS GUARD "SNAPS INTO IT" AT CAMP GRANT

Gen. Foreman Is Pleased with Fast Mobilization.

BY JOHN HERRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 15.—[Special.]—Yesterday they were clerking behind counters, working in a machine shop, or sitting at a desk in an office. Tonight they are sleeping in tents which they put up themselves. They made camp in an average time of about six or seven hours.

And that, said Maj. Gen. Milton J. Foreman, commanding the 33d division Illinois National Guard, here at Camp Grant, isn't a step toward preparedness.

"It is preparedness," he averred, and pridefully slapped his booted leg with his riding crop.

By early afternoon every unit had reported and the camp roster numbered some 9,000 men and approximately 1,000 horses.

The Test of an Army.

"The test of an army is in knowing how to get to a place and in knowing what to do after you get there," said Gen. Foreman. "In my thirty years' experience at this business I've never known a body of men to acquit themselves with greater efficiency. They came into camp; nobody did any kicking; they got to work. At 9 o'clock they were getting off the troop trains. By afternoon, with everything in order, they were around the post exchanges drinking pop.

"If they can take care of themselves here at Camp Grant, they can take care of themselves in Venezuela, or Borneo, or Patagonia, or any place in the world.

"This is real national defense. The 33d division isn't a potential military force. It is an actual military force."

And once again the general slapped his boot.

Work Starts Monday.

Real work begins Monday at 5:10 a. m., when the top kick blows his whistle and the bugler that Irving Berlin once wanted to murder warbles first call. From then on it will be drill and a lot of it, mixed up with field exercises, calisthenics, athletics, conferences, and military school work.

Vice President Dawes will visit the camp Aug. 25.

At the same time Maj. Gen. Williams Graves, commanding the 60th corps area, will be here for a twenty-four hour stay. Aug. 27 is governor's day, when Gov. Small, as commander-in-chief of the division, will review the troops.

Chicago Infantry in Van.

The 131st infantry from Chicago were the first troops to arrive. They came under command of Col. Francis M. Allen, after a four hour tr[illegible] started at five in the morning. The 123d field artillery, with their [illegible]ized outfit of 155's rolled into camp after a week's hike of 165 miles from Monmouth. Capt. Dell B. Hardin reported a perfect record for the trip, not a breakdown or delay. Their march is considered something to take into future consideration by the army men.

Later the 124th field artillery came in from Chicago in motor busses.

On board flat cars came the eight tanks of the divisional tank company from Evanston. There was a question about how to unload them, but they settled it themselves. A couple of timbers at the ends of a car and they creaked and waddled their own precarious way to the ground under their own power.

Medics Bring Band.

An interesting train load was made up of the special troops of the division, the headquarters company, the M. P.'s, the signal company, and the motorcycle company under command of Lieut. Col. Walter Fisher, and the 108th medical regiment, commanded by Col. Harry D. Orr. The medical men put on quite a show; they had their band and their colors with them and marched into camp in parade style.

Brig. Gen. Abel Davis, commanding the 66th infantry brigade and in charge of the infantry group of the division; Brig. Gen. John J. Garrity, commanding the 65th infantry brigade; and Brig. Gen. Carlos E. Black, adjutant general, commanding the 58th artillery brigade, between them add three more stars to Gen. Foreman's two.

Gen. Foreman has a new hobby, a portable clockwork movie camera, and the activities of the division are being recorded for the future.

All Units Represented.

Every unit of the division is represented in camp now. The infantry: The 129th, Col. Diller S. Myers, coming from the northern part of the state; the 130th, Col. Albert L. Culbertson, from the southern part; the 131st, Col. Allen, from Chicago; the 132d, Lieut. Col. Nelson Morris, from Chicago, and the 8th, colored boys from down state and Chicago, Col. Otis B. Duncan.

The artillery, the 122d 75s, Col. Samuel T. Lawton; the 123d 155s, motorized, Capt. Hardin; the 124th 75s, Col. Thomas S. Hammond; the 108th medical regiment, the 108th engineers, the 106th cavalry, the divisional signal corps, tank company, and trains.

VISITORS' DAY AT CUSTER

Camp Custer, Mich., Aug. 15.—[Special.]—More than 10,000 visitors were entertained here today by the 2,400 boys from Michigan, Illinois, and Wisconsin attending the Citizens' Military Training Camp. It was visitors' day and after the young soldiers had gone through their maneuvers and a mimic battle there were speeches by notables who were present.

The youths are entering upon the last lap of their training as the camp will be closed Aug. 23.

Talks today were made by Charles B. Pike, president of the Military Training Camps' association, Senator James Couzens of Michigan, Col. G. W. Seaman of Taylorville, Ill., civilian aid for Illinois, and W. P. Bloodgood, civilian aid for Wisconsin.

Among Chicagoans present today were Capt. Waldo Evans, commandant of Great Lakes; James Simpson, president of Marshall Field & Co.; John E. Wilkie, former chief of the United States secret service; Brig. Gen. William Nathan McChesney, Col. John A. Holabird, Alfred Granger, Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, Col. Edward B. Clark, and John Benham, who represented the Union League club.

COLORED THIEF ATTACKED HER, WOMAN SAYS

Mrs. Ralph Fuller, 6015 Normal boulevard, reported to police yesterday that a colored thief had entered her home and attacked her while her husband lay asleep in a rear room in the apartment.

Her son, Charles, 19 years old, attracted to his mother's room by the noise, it was said, was ordered to get back to his own room, which was adjacent, and pull the bedclothes over his head if he did not want to be killed.

The husband was awakened by his wife's cries after the attacker had left.

Capt. Stege, acting chief of detectives, declared the case one of the strangest he had encountered and that a relentless search would be made for the assailant, whom Mrs. Fuller described minutely.

James Grant, colored, convicted of a similar crime, yesterday began a life sentence.

Displaying the New 4-Door Sedan

With its entirely new and original body design and notably important engineering refinements, this new Nash enclosed model is a value of impressive character.

Its superbly-modeled Nash-Seaman body is the work of craftsmen internationally famous for the unique originality of their designs.

Swung gracefully low to the road, it has an appearance of inviting smartness.

The beautiful new roof construction is a distinctive French type of design that is exclusive to Nash in this country.

Interior appointments have been selected with an unerring taste for excellence. Hardware is of a fine Colonial pattern, and upholstery is a rich-hued velvet mohair. A smoking set and vanity case are included among the fittings. And there's a heater.

As standard equipment you'll find 4-wheel brakes, full balloon tires and five disc wheels at no extra cost.

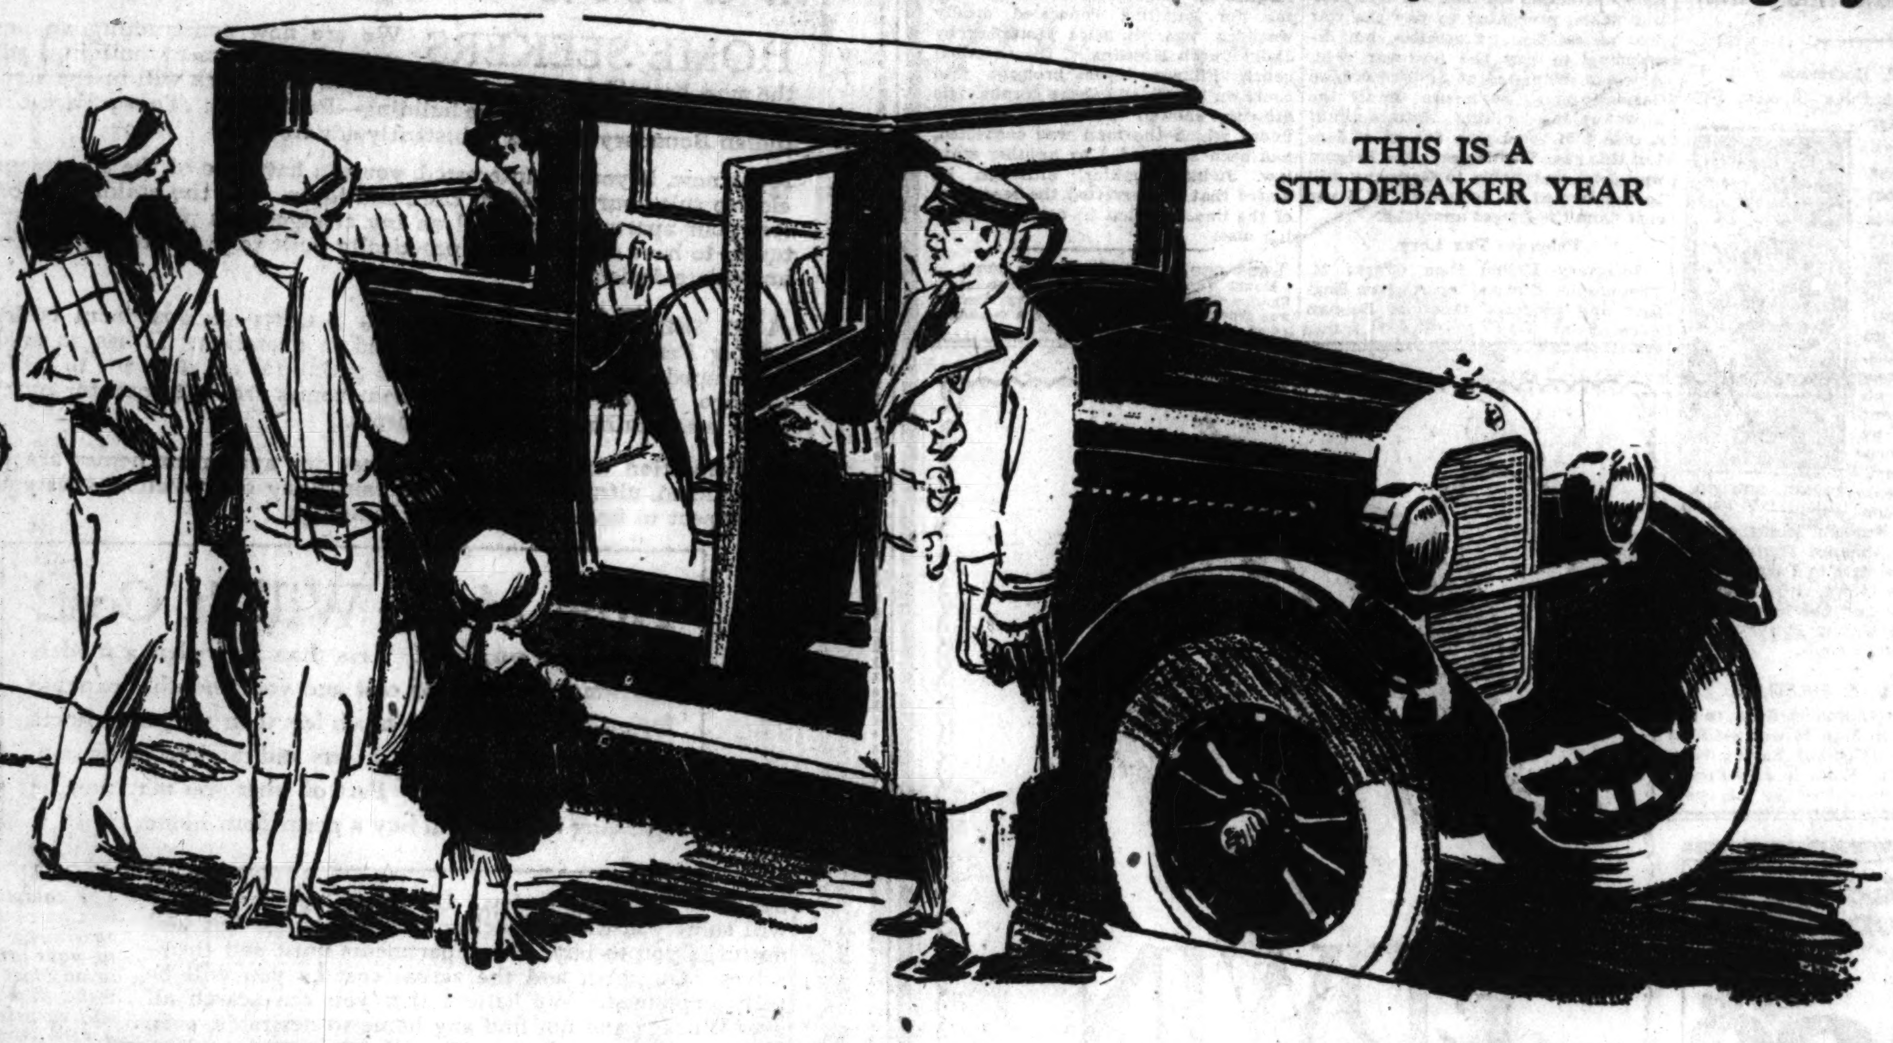
Same Fine Car—At a Lower Price

Studebaker One-Profit Coach on the Standard Six chassis retains all the features which made it a big seller at a higher price—though you can now buy it for—



THIS IS A
STUDEBAKER YEAR

$445

Down—in Chicago

Balance in convenient monthly payments

STUDY these features which make the Studebaker Standard Six Coach more up-to-date than the newest "yearly models."

They are possible at our new low price only because of Studebaker's one-profit basis of manufacture, which eliminates the extra profits that many other manufacturers must pay to outside parts and body-makers.

Excess Power—according to rating of National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, this is the most powerful car of its size and weight.

Abundant Room—room to stretch your legs—room to enter or leave without disturbing occupant of folding seat.

Sturdy Body Construction—fine Northern white ash and hard maple are used. We pay a premium to get the best quality of steel.

Full-size Balloon Tires—for which the steering gear, fenders and even the body lines are specially designed.

Automatic Spark Control—eliminating the usual spark lever on steering wheel.

Emergency Brake—operated from the dash, thus giving more front seat room. Another exclusive Studebaker feature.

Safety Lighting Control—on the steering wheel, at the driver's finger tips.

Instruments—including 8-day clock, gasoline gauge, speedometer, oil pressure gauge and ammeter, in single grouping under glass, on beautiful silver-fased dial.

Improved One-piece Windshield—automatic windshield cleaner, weather-proof visor, rear-view mirror and attractive cowl lights.

Coincidental Lock—to ignition and steering wheel, which serves to reduce the theft insurance rate on Studebaker cars—a single key operates this lock as well as that on the door and the clever device on the spare tire carrier.

Cowl Ventilator—operated by foot.

Combination Stop-and-Tail Light.

Completely Machined Crankshaft—to obtain perfect engine balance and thus reduce vibration to a minimum.

Oil Drain Valve—at side of engine, for draining engine oil without getting under car.

Waterproof Ignition—even the spark plugs are protected from moisture by rubber shields.

Why Studebaker is able to cut prices $50 to $405 without any sacrifice in quality

DID you ever see a farmer plowing a rich stand of clover or peas back into the ground instead of harvesting it? Looks wasteful, but it means that the soil thus enriched will yield most bountifully in the future.

Studebaker's patient stockholders have in a similar manner foregone dividends in order that there might be created (for the building of one-profit cars) the greatest, the most efficient automobile manufacturing establishment of its kind.

Of all Studebaker earnings during the past ten years, 53% have been retained in the business—a total of more than sixty million dollars plowed back into the property as foundries, forges, machine shops, body plants, stamping mills, dry kilns and working capital.

As a result, there are now two automobiles manufactured on the one-profit basis — the Studebaker in the fine-car field, and the Ford in the low price field. Only in these two cases does one company in its own plants and with its own centralized organization make all bodies, all engines, all clutches, steering gears, differentials, springs, gear sets, gray iron castings, and drop forgings.

$100 to $250 saving per body

The advantages of this one-profit manufacturing are not theoretical. Studebaker has bought closed bodies in the past from the most efficient body builders. But better bodies are now being built in Studebaker plants at savings running from $100 to $250 per body. Studebaker's new gray iron foundry—one of the largest in the world—is producing castings for 25% less than they can be purchased outside.

And Studebaker has been able to concentrate one hundred million dollars in net assets on the production of one-profit motor cars without sacrificing its independence. Studebaker has none of the entangling alliances nor overhead that go with holding companies, mergers, outside financing. Studebaker has no bond issues, nor bank loans.

Therefore, Studebaker designers, engineers, purchasing agents, and all other executives are free and independent—able to concentrate all energies upon the production of the best possible cars at the lowest possible prices.

Fruits of independence

Because of all this Studebaker is able to offer you such splendid values as the Standard Six Coach pictured above at its new low price. And you and your neighbors are buying Studebaker cars in such numbers that the vast Studebaker plants have been going at peak production all summer in defiance of the normal summer slump. (That's where the stockholders are repaid for the sacrifices they have made.)

The Standard Six Coach has some obvious superiorities. (Note, for instance, the equipment and basic suggestions enumerated in the column at the right.) But the most important ones are hidden.

Only time reveals hidden merits

Any kind of steel may do for the first few thousand miles, but Studebaker pays premiums for steel of extra toughness and endurance.

You can't tell by looking at a new car how soon rattles and squeaks will develop, but if you could see the painstaking way in which skilled workmen build Studebaker bodies from fine northern white ash and hard maple, you would appreciate why the Studebaker car retains its youth.

And above all else, Studebaker's endurance, stamina, and dependability are due to the fact that each car is designed, engineered, and manufactured as a closely co-ordinated, harmonious unit. Being built as a unit, it functions as a unit, and even under the hardest usage the rugged Studebaker yields scores of thousands of miles of excess transportation.

Every automobile is a highly specialized piece of machinery, and the one-profit basis of manufacture not only permits savings which can be passed on to the purchaser in finer materials, more equipment, and lower prices, but it also enables Studebaker to build a better machine.

"No yearly models"—
New low prices

To minimize depreciation of Studebakers in the hands of owners, the Studebaker Corporation of America has adopted the policy of keeping its entire line of cars constantly up-to-date without the announcement of "yearly models."

Improvements and refinements are added as soon as developed—not saved up for spectacular annual announcement. Therefore, Studebaker cars are even more up-to-date than the newest yearly models, yet owners are protected from the artificial depreciation which has cut millions of dollars from the resale value of many makes during the past 30 days.

New low prices make the one-profit Studebaker a better value than ever.

EUROPE BETTER OFF THAN BLUE REPORTS LET ON International Chamber Notes the Progress.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 15.—[Special.]—Despite pessimistic reports from some quarters there have been many evidences of encouraging progress in the European countries which participated in the world war, says a report issued today by the American section of the international chamber of commerce. The report was prepared by the committee on economic restoration.

Belgium, which is now negotiating with the United States in an effort to reach an agreement to fund its war time debt, is pictured as showing marked improvement, with a particularly bright foreign trade outlook and the treasury situation presenting the only difficult problem. Conditions in France and Italy, which next are to enter upon debt funding negotiations with this country, were reported to be somewhat improved, with France showing production increases.

Pessimism Still Exists.

"Pessimism is by no means extinct in Europe and many regard the financial situation of more than one country as justifying the gravest apprehensions for the future," it is declared. "Yet it is only necessary to recall the gloomy predictions made by many eminent authorities five years ago to realize the very encouraging and tangible progress that has taken place in the interval.

"The pressure of politics continues to exert its influence on economic recovery; but that pressure would now appear to be more intermittent and less definitely obstructive."

Budget Position Improved.

The burget position of virtually every country in Europe, it is set forth, has improved, and in a number of countries may be regarded as satisfactory. Taxation in some countries, it is also pointed out, has been reduced.

"In five countries," it is noted—"namely: Austria, Poland, Germany, Hungary and Latvia, and also in the free city of Danzig, the governments have regained sufficient control of their finances to create or reorganize independent banks of issue, free from all political influences, and they have ceased currency inflation.

"In Great Britain, Sweden, Switzerland and the Netherlands the currency has returned to par."

Work Ahead for France.

After noting production increases in France, the report says of that country: "Despite these concrete evidences of great economic activity, the industrial situation is controlled largely by factors of public finance which are still potential sources of economic disorders. The currency remains to be stabilized; the service of the national debt is too heavy, for a healthy economic life; the budget is not yet finally and conclusively balanced.

"The permanent solution of her financial problems may bring about a period of temporary embarrassment to industry and trade in France, as the solution of kindred problems has done in other countries."

No Account—No Count

[P. & A. Photo.]

MISS LOUISE FLETCHER.

New York, Aug. 15.—[Special.]—Louisa Fletcher of Indianapolis went to Germany a few months ago, with the air and reputation of being an American heiress.

In Berlin she met Count Ernst Gottfried von Schmettow, younger son of a Prussian family. Miss Fletcher is vivacious and only 22. July 6, Stoughton A. Fletcher announced in Indianapolis that he had cabled his daughter, "Yes and congratulations." The marriage was set for last Friday.

Instead of being on her honeymoon now, Miss Fletcher sailed for home today. Everything had gone well until the count insisted that Louisa's father must be present at the wedding in Berlin to care for the European custom of settling a portion of his fortune on the prospective husband and his daughter.

The chief difficulty in the way of such a settlement arises from the fact that Stoughton A. Fletcher went into bankruptcy last year with liabilities reported at $1,763,602 and assets at $491,390.

NAB 15 ON RUM CHARGES.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Fifteen residents of Madison's Sicilian quarter, including five women, were arrested today on warrants charging them with selling or possessing liquor.

PRINCE BIBESCO URGES ROUMANIA TO PAY U. S. DEBT

Country's Minister Also Wants Baldwins Paid.

BUCHAREST, Roumania, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Prince Antoine Bibesco, Roumanian minister to the United States, who has arrived here from Washington, is understood to have urged upon his government the necessity of funding Roumania's war debt to the United States. He also has recommended an early settlement of the claims by the Baldwin Locomotive company.

PRINCE BIBESCO. [H. & E. [(C) Photo]

Prince Bibesco has had long conferences with Foreign Minister Duco here and with Finance Minister Bratiano, whom he saw in Paris, and he is said to have informed both officials that Roumania can not hope to float a loan in the United States until a debt settlement is made.

OWES U. S. $46,508,661.

Roumania's total indebtedness to the United States on May 16 was $46,508,661.17 with $2,057,494.22 having been paid on account. Early in July Prince Bibesco was instructed by his government to return to Bucharest to discuss the debt situation.

BELGIANS ARGUE PAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Aug. 15. — THE TRIBUNE learns from a high Belgian diplomatic source that former Premier Theunis, head of the Belgian debt funding mission to the United States, first demanded a complete moratorium on interest payments of two years, or at least one year, and that the total interest payments be very low the first few years, gradually increasing.

Then he proposed to make a complete distinction between war and post-war debts, promising to pay the war debt as rapidly as possible, but demanding to pay the post-war debt, which is estimated at $177,000,000, in German mark payments under the Dawes plan, "taking into account Article 4 of the Logan accord of Jan. 4 of this year," which says the Belgian war debt chargeable to Germany will be reimbursed by deductions of 5 per cent from the Dawes annuities.

Proposes Tax Levy.

Secretary Mellon then offered M. Theunis the identical terms given England and proposed that the Belgian government levy 300,000,000 francs more in taxes annually to pay the interest on the debts. The Belgian delegates complained that they could not make such an increase in taxes.

M. Theunis has now proposed a formula to amortise the debt, which the Belgian government fixes at $480,000,000, in sixty years and to pay between 1 and 2 per cent annually on the war debt and between 2½ per cent, which is the Belgian offer, and 4 per cent, which is the American demand, on the post-war debt.

Fine for Carrying Gun, but Under a Dead Law

Arthur Fillmore's fine of $100, assessed against him when he was arraigned on Aug. 5 before Judge Curran for carrying concealed deadly weapons, was set aside yesterday by Judge Jacob Hopkins of the Criminal court. Fillmore was brought into court on a writ of habeas corpus. His attorney showed that the Sadler act, under which the man was convicted, had been superseded by another state law. Judge Hopkins, although he stated that he regretted the remission of the fine, but that he could do nothing else.

BOY DROWNS LEARNING TO SWIM.

Mount Vernon, Ill., Aug. 15.—[Special.]—Charles Shelton, 15, son of Henry Shelton, was drowned today while taking a swimming lesson in an old brickyard pond.

How Would You Like To Build Your Ideas Into Your Own Apartment in a 100% Co-operative Building?

HOME SEEKERS We are now constructing an unusually attractive apartment building, adjoining the most beautiful small park in Chicago. The park will be the actual yard of every tenant-owner in the building—Park Crest. To see Park Crest and Indian Boundary Park is to instantly admire both.

Right now, if you are interested, you can have one of the apartments modeled to suit your individual taste and ideas. See the building at once; select your apartment and tell us any changes you prefer. A great opportunity to have an apartment practically built to your order if you make an immediate decision.

Also see PARK MANOR, a thirty-six apartment building adjoining Park Crest, just finished and in operation. It has an exquisitely landscaped court, merging into the park. Its equal is not to be found in Chicago. A few five-room apartment homes are still open for purchase by those who can meet our requirements.

An inspection will convince you that our apartment homes are honestly constructed, ultra-modern, and contain many conveniences that you would not expect to find in present day buildings.

How Much Will It Cost?

You will be surprised! Less than half what a modest individual home would cost and your monthly expense for up-keep will be very much less than a separate home would require. More comforts and modern living conditions for less money. Part of what you may now be spending for rent will buy a permanent home.

See both buildings today. Courteous representatives will show you these model apartment homes—but will not urge you to buy. The apartments must sell themselves. Our plan and the actual cost to you will be fully explained. We believe that you can search all over Chicago and not find any home so desirable, even if you paid twice the money. We show and explain. You decide.

The complete satisfaction of having an apartment conform to your own ideas, in an ideal environment, at a cost that will surprise you, is a rare combination. Worth a visit, is it not?

Indian Boundary Park is located between Greenleaf and Lunt Avenues, just west of Western Avenue. If you drive out, come to seventy hundred north and twenty-four hundred west, Western Avenue surface car or the Lunt Avenue route of the Chicago Motor Bus Company. COME OUT TODAY!

ADMIRAL ROUSED BY GIBES AT U. S. FIGHTING FORCES

Hits Back at Sneers from Institute of Politics.

Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Criticism of alleged ridicule of this country's foreign policy and critical and unfriendly comments on the army and navy by speakers from other countries at the Institute of Politics here was made at a conference today by Rear Admiral Harry M. P. Huse, U. S. N., retired, of Washington. He told the 300 members and associate members of the institute present that their laughter and applause at such comments was "surprising" and that "we should not be here on the defensive against our own country."

Admiral Huse made reference to a lecture last night by Dr. William E. Rappard of Geneva, member of the permanent mandates commission of the league of nations. This drew a response from Dr. Rappard in which he declared he had no intention of reflecting discredit on the army or navy and was sure that no unfriendliness would arise from the incident.

Not Thus in Europe.

In his talk Admiral Huse said:

"If one of us were addressing a French or Italian or almost any European audience, I feel sure that ironic criticism would receive a cold reception. I believe that the remarks that I allude to have not been read with pleasure by the much wider audience reached by our newspapers.

"Other countries generally show pride in their armies and navies. I claim that the record of the United States army and navy is not without credit and that we should not be here in the defensive against our own countrymen."

The world is becoming a healthier place to live in, but the law of Malthus is inexorable, Prof. Edward M. East of Harvard university declared in his round table conference on "Agriculture and Population Increase." He warned the "greater population enthusiasts" that eradication of disease alone could not prolong life, if mankind insisted on filling the earth with people beyond the proper limit.

Fifty-one Year Life, U. S. Average.

Dr. East gave the average expectation of life in the white race countries as slightly over fifty years, probably an improvement of fifteen years over a thousand years ago. The average length of life is highest in Australia, fifty-seven, he said. In the United States it is nearly fifty-one.

Robert Masson of Paris, prominent French banker, discussed his country's financial problems in his fourth lecture on "The Peace Problems of France." Regarding taxation, he said that the Frenchman now surrenders 28.4 per cent of his income to the treasury, the American 11.2 per cent, and the Briton 25.4 per cent.

"I hope that this will definitely dispose of the legend that we are not taxed," he said.

SEIZED IN THREAT

Norman Klein, alleged leader of a band of anarchists in Washington, D. C., and other cities, arrested on a charge of threatening to kill President Coolidge. Klein said Tampa, Fla., where he was arrested, is headquarters for a gang which has plotted to slay Henry Ford, John D. Rockefeller, Thomas A. Edison, and other notables.

Brakeman Leaps from Train Into Lake; Saves Boy

Madison, Wis., Aug. 15.—[Special.]—Junior Cole, 11, was saved from drowning by an unidentified brakeman of a Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul freight train today when the latter dove from the top of a moving car while crossing a trestle over Lake Monona and brought the boy to safety. The boy had been fishing and he stayed on the trestle until too late to retreat and he jumped into the lake. He could not swim. The brakeman turned the youth over to a crowd that had gathered, signaled the engineer and pulled out with the train.

La Salle Street Store Damaged by Small Fire

Crowds gathered quickly yesterday afternoon when a fire was discovered in the store of the P. H. Callahan company, steam and water heat contractors at 183 North La Salle street, near the detective bureau. The flames were quickly extinguished by firemen with a loss of about $100.

DRY WHO WROTE MELLON WANTED A MARTYR'S ROLE

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 15.—(AP)—William H. Davenport, federal secret service operative, today announced that a pistol had been found in the room of Will K. Reeme, prominent Kansas City prohibition crusader, arrested here last Thursday on a charge of mailing an "indecent letter" to Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury.

The letter, Davenport said, threatened the life of Mr. Mellon for alleged failure to properly enforce the prohibition laws.

H. J. McCoy, secretary to the chief of police, found the weapon while searching Reeme's room, but attached little importance to it. Later, when he returned to obtain it, the wife of the prohibition crusader refused to surrender it without a search warrant. No warrant for the pistol has been issued.

Ready for Chair.

Questioned as to what he thought would happen to him, if he had carried out his threat, Reeme said:

"Well, I suppose I might have had to face the electric chair, maybe—but I was ready."

Reeme had not planned to escape, probably, even though he had carried out his threat, Davenport said. He told the government detective he had made up his mind to favor execution and die like a martyr.

The prohibition crusader was arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner George D. Beardsley and pleaded not guilty. He was remanded to jail in default of $7,500 bond to await trial in federal court here on Aug. 19.

"I feel the charge against me will not stand," Reeme said today, "even if Jackson county jurisdiction could be shown, which is unlikely.

Sought to Show Error.

"My letter to Mr. Mellon was written with no malice of heart or violent intention. My sole idea was to impress on his mind the error of his prohibition policy.

"My conscience is clear. I am doing the work of the Lord and He will bring me through all right."

ALIEN PROPERTY BOOKS ARE OPEN, MILLER REPLIES

PARIS, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Col. Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian of the United States, declared today he had no fear of any investigation of the conduct of the office while he held it. His statement was made in view of reports from Washington of an investigation by the department of justice into the return of several million dollars in seized funds to the American metal company in 1921.

"Any acts of the alien property custodian during the last four years are open to inspection from the proper authority without fear from the incumbent during those years," said Col. Miller.

"The office was voluntarily resigned so that my duty as president of the Federation Interallie des Anciens Combattants, the inter-allied veterans' organization, might be actively handled. Any attempt to destroy my record of fourteen years in public service will be vigorously fought."

STINNES GIVES WORKERS SHARE IN AUTO FACTORY

Hopes to Make Bankers Advance Credits.

BY JOHN CLAYTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Aug. 15.—A novel method adopted by Edmond Stinnes in his fight with the bankers who are straightening out the affairs of the Stinnes estate has made the workers employed by the Aga automobile works 2,000,000 marks ($500,000) richer and has given Germany its first coöperative industrial plant.

Herr Stinnes yesterday secured sufficient funds to meet the wages of the employés according to a high official of the reichsbank, but the bank has refused to support the Aga company further. Herr Stinnes in a statement to the press today asserted that, due to a quarrel between himself and the consortium he made the gift of 2,000,000 marks worth of shares in the Aga plant to the workers—an average of 1,000 marks ($250) to every worker.

"I hope," Herr Stinnes said, "that since I no longer own a majority of the Aga stock the factory will receive the banking support which it deserves."

Insists Company Is Solvent.

Herr Stinnes declared the Aga company is not bankrupt, but, owing to the sale of motor cars on long term credits, the factory must obtain credits to continue production. A leading banker contradicted Herr Stinnes' statement. He said the firm owes 12,000,000 marks ($3,000,000) in short term notes, while the stocks and outstanding accounts represent a total value of about 9,250,000 marks ($2,625,000). Despite this the banks declare themselves ready to discount all bills except those of other members of the Stinnes concern.

The bankers also say Stinnes has sold the Nordstern Insurance company to the Vonderheydt group of Amsterdam. If this is true Edmond will be as badly off as the other members of the Stinnes family.

With the Aga difficulties the last vestige of the great Stinnes fortune is disappearing. It is reported today that representatives of an American automobile firm inspected the plant with a view toward buying it. When Stinnes bought the Aga factory it was already approaching serious difficulties.

Financial Skies Clearing.

Meanwhile the financial clouds, caused by the difficulties of the other Stinnes companies, from which Edmond withdrew, are clearing away, and bankers state that a crisis which might have involved the entire heavy industry of Germany has been averted.

The healthy condition of the chemical industry, coupled with the fact that the Stinnes firm has already liquidated its more pressing engagements and is in a position to continue its negotiations for the sale of the remaining property more leisurely, has turned the scales and given the stock market a distinctly more firm tone.

German Firm to Develop Sugar Industry in Mexico

Mexico City, Aug. 15.—(AP)—A concession has been granted by the Mexican government to a European corporation, owned principally by Germans, to develop the sugar industry in the state of Morelos. The corporation will invest $5,000,000, of which $3,000,000 will be spent for new machinery and $2,000,000 will be advanced to small farmers in loans.

F. F. JELKE'S DANCE IS CROWNING EVENT OF NEWPORT WEEK

Newport, R. I., Aug. 15.—[Special.]—The dance which F. Frazier Jelke, New York and Chicago bachelor, gave here tonight to mark the third anniversary of the opening of his summer home, Eagle's Nest, on Ocean avenue, was the crowning social event of the week and the most largely attended. There were 400 guests present.

Mr. Jelke's home is on a ledge and overlooks the Atlantic. The rambling colonial architecture of the dwelling lent itself to a very pleasing floral and electrical decorative scheme. The terraces of the house were tented over and hung with greens, brightened here and there with wall pockets and hanging baskets of gladioli and lillium, roses, delphinium and other flowers.

An electrical decorative plan was carried out about the grounds, hundreds of miniature lamps outlining the driveways and paths with others used very effectively in the shrubbery and trees about the estate.

The dance, the music for which was furnished by the Meyer-Davis orchestra, was preceded by a number of dinner parties.

Among Mr. Jelke's guests at the dance were Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Astor, Miss Annie Burr Auchincloss, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Auchincloss, Countess Alex Beroldigen, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Drexel Biddle, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Cameron Church Jr., Stuyvesant Le Roy French, Amos Tuck French Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Harriman, Joseph Harriman Jr., Miss Carlotta Havemeyer, Henry O. Havemeyer Jr., Miss Florence Havemeyer, Conde Nast, Miss Natica Nast, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Rhinelander II., Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, William Stephen Van Rensselaer, Count and Countess Alfonso P. Villa, and Mrs. John Wanamaker.

HUNTING HAWK, BOY FINDS CLEW TO BIG ROBBERY

Muskegon, Mich., Aug. 15.—[Special.]—A big hawk circling over the Kirkpatrick farm near Muskegon, and the good marksmanship of Jack Kirkpatrick, 13 years old, seemed likely today to bring about the solution of the $32,900 Lakey foundry pay roll robbery here July 20. Searching for the fallen hawk, Jack and his brother, Wayne, 11, found the top part of an old touring car buried in a dense woods.

It is the touring car used in the pay roll robbery, and was owned by Frank Kettle, 25, on whose father's farm it was found. Kettle disappeared last night as officers were digging out the car, and was being sought in South Bend.

John Clark, 20, of Chicago, companion of Kettle, is under arrest, and William Clark, 25, of Chicago, is sought.

The holdup took place when messengers were carrying the money from the main office to the employment office 300 feet away.

Railway Passengers Get "Outside" by Radio Phones

HAMBURG, Aug. 15.—(AP)—After six years of experimenting, a new German system of wireless telephony has been installed on trains on the Hamburg-Berlin railroad, enabling passengers to call or be called from any exchange. The invention will be introduced on all main sections of the government railways. It is said passengers will be able to communicate from one train to another.

EASTERN STAR WILL MEET IN DENVER IN 1928

Toronto, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Installation of officers was the final business of the eighteenth triennial assembly of the general grand chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star, which closed here last night. The installation was under the direction of the retiring most worthy grand matron, Mrs. Cora Reynolds Franz of Jacksonville, Fla. The next assembly will be held in Denver, Colo. The principal officers for 1925-'28 are: Most worthy grand matron, Mrs. Clara Henrich, Newport, Ky.; most worthy grand patron, J. Ernest Teare, Cleveland, O.; and right worthy grand secretary, Mrs. Minnie E. Keyes, Washington, D. C.

Irish at Picnic Urge Boycott of Britain

A boycott of British imports was urged on all loyal Irishmen in resolutions adopted by the United Irish societies of Chicago at their fifty-first annual picnic at Riverview park yesterday. The resolutions condemned the world court as a creature and subsidiary of the league of nations. They bristled with hostility toward John Bull. Irishmen were asked to keep off English vessels and refrain from insuring with British companies, or otherwise patronizing anything British.

FORESIGHT is Already Being Rewarded at "IVANHOE"

Less than 60 days ago we said, "IVANHOE business lots . . . will make unbelievable profits for many of today's buyers."

Our prophecy is already being fulfilled. Resales made show a rate of value-advance never exceeded by any Chicago property of our knowledge.

Despite this rapid advance of IVANHOE values our original moderate prices remain unchanged. There is still a fleeting opportunity for the buyer who will exercise FORESIGHT!

Owners of IVANHOE business lots are enthusiastic over the great building progress being made by their neighboring owners which, of course, enhances the value of their own IVANHOE property. Many of them will wisely "follow the leaders" who have business and residential buildings under construction, and soon start construction work upon their own holdings.

Look ahead—less than a year from now!

The first I. C. Electrified train to run on regular schedule will be the signal for a veritable migration of Chicago residents eager to take advantage of this marvelously swift transportation. Thousands will seek homes along the line of this world's finest transit route. The more discriminating will find the only place that fully meets their demand for beauty, completeness, convenience and "atmosphere," in INVANHOE.

The result will be a teeming, bustling city, formed almost overnight! A city that needs stores, offices, garages, the service of every line of business.

The owners of business lots in IVANHOE who improve their holdings will never lack for plenty of tenants. Investors will be in position to pick and choose from many eager buyers anxious to build. Buildings must be made available for the business houses that will come to such a thriving community as tomorrow's IVANHOE is bound to be.

The men who bought business property on 63rd St., on Wilson Ave., on a dozen other streets of Chicago's present outlying business centers, were called "visionary" then—now we speak of them as having had unusual FORESIGHT.

You can show foresight now by at least investigating the value of the few remaining IVANHOE "income lots" offered on liberal terms for as little as $1,750. Apartment sites as low as $1,400. All improvements installed and paid for by us, including cemented streets, cemented sidewalks, sewer, water, gas, electricity, etc.

Let Us Erect an "IVANHOE" Income Building for You

A most conscientious, comprehensive building and financing service is offered exclusively to IVANHOE owners by the IVANHOE REAL ESTATE IMPROVEMENT CORPORATION. This organization, headed by Mr. Avery Brundage, widely known Chicago engineer and builder, who built the 23rd St. Viaduct on the South Parkway Outer Drive, the Sheridan-Brompton Apartments on Sheridan Road, the Shoreland Hotel (now under construction) at 55th and the Lake, and scores of others of Chicago's most prominent attractive buildings—is pledged to a standard of quality and service in building hitherto unknown in Chicago real estate development.

Consult with their representative (always on the grounds at IVANHOE) about the moderate cost and easy terms at which a fine income-bringing building can be erected on your lot at IVANHOE.

Complete files of approved plans and specifications will be offered for your inspection, or figures on your own plans will be gladly quoted. This valuable advisory service is gratis to owners and prospective owners of IVANHOE property.

Make your Sunday outing a memorable one by driving south on Halsted Street to 144th Street, where you can turn in through the granite-pillared entrance onto the glass-smooth concrete boulevards of IVANHOE. Majestic sweeps of smooth streets lie before you, velvet-green of grass invites you, trees and shrubbery form a background of beauty. You and the other "grown-ups" in your party can explore IVANHOE to your hearts' content while the youngsters play happily in one of the IVANHOE Community Playgrounds. We'll be looking for your car.

LOOSE CROWN GIVES COOLIDGE RESTLESS NIGHT

Trouble Is Dental, Not Presidential, However.

BY GUY McKINNEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Plymouth, Vt., Aug. 15.—[Special.]—After a restless night caused by an aching tooth, President Coolidge arose early this morning and motored with Mrs. Coolidge to Woodstock, fourteen miles away, where he consulted Dr. E. R. Jewett, his old dentist. The President's trouble was diagnosed as a loose crown. He returned later in the day for further treatment.

Bright sunshine followed the rains of yesterday, and the President thoroughly enjoyed his rides through the Green mountains and along the Black river. On their return to Plymouth in the morning the President and Mrs. Coolidge motored to the graveyard and placed fresh flowers on the grave of Calvin Jr., the son who died last year.

Plymouth Has Boom.

Plymouth has changed much from a year ago. Today everything is prim and clean in the little hill town in Plymouth Notch and while there is still only one general store, a flock of tearooms and souvenir shops have settled down as close as possible to the white frame house where the Coolidges are staying.

Attracted by the coming of the President, hundreds of tourists made detours through the Notch this morning and a squad of state traffic policemen kept the traffic moving and directed the curious to parking places.

Await Smoot and Mellon.

Senator Smoot [Rep., Utah] and Secretary Mellon will arrive here Monday for a conference on the Belgian debt negotiations. They also are expected to discuss the French and Italian war debt terms, as well as tax reduction and national finances.

Immediately after the conference they will return to either New York or Washington. Before leaving, however, it is expected that the tentative tax program will be well established and the size of the next tax reduction will be determined upon.

EXTRA! EXTRA! "YELLOW KID" PUTS OUT CASH

There was an unusual spectacle presented in the office of Assistant State's Attorney Joseph Nicolai yesterday. Joseph R. "The Yellow Kid" Weil, well known confidence man, and Mr. Nicolai were the chief actors in a little sketch featured by the passing of $125 from the hands of one to the other.

But probably for the first time in his life, the "Kid" was the donor and not the recipient of the money. Weil paid the money to save his friend, G. E. Shepherd, manager of the Shenandoah hotel, from going to jail for presenting a bad check.

It was also learned yesterday that the "Kid" prefers to spell his surname "Wile." This was learned from the court files when Superior Judge Michael McKinley entered a judgment for $2,500 in favor of Ike Weil, Superior court bailiff. Ike declares his brother deceived him in the matter of three notes totaling that amount.

JEWS SPEND $8,646,750 FOR UPBUILDING OF PALESTINE COLONY

New York, Aug. 15.—(AP)—A total of $8,646,750 has been spent for upbuilding the Holy Land during the last four years by the Palestine Foundation fund, it was announced today. American Jews contributed sixty per cent of the total, the balance coming largely from Jews in fifty-two other countries.

Agricultural colonization, the chief activity of the fund in Palestine, received $2,750,785. During the four year period the fund has established and maintained forty-three agricultural colonies. More than $1,600,000 has been used to establish 120 schools in which ancient Hebrew is taught.

Promotion of immigration was the third largest item on the budget, drawing $1,008,190 during four years. Investment enterprises cost $768,440; land development, $250,000; electric power corporation, $250,000; workmen's labor coöperative association, $102,890; mining syndicate, $82,050, and public health works, $713,850.

Samuel Untermyer is president of the foundation.

EX-GRID STAR'S LEAP AGAINST WINDOW FATAL

Harry Guipe, attorney and former University of Wisconsin football player, was fatally injured yesterday afternoon when he attempted to leap through a second floor window of his home, 4844 West Washington boulevard, to escape a police detail which had been sent to escort him to the psychopathic hospital.

At the arrival of a patrol wagon, Guipe rushed from the living room. He entered an upstairs room, which he barricaded against the police. They, led by Harry's father, broke in just in time to behold him leaping through a window. They seized him, but an artery in his throat had been cut, probably by broken glass. He died on the way to the Robert Burns hospital.

Dr. Edward Rategan, 4840 West Washington boulevard, who had been attending Guipe, summoned the police. Guipe was 44 years old.

Foot Troubles

affect the body in many different ways. The feet swell, burn, ache; sharp pains under heels, ball of foot becomes sore and feels as if you are walking on marbles; corns, callouses, ingrown nails and bunions; excessive perspiration with offensive odor, broken down arches, weak ankles, overdeveloped ankles and legs, varicose veins, legs cramp, knees stiffen, pains in hips and small of back, shoulders and neck, poor circulation, extreme nervousness, with many kinds of skin disease. Why suffer with your feet? Consult Dr. Pinkston at once and let him remove the cause and assist nature in effecting a cure.

Do not be discouraged. Regardless of what your condition may be, or what you have tried, or whom you have consulted, Dr. Pinkston guarantees to relieve all foot troubles and cure nine-tenths of them regardless of the nature or condition of the ailment.

CHICAGO ONLY INFANT YET, SAY POWER CONCERNS

Bright Future for City Is Painted.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Chicago's future growth, development, and prosperity is of intimate, if not vital, concern to the generator of energy for light and power. That generator is commonly called the Insull interests.

These interests are generally credited with a keener judgment in the electric business than any other management in the country. In the vernacular, "they know their stuff," and because of that attainment the Commonwealth Edison company of Chicago offers a larger capacity in electric current than any other central station organization in the world.

If the forgeoing statements are untrue, there is little pungency in the matter to follow, but if they are correct, unusually large significance must attach to the Commonwealth's view of Chicago's future, whether its slant is favorable or adverse.

It is natural for one to suppose that a corporation of this character, which weekly combs the city for new patrons and has attained 744,120 in a city of a trifle less than 3,000,000 inhabitants, might believe that it has reached the limit of its possibilities. The Commonwealth in its survey of its needs for the next 25 years predicts a population in Chicago by 1950 of 5,000,000, while the Illinois Telephone company predicts 4,500,000. The two predictions, however, are not inconsistent. The phone company's estimates relate to the territory within the present corporate limits, while the Edison company assumes there will be 43 more square miles added to the city's area before 1950.

In the last five years the Commonwealth Edison has been spreading out like wild fire. In 1920 it had 474,791 customers and ended 1924 with 744,120. That is an average of one customer for each 3.96 persons in the entire city. In 1950 the Commonwealth believes that it will have 1,250,000 customers. That indicates the conservative character of the ecompany's survey because the 1950 forecast indicates a belief of one customer for each four residents of the city.

Plans Ahead.

Yet the Commonwealth Edison company anticipates twice as much more business in 1950 as it is transacting today. It is planning, building and financing accordingly.

Chicago is frequently boosted because of its art, opera and recreational advantages, but it is essentially a commercial and industrial city. In those respects the city today has only one-third of the development it will have in 1950, as measured by electrical energy used. That is the Commonwealth view.

In 1924 its total kilowatt hours output numbered 2,786,851,000. In 1950 it predicts a total of 8,403,000,000.

The commonwealth counts on selling more than three times as much energy at the end of the next 25 years as it has been able to sell after 42 years of previous effort. This must mean, although no official statement has been issued to that effect, that the Commonwealth foresees many new plants, mills, and factories which will use electrical energy. That appears remarkable when it is related that more than 80 per cent of all of the ice manufactured in Chicago is made with electricity at present.

New Capital Needed.

To meet the anticipated demand for energy, a bank full of new money will be required. The investment in the Commonwealth after 42 years was $166,577,490 at the beginning of this year. That is only a third of what will be invested in 1950. It is anticipated that $373,000,000 in new capital will be needed in the next 25 years. Perhaps those figures are too large for rapid assimulation. Another measure of the size of the company can be used.

In 1920 the average number on the Commonwealth pay roll was 5,684. In 1950 it is predicted that the number will be 17,500. When that year arrives the annual operating revenue will approximate $140,000,000.

Comparing the Edison's estimate on population of 5,000,000 for 250 square miles with the telephone estimate of 4,500,000 for 203 square miles and the impression is conveyed that the Edison company believes that there are 43 square miles adjacent to Chicago at present in which will live 500,000 people in 1950. If that happens those 43 square miles will be half as thickly populated as will be the city as a whole. The 43 miles will average 11,400 per section, while Chicago will have 22,120.

Others hold views along that same line. The committee which was instrumental in forming the regional planning association in its preliminary report made this observation:

"When it is realized that the population of the city increased 23.6 per cent during the last decade (prior to 1920), that the population in the territory outside of the city and within ten miles of the city limits increased 76.3 per cent—or more than three times as fast that all of the indications point to more rapid growth during the next 10 or 25 years; it is entirely reasonable to predict that by 1950 Waukegan, Elgin, Aurora, and Michigan City are likely to hold about the same relationship to the built up portions of the greater city as Evanston, Oak Park, and Gary now hold."

FALL OF 15 POUND WEIGHT ALMOST HITS N. Y. MAYOR

New York, Aug. 15.—[U. P.]—A fifteen pound weight fell from a clock on the wall behind Mayor Hylan's desk in the city hall, narrowly missing the city's chief executive who was in conversation with a newspaper editor, the mayor related today.

Had the mayor been seated a foot nearer the wall, with his chair tilted against it as is sometimes his custom, he would have been struck and possibly seriously injured.

The crash of the weight on the floor brought employës in adjoining offices on the run to the mayor's office.

Why Wolberg-Layton Garages Are Best

Simply saying that a garage is wonderful does not make it wonderful. We are prepared to show you—point by point—why WOLBERG-LAYTON honestly built garages are the best. Examine one near your home. Note the strong, closely spaced studding, double 2x4 top plates, notched-in roof rafters, and solidly laid roof boards. See how siding is nailed on, piece by piece, accurately cut and fit right in your own yard. Then bear in mind that the roof is covered with beautiful and lasting Lok-Top shingles (red, green or blue-black), that all eaves are neatly enclosed and sealed, and that doors are double braced inside and out to prevent sagging. Above all, bear in mind that you get WOLBERG-LAYTON service; honesty, promptness, thorough experience in garage building, and conscientious attention to the smallest detail.

FARM INCOMES FOR 1925 RAISED 10% ABOVE 1924

To Add $1,000,000,000 to Gross Receipts.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Waukesha, Wis., Aug. 15.—[Special.]—American farmers stand to receive almost $1,000,000,000 more gross cash income this season than in 1924, if the signs and portents noted on this expedition into the rural regions are any guide. In 4,500 miles of automobile travel through nine of the great food producing states, agriculture seems to be about 8 to 10 per cent better off than a year ago. This view is based upon soundings along the route among farmers, bankers, merchants, implement dealers and others in close contact with farming finances.

In places the status is polka dotted, and in some spots droughts have hurt the corn, but throughout the grain, hog and butterfat belt a composite estimate seems to be that this season the average farmer, on the basis of crop prospects and present price tendencies, may get $1.10 for every $1 he received last year. Actual net profits probably will show appreciably more than 10 per cent improvement.

What 1925 Figures Show.

For the year ended June 30, 1925, agriculture's gross cash income from sales, exclusive of live stock and feed sold to other farmers, was $9,777,000,000. It compared with $8,923,000,000 the year before. Based on present prospects, it should run for the year ending next June about $10,750,000,000.

The farmer's net cash income from sales should register a considerably greater improvement than his gross cash income, for there are plenty of indications that the expenses of production this year have been considerably curtailed.

Throughout the tour, one phase that continuously hit the eye was the increase in farm machinery. It has reduced labor costs. No longer is there any labor shortage in the harvest fields.

Farmer Works Longer.

This year the readjustment of agriculture stands out predominantly. To one who toured the countryside in 1920 and 1921 the difference is striking. The farmer, hard put to it during the slump, put his back into it. One of the greatest tendencies has been the increase in the actual working season of the dirt farmer. By diversification and in other ways he is spreading his labor over more months of the year.

Although the country has almost twice as many automobiles as it had five years ago, one meets fewer of them in working hours—the agriculturist is tending strictly to his business. Evening time, of course, the roads begin to fill up and the villages and hamlets have the streets well lined with parked cars, but by 10 o'clock in the middle of the week most of them are back again at the farm to get an early start for the next day.

HITS FORECAST FAMILIES WILL ABANDON CITIES

The forecast recently of Prof. D. R. McKenzie, of the University of Washington, speaking at the University of Chicago, that in the near future cities would become merely centers of trade and amusement, with the married people living in the suburbs, was disputed yesterday in New York by Prof. Herbert S. Shenton, of the sociology department at Columbia university.

Prof. Shenton was emphatic in disagreeing with Prof. Kenzie and adduced many figures to prove that there is no likelihood of the cities being left for residence of bachelors, men and women.

The New York sociologist was armed with Chicago figures. They show that in 1910, the percentage of single people here was 41.6, while in 1920 it had dropped to 36.5. In Manhattan the percentages for the same years were 44 and 40, respectively. According to these figures, Chicago would seem to be marrying faster than New York.

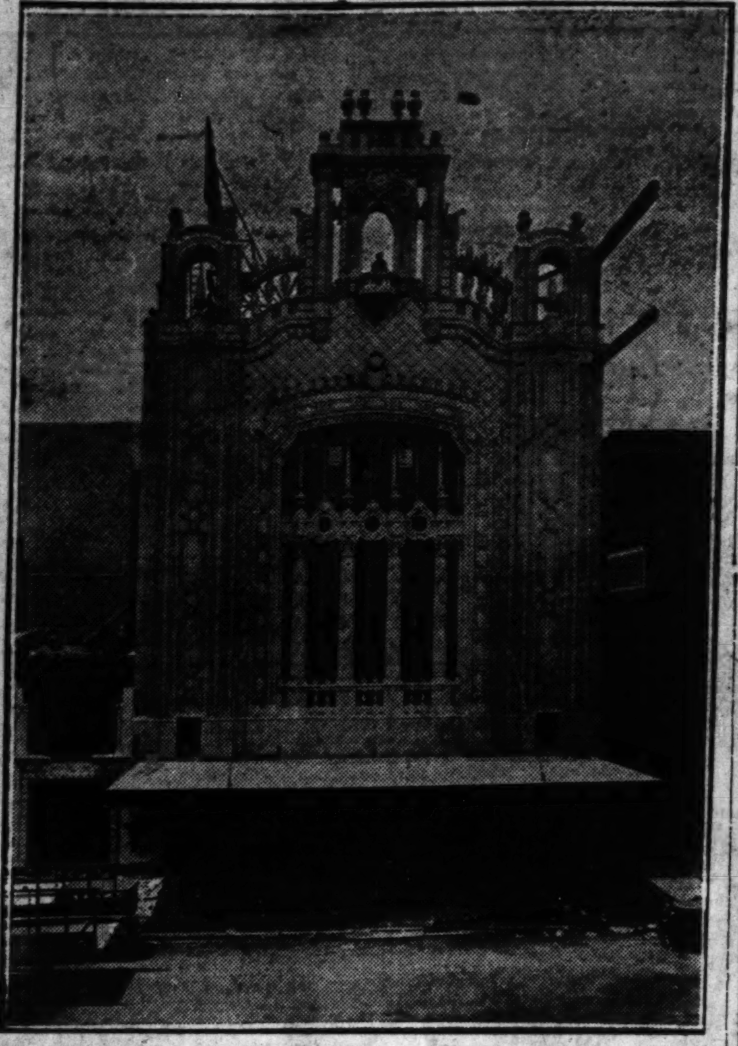
New North Side Theater Completed



The Balaban & Katz Uptown theater, Broadway at Lawrence avenue, which has been completed and will be opened to the public on Tuesday.

Turn on Big Sign

Hundreds of thousands of incandescent lamps in the new Balaban & Katz Uptown theater, Broadway at Lawrence, were switched on simultaneously for the first time last night. The radiance of the huge electric signs on the theater, which will be opened to the public Tuesday at noon, was reported to be visible over most of the north side.

All construction work and decorating of the new amusement palace will be completed this afternoon and a final corrective inspection will be held tomorrow. The architecture is of the old Spanish type and illumination has been effectively used to enhance the "castle of dreams" idea.

One of the revolutionary features introduced in the Uptown is the removal of the orchestra and the organ from the pit to a disappearing stage. Nathaniel Finston will be the orchestra director for the opening week and Jesse Crawford the organist. Special rooms have been set aside for a radio broadcasting station, a nursery and a children's play space, in addition to the usual retiring rooms.

In celebration of the opening, the Central Uptown Chicago association is sponsoring a pageant, which will last all week. Parades in which decorated floats will be exhibited are scheduled for Thursday and Friday nights.

SLEUTHS TELL HOW THEY SET DOPE RING TRAP

Beach Ambushed in a Hotel Room.

Special intelligence agents yesterday added to the details of the manner in which they claim to have trapped Col. Will Gray Beach and three subordinates in the act of bartering narcotics for stolen property.

In an affidavit made public yesterday, signed by Earle Benedick, a confessed addict and thief, alleged relations with the dope sleuth quartet is described in detail.

Hid in Addict's Room.

According to Special Agent Pat Roche he and two other agents, hidden in a room in the Brookmont hotel, 3953 South Michigan avenue, observed a visit made by Beach to Benedick's apartment.

It was this meeting upon which the formal charges against Col. Beach were based.

The affidavit states that on July 14 Beach was supposed to get some stolen jewelry from Benedick, but refused to take it after entering Benedick's quarters and giving him some cocaine. Benedick swore that Beach then told him that he thought he had been shadowed to the hotel.

According to statements credited to Benedick, the three agents now under charges would "spot" diamonds and other gems and art ornaments desired by their chief and that he then would steal them.

Delay Bringing Woman.

Narcotic agents decided not to bring Della [Blondie] Trudeau here from Kankakee until tomorrow morning. Blondie was arrested at her home there Friday as a confederate of Kitty Gilhooley's, but Chief Narcotic Agent L. J. Ulmer decided to have his men investigate the woman's activities further before bringing her in.

Operatives yesterday were engaged in checking up information contained in a packet of 200 letters found in Della's home. They also were studying the contents of a dope diary found in her possession.

RULES NEW CODE DOESN'T AFFECT BEACH RIGHTS

Carlstrom Defines Shore Line.

Lake front improvements and property rights on the shore of Lake Michigan have been unaffected by changes in the Illinois administrative code, Attorney General Carlstrom's office held yesterday in an opinion to M. G. Barnes, chief engineer for the state division of waterways.

Since the shore line was established by the former rivers and lakes commission in 1914, state control of waterways has been vested in two different departments. First it was transferred to the department of public works when the Lowden administrative code was adopted in 1917. On July 1, 1925, it was transferred again to the new department of purchases and construction created by Gov. Small.

Asks Opinion.

Mr. Barnes asked the attorney general for the opinion for the guidance of the waterway division in granting state permits for lake front improvements. Application recently for a permit to build a bulkhead outside the 1914 shore line resulted in the request for the opinion, Mr. Barnes said.

Line Defined.

The 1914 shore line still stands, provided it is in conformity with the rule of the Illinois Supreme court, which decreed that the line "shall be the one at which the water usually stands when free from disturbing causes." The opinion holds that it is the duty of the department of purchases and construction, as successor to the rivers and lakes commission, to keep the shore line in conformity with the Supreme court rule.

Indiana Banks Get U. S. Rifles to War on Bandits

Connersville, Ind., Aug. 15.—Twenty-four Krag rifles furnished by the government were distributed today among the banks of Fayette county. The rifles will be used in case of attempted bank robberies. Members of the county vigilance committee are to be sworn in as deputy sheriffs within a few days.

"L" WILL MOVE PILLARS TO CURB IN NEAR FUTURE

Notification that it has accepted the recently passed ordinance and will undertake immediately to remove pillars supporting its structures from the center of downtown street intersections to the curbs was given Mayor Dever by the Chicago Rapid Transit company through President Britton I. Budd yesterday.

Simultaneously with the relocation of the columns, it is expected that the company will begin the extension of its loop station platforms, in accord with plans which contemplate the operation of eight or ten car trains. The latter improvement will make possible a 30 per cent increase in seating capacity during rush periods, the company's engineers assert.

The city's approval of the platform extensions was given when the company agreed to remove the pillars from the street intersections, a project, which it is estimated, will cost more than $400,000 and require at least three years to complete. Mayor Dever at first insisted that all of the pillars in loop streets be removed to curbs, but receded from the position when it was demonstrated that the cost would be prohibitive.

TO BE CONSIDERED SPORT

For all of those participating, business should be considered a high class sport, filled with the joy of contest rather than a monotonous drudgery.

In any sport, requiring groups, team work is always a positive and deciding factor. It comes through subordinating the success of any one individual to the success of the whole organization. Victories and defeats reflect themselves in the percentage column accordingly as this goal is achieved.

Team work is an essential in the sport of business as it is in a baseball league.

BOUQUETS AMONG BRICKS RAINED ON GOVERNOR PEAY

Reveals Letters on His Evolution Position.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Praise in the highest to unprintable ridicule is found in letters received by Gov. Peay on evolution from United States and foreign countries.

The governor tonight opened to the Associated Press a mass of communications, little of which he had read, dealing with the action of the state legislature in passing the Butler bill barring teaching of the theory of evolution from the public schools and with his approving it.

Peay's only comment was: "I want the country to know what kind of people is in it."

Commended and Criticized.

A majority of the letters are commendatory of the governor's action, but in many custic criticisms are directed toward Tennessee and the south.

Excerpts from some of the letters in the file made public by Gov. Peay follow:

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN — Please accept my cordial congratulations on the great service you have rendered in signing the anti-evolution bill. The Christian parents of the state owe you a debt of gratitude for saving their children from the poisonous influence of an unproven hypothesis that gives man a jungle ancestry and chills his spiritual nature. The south is now leading the nation in the defense of Bible Christianity. Other states, north and south, will follow the example of Tennessee.

WHITE E. GIBSON, Birmingham, Ala.—Some one should start a cheap side show and exhibit you (Judge Raulston and Peay) as antedeluvian specimens of intolerance. It appears but a short while before you will be praying to Bryan instead of a Deity.

Jail for Scopes.

J. H. RAGSDALE, Fort Myers, Fla.—It would be well to order a tail for Scopes from Sears-Roebuck and send him to the woods.

WALTER WHITE, Dayton, Tenn., Scopes' former superior—I am of the opinion that this is the greatest step Tennessee has taken since the saloon was abolished.

THE RT. REV. JAMES MAXON, bishop of Tennessee, Protestant Episcopal church—I consider such restrictive legislation not only unfortunate but calamitous.

R. W. DOUTHAT, Huntington, W. Va.—I have the honor of offering you my congratulations for your approval of the act of a brave legislature to cut off the dragon head of evolution 'Devil-ution.'

Chicagoan Is Profane.

R. E. CANTHALL, Chicago—Under authority vested in me as a scarab, I herewith create you, sublime damn fool of the universe.

E. J. BECK, Detroit—Is Tennessee civilized?

"COMMON SENSE," Mobile, Ala.—The scientific world extends its sympathy to the governor and his companions in the sad bereavement recently suffered, losing their reason and common sense joining that long procession of anti-evolutionists' traveling to the 'great beyond' via the pons asinorum.

Klan Is Mentined.

C. H. MOHR, Stuttgart, Germany—I read here in Europe of your efforts to preserve the version of the Bible on the Creation. The Ku Klux Klan seems to be of the same opinion.

EPH A. KARELSE, New York—The middle ages gave us heretics, witches burn at the stake, filth and ignorance. Do we want to return to same?

R. T. PERRY, Washington, D. C.—To be consistent, I think your schools ought to teach Jehovah's justice—"Eye for an eye, etc."

DAVID RANKIN BARBEE, New Orleans—In this day of jazzmania, when all the enemies of God and the Bible have united to destroy revealed religion and the Word, it is most heartening to find one in high place who stands by the old time religion and Holy Writ.

Calls Jesus Traditional.

DR. FREDERICK C. WEBER, Chicago—Go slow! Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John are only book titles. No one knows who wrote them, nor when they were written, nor where. Peter and John, the alleged author of the Gospel, and of Revelations, could not read or write. Not one single line is in existence written by that traditional person spoken of as Jesus.

CITIZEN OF MICHIGAN — Since reading copy of your telegram commending A. T. Stewart and Bryan, I am convinced more than ever that Tennessee is a good place to avoid, where ignorance is at a premium and intelligence is a crime.

THE REV. VERNON HAYS COWSERT, Clovis, Cal.—The great heart of the Christian public is sincerely with you in the great conflict.

JEANNETTE M. KING, Murfreesboro, Tenn.—Ignorance is rank enough around here now.

Pastor Attacks Law.

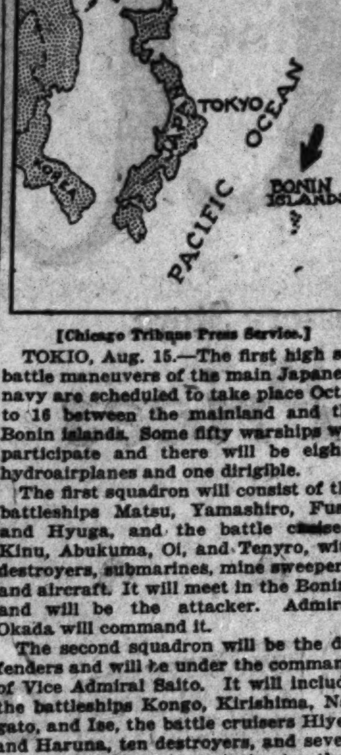
THE REV. F. B. McDOWELL, Pauls Valley, Okla.—I regard this as the most retrogressive act that the state has ever committed.

JOHN CRANSTON, Wyandotte, Mich.—No doubt you have received congratulations from Wilbur Glen Voliva, of flat world fame.

CHARLES L. HYDE, Pierre, S. D.—Do you honestly believe that the first woman was made from a rib taken from the side of the first man? If so, God pity you and Tennessee.

GEORGE F. CRAWFORD, Newark, N. J.—I hate and despise ignorant, lying, bigoted, fanatical religion that has caused more trouble than anything else.

JAP WAR GAME



[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Aug. 15.—The first high sea battle maneuvers of the main Japanese navy are scheduled to take place Oct. 4 to 16 between the mainland and the Bonin islands. Some fifty warships will participate and there will be eighty hydroairplanes and one dirigible.

The first squadron will consist of the battleships Matsu, Yamashiro, Fuso, and Hyuga, and the battle cruisers Kinu, Abukuma, Oi, and Tenyro, with destroyers, submarines, mine sweepers, and aircraft. It will meet in the Bonins and will be the attacker. Admiral Okada will command it.

The second squadron will be the defenders and will be under the command of Vice Admiral Saito. It will include the battleships Kongo, Kirishima, Nagato, and Ise, the battle cruisers Hiyee and Haruna, ten destroyers, and seven submarines. The press intimates that the maneuvers are in response to those of the American fleet in the Pacific.

Viscount Dunsford and Wife Sail for England

New York, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Viscount Dunsford and the Viscountess, formerly Mrs. Guinevere Sinclair Gould, wife of the late George J. Gould—sailed today on the Leviathan for the bridegroom's home in England.

ALBERT BRITT ELECTED KNOX COLLEGE HEAD

Galesburg, Ill., Aug. 15.—Albert Britt of New York was elected president of Knox college by the board of trustees here today.

It is understood that Britt has indicated his acceptance. He was formerly editor of Public Opinion, the Railroad Man's Magazine, and later was editor and president of Outing. For the last year and a half he has been connected with the editorial department of the Frank A. Munsey Co. He is the author of a number of books and a prominent magazine contributor.

He succeeds Dr. J. L. McConaughy, who resigned to accept the presidency of Wesleyan university at Middletown, Conn. Britt will assume his new duties at the opening of the fall semester. He is an alumnus of Knox.

GERMAN BAND GETS HAND FOR POST-WAR DEBUT

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 15.—The war is over. This time it really is.

For the first time in nearly ten years a little German band has been seen in action.

Five German musicians, in full regalia of red coats and fancy hats, broke the paradise of radio fans in one section of Detroit last night tooting "Ach Du Lieber Augustine," and the "Lorelei." There were no jazz numbers.

And the little knots of people which gathered about them every place they roamed contributed nickels and dimes as they did in the old days.

How'd you like to Swim in the Ocean?

Would you like to feel the swish, the swirl and the tingling ripple of cool salt water? Would you like to feel how wonderfully it buoys you up? It's a fact—you can float far more easily in salt water. Are you an expert swimmer? This will give you new thrills! Are you "just fair"—or a beginner? Salt water makes swimming much easier—you'll glide along like a veteran! It's bracing—invigorating, a tonic for your nerves, and for your whole system. Why not get the fun, the benefits, the thrills of salt water swimming—

◆ ◆ ◆ you can—THIS WEEK!

Forget your other vacation plans—here's a vacation so much better, at little more than the cost of staying at home! The vacation of a thousand thrills—of allurement and romance! Ocean breezes, waving palms, rolling surf on gleaming beaches, deep sea fishing, when the mighty sailfish and tarpon rise to the challenge of your bait better than any other season in the year.

Come to Florida's Miracle City!

Think of finding it cool in Florida! All day and all night, the ocean breezes sweep in across thousands of miles of cooling water. And Hollywood-by-the-Sea is right on the shore of the Atlantic. That's why we offer this wonderful vacation. We want to prove that Hollywood-by-the-Sea is an alluring vacation city, the greatest year-round vacation city in the world.

How can we prove it? By bringing you here! No finer nor fairer proof could be found than this. So we make this offer—the offer to bring you here on an all-Pullman special train—the offer to entertain you as the guests of our luxurious new hotels—the offer to give you the freedom of our beaches, our golf courses, our whole city, for only $100.

Never Before Such a Vacation Offer

People who investigate this remarkable offer ask us "How can you do it? The answer is simply this: "We have these immense hotels, waiting to entertain you. We have the golf courses, the beaches, the Broad Walk and other attractions. We have the cool ocean breezes. We have spent $250,000.00 on a bathing casino, just completed. We are spending $15,000,000 on a harbor—one of the finest between New York and Panama."

The cost of all the entertainment we offer you is small in comparison to these investments. It is small in comparison to the tremendous success which is bound to follow, when we bring you down here to enjoy yourself, so you can come back and tell your friends about Hollywood-by-the-Sea, because your word will send them down here next year. Our hotels are so large that a trainload of guests can be accommodated without causing a ripple in their smooth operation. Do you wonder that we are willing to entertain you at such liberal terms—a cost little more than what the railroad fare alone would be at other times.

Act Now—Special Train Leaves Next Tuesday!

Compare this with any other vacation—compare the attractions, the cost, the opportunities to see the South—to see the ocean—to know Florida—with its mystic old world charm and its romantic tropical foliage—to enjoy the enchantment of this wonder trip, for very little more than it would cost to stay at home! The more you investigate, the more eager you will be to take this remarkable trip.

All yours—only

MASSACRE FIEND HEADS SOVIETS' SECRET POLICE

Dread Cheka Turned Over to "Peter the Painter."

BY RAYMOND FENDRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1925: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Aug. 15. — The notorious "Peter, the Painter," yesterday succeeded M. Djerjinski as chief of the dread Russian cheka—the most relentless of all secret services.

The sinister Pole, Djerjinski, who as head of the cheka was responsible for between 100,000 and 200,000 persons being tortured to death during and after the Russian revolution, went insane weeks ago, and Leon Trotzky, erstwhile minister of war, has taken the post as chief of the supreme economic council, while Peter has the cheka job.

Peter has been identified by the British secret service as the Russian anarchist called "Peter the Painter," who set London in an uproar a few years before the war.

Leader of Anarchists.

"Peter the Painter" was the leader of the gang of anarchists who barricaded themselves in a house in Whitechapel, but he mysteriously escaped when Winston Churchill, who was the home secretary, ordered the Cold Stream guard to knock the house to pieces with field guns. All his companions were killed, but Peter escaped through an underground passage and turned up in Russia at the beginning of the revolution.

Peter became the most notorious torturer in Russia, next to Djerjinski. He directed the massacres at Kharkoff in 1920 and in Georgia last year.

M. Kameneff, who is one of the three dictators of Russia today—the others being M. Stalin, a Georgian bandit, and M. Zinovieff, president of the third international—went to Kharkoff in the spring of 1920 and became furious when he discovered that the old social and commercial political regime had survived there.

Conducts Massacre of 25,000.

He ordered Peter to give the city a lesson and Peter personally directed the massacre of 25,000 men, women, and children. American Red Cross agents who went to the city later, notably Maj. Robert Davis, confirmed the figure. After the big Georgian revolution of last September Peter massacred another 10,000 at Tiflis and Batum and exiled 50,000 to Siberia.

The name of the cheka has been changed to the G. P. U., or state political police, in all Russia except the Caucasus. To give the cheka a cloak of legality it was transformed from a communist party activity into a soviet government function and M. Djerjinski continued as its chief until he became hopelessly insane.

A section of the cheka is under the ministry of the interior and has a branch working abroad to keep watch on the soviet diplomatic, consular, commercial, banking, shipping, and propaganda organizations. This branch is under a man named Menjinski in the foreign office over whom Foreign Commissar Tchitcherin, reported to have resigned a few days ago, has never had any authority.

The cheka agents also watch all agents of the communist international who are intrusted with funds for propaganda work.

Another duty of the cheka abroad is to put all traitors to the cause, whether working for the third international or the soviet government, out of the way.

Jewett Coach NOW $1245

"Never a Car Like This—Never Such Value!"

Greater sales—greater enthusiasm than we have ever experienced—greeted this comparison-proof Jewett Coach.

Word has gone from mouth to mouth—"Never a car like this—never such value!"

Again our factory is taxed to produce this great car as fast as the public wants it. And no wonder! For in roominess and fine riding quality—in quality of detail—in price, Jewett Coach leads the field.

You'll never appreciate Jewett Coach—you can't appreciate it until you see it and drive it.

Then you'll get an impression of quality such as has never been associated with so low a price.

You'll see roominess like in big sedans—only without their bulk. We recently added more roominess.

More entrance space than any Coach. Enter or leave rear without disturbing those in front.

And added length gives amazing new riding ease. Take any road you find at the speed you like to travel. Jewett Coach will do it restfully.

And when you drive—you realize that Jewett has put two to three thousand dollar engineering into a car that sells for $1245. Smoother—quieter than ever.

That's the Jewett standard of building. That's why Jewett performance is taken for granted wherever motor cars are sold and talked about.

Now—Jewett Coach is improved. A new coincidental lock locks steering wheel and ignition with one turn of the key. You can't leave Jewett Coach unlocked if you shut off the motor.

A new air cleaner keeps road dust and grit out of the cylinders; indirect lighting eliminates glare on the instrument board; light switches are conveniently at hand on the steering gear; gear shift and emergency brake levers are moved forward to provide clear floor space in front—and many other improvements.

It was the Jewett Coach that lifted our sales far beyond any previous record.

Now we offer a greater Jewett Coach, with all its improvements at an important reduction in price.

Let a Paige-Jewett dealer show you what motor car satisfaction really means. You'll get a new thrill back of the wheel of Jewett Coach.

Increased leg room front and rear. That means comfort on long trips.

New lower prices on all improved Jewett models as follows: Jewett Coach $1245, Jewett De Luxe Touring $1320, Jewett De Luxe Coach $1400, Jewett De Luxe Roadster $1500, Jewett De Luxe Sedan $1680. Prices f. o. b. Detroit, tax extra. Paige-hydraulic 4-wheel brakes at slight extra cost

'MANON LESCAUT' WINS TRIUMPH FOR MARTINELLI

Lucrezia Bori Also Gives Fine Performance.

BY MARTIN STEVERS.

With last night's performance at Ravinia, Puccini's "Manon Lescaut" is part of operatic history in Chicago. But the novelty of the work, presenting as it did an intensely interesting example of the late Puccini in his most sumptuous and fiery mood, was by no means the most memorable feature of the evening. What most members of the audience will remember, if I am a judge, was the magnificent work of Lucrezia Bori and Giovanni Martinelli in the leading rôles.

Sets Mark as Actor-Singer.

Martinelli's work, it must be said, was art supreme. Not only did the "Chevalier des Grieux," as he acted it, live with rare conviction and power, but his singing elevated that rôle into almost a continuous aria. From the moment when, after meeting "Manon" he confessed that love had overwhelmed his previous cynicism, every moment held his auditors spellbound, and his work in the third act, when he begged permission to accompany "Manon" into exile, and in the finale, was transcendant art. There is no risk in saying that so far as traditions of performance are concerned, Martinelli has set them, and at a most exalted level, for this rôle.

Bori's Great Work.

Then, as companion to this stellar presentation, Mlle. Bori provided a "Manon," in fact, which was breathtaking in its charm. Those who have heard her in the Massenet version of the story know, of course, the delights of her histrionic treatment. Those talents were present at their best last night. But with them was a vocal performance that held the audience spellbound; for in the Puccini music she found a lilting quality and interpretative tones and shadings that were absolutely bewitching. Like Martinelli's rôle, her "Manon" may be hailed as setting a mark for other artists who undertake the responsibilities of Puccini's "Manon."

As their vehicle, these two artists had a story closely paralleling that of Massenet save in detail, and a score into which Puccini, with youthful enthusiasm, packed every resource of melody and harmony at his command.

Used Novel Features.

Furthermore, he maintained the fire at every moment from the opening note to the close. Then, to set off the successive vocal high points against the unusually sumptuous harmonic background, the composer relied on novelties, rather than the finished cadences one hears in the Massenet work—so there was scarcely a break, even for a moment, in the sonorities and fire of the instrumental accompaniment.

Outstanding among those supporting the two principals were Giacomo Rimini as "Manon's" disreputable brother and Louis D'Angelo as "Geronte." Both roles were beautifully fitted, by voice and dramatic temperament, to give excellent interpretations — and they did. Papi at the baton gave a flourishing reading of the instrumental score.

Tonight, "Madame Butterfly" with Rosa Raisa, Ina Bourskaya, Mario Chamlee, Mario Bascola and Giordano Paltrinieri in the principal rôles, with Papi conducting.

Wife, Spurned by Other Man, Jailed for Threats

Charles City, Ia., Aug. 15.—Police here are puzzled by the case of Mrs. Lawrence Engebertson of Mason City, who is alleged to have threatened to shoot a local man named Brewer and poison herself. According to police, the woman's husband brought her here Thursday telling Brewer she had chosen to live with him. Brewer said he had known her before she was married. He declared he did not want her. The woman was in custody today.

NUDE MAN FOUND ON WAY TO MEET LORD IN A HOTEL

New York, Aug. 15.—[Special.]—A man giving several names, among them that of Thomas S. Clark, 53, was arrested early this morning as he strode nude along Fifth avenue, between Thirty-first and Thirty-second streets. He declared that he had an appointment to meet the Lord in the Waldorf-Astoria. He gave the name of Clark most frequently.

Patrolman Martin Walsh, who met Clark, thought the man was attired in a white suit. Then, after he ascertained that this was not the case, he offered his coat and the shelter of a taxicab. The pedestrian declined both. Instead, he urged the policeman to remove his own clothing and "to put your hands in the air and join me."

Walsh persuaded the man to accompany him to the station.

LADY HAD $100, BIG BROWN EYES, AND A BIG HEART

"She was an awfully pretty girl, with big brown eyes. Very stylishly dressed."

That's about all the description a clerk at THE TRIBUNE Public Service bureau, 11 South Dearborn street, can give of a Lady Bountiful who stopped there yesterday to leave an anonymous gift of $100 for THE TRIBUNE Camp Algonquin and free ice funds. Too shy to leave her name, even on request, the attractive donor of the two crisp new $50 bills, each in a separate envelop, came and went without disclosing her identity.

Wouldn't Leave Name.

She was glad, she told the clerk, to have an opportunity of contributing to the funds—but no, she did not wish to leave her name. And in the next breath, she was gone.

A debutante, sharing her dress allowance with children whose wardrobe doesn't change much from year's end to year's end; a happy young wife or mother, willing to divide some of her happiness with the less fortunate; a wealthy orphan lending a helping hand to the little waifs of poverty—one guess is as good as another. But it's only the spirit of the giver that counts. So to the lady of the brown eyes, if she chances to read these lines, is proffered the only thanks she will get.

Other Gifts.

"Enclosed please find check for $10 for Camp Algonquin, in memory of my husband, Levi A. Eliel, who loved children and humanity, and my first-born, who died in his infancy," reads a note from T. G. E.

SHOW INVENTION TO CUT PERIL IN RAIL SWITCHING

Devisers Say It Will Do Work of Many Men.

"Car riding" and switch tending, the most hazardous two kinds of work on a railroad, have been definitely eliminated by a new car retarding device, demonstrated by its inventors to a group of Chicago and New York rail officials at Gary, Ind., yesterday.

The retarding appliance, designed and controlled jointly by George Hannauer, vice president of the Indiana Harbor Belt railroad, and E. M. Wilcox, master technical engineer, has been undergoing tests at the Gibson "hump" of the Harbor belt line since November, 1923. The demonstration yesterday was the first public exhibition of the results it has accomplished.

GEORGE HANNAUER.
[Moffett Photo.]

Contracts have already been signed by the Illinois Central to install the appliances in the Markham yards at Harvey, Ill., and the New York Central sent representatives to the demonstration yesterday with a view of placing them in the Selkirk yards near Albany, N. Y.

Controlled by Towerman.

In principle, the contrivance consists of a spring supported brake shoe which grips the wheels of a car as it enters the retarding unit after being released at the top of the "hump." By manipulation of compressed air valves a tower operator regulates the speed of the car and guides it to the correct track by electric lever switches.

The mechanism thus accomplishes the following results:

1. All car riders are eliminated with a saving, at the Gibson yard, of the labor of sixty-six men at a wage of 92 cents an hour.
2. Cars are spaced more closely than under the old method.
3. Control of cars on grades prevents rough handling and damage claims.
4. Use of an outside braking medium obviates the necessity of preliminary train brake tests.

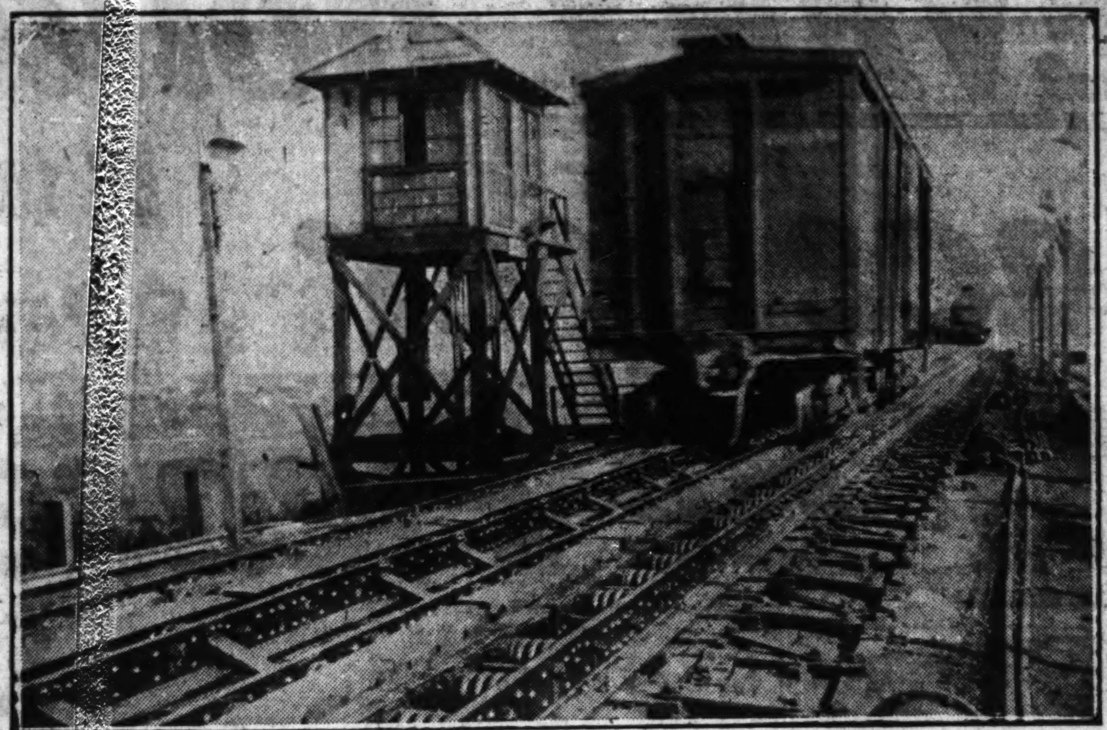
Sought Almost a Century.

Although the idea of an automatic car control is not at all new, the Hannauer-Wilcox device is declared to be its first successful application. For nearly a century, railroad engineers have been trying to solve the problem, but early experimenters did not conceive the idea of attaching brakes to the rails.

"First we experimented with springless shoes," said Mr. Hannauer, "and failed because they lifted a car off the track when they gripped its wheels. Then we thought of cushioning them with springs and the trick was done."

Railway men who saw the demonstration yesterday did not hesitate to voice their approval and predicted the invention will virtually revolutionize railway switching.

TESTS NEW SWITCHING DEVICE



New invention intended to simplify operations in railway yards is operated by towerman, who regulates speed of freight cars and throws the switches.

French Secretary Loses Purse, Important Papers

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 15.—The pocketbook of Philippe Berthelot, general secretary of Quai d'Orsay, containing £350 [$1,750] and important personal documents was lost or stolen during the security pact negotiations in London which just closed. M. Berthelot noticed his loss when he was leaving Downing street Wednesday. He is very mysterious about the affair, but he denied that there were any diplomatic documents in the pocketbook.

LUNDIN AND CO. TAKE NAME OF G. O. P. COUNCIL

Fred Lundin & Co., old established dealers in practical politics of assorted sizes and varieties, will do business for a time under the firm name "Illinois Republican council"—not Ltd., and reasonable partners, not including William Hale Thompson, desired.

This old firm announced its new name in a grove at Riverview park yesterday. The crowd was comparatively small.

Ostensibly it was a meeting to celebrate the last victory of the Republican national and state party. Actually, according to one who should be able to speak authoritatively, it was a gathering to stimulate trade with the old firm under its new name and bring contributions to the Wells street headquarters operated by Ike Volz.

William F. Mulvihill, one of the firm's best advertising experts, who was chairman of the meeting, insisted that it was not for the purpose of launching any mayoralty candidate at this time, rumors of a boom for Dr. John Dill Robertson to the contrary notwithstanding.

Dr. Robertson, president of the West Park board, lambasted present city officials for failure to curb crime.

Congressman-at-large Henry R. Rathbone pointed with pride to the achievements of the Republican party at Washington. President Coolidge was all to the good with everybody present.

Gov. Small sents regrets at being unable to attend. Senator Deneen spoke at a picnic in honor of County Recorder Joseph F. Haas at Batavia.

CATCH AUTO THIEVES.

After a 50 miles an hour chase through Lincoln park yesterday, a detective bureau squad captured Joseph Nero, 20, and George Gakowania, 19, 1504 West Division street, in an automobile which the boys admitted later was stolen.

U. S. EYES LAND WAR IN FLORIDA; VIOLENCE DENIED

New Yorker Claims Title Is Well Secured.

New York, Aug. 15.—[Special.]—While Washington dispatches today indicated the United States department of the interior plans to take a hand in the Marco island, Fla., land struggle, where old homesteaders are reported up in arms because Barron G. Collier, advertising magnate, has put a fence around some 3,000 acres of socalled "lost land." Mr. Collier in New York laughed over the whole matter.

He insisted there would be no serious trouble between his representatives and the "squatters." Meantime, however, Secretary Work dispatched T. C. Havell, acting commissioner of public lands, to the scene to conduct an investigation for the government.

Collier Explains It.

"A man named W. G. Williams," Mr. Collier explained, "has an option on about 56 acres which expires next month. He wanted to sell it to us for as much as we paid for a thousand acres, and, of course, we refused to buy. We had enough, anyway, with our 5,000 or more acres.

"Then when Williams and some relatives and friends he had brought down from New Jersey started to trespass I had fences built and asked the sheriff for protection ordinarily accorded any other property owner. This protection he is giving. That is the whole story."

Dispatches from Florida state that a deputy sheriff has disappeared mysteriously from the section where the difficulty had arisen and that violence is feared unless state or federal authorities quickly intervene.

Islanders go to Governor.

Fort Myers, Fla., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Gov. Martin will be asked by Marco island homesteaders to intervene in the fight for 3,000 acres of "lost land."

Armed with petitions signed by 153 persons, said to be almost all the voters of Collier county not in the employ of Barron G. Collier, a delegation of homestead claimants will go to Tallahassee as soon as an appointment can be made to see the governor.

HEARINGS SET ON WIDENING MILWAUKEE AVE.

Speedy removal of the legal technicalities hindering the widening of Milwaukee avenue between Edmund street and the city limits was promised yesterday when County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki set hearings on objections for Aug. 19.

Approximately 65 per cent of the property owners have filed objections to the improvement which will cost about $500,000.

It is proposed to widen the street sufficiently to permit a double street car track to replace the single line now in operation.

CHURCH CELEBRATES CENTENNIAL.

Greensburg, Ind., Aug. 15.—A three day celebration of the centennial of the founding of the Spring Hill Presbyterian church near here was in progress today. The church was established in a log cabin in 1825.

Cadillac Standard 7-Passenger Sedan

New CADILLAC Is More, Gives More, Does More

The new Cadillac is lower—superbly graceful, with the air of fleetness and agility that is more than equaled by its brilliant performance.

The chassis is lighter by 250 pounds, and more simple. Power is increased and flexibility and responsiveness augmented. Acceleration is remarkable, and sustained speed is, of course, available in extraordinary degree and for any length of time.

Product of Years

The new Cadillac, throughout, bears the hall mark of supremacy. Squarely in line with the most advanced tendencies, is this new Cadillac. It is not a change in Cadillac's fundamental principles of V-type eight-cylinder design. It is, rather, a development, a perfection of the application of those principles, due to a quick sense of the responsibility that is upon Cadillac. Cadillac, today, as always, can be trusted to maintain its position as the standard of the world.

Why EVERY Holland Furnace User MUST Be Pleased!

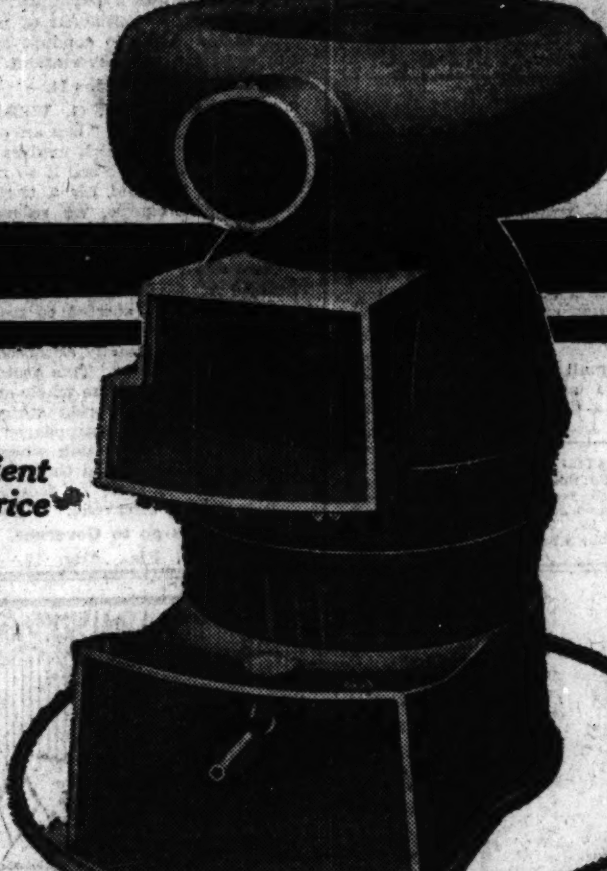
Holland Service Bond
FIVE YEAR



THE HOLLAND
There is no more efficient heating system at any price

The Holland Service Bond Positively Guarantees!

When you buy a Holland Heating System for your home, you know exactly where to place ALL of the responsibility.

The Largest Installers of Furnaces in the World are directly responsible to you. There is no individual or dealer that can enter into the transaction in any way.

Responsibility Absolutely Undivided

That is why everyone who holds the Holland Guarantee Bond MUST be pleased.

There are no loop-holes in the Holland Guarantee—no way to shirk responsibility. It is the simple pledge of an organization built with the desire to perform a matchless heating service. It is the pledge of an organization that has the courage to stand on its own feet. Read the Holland Heating Contract and the Holland Guarantee Bond and you will see that we do not like "buck-passing" and that that so-called indoor sport has been made absolutely impossible when your home is heated by a Holland Furnace.

The Holland Humidifier Helps Keep You Healthy

When you breathe out-door air that is just the right temperature, and has just the right degree of humidity for comfort and health, you find yourself wishing that you could live in such air every day in the year.

You CAN, every day that it is cool enough to have a fire in the Holland Furnace.

You can have all the heat you want, and all the humidity you want.

The Holland Air-Moistener is much the simplest device that has ever been invented for the purpose. It costs so little that it pays for itself in only a few days. Yet, like the rest of the Holland Furnace, the Humidifier will last a life-time.

There are several other ways in which the Holland System is superior to steam and hot water and every Holland man is prepared to explain these advantages.

Prepare for Winter

Why not prepare for winter, and then dismiss it from your mind? Make sure that the whole family will be comfortable and warm in a healthful and happy home—next winter and all of the winters coming.

You will be surprised to find how very little more it costs to get a permanent Holland Heating System with real fuel economy than it costs for just any ordinary furnace.

Why not let a Holland Man tell you right away exactly what it will cost for a completely installed Holland for your own individual home.

The Holland Man will gladly tell you this and without any obligation whatever.

Easy Payments If You Prefer

The Holland can be purchased either for cash with an attractive discount or on the time-payment plan. Suit your convenience. There will be no better time to make your purchase than right now.

"The Whole House Comfortable and Clean" is an attractive book—a guide you should have in furnace buying. Send the coupon to us or get in touch with the nearest Holland Branch today. No matter how many furnaces we make, their installation depends entirely upon the number of trained men available.

Your friends or relatives in distant cities can have the same direct factory guaranteed service as given you by your local branch. Holland heating service is standard everywhere. Factory Engineered and Factory Guaranteed.

These are all Holland Factory Branches operated by this company. Not one is the address of a dealer masquerading as a factory branch—an evasion much used by Holland imitators.

John McKinlay Jr., 23 year old golfer of the Beverly Country club, won the city amateur championship on the Jackson Park Golf club course yesterday before a gallery of 6,000.

McKinlay, the easy going player whose casual putting often dumfounded the gallery, defeated Bob White, 18 year old lad from Olympia Fields, 3 and 2 in a thirty-six hole match. McKinlay's margin was comfortable enough, but it did not materialize until the last part of the match and there were many moments when the result was in great doubt.

McKinlay probably never played better golf than he did on yesterday afternoon's round. There were ragged spots in it, especially on the first hole when he sliced a tee shot, but he finished the last sixteen holes three strokes under fours.

McKinlay "Pays No Mind."

The tournament was in progress all last week and at no time during the hundreds of holes he played did McKinlay appear to be at all worried. He is one of the most disinterested golfers ever seen in Chicago. Some of his friends are southerners and they pin a southern expression on McKinlay. They call him the "pay no mind" golfer. He simply lacks nerves.

In the morning round yesterday both White and McKinlay played a little above their usual game. Both made the morning round in 74, five strokes above par, and they finished all even after eighteen exciting holes. It was nip and tuck all the way.

McKinlay had a terrible hook on his tee shot off the first tee in the afternoon round, but he recovered and won the first hole. White won the second with a long putt and again they were square. Then the Beverly player won the third, the fourth was halved and McKinlay won the fifth. He was two up.

Match Squared Again.

But White recovered and won the sixth with a par three. McKinlay drove a ball out of bounds on the seventh and the match was squared again. The eighth was halved with threes. McKinlay won the ninth with one of his long putts and was one up at the turn.

On the tenth McKinlay drove the green and White went back of a tree. It was McKinlay's hole, even though the Olympia Fields player made a good pitch over the tree. On the eleventh McKinlay drove out of bounds again and lost the hole and was 1 up.

The twelfth and thirteenth were halved and McKinlay won the fourteenth and the fifteenth and they were dormie, McKinlay 3 up and 3 to go.

Both had fair shots off the sixteenth tee. The enormous gallery could not be moved by the motorcycle policemen and McKinlay's approach shot was stopped by the crowd. Yet he managed to halve the hole with a 4 and won the match, 3 and 2.

First Round Nip and Tuck.

The morning round was no less interesting than the afternoon session. Both played par golf for three holes, and being all square at the fourth tee. White got a four on the fourth and his opponent needed a five. But McKinlay won the fifth and sixth.

The seventh was halved with fives and the Beverly player got a par three on the eighth and won the hole. The ninth was halved with fours and they made the turn with McKinlay two up.

McKinlay won the tenth with a par three and the next two holes were halved. McKinlay had trouble on the thirteenth, but White got a par and won the hole. White also won the fourteenth and the fifteenth. On the fifteenth White shot out of turn and there was a great discussion in the gallery. But the sportsmanship of McKinlay dominated and White was given the hole without having to play his putt over, although a local rule made such a procedure possible.

At the sixteenth tee the match was all square. McKinlay won the hole. Off the seventeenth tee McKinlay pushed his ball into a trap and lost the hole. The match was squared again. The eighteenth was halved with fours.

The results in the other flights were:

FIRST FLIGHT—W. Dantolio of Dixmoor defeated Gus Fets of Columbus, 1 up.

FIRST FLIGHT CONSOLATION—Pat Be[illegible] Palos, defeated George Petechs of Olympia Fields by default.

CHAMPIONSHIP CONSOLATION—E. A. [illegible] of Jackson park defeated C. F. Kin[illegible], [illegible], 7 and 6.

In the Wake of the News

PITCHER COVERING FIRST.

Discussion of the origin of the baseball play where the catcher backs up throws from the infield to first base, as practiced by Ray Schalk, recalls to The Wake that Charles A. Comiskey originated the now universal practice of the pitcher covering first base when the guardian of the initial cushion is pulled away from his post.

During the years when Comiskey was a star first sacker, The Wake was too young to understand baseball strategy, but we have heard "The Old Roman" in fanning bees tell how he conceived this play and of the difficulties he had in inducing some pitchers to coöperate.

Comiskey, a fair batter and clever base runner, but not one of the heavy sluggers whose names have come down to us, was one of the greatest fielding first basemen in baseball's history. Previous to his advent the initial sacker had been little more than an almost stationary target for infield throws. His fielding duty was to scoop up only balls that came his way. He played close to the bag, both with a runner on base and when the bag was unoccupied.

"Commy" saw that many hits inside first base, but too far over for the second baseman to get, could be retrieved if he played deeper—back of first and over toward second. Accordingly he instructed his pitchers to cover first when he went back for such a hit.

As a rule, Commy's pitchers approved his fielding innovation. There was one chap, however, who either was too lazy to perform the extra work or who questioned the soundness of the tactics. Comiskey was in a quandary how to convince the obstinate one without inflicting a fine, thereby causing ill-will and lack of club harmony. So he decided to let the fans decide the issue.

In a game in which this pitcher was to work, Commy told the slabman of his intention to play deep. The latter gave only a scornful look. On the first ball hit back of first, Comiskey was there to receive it and poised for the putout throw to first. The pitcher had not covered. No one to receive the throw. The batter was safe. A mild chorus of "boos" from the crowd.

Several innings later the play was repeated with similar result. This time there was no mistaking the "boos" to which were added personal uncomplimentary remarks to the pitcher which fans of those days knew well how to utter. On the third similar play, the pitcher was at first to receive the throw. Comiskey had no further trouble.

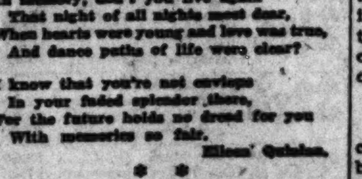
To an Old Gown.

You're only a gown of faded lace,
Of a one-time orchid hue,
With a faint dim scent of a jasmine flower
And a bit of a lace of blue.

But I love to think that your memories
As the years all swiftly flee
Are just as sweet and just as dear
As the ones you bring to me.

Don't you recall the day you ruled
Over all the gowns that were,



With a faint violin, and a summer breeze,
And a moon that was demure?

In memory, don't you live again
That night of all nights most dear,
When hearts were young and love was true,
And dance paths of life were clear?

I know that you're not envious
In your faded splendor there,
For the future holds no dread for you
With memories so fair.
Eileen Quinlan.

For a time yesterday the homecoming White Sox were content to run along easily and merely keep up with the Tigers. Then the Collins' boys decided to get rough, and they did so in such emphatic fashion that they scored one run in the seventh and six more in the eighth to give their opponents a delightful socking in a 12 to 5 battle that brought Dick Kerr back into action for the first time since 1921 and gave Bill Barrett and a few others the fleeting honors that go with a large afternoon at bat.

The return of the tiny Mr. Kerr after his long absence occurred at the start of the third frame just after Urban Faber had been forced to beat it under pressure of three runs. The multitude of 20,000 gave Dick a great ovation and he went good for a couple of innings, but in the fifth lost control and away he went. That necessitated the almost daily appearance of Sergt. Connally, and he extracted the Tigers' teeth, the Sox in the meanwhile having kept themselves in a 5 to 5 tie by scoring in the third, fourth and fifth, and then clinching it by assaulting and chasing Earl "Lefty" Whitehill in the concluding chapters.

Barrett Stars at Bat.

Barrett, who subbed for Hooper, carved himself into a prominent niche by peeling off two singles and a pair of doubles. One of the singles pushed two runs over the pan to knot the score in the fifth, and the doubles were slightly out of the ordinary in that both occurred in the same inning. One of them started and the other concluded a boisterous eighth round in which a total of seven hits and one pass sent a half dozen runs over the plate. Barrett's first two bagger was off Whitehill and the other off Doyle, a right hander, who was frisked for about everything but his life.

The thing that forced Faber to leave was a couple passes. After retiring two in the second he walked two men and three hits followed to score a trio of hostiles. Kerr held the visitors in the next session and in the home half the Sox managed to retrieve two of the tallies on hits by Kamm, Schalk and Mostil and a sacrifice fly by Davis. Then the south siders got back on even terms in the fourth when Kamm notched his second single, hiked to third on a wild pitch and slid across the plate on a squeeze bunt by Schalk.

Connally to the Rescue.

With the opening of the fifth Neun slapped a single to center and was put on third when O'Rourke doubled down third base way. Then Kerr walked two fellows and forced a run across the plate. He was excused and Connally passed one more, another marker going over the pan. After that the Tigers did nothing with the Sergeant and the Sox lost no time knotting it again, this happening in the home portion of the fifth when Barrett drove home Collins, who had strolled, and Falk who had doubled.

Singles by Davis and Sheely put the Sox one to the good in the seventh and then came the merry eighth inaugurated by Barrett's double. Kamm sacrificed, Schalk was purposely passed and Connally beat out a bunt that loaded the corners. Whitehill was waved aside for Doyle and Mostil immediately smacked a single, scoring Barrett and Schalk. Next came a triple by Davis, two bagger by Collins, single by Sheely and Barrett's second double of the inning.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 15.—[Special.]—Allan Sothoron with his well known moist ball was able to check the heavy hitting of the Cubs today sufficiently to allow the Cardinals to win the third game of the series. The count was 4 to 2 and it was a home run drive by the eminent Mr. Hornsby with one mate on the bases that brought victory to St. Louis.

Guy Bush was the hurler for the Cubs. Percy Jones was to have pitched, but when he got to the ball park he discovered there was a kink in his powerful left arm which made it impossible for him to do his stuff properly. Bush is the ever ready guy of the team and stepped into the fight and did splendid work except for the homer hit by the St. Louis slugging star. It was his thirty-second of the year, putting him well out in front of all rivals.

Hornsby Outwits Bush.

The homer came in the third inning when the count was only 1 to 0 against the Maranville gang. After one was out, Blades poled a double to right. He went to third on Toporcer's out and then up came Hornsby. Boss Maranville walked up to his pitcher and whispered something. What it was no one can say, but on the first pitched ball Mr. Hornsby dropped to earth because the ball was aimed at his eyebrows. Such things are often done to scare a batter and make him fearful of taking a toe hold.

So it was supposed that Mr. Hornsby was all a-quiver with fear and wouldn't be able to hit the ball at all. Bush had fanned him in the first inning, too. So after scaring him nearly to death, Bush aimed one high and outside. Probably it wouldn't have been called a strike at all and the chances are Bush didn't care if Hornsby drew a base on balls.

But Hornsby, in his scared mental condition, leaned out and leaned his bat against that ball, socking it clear over Mr. Heathcote's head and into the right bleacher for a home run, and then Mr. Hornsby jogged around the bases laughing at Mr. Bush just as if he hadn't been scared at all by that shot at his bean. Mr. Bush couldn't think of any pert remark to make about the episode so just ground his teeth with rage.

Cards Score in Second.

One run had been counted off Bush in the second when Bottomley opened with a single. Hafey forced him at second, but Heinie Mueller came through with a double to right that scored Hafey clear from first base.

The other run came in the fourth when with one out Mueller singled to right. Bell followed with a blow to the same field, sending Mueller to third, where he finished with a thrilling slide

Another two year old flashed to victory when Private Seth led a band of eight youngsters home in the first race. Jockey J. Smith came from behind with the son of Seth. On the outside in second place was P. Bush while directly back of Private Seth in third place was Island Fairy.

Gallery Hisses Helen Wills As British Women Win Cup

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 15.—(AP)—The Wightman cup, emblem of international women's tennis supremacy, goes back to England for another year.

Britain's feminine racquet wielders successfully defended the trophy today when they emerged victorious by four matches to three in the two day tournament with their American rivals.

The invading forces clinched their triumph in brilliant fashion when the doubles team of Miss Kathleen McKane and Miss Evelyn Colyer vanquished Miss Helen Wills and Miss Mary K. Browne, 6—0, 6—3, after the United States forces had staged a sensational up-hill battle to square the series.

Helen, Molla Save Day.

Holding a lead of two matches to one as a result of yesterday's play, the British forces increased their edge when Mrs. Lambert Chambers, veteran captain, conquered Miss Eleanor Goss, 7—5 3—6, 6—1, in the first match this afternoon, but spectacular singles triumphs by Miss Wills and Mrs. Molla Mallory put the United States back in the running until Britain's hurricane finish decided the issue.

Miss Wills gained the singles laurels of the series when she conquered her leading British rival, Miss McKane, in a tensely fought three set struggle, 6—1, 1—6, 9—7, while Mrs. Mallory turned in the other American victory today by downing Miss Joan Fry, 19 year old English girl, 6—3, 6—0.

Today's play witnessed demonstrations on the part of the gallery of some 6,000 fans unparalleled in American tennis annals. Aroused to a high pitch by the tenseness of the McKane-Wills struggle, the crowd grew more unruly as the play progressed, hooting line decisions, and later hissing Miss Wills when she appeared for the final doubles match after a ten minute delay.

Miss Wills' victory over Miss McKane was the high spot of the afternoon, but the tiring effects of this triumph found her erratic and ineffective in the final doubles match.

It was a spectacular duel Miss Wills had with Miss McKane, particularly in the last set and it was a notable triumph for the American girl, and gave her a margin of three matches to two over Miss McKane in the rivalry.

Test of Styles of Play.

The hour and a half struggle was a test between Miss McKane's more versatile attack and Miss Wills' powerful driving. At the net, the British girl was clearly superior, but she had few opportunities to get there, so accurately did the American girl shoot her drives from corner to corner.

Mrs. Mallory's superior generalship proved too much for Miss Fry, a factor which also played an important part in the victory of Mrs. Chambers over Miss Goss.

Miss Colyer and Miss McKane took nine straight games before the Americans, on Miss Browne's service, temporarily checked the tide.

N. Y. Girl Sets New Mark in 880 Yd. Swim

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 15.—(AP)—A world's record, 880 yard free style, and fast time in two other events marked the closing day of the national swimming championships here.

Virginia Whitenack, Women's Swimming association, New York, lowered her own mark in the half mile to 12 minutes, 56 seconds. She was pushed all the way by a teammate, Ethel McGary. Regina Reis, Hoosier Athletic club, Indianapolis, was third, far in the rear of the New York women.

Sibyl Bauer, Illinois Athletic club, Chicago, world's champion back stroke swimmer, won the 100 yard back stroke in the fast time of 1 minute, 18 seconds, and Agnes Geraghty, Women's Swimming association, negotiated the 220 yard breast stroke in 3 minutes 33 2-5 seconds.

In the 440 yard free style John Dithmor, Indianapolis, won from Foster Holt, Louisville Boat club, in 6 minutes, 13 1-5 seconds. Indianapolis swimmers made a clean sweep of the 50 yard free style, middle states championship, Dithmor again winning, with John Moore, Indianapolis A. C., second, and Henry Churchman of the same club third.

LITTLE STAR SETS SPEED RECORD ON CEDAR LAKE

Cedar Lake, Ind., Aug. 15.—[Special.]—Little Star, owned by Waugh Brothers of Peoria, defeated two Mississippi Valley association champions here today and established a new world's record for 151 class hydroplanes by averaging 38 miles per hour. Little Star won the 151 class from the So Long of Harvey, Ill., second, and the S. D. S. of Pekin.

In the 215 event the Little Star defeated P. D. R. Sixts of Evanston by half a length in a hair raising finish. The six and six-tenths miles were covered in 10:23. So Long finished third and S. C. S. fourth.

Ethel Eleventh of Muscatine, Ia., easily won the 510 and 610 class events over Jay Eye See of Racine and Marmon of Terre Haute. As a result of today's performance the owners of Little Star announce they will start this boat in the gold cup events in New York City Aug. 29-30.

BERLENBACH AND DELANEY BOUT IN N. Y. POSTPONED

New York, Aug. 15.—(AP)—The boxing show slated for the Yankee stadium Aug. 28, featuring a world's light heavyweight title bout between Paul Berlenbach and Jack Delaney, was postponed today by Tex Rickard because of an injury to Berlenbach's hand.

Berlenbach, who was knocked out by Delaney in their last encounter, informed the promoter he hurt his left hand while training. Berlenbach expressed willingness to fight at the earliest opportunity, however.

TACOMA BEATS MAROONS, 6 TO 1

Tacoma, Wash., Aug. 15.—[Special.] The Tacoma Tigers, leaders in the Tacoma city league, defeated the University of Chicago nine today, 6 to 1, in a fast game.

Gardner, a University of Washington junior, held the Maroons to a walk and three hits. Johnny Howell gathered two of these, a double and triple. Score:

Chicago ....000 100 000—1
Tacoma ....140 000 10*—6

Marvin Goodwin, Slab Ace of Houston, Sold to Reds

Houston, Tex., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Marvin Goodwin, manager and pitching ace of the Houston club, was sold to the Cincinnati Reds today, according to H. L. Robertson, president of the local team. Goodwin, who is 32 years old has won 21 and lost four games this season.

COGGESHALL OF IOWA NO MATCH FOR CALIFORNIAN

Thomas Beaten for Boys' Title by Frank Shields.

BY HOWARD ROBERTS.

California, the land of wonderful weather and great tennis players, can add another name to its list of net champions. The name is that of Cranston Holman, the 18 year old San Francisco youth, who yesterday won the national junior championship by smothering Harris Coggeshall of Des Moines in straight sets, 6—2, 6—1, 6—2, at the South Side Tennis club. The junior doubles title and the boys' singles and doubles crowns all fell to representatives of the east.

Holman's play was the big feature of a day of brilliant tennis. The coast boy stood head and shoulders above the other entrants and played a type of game which bids fair to carry him into the first ten ranking players of the country.

Brilliant at Net.

The coast lad's driving was good, but it was at the net where he was greatest. After working Coggeshall into the backcourt he would flash to the net and drop sharp cross court volleys for placements.

Only at one time did Coggeshall appear dangerous. That was in the third set. Holman was leading, 3—0, but Coggeshall, with his back to the wall, took two straight games, breaking through Holman's service and winning his own. But the Iowan's spurt was only a flash, and Holman, putting on a bit more steam, ran out the match without giving Coggeshall another game. The match lasted only fifty minutes. It was the first time that the championship bowl has been carried west of the Mississippi river.

Johnson-Hill Win Doubles.

For sheer thrills and brilliant tennis the finals of the junior doubles was in a class by itself. The two man title went to Henry L. Johnson Jr. and Malcolm Hill of Waban, Mass., after a five set fight with Holman and Emmett Pare of Chicago. The scores were 1—6, 6—3, 4—6, 7—5, 7—5.

The first set was a runaway for Holman and Pare. In the second set, Hill and Johnson, who earlier in the year defeated the Japanese Davis cup team of Harada and Shimizu, directed their attack at Pare, forcing the local boy into errors. Pare was particularly weak on low volleys at the net. Holman by brilliant work at the net won the third set, but the easterners grabbed the fourth with another attack at Pare.

Last Set Hard Fought.

Emmett braced at the start of the final set while Kolman was playing like a demon, his smashing overheads hitting the courts and bounding clear over the bleachers. The westerners soon had a lead of 4—1 in games. Here Johnson and Hill braced and took three games to even the match. Kolman won his service to put his team ahead again, Hill won his service and Pare lost his and the eastern team led. Johnson reached match point at 40—15 on his service, only to have Holman and Pare even the count at deuce. Johnson reached match point again at advantage and then a deep lob from Pare's racket fell just outside the baseline the easterners were crowned champions.

Frank Shields of New York surprised the gallery by taking the national boy's title from Walter Thomas of Elmora, N. J., 3—6, [illegible].

Thomas Wins Opening Set.

Shields appeared overanxious at the start, and Thomas, a protégé of Bill Tilden, [illegible] with ease [illegible] struck his stride in the second set, holding Thomas [illegible] stroke and winning [illegible] deciding [illegible] either [illegible] lobbed [illegible] 6—3. With the games at [illegible] Shields reached match point at 40—30 on Thomas' service, only to lose this one. He broke through on the next service, however, to take the match.

In the boys' doubles Thomas and Shields, paired together, proved too much for Leroy Voorhees of Cincinnati and Bertram [illegible] of Harrisburg, Pa., winning in straight sets, 6—4, 6—4.

C. A. COMISKEY CELEBRATES HIS 66TH BIRTHDAY

Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the White Sox and a diamond veteran of more than [illegible] years, yesterday celebrated his sixty-sixth birthday at his estate in the north woods near Eagle River, Wis.

Commy has been in the woods for some time recuperating from illness and an operation, and he has been gaining [illegible]. He keeps in close touch with the affairs of the White Sox through [illegible] reports via the long distance telephone.

Army Poloists Win New Title by Beating Bryn Mawr

New York, Aug. 15.—[Special.]—The United States army polo team defeated the Bryn Mawr [illegible] 3, at the Rumson Country club, Red Bank, N. J., [illegible] the national junior championship to its international military title.

DAZZY'S DELIVERY DAZZLES GIANTS; ROBINS WIN, 3 TO 1

New York, Aug. 15.—[Special.]—Dazzy Vance registered his fourth consecutive victory over the Giants at the Polo grounds today when the Robbins defeated the champions, 3 to 1, in the closing game of a series of three. This triumph gave the Dazzler a lifetime record of ten victories and nine defeats in competition with the Giants and put him one up on the New York club for the first time.

Vance not only held the champs to five hits, scattered over four innings, but started the ninth inning rally that won the game for the Robins after Dick Cox's homer to the left field stand had tied the score in the eighth. Score:

REDS, 8; PIRATES, 1.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 15.—[Special.]—Cincinnati evened the two game series by taking today's contest, 8 to 1. Pete Donahue was at his best for the Reds, but eased up after his teammates gave him an eight run lead. The Reds pounded Kremer from the mound in the first inning with two singles and home runs by Roush and Crits. Oldham, former Detroit American pitcher, relieved him. Before the game was over Adams and Sheehan also worked. Score:

FULLER, ONCE GREAT JOCKEY, PEEKS OVER FENCE AT HAWTHORNE

FROM the top of a telephone pole just outside the fence on the west side of the Hawthorne track, one of America's greatest jockeys of a score of years ago viewed yesterday's racing card.

It was Grover Cleveland Fuller, the same Grover Fuller whose name was on the tongues of 50,000 race goers at old Washington park on that Saturday in June in 1904 when he rode High Ball to victory in the American Derby.

Little Grover Fuller never survived the bright lights of stardom and with Lady Luck frowning on him from the time his riding days were over he drifted down and down.

But the old call of the hoofbeats is not to be denied little Fuller, and when he appeared at Hawthorne yesterday without the price of admission or an old time friend to recognize him, and slip him through the pass gate, he took the next best course, the top of the telephone pole along side a colored lad who would like to be a stable boy.

SENATORS, 6; YANKS, 1.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 15.—[Special.]—The champions took their second straight game from the Yankees today, 6 to 1, and thereby gained half a lap on the race setting Athletics, who were able merely to split even in a double header with the Red Sox at Boston. Score:

HORNSBY'S 32D HOMER WRECKS BRUINS, 4 TO 2

on his belly. He didn't need to slide, but Heinie has the best stomach slide in the game and desires to put it on for the fans at every opportunity. From third he came home on O'Farrell's sacrifice fly to Heathcote, whose peg was so wide of the plate that Mr. Mueller had no cause to do his slide. That was all the scoring the Cards could do, but it was enough.

It was the eighth before the Cubs could break through and they got their two runs right then and there. Heathcote led off with a triple to right center and scored on Freigau's infield out. Grigsby socked a double to left and scored on Grimm's single to center. Looked like a red hot rally until Brooks slapped into a double play.

The final game of the series will be played tomorrow, mimediately after which both Cubs and Cardinals will beat it for the east in a special train.

PYOTTS BLANK CERMAKS, 6-0; PADDOCK HURLS

Niesen's Pyotts whitewashed the Cermaks, 6 to 0, at Pyott park yesterday in the first game of their series. Paddock was in rare form, fanning ten and being supreme in the pinches.

MISS EDERLE TO START CHANNEL SWIM TUESDAY

BOLOGNE, France, Aug. 15.—(AP)—The coming week at Cape Gris Ner promises to be the busiest in the history of cross channel swimming. Gertrude Ederle, the American girl swimmer, will certainly take the plunge next week if weather conditions permit, and it is expected that the start will be made early Tuesday morning. Miss Ederle has completed her training and from now until she makes the attempt will indulge in no long swims.

Lillian Harrison, the Argentine swimmer, has resumed training and will make her fifth attempt by the end of the week. Jane Sion of France will await the result of Miss Ederle's try before making another effort to swim the channel before the end of the month.

3 TEAMS TIE IN NORTH SECTION K. OF C. LEAGUE

The championship race in the north section of the Knights of Columbus Baseball league tightened yesterday and again Columbus, St. Cyr and Brownson share first place. The latter two teams both came through with victories while Columbus was dividing two games with Ravenswood for the benefit of the patients at the Municipal tuberculosis sanitarium. Ravenswood jolted Columbus, 9 to 6, in the opener, but dropped the afterpiece, 12 to 7. Other scores:

Brownson, 3; Lafayette, 3.
Marquette, 6-5; University, 5-1.

KILBY'S SINGLE WINS FOR BLUES

Hank Kilby's timely single in the seventh, counting Collins and Maehr, decided a 2 to 0 win for the Chicago Blues over the Logan Squares at Callahan's park yesterday. Brilliant hurling featured the contest. Both Dave Black and "Dolly" Gray were in top form, but Black was steadier in the pinches. The score:

FOGARTY, YALE CAGE COACH, DIES

Williamsport, Pa., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Joseph Fogarty, Jr., Yale basketball coach and nationally known authority on basketball, died at the Williamsport hospital today. Fogarty was stricken with pneumonia while on a motor tour with his wife. He was taken to the hospital several days ago. His condition had showed improvement, but he suffered a relapse today. Fogarty was 40 years old. His home was at Johnson Heights, N. Y.

BLUES, ROMEOS MIX TODAY FOR NORTH SIDE TITLE

Chicago Blues, champions of the Chicago league, and the Romeos will clash today in a baseball attraction billed as the championship battle of the north side.

The game will be played in Al Wagner's ball yard at Morse and California avenues, and there will be a big celebration occasioned by Ald. Pontow day. Plans have been made for a big reception and, of course, Mr. Pontow will be on hand to hurl the first ball.

Two Blues' Pitchers Ready.

Either Dave Black or Grover Baichley will get the mound job for the Blues. Jimmy Ryan of the Romeos has not announced his choice, but it is understood he plans to use one of the best pitchers in local semi-pro circles.

West side fans will have two double headers from which to choose. The Pyotts will tangle with Michigan City twice beginning at 1:30 o'clock and at Cermak park another double attraction has been arranged. The Rogers Parks will play the All Chicagos for the right to meet the Cermaks in the nightcap. It will be Charley Pechous day, in honor of the star Cermak infielder.

Squares Seek Vengeance.

The last time the Logan Squares and All Chicagos played, Manager Halas' team took it on the chin, and today the northwest siders hope to avenge the defeat at their home grounds this afternoon. Today's schedule:

38 YACHTS RACE IN OPENING OF JUBILEE WEEK

The Chicago Yacht club golden jubilee week opened at Belmont harbor yesterday afternoon with the largest fleet of sailing yachts assembled this year competing in the races. Thirty-eight vessels answered the starter's gun in the six events. The northeasterly breeze was too light for the competing yachts to register more than fairly good time, especially as the races were sailed in a choppy sea.

Intruder, of the Jackson Park Yacht club, owned and sailed by John and James O'Rourke, won the first leg on the Virginia trophy by easily taking the fourteen nautical miles race from four other boats entered, in 2:07.

Fight for Second Place.

The thriller in this event came in the drive for second place which Jackson Park II took, although pressed by Virginia, Siren and Verona. Jackson Park II is owned by Drs. Hewitt, McGinnis and Ortmayer, and sailed the distance in 2:09:01. Virginia, owned and sailed by J. A. Hadwiger of the Chicago Yacht club, placed third, twenty seconds in the wake of Jackson Park II.

Tomboy, owned and skippered by Bill Faurot finished in front in the R class race in 2:14:02. The race was contested over the fourteen nautical miles triangular course and seven boats crossed the starting line. Mitzi was second and Nancy third, the former in 2:16, and the latter in 2:16:30. Mitzi is owned and sailed by Hollis Potter, while Sam Dauchy handled the wheel on the Nancy. Yank, Gossoon, Sari and Colleen, all of the Chicago Yacht club, finished in the order named in this event.

Naiad Leads Pups In.

Naiad, owned and manned by Walter Johnson and Herman Hamre of the Chicago Yacht club, won the pup class event, in which twelve boats competed, doing the six miles in 1:43:23, while Skeezix, property of W. H. Alford of the same club finished three seconds in its wake second. Ancona III, of the local club finished third in 1:45:54. It was piloted by Kenneth Kraft, its owner. This event was for the leg on the United States shipping board trophy and Naiad will defend its claim to the cup this morning on the second leg and final sail tomorrow, both of which will get under way at 9:30 a. m.

In a race for boats smaller than the pups, which are known as the Jacks of Jackson park, over a six nautical miles triangular course, Pretty Pickle was sailing the distance in 2:10, while Boob followed in its wake two seconds later. The former was piloted by Lee Reynolds and the latter by Carl Leinert. Cracker Jack, third, in 2:13:50, was sailed by Dr. C. H. Miller.

Choppy Seas Give Amateur Sailors of Lake Michigan Thrill After Thrill and Near Spills

GETTING THEIR BALANCE AS LAKE MICHIGAN WAVES ROLL HIGH. Start of the pup race for the United States Shipping Board's trophy off Belmont harbor. The event opened Golden Jubilee week of the Chicago Yacht club and was won by Naiad, owned and manned by Walter Johnson (not of Washington), and Herman Hamre of the local club. A light northerly breeze helped the yachts little to record more than fairly good time. Naiad is the third boat on the right, partly hidden by Skeezix, which finished second. The victor's time for the six nautical miles was 1:43.

EASTERN NET STARS DEFEAT WESTERNERS. Doubles team, Henry Johnson and Malcolm Hill, win national junior title from Cranston Holman of San Francisco, and Emmett Pare of Chicago, in a great five set match at the South Side Tennis club. Pare is shown making a low volley, a shot which gave him considerable trouble during the day.

KEEPING THE ENEMY UPSET. While the Tigers were in utter route in the eighth round yesterday, Skipper Collins of the White Sox, stole third base as a bit of exercise.

COLORED BOY SETS MIGHTY DIZZY PACE. J. Paterson turned in the finest performance of the day when he sped over the 100-yard dash route in :09 4-5 yesterday in the annual South Parks track and field meet at Ogden park. He has often bettered even time.

CLEVELAND SOCCERITES WIN OPENER. Forest City players take first of two intercity matches when the Slavias nosed out the Sture team of Chicago, 3 to 2, at 27th street and Kostner avenue. The last minute rush of the visitors turned the tide in their favor.

WATCHING A WIZARD PUTTER. Part of the gallery of 6,000, drawn chiefly by the magic of John McKinlay's putter, who turned out to witness the final match for the city golf championship between McKinlay and Bob White yesterday at Jackson park. So great was the crowd it stopped McKinlay's shot at the sixteenth hole, but he halved the hole.

JAUNTILY COPS THE CROWN. John McKinlay Jr., whose casual method of playing golf, dumbfounded the gallery, won the city title, beating Bob White, 3 and 2, in the final.

NATION'S LEADING GOLFERS TO PLAY IN WESTERN OPEN

The greatest open tournament that the Western Golf association has ever held in twenty-six years of activity will be staged at Youngstown, O., this week and the eye of every American golf lover will be directed thither. The tournament is to be played Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

In the first place up to late last night the Western Golf association had received 237 entries. Never before has the entry list been so large and the officials of the organization are most enthusiastic over the turnout.

Macfarlane, Hagen Entered.

Then the quality of the golfers entered has further cheered the officials. Willie Macfarlane, the national open champion, has forwarded his entry. So have Walter Hagen, who is sometimes called "the world's greatest golfer," and Gene Sarazen, who won the national open and the P. G. A. tournament in a single year. From there on down the list, which includes Bill Mehlhorn, the title holder, you will find the name of almost every good golfer in America.

The Chicago contingent to this tournament includes, besides Mehlhorn, the genial Scot, Laurie Ayton of the Evanston Golf club, Al Espinosa of the Illinois Golf club, Eddie Murphy of Ridge, Chick Evans of Edgewater, Rial Rolfe of Ridgemoor, Russell Martin of Flossmoor, Gunnar Nelson, Bob MacDonald, Capt. E. C. Carter, Jock Hutchison, Dexter Cumimngs, and many others.

The western open ranks in importance in America's yearly golf classics second only to the national open tournament. The western open is truly an open tournament. Players from all over the world can enter. There are no restrictions, but the field is always fast and the quality of golf is always high.

Preliminaries Thursday.

The field will play a thirty-six hole qualifying round on Thursday. Friday and Saturday will be given over to 72 holes of medal play for the championship proper. The player with the lowest medal score will be crowned champion and given the possession of the tall, slender silver cup for the forthcoming year.

Many Chicago players will leave tonight for the Ohio city and will spend the first three days of the week practicing the course, which is said to be a difficult test of golf and one that will bring out the best shots the players possess.

GEORGE DAWSON.
[Green Valley.]

Most of the leading golfers of the Chicago district will compete in the Western Open at Youngstown, O., this week-end. The qualifying round is scheduled for Thursday and the 72 holes of medal play Friday and Saturday. Bill Mehlhorn of Westmoreland, the champion, will defend his title.

ON LOCAL LINKS

GEORGE HARTMAN, present holder of the club title, had 73 as the lowest score in the qualifying round of the annual event yesterday at Midlothian. Hartman in the first match round will meet J. C. Reber; F. M. Warden will play against William Buss, and A. J. Peterson will take on M. F. Holohan, in the championship flight.

Finishing 4 up on par, J. A. [Chief] Bender took the trophy donated by George A. Miller.

Classes A and B players were combined in the sweepstakes event, the winners being Chief Bender, 79—11—68; M. F. Holohan, 85—14—71; William Buss, 85—14—71; C. L. Overtaker, 81—9—72, and A. W. Newton, 86—13—73.

The annual Pater Filius tournament, open to players throughout the United States and Canada, will be held next Friday. Advance entries indicate a field of fully 150 fathers and sons.

FLOSSMOOR.

With a card of 78—6—72 W. M. Wilson won the class A honors in the eighteen hole handicap contest. In class B the winner was C. P. Thompson, 88—12—76. W. L. Porter, 97—22—75, led the class C players, while in class D the prize was taken by W. L. Newman, 95—25—70.

EDGEWATER.

The Klein trophy was taken by J. B. Bremmer, who finished 1 down in the match play against par event. Low net in the club event was taken by Dr. L. C. French, 84—12—72, and J. G. Gondon, 82—9—73, finished second. V. J. Curto won the low gross on the odd holes with 42.

WESTMORELAND.

In the third round of the club championship event yesterday A. C. Perry defeated J. B. Westcott, 3 and 2; C. A. Bush defeated H. R. King, 5 and 4; William B. Huey won by default from A. Croxson, and J. D. W. Archer defeated T. C. Moulding, 6 and 5.

DIXMOOR.

H. G. Thompson, with 40—37—77, won the prize for the best gross score in the week-end handicap event. The low net winners were A. R. Kulb, 89—19—70; J. H. Henderson, 90—19—71, and A. T. Millett, 94—20—74. Manager Tom Walsh received a telegram from his brother, Frank, who is professional at the Butte des Mortes club at Appleton, saying that Jack Blakeslee of Kenosha had won the Wisconsin open title with a score of 288, while Frank Walsh finished second with 293. This automatically qualifies both players for the Professional Golfers' association national tournament next month at Olympia Fields.

RIDGE.

One hundred and fifty golfers took part in the blind bogey contest at Ridge yesterday. J. D. Mortinson won the contest. A. T. Lee won the low gross prize for the day by shooting a 75.

MID-CITY.

If you have a favorite foursome and think the four of you are pretty good golfers, you'll find some fun at the Mid-City course this week. The officials there are holding the second annual best ball foursome championship tourpament of the city. This is the only event of this kind held in Chicago and last year produced a great deal of sport for the players. There will be three flights, eight teams to a flight, and the qualifying rounds will be played on Wednesday with the other rounds on Thursday and Friday. Take your foursome out there—you'll have some good sport.

BUTTERFIELD.

The four ball foursome aggregate handicap contest at Butterfield yesterday was won by J. A. Pakenhan, R. B. Simpson, J. B. Wants, and T. W. Page, who had a net total of 293. The following qualified for the Veteran's cup: W. J. McCulloch, J. B. Wants, F. H. Peterson, G. Beedy, Henry O'Callahan, J. F. Barrett, D. J. O'Brien and J. J. O'Brien. In Class C, E. J. Bunsche defeated J. F. Walsh, 1 up. In Class D the final match was won by M. Monahan, who defeated J. F. Brennan, 1 up. Tom Barrett defeated E. Moran, 5 and 4, in the Class B contest.

BUNKER HILL.

Officials of Bunker Hill are attempting to arrange a foursome in which the great Walter Hagen, Gordon Wright, the home professional, Jock Hutchison, and Laurie Ayton will take part. The officials hope to have this match played either two weeks from today or next Sunday. The first annual Bunker Hill frolic will be staged sometime during the first week of September.

EDGEWOOD.

H. H. Mitchell won the La Grange Trust and Savings bank trophy at Edgewood yesterday. Dr. J. H. Taylor won the low net prize with a 70. In the match play for the club championship Tom Frainey, Art Sweet, F. A. Garrity, Frank Overtaker and H. S. Jackson won their matches.

On Local Golf Courses

THE first annual boys' tournament open to youngsters between the ages of 14 and 17 years old, will be played at Garfield park tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday. It is expected that about 150 boys will enter the tournament. Dr. John Dill Robertson, president of the west park board, and M. J. O'Brien, president of the Garfield park golf club, are looking after the interests of the youngsters in the tournament.

OAK PARK.

All classes competed in a match play went against par, the winners being as follows: Class, A, J. P. Hook, 3 up; class B, E. A. Fox, all even; class C, J. L. Field, 1 down; class D, J. E. Becker, 8 down. Hook won the sweepstakes with a low score of 73.

SKOKIE.

Going back to par 70 for an award, F. E. Compton, 79—11—68; S. Hopkins, 74—6—78; F. E. Earle, 80—11—69; G. J. Pope, 80—11—69, and C. S. Andrews, 90—20—70, placed the Sunset cup escrow. W. E. Burch and C. S. Andrews tied at 29 for the putting prize. In the women's championship event Mrs. E. A. Stevens defeated Miss C. Chase, 7 and 5, in the final round.

BOB O'LINK.

There was an 18 hole medal play handicap event at Bob O'Link yesterday and M. C. Meigs, 83—11—72, won the honors in Classes A and B. M. B. Erickson, 96—24—72, won the honors in Classes C and D.

RUTH LAKE.

The following qualified for the club championship: H. Mann, Walter Smith, George Steiger, A. W. Porter, Norman Schuett, Tom Armstrong, W. Carlton, George Ostrum, H. Phelps, J. E. Creed, A. J. Porter, C. Ruth, Bert Noble, A. F. Cook, B. W. Maas, W. T. Dawson, and Karl Ostrum. There was ball sweepstakes competition in the classes and George Steiger won the Class A prize. D. W. Maas won in Class B; F. H. Bahlman won in Class C, and D. McIntosh won in Class D. George Steiger, A. J. Porter and F. H. Bahlman were tied for the flag contest.

LA GRANGE.

In the eighteen hole handicap event E. T. Franklin with 76—2—74 won the class A honors, while in class B the prize was taken by C. Leatham, who had 82—15—67. G. K. Mehagen was tied with him, 84—17—67, but lost in the draw. In class C the winner was R. L. Lapham, 93—22—71.

ONWENTSIA.

Dexter Cummings, by the aid of his excellent 67, one stroke above the course record, succeeded in getting a tie with W. R. Kirk, 75—8—67, in the match play handicap event. Stuart Templeton, 74—6—68, was followed by Ruddy Knapper, 71—2—69.

EVERGREEN.

Paul Drews, the club professional, paired with Mrs. Oscar Horn of Marquette, defeated Miss Florence Beebe and Al Bluhm, Edgebrook, by two points in a Scotch foursome. Mrs. Horn and Miss Beebe finished all even with 84s, while Drews had 70, against Bluhm's 72.

INDIAN HILL.

There was 18 hole match play against par at Indian Hill yesterday for the W. B. McIlvaine trophy. N. L. Hoyt Jr., and F. D. Montgomery were tied, both of them being even with par for the round. W. D. Harvey was 1 down to par and Roger Sherman, N. L. Hoyt, H. T. Stanton and R. H. Ripley were tied for third, all of them being 2 down to par. Two men played off a tie for another trophy. They were R. H. Ripley and Grant Ridgeway and they played for low score on four holes, the second, eighth, fourteenth, and sixteenth. Ripley had a 20 and his opponent had 21.

WESTWARD HO.

In the Class A handicap play at Westward Ho yesterday F. Butenschoen was the winner with a net score of 71. D. W. Sechler won in Class B with a net of 71, and F. E. Schlik and J. G. Gerstetter were tied with 73s in Class C and will have to play off for the Illinois cup. In the Class A championship battle C. E. McGregor defeated J. A. Remer. Frank Adams, the club professional, will represent Westward Ho in the western open at Youngstown this week.

THE second round of the Vice President's cup tournament at Illinois was played yesterday. R. Gambrill defeated D. W. Jordon, 3 and 2; A. C. Hammond defeated R. H. Sanborn, 1 up; J. B. WOMEN'S PUBLIC PARKS TOURNEY DRAWS BIG FIELD

What is so rare as a week without a woman's golf tournament? So spake a wise man of golf yesterday, and it seems that there is more truth than foolishness in his candor.

This week will see the play of the Chicago women's public park golf tournament. It is to be played at the Evergreen course on the southwest side. All of the public park stars are entered and some good competition is expected.

Among the players who will tee off tomorrow are Miss Edna Hierman, Lincoln park; Mrs. Ralph Smalley, Jackson park; Mrs. William Wallace, Jackson park; Miss Florence Beebe, Edgebrook; Miss Ann Armstrong, and a host of others.

Arthur Ahearn, president of the Evergeen club, announced yesterday that the course is in perfect shape for the tournament and that the scores should be low.

A partial list of the entries follow:

8:30 a. m.—Mrs. Wm. Mathews and Mrs. Wm. Cody, Jackson park; Miss Gretchen McCune, and Mrs. Chas. Erickson, Marquette.

8:35 a. m.—Mrs. Sherman and Mrs. Wm. Wallace, Jackson park; Mrs. James King, Marquette; Miss Edna Hierman, Lincoln.

8:40 a. m.—Mrs. Della Hillman and Mrs. Louis Von Purbant, Marquette; Miss Ellen Hartman and Miss Eloise Kresse, Jackson.

8:45 a. m.—Mrs. Ralph Smalley and Mrs. L. Lehman, Jackson; Mrs. Oscar Horn, Marquette; Mrs. Frank Fitz Gibbon, Jackson.

8:50 a. m.—Mrs. Donald MacLean and Mrs. H. Buchanan, Jackson; Mrs. J. Patterson, Southmoor.

8:55 a. m.—Miss Ann Armstrong, Columbus; Miss Ruth Berner, Lincoln; Mrs. B. Jacobs and Mrs. J. Meldrum, Jackson.

9:00 a. m.—Mrs. J. Whitehead, Jackson; Mrs. W. A. Gibson and Mrs. E. S. Hanson, Lincoln.

9:05 a. m.—Mrs. Thos. Duer, Edgebrook; Mrs. J. C. Hafner, Hillside; Mrs. H. Krammes, Jackson; Miss Grace Saunders, Marquette.

HUTCHISON AND BARNES LOSE TO GOPHER PLAYERS

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Willie Kidd, Interlachen professional of Minneapolis, and Jimmy Johnston, of St. Paul, state amateur champion, defeated Jim Barnes, British open titleholder, and Jock Hutchison, former possessor of the British open crown, 4 and 3, in a match at the Bloomington Golf club here today.

In another match, at the country club of Minneapolis, Chick Evans, Chicago amateur, and Keefe Carter, western amateur champion, defeated Allan Labatt, Country club amateur and Jock Hendry, professional at the Town and Country club, St. Paul, 5 and 3.

ON LOCAL LINKS

THE much heralded golf match between the great Walter Hagen, P. G. A. champion and golfer of the first water, and Bill Mehlhorn, Westmoreland professional and western open champion, will not take place today. These two golfers were scheduled to play a 36 hole match at the Westmoreland club. Yesterday it became known that Hagen could not be in Chicago today. Pressing duties, business of greater importance, will keep "The Hag" away.

In its stead will be a best ball foursome with Mehlhorn and Eddie Loos, Lake Shore professional, playing against Laurie Ayton, Evanston, and Al Espinosa, Illinois Golf club. This foursome will play 36 holes and the admission will be $2.

NORTH SHORE.

The open event was a ball sweepstakes, which drew a large field. The low gross winners were H. H. Harrison, F. Snow, and Grant Bode; low net, M. J. Ahearn, W. J. Spillane, J. F. Paine, and M. H. McMillan. Second round matches in the play for the President's cup resulted as follows: J. F. Paine defeated Dick Ellis, 3 and 2; L. S. Roth defeated Dr. Shilbert, 1 up; M. H. McMillan defeated F. F. Lenzen, 4 and 3; Grant Bode defeated R. H. Flaherty, 2 and 1; H. H. Harrison defeated F. D. Buckner, 2 and 1; Dick Paine defeated H. A. Taylor, 3 and 2; R. C. Boozer defeated Dr. L. W. Strong, 4 and 3.

CALUMET.

A triple tie resulted in the Class A ball sweepstakes. J. F. Gilmore, J. R. Rowland and A. O'Hara each had 74. In class C the honors went to J. E. Lewis, 84—12—72. Anderson, 99—22—77, won in C class. Lee Thiltges and C. Rathbun won the two ball match against par with 6 up. Thiltges also led the qualifying round for the Ashcraft cup with 40—38—78.

GLEN VIEW.

Honors in the qualifying round for the club championship went to Ira L. Couch, who had a card of 77. R. W. Keyes, K. H. Burns and G. F. Henneberry tied at 78 for second. The first sixteen will meet in the title event, while the next sixteen will play for the old Hickory cup.

HINSDALE.

Goodwin Clark won the qualifying honors in tht play for the Directors' cup with his card of 76. D. J. Heinly and Gardner Brown tied at 78 for runner up.

SOUTH SHORE.

The President's cup was taken by J. N. Murray, who defeated J. F. Holland, 4 and 3, in the final. The qualifying round for the Governor's trophy was also held. J. F. Sheehy, 76—10—66, and J. J. Killacky, 86—20—66, tied for first. D. T. Campbell, 76—9—67, was next in line.

IDLEWILD.

F. Langdon won the blind bogey and J. Jones finished second. Results in the Intermediate tournament follow: H. Goldsmith defeated J. Newmark, 1 up; W. Becker defeated H. Felsenthal Jr., 2 and 1; D. Hirsch defeated J. Rosenberg, 2 up. A. Auerbach won his semi-final match with R. F. Stern, 6 and 5. The other contest was postponed.

PARK RIDGE.

There was 18 hole medal play competition and George L. Turnbull won the honors of the day with an 86—15—71.

SLAVIA SOCCERS FROM CLEVELAND BEAT STURE, 3-2

With four reserve players in their lineup the Slavia soccer team of Cleveland won the first of two intercity matches with local teams by defeating Sture, 3 to 2, at 27th street and Kostner avenue. Sture twice jumped into the lead, but could not withstand a last minute attack by the Slavia.

Sture was the first to break into the point column when Magnuson scored a penalty kick twenty-five minutes after the opening whistle. AUSSIES SWEEP DAVIS CUP PLAY WITH CANADIANS

Montreal, Can., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Australia made a clean sweep of its second round Davis cup tie with Canada by taking the two final singles matches of the tournament today. Gerald L. Patterson, Australia, defeated Willard F. Crocker, Canada, 6—4, 11—9, 6—4, while his teammate J. O. Anderson defeated Jack Wright, Canada, 6—2, 6—4, 6—1.

Previously the Antipode team had won two singles and a doubles match and today's victories give them five triumphs in the tournament.

Spain Eliminated.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Spain was eliminated from the Davis cup competition today when Takeichi Harada of Japan won the first singles match of the third day's play from Manuel Alonso, 2—6, 6—4, 6—3, 6—4.

Eduardo Flaquer of Spain defeated Zenzo Shimizu of Japan in the final match, 3—6, 6—0, 6—3, 6—4. The playing of both was listless, although Flaquer showed better form than on Thursday when he fell before Takeichi Harada.

EVOLUTION

THIS is the third and last in a series of editorials on Evolution, in the Bull's Eye. I guess we are about the only Paper that has really settled it to the satisfaction of all. Monkeys have got it on us. Here are just a few last illustrations to prove it: You never saw a full grown Male Monkey with Knee Golf Breeches on. Nor a young Monkey with big legged Pants on. You never saw a pack of Monkeys in a Ford trying to beat a train to a crossing. You never saw a Monkey drink anything unless he knew what it was he was drinking, did you? Or a Monkey trying to be elected to office? (I mean a four-legged one.)

You never saw a Female Monkey wait till everybody was looking and then powder her nose, did you? You never saw one that had any confidence in a Cigar lighter, did you? You never saw a Monkey working a Cross Word Puzzle, did you? No, because he knew the things wouldn't last. BUT you have seen a Monkey smoking a Pipe, and he was enjoying it and showed it, didn't he? Why? Because that Pipe was loaded with "Bull" Durham, The Radium of Tobacco.

P. S. There is going to be another piece in this paper soon. Look for it.

Another "Bull" Durham advertisement by Will Rogers, Ziegfeld Follies and screen star, and leading American humorist. More coming. Watch for them.

WOMEN TO ROW MEN AT TRIBUNE WATER CARNIVAL

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

HARRY KLATZCO.

When THE TRIBUNE's fourth annual water carnival is held in the Lincoln park lagoon next Sunday afternoon, starting at 2 o'clock, not only will oarsmen from Culver Military academy, Great Lakes Naval Training station, Illinois Valley Yacht and Canoe club, and the Lincoln Park Boat club struggle for honors by pulling the frail craft through the water at a fast clip, but the same is true of four women who will pull over a half mile course against a crew of four men.

As far as is known it is the first time women have put in an appearance in Chicago in rowing circles. Members of the fair sex are actively engaged in swimming, track and field athletics, basketball, and baseball, but only a few have tried their skill at oarsmanship.

From Peoria Club.

The women who will row in the four oared shell are representatives of the Illinois Valley Yacht and Canoe club of Peoria, Ill. They have been coached by Commodore A. T. Griffith, Oscar Krueger and John Fellay. According to Commodore Griffith they handle a boat in superb fashion and will surprise the spectators with their oarsmanship. Members of the four are Bernice Jone, strokes Marian Ruch, Hazel Becker and Corinne Jones. They will compete against a man's crew of the Lincoln Park Boat club.

The cutter race which will bring together crews of Great Lakes Naval Training station, Culver Military academy and the coast guard is creating no end of interest.

Great Lakes Band Coming.

So much interest has been aroused at the naval station over the event that Capt. Waldo Evans, commandant of the station, will send the band of twenty-five pieces to the event, while at least 300 sailors will make the trip to root for the gob crew. The band will furnish music during the entire carnival and will be among the guests of THE TRIBUNE.

The coast guard crew will be composed of many well known university and college athletes. Vernon "Red" Archer, the star quarter miler of Georgetown university, has shown the customary college spirit by taking himself out of the boat to act as trainer. Archer realized there are better oarsmen in the service and gladly relinquished his seat for a better man.

College Gridders on Crew.

Among members of the crew are Charles Brown, the Illinois tackle; Bill Lounsberry, who is expected to make a line position at Michigan; Clarence Grigsby, who will play full back for Georgetown this fall; Clarence Kneifel of James Millikin, who will stroke the crew; Barnie Cullen of St. Patrick's High school, and Phil McFarland, formerly of Illinois, who will be the coxswain.

The banner event of the day will be the one mile eight oared shell race between the Lincoln Park Boat club and Culver Military academy. The local eight carried off all honors in the recent regatta of the Southwestern States Rowing association at St. Louis.

Three Canoe Races.

In addition there will be three canoe events open to all canoeists affiliated with the American Canoe association. This competition will consist of singles, doubles and fours. A trophy will go to the winning team and medals to winners of first, second and third places. Entries for these events close with Capt. Henry Hayes of the Lincoln Park Boat club on Thursday and trials in all canoe races will be held on Saturday afternoon.

The carnival is staged free of charge and the lagoon with its sloping banks is admirably fitted for such event, both for contestants and spectators. Harry Klatzco, superintendent of Lincoln park; Ed Wheeler, in charge of athletic activities in the Lincoln park system, not to mention President Eugene Pike of the park board and the commissioners, are aiding splendidly in making the event a gala one for Chicago's public.

GETTING READY FOR TRIBUNE WATER CARNIVAL

Upper left is Charley Miner, Lincoln Park Boat club single sculls champion, who will race an opponent from the Illinois Valley Yacht and Canoe club at the Tribune water carnival a week from today.. Upper right is the Great Lakes cutter crew which will meet Culver and the coast guard. Col. H. F. Noble (inset) has charge of the Culver entries. The oarswomen in the right (below) are from the Illinois Valley Yacht and Canoe club, and they will pull against a men's crew in one of the features of the carnival. Members of the crew are Bernice Jones, Marian Ruch, Hazel Becker, and Corinne Jones.

WINS DIXIE NET TITLE.

Asheville, N. C., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Ed Pfeiffer of Louisville won the southern singles tennis title here today by winning in straight sets, 6—3, 6—3, 6—3, from Frank C. Owens of Atlanta.

CHICAGOANS IN TENNIS FINALS AT CHARLEVOIX

Charlevoix, Mich., Aug. 15.—[Special.]—George O'Connell, Chicago, and Dr. W. Thwaites, Grand Rapids, are finalists in the singles of Charlevoix's fourth annual net tourney, and O'Connell and O'Brien of Chicago and Thwaites and Parker, the latter a 51 year old veteran, formerly New York Metropolitan champion, will meet for the doubles championship.

Geo. Nevees of Chicago was defeated by O'Connell in the semi-finals. F. T. O'Brien of Chicago, after furnishing an upset in the first round by defeating James Vose of U. of M. team, lost to Chas. Wagoner, Detroit champion, 6—3, 6—4.

Thwaites defeated James Benedict, former Yale star, in the semi-finals 6—3, 6—4. O'Connell and O'Brien of Chicago went into the final doubles by defeating Maxwell and Wagoner of Detroit, 4—6, 6—3, 7—5. They will meet Thwaites and Parker who defeated Zemon and Goldsmith, Detroit, 6—1,6—4. Geo. Nevees of Chicago paired with Josiyn of Grand Rapids lost in an earlier round to Zemon and Goldsmith.

KANSAS CITY, 6; GIANTS, 3.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 15.—[Special.]—Errors cost the American Giants of Chicago a 6 to 3 Negro National league game with the Kansas City Monarchs today. The locals were held to three hits, but took advantage of four blunders of Rube Foster's club. Score:

American Giants	100	002	000—3	7	4
Kansas City	000	040	020—6	3	1

Featured by the performance of J. Paterson, the colored sprinter of Calumet who ran 100 yards in :09 4-5, athletes representing Ogden park won team honers in the novice division and Calumet and McKinley tied for the laurels in the classified section of the annual track and field championships of the south parks held yesterday at Ogden park.

Paterson, who has been the leading sprinter of the south parks for the last two years, has frequently stepped the century in better than even time and has been clocked in ten seconds flat on numerous occasions. Five watches were held on the colored flier yesterday and three caught him in :09 4-5 and the other two in even time.

Ties in Furlong.

After winning the century, Paterson tied with Charles Thompson of McKinley for first place in the 220 yard dash. The colored runner led until ten yards from the tape when Thompson drew up on even terms and the judges were unable to determine a winner and it was adjudged a dead heat. The time was :22 3-5.

Paterson was high individual scorer in the classified division with 13 points while Thompson was second with 11.

Two Novices Score 14 Points.

In the novice section, J. Lisk of McKinley and G. Martinson of Ogden park tied for individual honors with 14 points each. The former won both dashes while the latter was victor in the 880 yards and one mile run. The meet was conducted by Directors Graef and Cook. Summaries:

YANKEES WIN SIX FIRSTS IN TRACK MEET IN NORWAY

OSLO, Norway, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Americans won six firsts in the final events of the athletic meet held here, in which members of the Illinois Athletic club participated. Special interest centered around the achievement of Harold Osborn, world's champion high jumper, who cleared the bar at two meters, European record high jump.

In the 60 meter race the American, P. W. Jones, finished first. The time was :07 1-10 seconds. The American, George Stevenson finished first in the 500 meter race, in 1:05 3-10. The 1,500 meter race was won by the American, Ray Dodge, time: 4:01 6-10. Ivan Riley, won the 400 meter hurdle race in :56 8-10, and Herbert Schwarze won the shot put.

The American and Norwegian teams were disqualified in the 1,000 meter relay race because of faulty pickups and the German team won.

George Stevenson was declared the best all-around athlete, with three wins, for which he was awarded an extra silver cup.

UNION WINS TWO TITLES IN WEST PARKS NET MEET

Final matches in three divisions of the eighth annual west parks interpark tennis tournament were played on the courts of Garfield park yesterday, with Union winning two titles. Finals in the senior women's singles, senior men's singles, and junior girls' singles are scheduled for 10 o'clock this morning.

C. Lallano and C. Limjoco of Union park won the men's doubles crown by defeating E. Boris and E. Lakota of Douglas park, 6—3, 6—0, 6—2. In the women's doubles Mrs. Ticher and Miss A. Larkin of Union won over Miss A. Hudee and Miss M. Will of Garfield, 6—0, 6—1, 6—2. The boy's singles crown went to A. Rosenthal of Franklin, who triumphed over E. Ehrenberg of Garfield in straight sets, 7—5, 6—1.

LOTT CRUMPLES BEFORE KINSEY AT SOUTHAMPTON

New York, Aug. 15.—[Special.]—History was guilty of repetition at the Meadow club at Southampton today, when Howard Kinsey of San Francisco, No. 4 on the national ranking list, captured the final match of singles in the forty-second annual invitation tournament and then joined his brother, Robert, in a victorious battle in the doubles final. The same players scored similar triumphs one year ago and as the result of today's outcome gained second legs on both the singles trophy and the doubles bowls.

George Lott of Chicago was Howard Kinsey's victim, and not an appealing one, for he played with so little show of spirit or apparent desire to contest each point after the sixth game of the second set that he drew upon himself the criticism of the gallery. The younger Kinsey won the match, 6—2, 6—4, 6—0.

Lott-Norton Lose Doubles.

The same Chicago youth, partnered with Brian I. C. Norton of St. Louis, the former South African Davis cup star, was on the losing doubles team also, but in the latter test he partially redeemed himself by forcing the Kinsey brothers to four sets before the latter team won, 3—6, 6—3, 6—3, 6—1.

The large gallery expected a brilliant tussle between the singles finalists, and while Howard Kinsey captured the first set rather handily, Lott made him work for every point and then proceeded to break through service in the opening game of the second set and continue on to a 4-1 lead in games and a 3—0 lead in points.

Lott Throws Away Chance.

One point scored by the Chicagoan at that stage of the set would have given him the commanding lead of 5—1 in games and assurance of the set victory and the squaring of the match. But Lott netted or outed five times successively on Kinsey's delivery, thus losing the game, and from that point on gave no evidence of the play of which he is capable.

Lott was much more effective in the doubles match, especially during the first three sets, although Norton was the better man for the losing team. They, however, could not cope with the masterful play of the national doubles champions.

Another conquest in which California tennis figured came in the consolation singles, which was won by Irving Weinstein, former University of California player, by defeating the Oxford-Cambridge tennis captain, J. J. Lezard, in straight sets, 7—5, 6—4.

WIN MAINE NET TITLE.

Portland, Me., Aug. 15.—(AP)—After losing the first two sets, T. M. Banks Jr., of Williams college, and Lucian Lacoste, of San Antonio, Tex., today won the Maine doubles tennis championship in a sensational five set battle with Victor Hockmeyer of Lowell, Mass., and Alexander Cameron of West Ford, Mass.

DELANEY LOOKS FOR 11 POLICE MARKS TO FALL

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

MARTIN A. DELANEY.

When the annual police games are held in the Grant Park stadium on Aug. 29 and 30, records in eleven of the sixteen standard track and field events will be shattered according to Martin A. Delaney, one of the country's leading coaches who is conditioning the "coppers" for one of these games gest civic events.

Since the start of these games, some creditable performances have been made, but like other events of its kind, there is always a gradual improvement in the records. This year the men have trained harder and more faithfully under the tireless direction of Delaney, who has visited evey playground and other places where the policemen train to give them pointers on running and show them the proper form in the field events.

Sprint Marks Safe.

William Smith of the twenty-eighth district is holder of the records in the 50 and 100 yard dashes and neither is expected to be broken. Smith's record for the shorter dash is :05 2-5 and :10 2-5 for the century. The mark of :24 for 220 yards made by W. Marion of the thirtieth district should be broken and the same is true of the :55 2-5 for the quarter mile made by Frank J. McDermott of the thirty-third district in 1922.

In 1924, Edward Donovan of the thirty-third ran the half mile in 2:10 1-5 and this record should go by the boards as will also the mile mark of 5:02 3-5 made by James Flynn of the thirty-first district last year. The 120 yard high hurdle mark of :17 made by P. McInerney of the nineteenth district last year should also be shattered according to Delaney who claims the games records for the shot put, 56 pound weight for height, hammer throw and pole vault will also be shattered.

Rivalry Keen Between Stations.

"The men are showing a fine spirit," Delaney said recently. "They are anxious to learn so much about their respective events they are training harder than most college athletes. There is more rivalry between the different stations than I ever thought existed and it is this rivalry which will make the track and field competition of the games so interesting this year."

Men of the mounted squad, under Capt. P. E. Hogan, are perfecting their stunts in a pleasing manner, while the races between the twenty fastest horses of the department are creating no end of interest. The mounted squad will also give its usual interesting drills, while the men will perfor mfeats on horseback which would be a credit to the rodeo show.

Motorcyclists to Entertain.

The motorcycle contingent will also furnish its share of interesting stunts, such as polo, rescue work, and daredevil riding down the cinder paths. The squad will also give a formation drill, another interesting event.

The foot coppers who do not take part in the track and field competition will be members of the various tug of war teams and will be participants in the mass drill under the direction of Maj. Bauder. Several other interesting stunts have been arranged by the citizens' committee, of which George Gets is chairman.

E. B. Carson, who has charge of the program, has arranged a complete book which gives the history of the games and names of the men who have worked so hard each year to make them successful. The entire proceeds will go into the benevolent fund which provides for dependents of policemen killed while on duty. It will be a great show, well worth the money and the support of every citizen of Chicago.

DANGEROUS WINS TRAVERS STAKES

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Dangerous, owned by G. A. Cochran, C. Kuhmer up, won the $15,000 Travers stakes, feature race at the Spa, today. Bud Fisher's Swope finished second, five lengths behind the winner, while Rancocas stable's Silver Fox, favorite, was third, three lengths in the rear of Swope.

The historic stakes, oldest in continuous running for three year olds in this country, brought together a brilliant field; Stirrup Cup, By Hisself, Marconi and Cloudland also ran. Dangerous negotiated the mile and a quarter in 2:10 4-5.

The Spinaway stakes, $7,500 value, for two year old fillies at six furlongs, went to Samuel Ross' Cinema, which outdistanced the field from the start. Asinia finished second, in front of Ruthenia, which weakened badly in the stretch. The time was 1:15 2-5.

Woods and Waters by BOB. BECKER

MUSKIE HAS TRAITS OF SOME SALT WATER GAME FISH.

In muskellunge fishing the fresh water angler gets many of the thrills that delight the salt water angler. This idea was turned over in our mind a few weeks ago when we were at Catalina island and fish about the size of a fightin' muskie were being landed on light tackle.

In the first place the "fresh water tiger" has the size of many of the smaller salt water game fish. Secondly, you troll for these salt water fighters and many anglers take their muskies by trolling. In fact, the lures that you use for the 'lunge are just about the same as those employed to snag quite a number of the salt water species that are in the game fish class.

However, the temperamental muskie has it on several of the salt water game fish in that he gives you more thrills. He will do a little acrobatic jumping for you, while such fish as the yellowtail, barracuda, and other scrappers that inhabit salt water usually prefer to bore down deep, so that you rarely see your fish until he is ready to be gaffed. On the other hand, the deep sea fish are more plentiful than muskies.

What a kick we would get if we could look across a fresh water lake some midsummer evening and see a school of muskies working on the surface as they attacked a school of minnows. A picture like that is bound to raise any angler's temperature.

At Catalina we saw barracuda put on a showy attack of this sort and we'll not soon forget it. Scores of silvery, flashing fish were leaping out of the water as they tore into a black solid mass of anchovies.

For thirty minutes you could look in any direction and see nothing but leaping barracuda, while the blue green ocean water showed many miniature fountains of small fish as the harassed anchovies were also on the jump, 100, 200, 500 in a bunch, as they tried to escape the hungry jaws of the barracuda. We took 26 of the big fellows on a spoon that could be adapted for muskie fishing.

But they didn't put up a better scrap than that which a stubborn 'lunge stages in any fresh water lake or river. Mr. Muskie has many of the tricks of the salt water game fishes, plus that inclination to jump out of the water—a stunt that is good for a thrill any old time.

FAST SWIMMERS ENTER I.A.C. RIVER MARATHON

Three swimmers who finished among the first ten in 1924 and the winner in 1923 will compete in the seventeenth annual Chicago river marathon swim for men, to be held under the auspices of the Illinois Athletic club, next Saturday.

Liston Semmes of Milwaukee, Francis Colburn of the Central Y. M. C. A. and E. L. Meese, unattached, crawled onto the finishing barge last year in sixth, seventh and eighth positions. Dick Howell was the 1923 winner. All these will try the river grind again.

Although the entries closed yesterday at midnight, the full list of entries has not yet been compiled. The prospective swimmers are allowed until midnight to get their blanks into the mail, and many late entries are expected Monday. More than twenty starters are assured so far with the probability that between thirty and forty athletes will make the plunge on the north side shore line of the Municipal pier.

WASHINGTON PK. TURF BODY PLANS AN $800,000 PLANT

A new association known as the Wasington Park Corporation incorporated in Delaware and operating in Illinois has been formed to construct the Washington Park race course at Halsted and 171st street, Homewood, some work on which was started a year ago.

When complete the new plant will cost about $800,000. It has been announced that the plant will include not only a race track but an amusement park as well. No date for the completion of the project has been announced by the officers who are Robert M. Sweitzer, president; John T. McGrath and George G. Renneker, vice presidents; Harry J. Ridings, treasurer; and Thomas E. Burke secretary and general manager. The corporation has opened offices at 139 City Hall Square building.

ALBORAK VICTOR IN FEATURE RACE AT HAWTHORNE

BY FRENCH LANE.

Joe Trinz, Chicago movie magnate and a newcomer to thoroughbred racing, sent an unknown 2 year old colt, Alborak, out to win the $2,500 added Hoffherr handicap at Hawthorne yesterday. And to score his victory Alborak showed his heels to a band of the best juveniles in the west, such speedy youngsters as Russell Gardner, Devon, and Postmistress lowering their colors to him.

Back of Alborak, in second and third place, came two long shots, Marengo, the property of Fred Musante, and Mantonian, owned by H. T. Archibald of Chicago, while the favorites, most of them prominent early in the contest, dropped completely out of it before they had reached midstretch and not one figured prominently in the final outcome.

Doesn't Decide Championship.

The race was expected to partly clear up the western 2 year old title situation, but Alborak before the race was not regarded as a formidable contender, his time of 1:14 indicates but little, and the championship is as badly muddled as it was before the race was run.

Fair skies and a near fast running strip, the first good track in nearly a week, along with a fine racing card on which three stake events appeared, served to bring out a big crowd, many prominent Chicagoans, some first time visitors to the course, being scattered through the throngs on the lawns and in the clubhouse.

There was perhaps an excuse for the public choice, Devon's, showing in the headliner for Jockey Stearns allowed him to be shuffled back to next to last position at the start, while Postmistress went out as the pace maker and at the turn into the stretch was a length and a half in front and running smoothly. Alborak had been kept close up by Jockey Hoagland, and when Postmistress, under hard urging by Jockey Burke, showed signs of distress, Alborak came on with a rush and early in the stretch had poked his nose in front.

Hourmore Wins Memorial.

The other handicap events were the J. C. Vaughan Memorial, a sprint affair, in which the outsider, Hourmore, owned by Mrs. A. B. Stelle, was the victor, and the Elizabeth Keeler purse, a route contest at a mile and sixteenth which went to the odds-on choice, Flagstaff, from Jimmy McGill's Denver stable. The latter purse was named in honor of the granddaughter of Joseph A. Murphy, general manager and presiding steward at the west side track.

Hourmore scored his triumph in a spectacular finish in which he got a short neck decision over Postillion, while another nose back was Banter in third place. Rival, Jack Bauer, and Dudley had been liked by the punters. Flagstaff's win was one of the easiest of the afternoon, as he led practically all the way and held Cherokee Lee and High Water safe in the final drive.

The claiming events found Private Seth home first in the opening number, a five and a half furlong dash for 2 year olds, with P. Bush second and Island Fairy third. Lorena Marcellia, another at short odds, grabbed the second, nipping Keegan in the last strides, while Gold Mount was third. Boot Ring scored in the sixth after an exciting brush with Jubal Early and Talequa, while Super King was the best in the long mile and three-sixteenths seventh number, which found Slanderer second and Hyanpom third.

PETER MANNING, TROT CHAMPION, BREAKS RECORD

Cleveland, O., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Facing a brisk wind in the back stretch and with but only one workout over the distance, Peter Manning, world's champion trotter, established a new world's trotting record for two miles in an exhibition at North Randall today. His time of 4:10 1-5 clips five full seconds off the American record set by The Harvester at Lexington, Ky., in October, 1910. The previous world's record, 4:13¼, was made by Krepish in Russia.

How Peter Manning Ran.

Peter Manning was driven by Lee McDonald of Indianapolis. He trotted the first mile unpaced in 2:05 2-5 and the second, in which he was prompted by Bumble Bee, in 2:04 4-5, making the last half in 1:01 4-5 and the last quarter in 30 1-5 seconds. His record time for a mile, 1:56¾, was made in 1922.

In addition to furnishing the closest finish of the year here, when the first four horses finished heads apart in the first mile, the free for all pace developed the three fastest heats. Margaret Dillon's time was 2:01 2-5 in the first heat and 2:02 2-5 in the third. The last half of the first heat was stepped in :59 4-5.

Clara Dillon Loses.

Clara Dillon, Thomas W. Murphy's Dillon Axworthy mare, lost her first race in five starts, finishing outside the money in the Cuyahoga, value $3,000, for 2:07 trotters. Summaries:

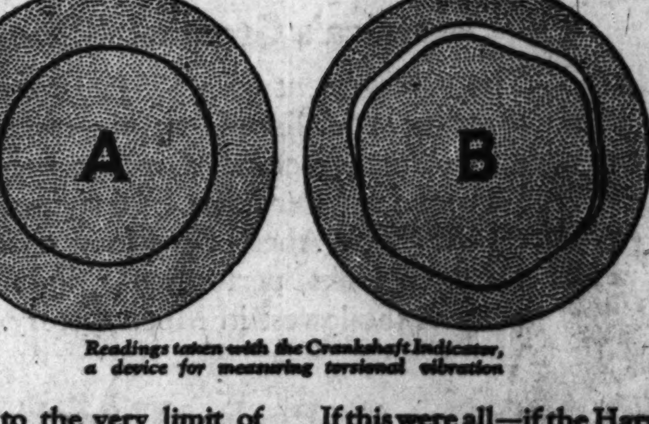
Only OAKLAND has the
Harmonic Balancer



(A) Power-flow of the new Oakland Six engine with Harmonic Balancer—uniformly smooth at all speeds.

(B) Power-flow of other sixes without Harmonic Balancer—not uniformly smooth, but having vibration periods as illustrated.

Readings taken with the Crankshaft Indicator, a device for measuring torsional vibration

Flash from a walk to the very limit of this new Oakland's amazing speed-range. At all speeds—unbelievable smoothness and a freedom from vibration absolutely unmatched.

That's the new Harmonic Balancer—simple in design but sensational in results—perfected after years of intensive research and tests by Oakland and General Motors engineers. Only Oakland has it—only Oakland can give you the wonderful freedom from vibration it alone imparts.

If this were all—if the Harmonic Balancer were Oakland's sole new feature—this new Oakland Six would still be outstanding. But in addition there are beautiful new Bodies by Fisher—Air Cleaner—Oil Filter—Four-Wheel brake refinements—and a host of other features.

And with all of these advancements, the new Oaklands are priced from $70 to $350 lower! See this new car—drive it—then you'll wonder, as do all of its owners, why anyone would be satisfied to pay more and get less.

SEZ JACK TO JACK THAT CRACK WILL COST YOU JACK

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 15.—[U.P.]—It will cost Jack Kearns approximately $333,000 to meddle with the matchmaking of his ex-partner in business, and pugilism, William Harrison Dempsey. Dempsey, the business man, made this assertion tonight in reply to a threat made by Kearns to take his famous contract into court and force the heavyweight titleholder to quit arranging his own bouts.

"If Kearns moves to break up the million dollar Harry Wills match that I have arranged with Floyd Fitzsimmons, he'll merely cut his own throat," Dempsey declared.

Only a Scrap of Paper.

"Our contract isn't worth the paper it's written on. Kearns will find that out if he doesn't already know it, should he try to force me into a match of his own making.

"As it stands, Kearns has my verbal agreement to give him 33 1-3 per cent of my fight earnings. If he just stands by, I'll turn at least a third of a million over to him after the Harry Wills fight next summer. If he gets ornery, he won't get anything."

More Talk of Signing.

New York, Aug. 15.—[Special.]—Paddy Mullins may not wait until the return of Harry Wills from his trip to Europe in order to sign the final papers binding Wills to meet Jack Dempsey for the heavyweight championship. Mullins, it is said, plans to leave for Chicago early this week to look over personally what Floyd Fitzsimmons has to offer in the way of money.

It also was reported in fistic circles here yesterday Jack Dempsey may leave the coast in a few days for the conference.

Mullins would make no comment when asked if he had any intention of meeting Fitzsimmons in Chicago this week. He said that before Fitzsimmons left for Chicago he had made arrangements for a visit to Chicago, and also to look over prospective sites for the battle. The two spots he plans to inspect are the fighting grounds at Michigan City, Ind., and the other at Benton Harbor, Mich. It also was said a site closer to Chicago, probably in the outskirts, is under consideration.

"Blah," Sings Gibson.

While Mullins, Fitzsimmons, Dempsey and the other interested parties to the proposed heavyweight classic of 1926 are involved in discussing the plans for the clash, Billy Gibson, the manager of Gene Tunney, continues to pound his verbal assaults on Wills and Dempsey, especially on Wills. The blast from Gibson's camp, signed by the manager of the conqueror of Tommy Gibbons, follows:

"Every man conversant with the boxing situation knows that Dempsey is never going to meet Wills. And Wills' persistency in seeking a match with Dempsey is nothing more than an effort to detract attention from Tunney's challenge to him. Neither Wills nor Dempsey really want to fight."

And Now Kyne's Out.

Michigan City, Ind., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Floyd Fitzsimmons, local boxing promoter, stated here today that he had not asked William P. Kyne, Pacific coast sportsman, to handle the Dempsey-Wills heavyweight titular bout in the far west next year.

WALKER SIGNS TO FIGHT SHADE IN N. Y. SEPT. 29

New York, Aug. 15.—[Special.]—Mickey Walker's signed contract to box Dave Shade for the welterweight championship of the world at the Yankee stadium Sept. 29 was deposited with Secretary Dan Skilling of the New York state athletic commission today. Tex Rickard will promote the show.

Walker Signs Contract.

The contract, signed by Walker himself, because his manager, Jack Kearns, is on the ineligible list here, provides for a fifteen round bout. Walker is to receive 37½ per cent of the receipts. Kearns took the contract to Walker's camp at Summit, N. J., where the champion signed. Kearns then delivered it to Skilling.

Shade's contract has not yet been filed. Shade and his manager, Leo P. Flynn, are in California, but will return shortly. Shade's agreement is a certainty, as he has been trying to force Walker into this match for more than a year.

Mickey Saves $10,000.

When Walker signed the contract today he saved the $10,000 bond posted for him by Humbert J. Fugazy at the time the Walker-Greb match was made for the Italian hospital show. The forfeit was to guarantee Walker would go through with the Shade match, as ordered by the boxing board.

100 SWIMMERS COMPETE IN FOX LAKE MEET

Randolph, Wis., Aug. 15.—[Special.]—"Jimmie" Doornek of Fox lake made a clean sweep of the events for girls under 18 in the first Fox Lake water carnival held at Lyndon-Dale beach yesterday, winning the 50 and 100 yards free style dashes and the 25 yard backstroke. More than 100 amateur swimmers from Moricon, Watertown, Beaver Dam, Fox Lake and Randolph competed.

Kay Warner, Cedar Lake, took two first in the women's races, winning the 100 yard free style and the 25 yard back stroke.

Walter H. Wilke, Moricon, student at the University of Wisconsin, also took two firsts by winning the 50 yard back stroke and 100 yard free style. Medals were awarded to the winners.

KAMMERER HIGH GUN IN CLASS A

B. F. Kammerer, M. L. Bowers, and L. J. Frey were visitors in the long run competition shot in class groups, feature of the day at the Lincoln Park traps yesterday afternoon. Kammerer broke fifty-five straight targets to finish high gun in the class A event, while Bowers shattered thirty-nine to take a like honor in the B division. Mr. Frey broke forty-one consecutive targets and won the C honor.

In the doubles shoot, fifty pairs, sixteen yards rise, H. M. Rowley finished high gun with a count of 48. Ed Troeh made 44 to place second.

Mickey Walker and Sailor Freedman To Battle at East Chicago on Aug. 24

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Mickey Walker, the world's welterweight champion, and Sailor Freedman, formerly of Chicago, but now making Philadelphia his home, yesterday were matched to meet in the windup of the boxing show at East Chicago one week from tomorrow night. They will box ten rounds and the weight will be 147 pounds.

Jack Kearns, manager of Walker, has posted his forfeit with promoters of the East Chicago club, while Max Hoff, who is now looking after the interests of Freedman, wired he will post $500 with the sporting editor of THE TRIBUNE for Sailor's weight and appearance.

Principals Here This Week.

According to Matchmaker Jim Mullen, the principals in the main event will be in Chicago not later than Thursday to finish preparation.

Freedman is probably one of the most unpopular fighters ever developed in Chicago. Sailor can fight when he wants to, but he has made such miserable showings in starts close to Chicago that many fans will make the trip to East Chicago to see him beaten.

The main event will be supported by the same card which was arranged for the Walker-Wells fight last week and which was called off when the Englishman suddenly disappeared without consulting his manager, trainer, or promoters. Tickets will be placed on sale tomorrow.

May Sign Taylor and Rosenberg.

Promoter Mullen expects to close the ten round bout between Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind., and Charley "Phil" Rosenberg, the bantamweight champion, for East Chicago on Aug. 31. Taylor's manager has accepted terms and Matchmaker Mullen expects to close with Rosenberg's manager today or tomorrow.

Floyd Fitzsimmons, the Benton Harbor and Michigan City promoter, who claims to have the signatures of Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills to an agreement to fight for the world's title some time next year, will not be able to stage the fracas in Chicago under his personal supervision. According to reports from New York, Promoter Fitzsimmons told Paddy Mullins, manager of Wills, he would guarantee him $300,000 and that the Cubs baseball park will be available for the event.

Veeck Doesn't Know About It.

Bill Veeck, president of the Cubs, yesterday stated he knew nothing of such a fight being held in his park and that he would not entertain any propositions for rental of his ball yard until the boxing bill becomes a law. It will be voted on at the primaries in April. The Illinois boxing bill, which is just out and included in the laws of Illinois, emphatically states a promoter, matchmaker or any other official connected with a club must be a resident of the state for at least three years prior to the request for a permit to stage a show. The local boxing fraternity is not taking the proposed match seriously and it is the general opinion that Fitzsimmon's actions are the "come on" for publicity for the picture which Jack and his wife will make this fall.

Martin J. "Babe" Mullaney, manager of Frankie Schaeffer, was severely censured yesterday in local boxing circles for jumping into the ring last Friday night to mix with Referee Dave Barry after the arbiter had disqualified Frankie for his rough tactics against Ray Miller. Indications are none of Mullaney's fighters will receive consideration from promoters in the future.

A. S. DENNEY WINS AMERICAN ROQUE LEAGUE HONORS

Warsaw, Ind., Aug. 15.—[Special.]—A. S. Denney of Long Beach, Cal., now wears the crown of American roque champion. He received the championship medal of the American Roque league this afternoon as the result of his victory in the first division of the national roque tournament, which closed tonight after two weeks of play.

Denney won 11 games and lost only 2, making a total of 392 points and losing only 24 points to his thirteen opponents.

Chicagoan Second.

Lester Clark of Chicago finished only 8 points behind Denney. He won 12 games and lost one. The game which he lost was a shutout administered by Denney. C. G. Carlson of Chicago received the medal for third place, winning 11 games and losing 2. He gathered a total of 368 points.

Other players in the first division finished as follows: G. E. Swanson, Chicago, fourth; W. W. Wilson, Chicago, fifth; W. A. Rounds, Cleveland, sixth; W. H. Hoagland, Peoria, Ill., seventh; C. R. Zimmerman, Warsaw, Ind., eighth; C. W. Hines, Indianapolis.

WHITE OWL
WHITE OWL

When you realize that never before has a cigar achieved the popularity of White Owls — a million a day to supply the demand—you will readily understand why they are not to be judged by old standards of price and quality.

For never before has a cigar been able to adopt the policy upon which all successful industries have been built—that of accepting an unbelievably small profit per sale and depending upon huge volume for ultimate return. White Owls were born of a determination to surpass all previous efforts in value giving. We determined to make a cigar of such quality and sell it at such a price that equal value could not be found anywhere.

And now, White Owls are being heralded as "greater value than ever." Quite natural, too, for tobacco from the finest crop in years has added an extra sweetness even to a cigar so good that improvement seemed impossible. Tasting better than ever—cool and mild—White Owls are, truly, big value.

An entirely new standard of cigar value

WHITE OWLS are not to be judged by old standards of price and taste. Tobacco from the finest crop in years has added a sweetness and mellowness that were never thought possible in a cigar selling at such a price.

ESSEX COACH

Greatest of All Essex Years Because— $850 —the Greatest of All Essex Values

Freight and Tax Extra
Chicago Delivered Price $920

The main issue with Essex has always been to give greatest value for the money. Its fulfillment of that aim was never so clear and its sales supremacy so completely acknowledged as today. With Hudson, it outsells every other line of 6-cylinder cars.

Economies possible only to the largest production of 6-cylinder cars, and the experience of four years' concentration on closed cars have resulted in the best cars and lowest prices in Essex history.

Essex is built on the Super-Six principle by Hudson workmen, in Hudson shops. No other maker shares its advantage. In quality, Hudson and Essex are alike. Both are easy riding and easy steering. Their unfailing reliability and economy are known everywhere.

And their conspicuous and increasing success reflects the rapidity and completeness with which the real facts regarding automobile values have penetrated the entire market.

$299 For those who desire, special arrangements have been made whereby an Essex Coach may be purchased for a first payment of $299. The remaining payments conveniently arranged. $299

COOLIDGE GIVES HAND TO LATIN ROAD MAKERS

U. S. Experts Will Attend Buenos Aires Congress.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 15—[Special.]—Concrete results, typifying President Coolidge's theory of helpfulness to foreign nations, are anticipated from the participation by an American delegation in the first Pan-American road congress in Buenos Aires, Oct. 3 to 13.

Members of the American delegation, in accepting their appointment from the President are imbued with his idea that "improved means of communication is not only one of the great forces making for cultural and economic advance but is also one of the basic factors in the development of Pan-American unity."

If Latin-American countries can profit from the mistakes of the United States in its long and costly experience in establishing an adequate system of highways, the efforts of the American delegation will form an important achievement in the field of international relations, administration officials believe.

Coolidge to Give Parting Advice.

When the members of the American group sail on Sept. 3 they will carry with them a parting message from Mr. Coolidge. Just before leaving they plan also to hold final conferences with Secretary of State Kellogg and Secretary of Commerce Hoover, both of whom have figured conspicuously in advance preparations for their work.

Dr. Honorio Pueyrredon, Argentine ambassador to the United States, believes that practical results in the way of highway development will come from the Buenos Aires conference. If the congress does not lead to the actual building of roads it will have been useless, he thinks. It is expected that every one of the twenty-one republics of North and South America will be represented.

In addition to the official delegates about 20 individuals from the United States interested in various phases of road improvement will attend the meeting unofficially. Sailing from New York on Sept. 30 via the west coast, stopping at Panama, Peru, and Chile, thence across the Andes to Argentina, the delegation will return up the east coast, paying a visit to Brazil and reaching New York again on Nov. 11.

What They Will Discuss.

Papers to be presented at the congress by various members of the United States delegation deal with the economic and social influences of motor transportation, highway administration, education, promotion and finance, and construction and maintenance.

President Coolidge's commission is made up of men who have played an important part in highway development in the United States.

Its chairman is Herbert H. Rice of Detroit, for many years an automobile manufacturer and widely known as an authority on highway development and construction. He is now vice president of the General Motors corporation. He was associated with the Pope Manufacturing company, manufacturers of Columbia bicycles, in the days when the bicycle craze began to point the need of better roads.

Later Mr. Rice became president and general manager of the Waverley Automobile company and was president of the Cadillac Motor Car company. His war service included membership on the national war labor board by appointment of President Wilson.

Other Members of Body.

Other members of the delegation include: Thomas H. McDonald, chief of the United States bureau of public roads of the department of agriculture; Representative William E. Hull of Peoria, Ill., who was a pioneer in advocating road development in his state; Charles M. Babcock, commissioner of highways in Minnesota; Frank Page, chairman of the North Carolina highway commission; F. L. Bishop, dean of the school of engineering of the University of Pittsburgh, and Dr. Guillermo A. Sherwell, secretary general of the inter-American highway commission.

"If, by citing our own experiences, we can help our sister nations of the south to avoid the needless waste of time and millions of dollars of money which we experienced before highway construction became systematized as it is now in this country, we feel that our trip to South America will be productive of as good results as the delegates from Latin-American countries were kind enough to say resulted from their visit to the United States last year," said Mr. Rice.

Future of Latin Highways.

"Thus, profiting by our experiences and going on with the work not haphazardly as we did, but on a sound and systematic basis, our neighbors should be in a position to astonish the world by their highway development. They have vast resources at their command, the roads they build will more than pay for themselves within a short time, and, almost before we know it, I believe that the nations of Latin America will be enjoying the tremendous and widespread benefits that we in this country have found to result from development of highway transportation.

"Motor transportation furnishes a comparatively new and universally available modern system of communication, both within and between countries, that is of the greatest importance and value in its social benefits and the economic advancement of the world. Any effort toward improvement of communications between countries, through the greater use of modern highways and motor vehicles, is a definite and important move toward better understanding between countries and the improvement of their relations and their common undertakings."

Movement Had Late Start.

Road building, in the sense of modern motor highways, has just made a beginning in most Latin-American countries. In a few of them interest in the movement was started some years ago, the automobile being the agent. Some road work has been done, but in most cases the big task still lies ahead.

There has been an awakening to the economic need for comprehensive and steady road construction and maintenance, campaigns of education are under way, and it is believed that it will now be a question of only a few years before large road building programs will be undertaken in many, if not all, of the nations in the western hemisphere.

UNCLE SAM TRAINS ARMY OF SNOOPERS TO GET TAX DODGERS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 15.—[United Press.]—An intensive drive to collect millions of dollars due the government in delinquent taxes will be started Sept. 1, simultaneously with announcement of income tax payment figures for the year 1924, it was learned at the internal revenue bureau today.

At the same time Uncle Sam will round up thousands of income tax dodgers who willfully evade contributing their pittance to the treasury. Stiff penalties and in some instances jail sentences will be given these offenders.

Collectors of internal revenue in the sixty-three districts of the country have been quietly preparing for the campaign under the direction of Commissioner of Internal Revenue Blair. Two thousand trained investigators will be used in the drive.

The internal revenue bureau has a field force of about 5,000 and 2,000 of the corps have been trained to investigate income tax returns. This army of sleuths will compare salary lists with returns made; examine reported earnings with profits listed and deductions to make sure the government has received the correct amount.

BEDFORD MINE VICTIM DIES.

Bedford, Ind., Aug. 15.—Charles Conover, 16 died in a hospital here from injuries received in a mine accident two weeks ago.

WAR VETS PLAN DRIVE TO BOOST GULF WATERWAY

Spanish-American war veterans of Illinois and neighboring states yesterday put the influence of their organization behind the inland waterway program. They plan a campaign throughout the southern states to boost the lakes-to-gulf waterway and arouse sentiment for development of water traffic in the whole Mississippi valley.

Incidentally they intend to show the southland that Chicago is not the crooks' paradise its critics claim it to be, but the world's wonder city, where great dreams of progress come true. They plan to show the south what some of its own benefits will be as a result of Chicago's progress and the development of waterways.

McKinley Camp Takes Lead.

William McKinley camp of Chicago, which claims to be the largest war veteran unit in the world, has taken the lead in this campaign. The Illinois department has endorsed the proposed merger of all local waterway interests.

Maj. George H. Riley, veteran of the Philippine and Boxer campaigns and commander of William McKinley camp is rounding up northern and western delegates to the national encampment at St. Petersburg, Fla., next month for side trips into the south.

A river trip of 2,000 delegates and 1,000 Chicago business men is planned so the waterway boosters can actually see the present barge lines in operation and visualize the future after completion of the Illinois waterway. The side trips will include a visit to the industrial steel center at Birmingham and Muscle Shoals.

"Backbone of Defense."

"We are vitally interested in the development of the deep waterways," said Maj. Riley, "both from a military and economic standpoint. We believe that transportation is the backbone of military defense and that the first real step in any scheme of national defense will be to augment the railway lines with an efficient water transport.

"War veteran societies find that employment is one of their biggest problems. When the great port works of the Chicago harbor is completed and connected with the oceans the industrial plants in the Mississippi valley that are now running with a 35 per cent force will be operating in full blast. That is another big feature."

Lowers Bond of Crook Who Picked Cop's Pocket

A $35,000 bond fixed by Municipal Judge John H. Lyle upon a pickpocket was reduced yesterday by Chief Justice Jacob Hopkins of the Criminal court to $15,000. Frank Carroll, said to have a police record, picked the pocket of Policeman Michael Galligan of $216 two weeks ago. Galligan captured Carroll and recovered the money. "A pickpocket is the most contemptible of crooks," declared Judge Hopkins. "But there is no purpose served by fixing a bond which is too high and excessive according to the law."

Suppose you could park your car for the night in a fireless cooker—

You wouldn't be afraid of it freezing, would you—even in zero weather? You know that a pot of hot soup, or a stew, placed in a fireless cooker remains hot for hours. You know that this is so because the fireless cooker is insulated—top, bottom and on all four sides—and that it is the insulation that keeps the heat from escaping.

A Union Insulated Garage is constructed on exactly the same principle. It is so thoroughly insulated that when you run your warm car into it on a cold night, no other heat is required to keep it from freezing, even when the outside temperature is 15 degrees below zero.

Wouldn't you like to have that kind of a garage, if the price were reasonable—not much more than an ordinary garage would cost—and if you could pay for it in monthly installments, not greatly in excess of your monthly bill for a rented garage?

That's our proposition to you. Better look into it. Thirty years' experience in building cold storage plants and insulated structures of every kind have taught us how to build unheated insulated garages that are freeze-proof even in sub-zero weather.

Rickenbacker
A CAR WORTHY OF ITS NAME

Built Up To A Standard Not Down To A Price

In these days of price competition there's a great temptation to skimp quality in order to meet the price of a rival.

Usual formula. "To cut the price, cut quality."

In the case of concerns producing vast volume this is not only a temptation but a compulsion.

Rickenbacker is one of the two or three fortunate concerns which are free from this form of rivalry—because this product is distinctive, original, and in a class by itself.

For example, there are many improvements and engineering features which are still to be found only in Rickenbacker Sixes and Eights.

To the discriminating buyer who knows the superiority and desirability of these exclusive Rickenbacker features, price is a secondary consideration.

Mere price will not turn the scales in his decision.

In his mind Rickenbacker performance comes before all else.

So, Rickenbacker is able to adhere to the original idea—the fundamental policy—upon which this company and its products was founded.

That was—and is—to build up to a standard rather than down to a price.

That is why the car continues to be known as "The Car of the Connoisseur."

That is why this car really knows no rival, but remains aloof from all "price" and other classes.

That is why experienced buyers—motorists who have always driven the best cars—consider only one other make in the same category with Rickenbacker—and that, a car which sells for nearly twice as much.

Rickenbacker performance is not equaled by any other car at its price.

Performance—as indicated by rapid acceleration—great surplus power—wonderful smoothness—and equally rapid and smooth de-celeration:—

Performance exemplified in sweet running qualities, sustained through long periods of the hardest work:—

Performance as proven by the great number of trans-continental, cross-country, inter-state and inter-city road records now held by Rickenbacker cars—sixes and Vertical-Eights!

Performance—this is the all-embracing quality which makes Rickenbacker cars first choice of men who know most about motor cars—and women who are most critical.

If you have not seen the new Rickenbacker models, you cannot feel you are fully up-to-date on the latest improvements in motor cars.

At this moment other concerns are announcing as outstanding improvements in their new (1926) models the following:—4-Wheel Brakes;—Air Cleaners;—Oil Filters;—Oil Rectifiers;—"Cradle" Springs;—Counter-balanced Crankshafts;—Vibrationless Motors;—7-Bearing Sixes;—9-Bearing Eights;—Ball Bearing Steering;—Deeper Frames;—Balloon Tires.

This is a wonderful compliment to Rickenbacker and conclusively justifies Rickenbacker engineering.

Every one of these features—every last one of them—was first seen in this car. All have been standard practice with us for two to four years.

Then, they said these were questionable experiments. Now they say these are the greatest improvements possible in the motor car.

And it is just as true now as it was then, that, when you select a Rickenbacker for yours, you get a car that is a year or two in advance of the times.

Rickenbackers two years old are still up to the minute.

Permit us to show you a hundred-and-one points of superiority in this car.

For, excellence is not confined to major units such as those enumerated, but is found also in details of design, of machining and finishing—everywhere.

No other car has been so sincerely complimented by being copied—and Rickenbacker is still the trade-model of the industry.

Engineers are, secretly, as enthusiastic over this car as are laymen and owners.

But—you must see these new Rickenbackers with your own eyes—drive with your own experienced hand—sense the wonderful riding qualities and from your own extensive experience, compare with others:—

Then you must, while looking at the magnificent car itself, consider the new price of each new model, to fully appreciate that which is now within your reach at a price you would expect to pay for an ordinary car.

No such performance is to be had—no such value is obtainable as you'll find in these new Rickenbackers at the new prices.

Drive this new Rickenbacker yourself—either a Six or an Eight—it will be a revelation to you.

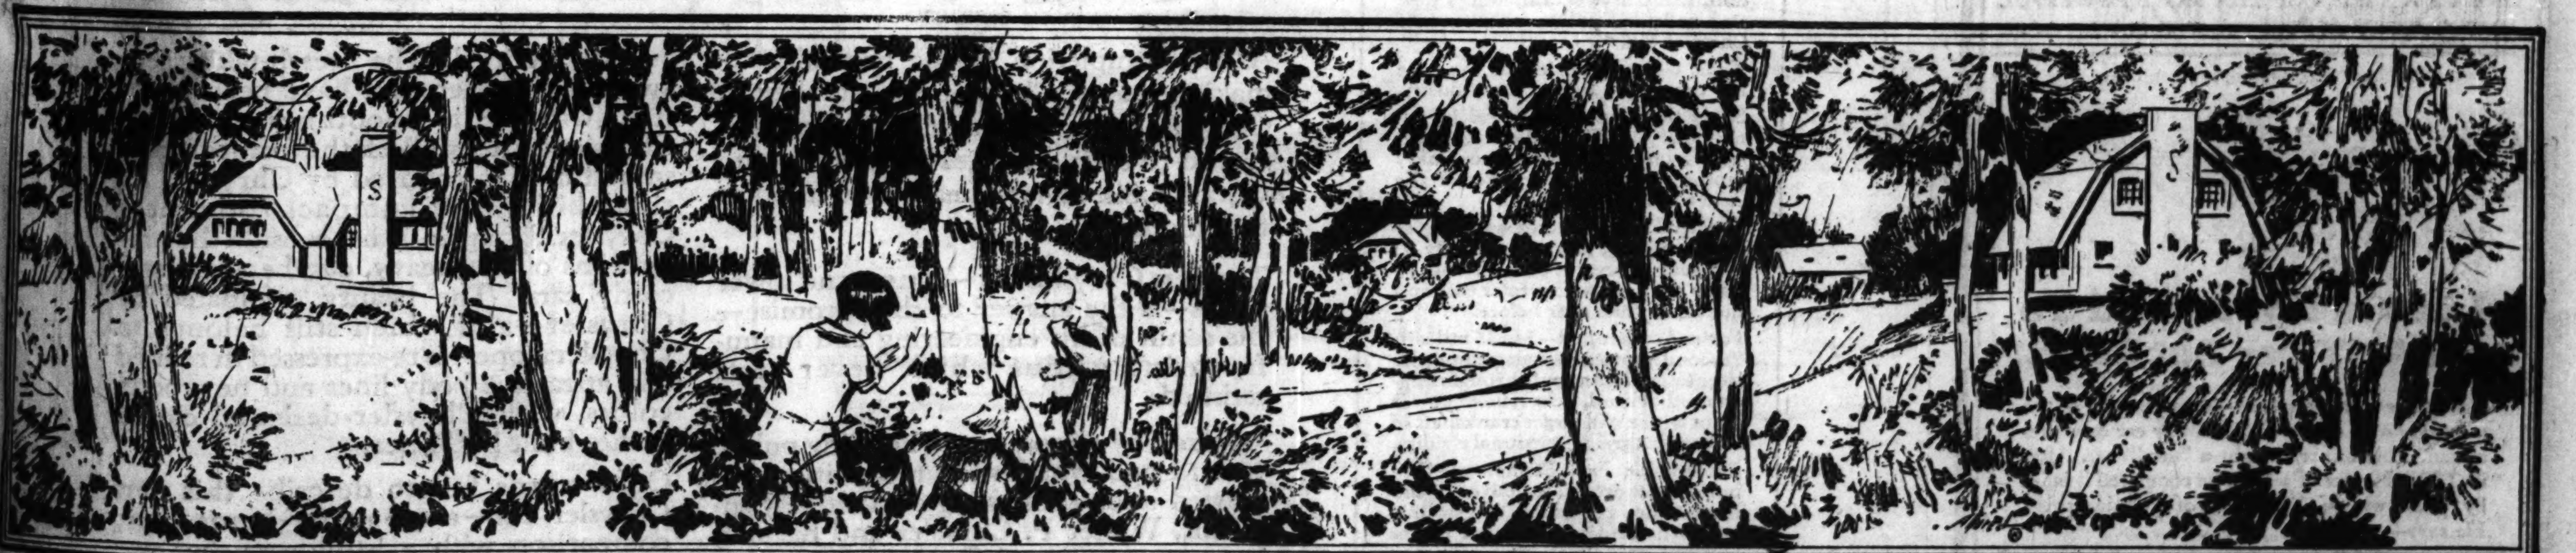
THE LARGEST REMAINING ESTATE ON THE NORTH SHORE IS NOW AVAILABLE FOR HOMESITES



EVERY NATURAL ADVANTAGE

IN 1842 a government grant gave the Sweeney family the tract of land which now comprises this beautiful estate. At that time the Indian still roamed here. The Red Man liked this spot for its many natural advantages. He loved the gently rolling ground and the many beautiful trees it nurtured. Being much higher than the surrounding territory it gave him a view of lake and country for miles around.

There he liked to pitch his tepee—under the restful shade of majestic oaks and stately elm trees. The lake, a scanty half mile to the east supplied him with fish and sparkling cool water to drink. Its breezes moderated the heat of the mid-day sun in summer. Distance and the intervening woods tempered its sharp winds in winter.

Here he loved to rest from the rigors of battle and the excitement of the chase. At eventide he would find soothing rest and quiet which only the North Shore can impart.

The virgin beauty of this tract when the Indian trod its soil is still preserved, for it remained intact in the years that followed. In fact its inherent natural beauty has been enhanced by the care it received at the hands of its owners and their descendants.

The passage of time has brought many a beautiful estate to its edge. The palatial homes of Chicago's most prominent men and women are all around it. Now it stands as a great natural park in the midst of fine suburban homes. Today Highland Park Gardens is the largest remaining close-in tract on the North Shore and Krenn & Dato are making it available for homesites.

Between LAKE FOREST and HIGHLAND PARK

KRENN & DATO'S Highland Park Gardens is undoubtedly the best located tract on the North Shore. It lies between two of its finest suburbs. On the north it borders exclusive Lake Forest. Lake Forest the beautiful; the rendezvous of the smart set, with its palatial homes and pretentious estates. Lake Forest of the fine clubs, excellent schools and refined community spirit.

To the south are the city limits of Highland Park—considered as one of the most progressive communities on the North Shore. A city with an excellent business center. A municipality of fine homes and uplifting home life. Its substantial citizens are the business leaders of Chicago. They are in the forefront of the city's professional ranks. Lake Forest is rapidly growing south. Highland Park is fast progressing northward. Krenn & Dato's Highland Park Gardens is happily in between. A few years hence and the three will merge into the finest community in all the land.

CENTER of LEARNING and SOCIAL LIFE

THE excellent living advantages of the North Shore have attracted people of refinement, education and culture. Here they have built their homes and the educational and cultural facilities which cater to their good tastes—and Highland Park Gardens is in the very center of these select advantages.

Northwestern University at Evanston and Lake Forest University at Lake Forest are schools famed throughout the country for their high standard of learning. The Deerfield Shields High School, the Ravinia grammar school and Ferry Hall at Lake Forest are preparatory schools on a par with the best.

The finest recreational facilities are to be found here. There are golf clubs, country clubs and tennis clubs, both municipal and private. The Old Elm Golf Club adjoins the property on the west. Others within a short distance are the Highland Park Municipal, Glenview, Briar Gate, Deerfield, etc.

Ravinia with its world-famed grand opera is only a few minutes away.

Take a North Shore train at Adams and Wabash Streets, get off at Ft. Sheridan and walk across the street to property.

BY AUTOMOBILE—Follow the Green Bay Road north, across the right of way of the Northwestern Railway and the North Shore Electric to the northern boundary of the property.

Follow Sheridan Road north to Ft. Sheridan, then west thru Ft. Sheridan into the Green Bay Road, across the right of way of the Northwestern Railway and the North Shore Electric to the northern boundary of the property.

BEST SUBURBAN TRANSPORTATION

WHILE other suburban developments around Chicago are being sold on the strength of promised transportation, Highland Park Gardens already enjoys the best in the country.

For years the North Shore has been outstanding for its fine travel facilities. Here the Northwestern Railway operates its fastest and best equipped trains; while the North Shore Electric has made suburban transportation history by the speed and efficiency of its North Shore traffic.

Highland Park Gardens is only 28 miles north from Chicago. Stations of the Northwestern Railway and the North Shore Electric are at the very entrance of the property. A daily schedule of 105 trains and 39 minutes bring you to Chicago—in less time than it takes to get from the city's extreme north or south sides to the loop.

These competent rail facilities are now being augmented. The Skokie Valley High Speed line is rapidly nearing completion. This is an extension of the North Shore Electric from Dempster Street at Niles Center north to Lake Bluff. There it joins the main line to Milwaukee. When finished this extension will give Krenn & Dato's Highland Park Gardens the utmost in fast, efficient and safe transportation.

Highland Park Gardens is also easily reached by motor highway. The Sheridan and Green Bay Roads to the east of the property and the Waukegan Road to the west give you ready access to the very heart of this beautiful tract. The Skokie Valley Boulevard now under construction will connect up with Green Bay Road at Lake Forest. This will provide a new motor highway for this section.

MOTORDOM

Northwest Arcadia Draws Swarms of Motor Tourists

Railroad Enters Bus Field to Garner Highway Harvest.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

DULUTH, Minn., Aug. 15.—[Special.]—More than 30,000 automobile tourists will pay tribute in good American dollars this season to the highway enterprise which has improved every foot of the 2,839 miles of main roads in this—St. Louis—county of Minnesota. With Duluth and its nationally known scenic attractions as the natural traffic gateway, the alluring Arrowhead empire of forest and stream and the great Mesaba and Vermilion iron ranges present an inspiring picture of motor transportation at its seasonal best and of the tangible value of good, permanent roads to any district, no matter how isolated it may be from the old established lanes of travel.

Roads of northern Minnesota are going concerns. As revenue producers they compare favorably with lake navigation, and are drawing rapidly ahead of rail transport. Above all, they are affording one of the finest recreational tracts in the country its proper place in the sun for the questing 17,000,000 car owners in the United States.

Here, in brief, are the motoring attractions made available by the completed, connected roads:

The Minnesota Arrowhead country, a district comprising 20,000 square miles around the head of Lake Superior with Duluth its southern limit; Bemidji and the ten thousand lakes land its western base; International Falls and the Canadian boundary its northern limits, and Pigeon river its eastern tip.

Superior National forest, lying within this perfectly formed arrowhead, embraces 1,268,538 acres of forest, stream, and lake. It offers 1,000 miles of established canoe trails, scores of comfortable, well equipped vacation resorts, and unlimited facilities for motor camping. The forest, under government control, will remain unspoiled by private monopoly. It offers the tourist the entire range of outdoor sports from wilderness trails out through the heart of virgin timber and hidden lakes where few white men have ever unlimbered a line to country club resorts with golf links and private swimming pools, motor launches, and Indian guides as modern features.

The Mesaba and Superior iron ranges, rearing their scarred sides through the middle of the arrow, give the driver a new vista of American enterprise, unrivaled by anything east of the Rockies. A daylight drive from Duluth north to Virginia and west by south to Grand Rapids over the completely paved state roads, takes the tourist through the heart of the big open pit operations as well as leading him to the maze of lakes of Itaska county and the source of the Mississippi.

This entire district has been forehanded in its road building. Its highway development began about the time Illinois launched its first big bond issue in anticipation of the new transportation era. Now, like Illinois, it is prepared to care for the traffic flood, while less enterprising neighbors dam up their attractive routes with detours and lose the paying guests.

Something of the importance of Minnesota's highway development may be seen in the recent $2,500,000 merger which placed seven of the largest passenger bus companies in the state under the management of the Northland Transportation company. This company, in turn, is regarded as a subsidiary of the Great Northern railroad, and the most striking example in the west of railroad recognition of the vast, new highway transport field. The Northland company has operated extensive on the range and between the Twin cities and Duluth. Its latest acquisition gives it established passenger routes into all parts of the state and makes it the biggest concern of the kind in the country. Incidentally, it makes Minneapolis one of the most important bus terminals and controls so far developed.

This merger is said to be one of the direct results of the bitter battle waged by railroads of the northwest against increasing passenger transport competition by highway carriers. Several months ago the road began a three months' demonstration of this new condition by adding eight trains to its local service in the state. Instead of winning business from the bus lines, it reported a loss of $25,000 in the trial, and applied to the state commission for permission to discontinue its extra trains.

Another result of the railroad battle came in the form of a new law, passed by the 1925 legislature, which gives the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission authority to refuse bus companies the use of public highways if they fail to show public necessity for their service. Railroad bus operation is taken as tacit acknowledgement that highway carriers can easily show this service demand and indicates that the rail lines here recognize the big future in the motor bus just as the lines in the east have called a truce to truck competition by establishing their own highway freight lines.

But here is the highway rub for Minnesota, which has refused to vote funds for an adequate paved road program over the state as a whole; bus fares of 3 cents a mile have been established as a standard on routes traversing gravel roads, while the rate on paved roads is 2¾ cents. The rail passenger rate is 3.6 cents a mile. Here, as in the matter of gasoline consumption, dust damage, and automobile wear and tear, the counties which have refused to build paved roads will more than pay for the non-existant concrete mileage.

At present the paved roads of Minnesota are but a small percentage of the state's huge highway mileage. Highway number 1 is completely paved from Faribault north to Saint Paul, and number 3 is paved from the Twin Cities north and west through St. Cloud to Little Falls. Highway 1 north from St. Paul to Duluth is a mixture of pavement, gravel, and detours. But in the north, number 1 along the lake shore is paved from Duluth to almost Two Rivers and is good gravel from there all the way to Pigeon river. Number 11 is paved from Duluth north to Virginia, and number 35 from Virginia southwest to Grand Rapids and east into the Vermilion country.

The state highway department, using its hard won road funds and gasoline tax to the best advantage, has gravelled or graded practically all of its big mileage, and is building concrete over the heavy traffic spots and—more slowly—over the main state routes. Here, as in the Dakotas, the motoring public is grumbling audibly about the excessive cost and dust nuisance in gravel roads, but legislators seem deaf to the popular demand. Under the present building system it will require years for the state as a whole to equal the good roads achievement of the range and St. Louis county.

WORK BENCH WISDOM

CUTTING DOWN EXPENSES.

BY ERWIN GREER.

ARE you one of those motorists who are afraid to take long trips for fear that something will happen to your car that you won't know how to repair? You needn't be, for all we know about motor vehicles has been gained by observation.

Some fellows seem to be always having engine trouble, while others are constantly fooling with their tires. Another keeps his left foot constantly on the accelerator and the other on the brake, yet this chap rages like a dog with hydrophobia when his car is towed back to the garage with a serious breakdown.

It would be a good thing generally if owners who are complaining about low gasoline mileage and blaming it on the quality of the fuel, would also examine carefully the condition of their engines. The condition of the cylinders, the tightness of the piston rings and the condition of the valves, all have their influence on gasoline mileage. If the cylinders are slightly scored, the piston rings loose and the valves seating improperly, it is no wonder that gasoline mileage is low, even granting that the present day fuel is inferior in quality to that which could be purchased two or three years ago.

If loss of power is due to a faulty carburetor adjustment, the trouble is more likely to be on the side of an adjustment which is too rich. The exhaust smoke is usually black or will have the odor of raw gasoline. A simple test is to shut off the flow of gasoline to the carburetor and allow the engine to run without touching the throttle. If the engine speeds up as the level of the gasoline drops in the float chamber, it is an indication that too much gasoline is being supplied under normal conditions when the chamber is full. Such a mixture causes not only loss of power, but also over heating, carbon deposit, and possibly preignition.

The amount of electrical current developed by a properly functioning generator is practically constant, while the amount consumed by the use of the various instruments which are supplied by the battery is never constant. It is evident, then, that a battery may be either overcharged or undercharged by a perfectly normal generator.

ONE OF A SERIES OF THE MOST POWERFUL ADVERTISEMENTS EVER PRINTED FOR ANY CAR

Written of Stutz, for Stutz, by a Stutz Owner

THE CAR THAT MADE GOOD IN A DAY
STUTZ

"I Could Not Afford To Own ANY Car But Stutz!"

Note these words carefully—they are part of the most powerful endorsement of any car ever presented. This owner bought a "used" car. After its TENTH year of service he compared it point by point with a NEW car of popular price. He says—

"Three years ago I bought a Stutz 1915 model. My total repair bill for the three years service has been less than $25.00, plus gasoline, oil and tires. This car has been in service ten years and is in first class condition today.

"I am only an average working man, a janitor at the local High School, at a salary of $140.00 per month, and have a family to support. When I bought the Stutz, my friends said to me, 'How can you afford to buy a Stutz?' At the same time, one of the other janitors bought a brand new ($800 Car). Now after three years, his car is junk. He paid about the same as I paid for my old Stutz, but his upkeep has been more than mine, and I have been riding in comfort and he has not. I do not think that I could afford to own any car but a Stutz."

W. C. HAPP, Rockford High School, Rockford, Ill.

Who can be better qualified to write TRULY of a car than the buyer of a car that has had 7 years service?

Can YOU imagine any stronger endorsement?

But we want YOU to form YOUR opinion of STUTZ not by its advertising, but by the ACTUAL FACTS to prove this remarkable car which await YOU—here and NOW!

LET US SHOW YOU WHY THE PRESENT STUTZ IS THE BEST CAR THAT EVER BORE THE STUTZ NAME

Supreme QUALITY

NEW CHRYSLER SIX

New High Quality; New Lower Prices

While the motoring public acclaims the Chrysler Six as the most phenomenal car ever built, Walter P. Chrysler announces notable improvements in quality—of materials, of performance, of craftsmanship, of equipment, of design.

While Chrysler sales rise to new high peaks and while public demand calls for steadily increasing production, Mr. Chrysler announces new and reduced prices on the new Chrysler Six.

Thus, Chrysler again sets the pace for the entire motor car industry.

Study these quality features in the new Chrysler Six and see for yourself why it is the most extraordinary motor car value ever offered the American public:—

Greater Power—Increased cylinder bore, resulting in approximately 10 per cent more torque, giving 70 miles per hour with greater ease and quickness than ever before.

Faster Acceleration—5 to 25 miles in 7 seconds, power enough to climb the steepest grades and pull through deepest mud or sand, from refined power plant with a still larger crankshaft of 50 per cent greater torsional rigidity.

Remarkable Fuel Economy—Carburetion improved to deliver 20 and more miles per gallon of gasoline, notwithstanding increased power and faster acceleration.

No Vibration—Larger seven-bearing crankshaft, increased bearing sizes, scientifically balanced rotating parts and new automatic friction vibration dampener, completely smooth out periodic vibration which ordinarily would result from increased power.

Still Easier Gear Shifting—Softer-operating clutch and larger transmission gears to compensate added power give still easier and smoother shifting.

Improved Rear Axle—Ring gears and pinions are larger; differential carrier heavier to handle increased engine power.

Distinctive Color Combinations—Body colors, in duco, are the most attractive and tasteful ever offered. Chrysler-designed, Fisher-built closed bodies are further refined; attractively low and gracefully rounded.

Extraordinary Equipment—Chrysler equipment is of a quality and completeness rarely found on any car—even the highest priced. It includes Purolator, which filters all dirt from crankcase oil as the motor runs; Watson Stabilators, the most efficient and most costly device of its type to absorb the shock of road irregularities; air-cleaner, which removes all road dirt and dust from air entering the engine; thermostatic control of water heat for most efficient operation; Chrysler-Lockheed hydraulic four-wheel brakes which provide utmost safety of control; Spartan "SOS" electric horn; duco durable body finish; balloon tires.

A Promise Kept

At the completion of the first history-making year of Chrysler Six—Walter P. Chrysler pledged himself and his organization to strive earnestly to keep the Chrysler Six as far ahead as it stood at that moment.

The new Chrysler Six—at new and lower prices—is the answer to that promise—the result of his engineering and manufacturing genius which never rests satisfied.

Inspired by almost overwhelming public reward and world-wide recognition bestowed upon something distinctively superior, Walter P. Chrysler and his staff have never relaxed for a moment their labors to emphasize and enhance the wonderful value and performance qualities of the Chrysler Six.

In this new Chrysler Six the torque is increased approximately 10 per cent. The 70-mile speed is more easily and quickly attained. The breath-taking getaway and acceleration have been made still swifter. In smoothness this new Chrysler actually excels the former super-smoothness introduced by Chrysler. In ride-ability and compact roominess Chrysler Six again brushes aside the pretensions of the heavy, cumbersome and costly cars. The beauty originated by Chrysler—and which still belongs to Chrysler alone—is re-expressed in refined and attractive body lines and new body colors, with Chrysler-designed closed bodies built by Fisher.

Cold words fail to describe this new Chrysler Six—a car so far beyond any comparison with existing cars that you must know it personally to understand its unapproachable superiority. That is why we are eager to have you see and drive it for yourself.

A demonstration will prove conclusively to you why today's Chrysler Six strides far ahead of competition.

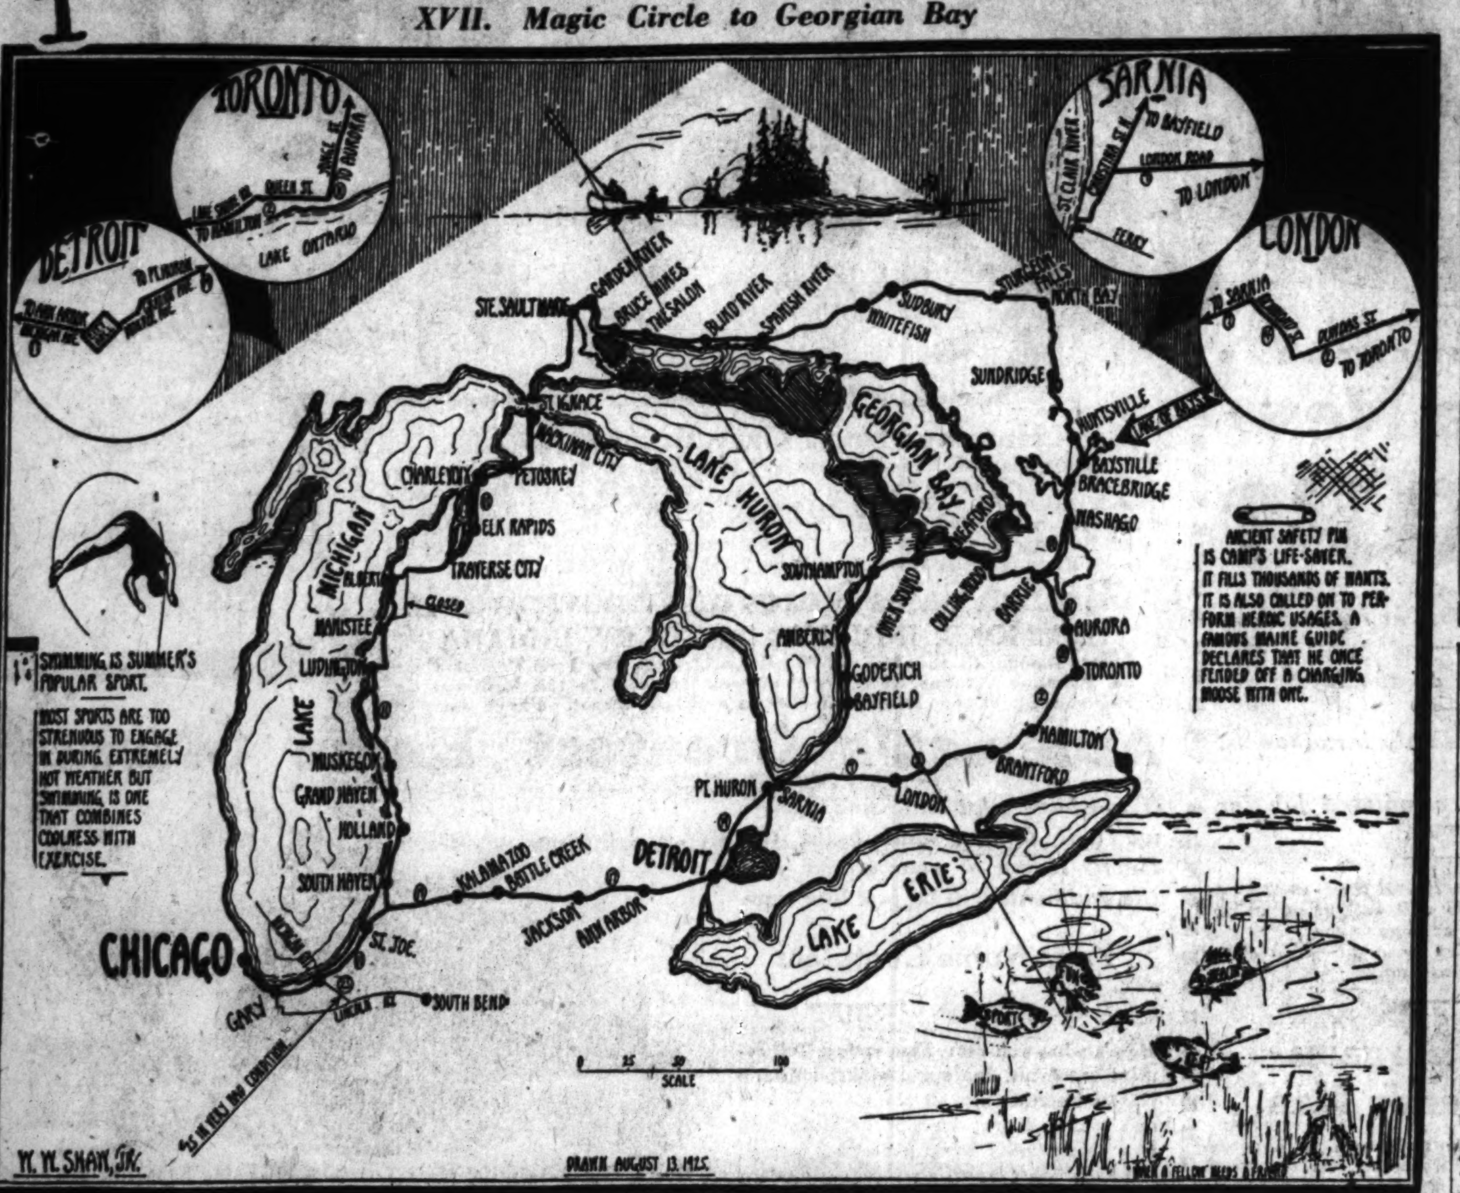
TRIBUNE·TOURS

XVII. Magic Circle to Georgian Bay



HERE is new country for your vacation tour, and a perfect circle of highways that this season and next promise unlimited pleasure for the American motorist.

Canadian highway improvement, rushed to the limit in the last two years, to care for the flood of travel from the states, has made this unusual trip possible this summer and fall. The Canadian roads shown are either paved or improved with gravel throughout and excellent accommodations are reported all along the line.

From Chicago the best August drive leads around the end of Lake Michigan over the Dunes highway and north along the famous west Michigan pike—state road 11—to the straits. From St. Ignace new country opens for the tourist to the north and east, thanks to the new gravel roads of the upper lake region. The Lake of the Bays is the principal objective. It offers practically everything that can be desired by the automobile wanderer.

More improved roads—much of the mileage paved—make a second touring circle with Barrie as a starting point. The trip home can be made easily over the paved Michigan highway, number 17.

Prices Reduced, Auto Demand Is at History's Peak

Outlook for 1925 Is Best Yet Known.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 15.—Prospective purchasers of automobiles who have been deferring purchase of cars in anticipation of a reduction in prices, need wait no longer.

Price-cutting which began several weeks ago, ended with a rush during the last two weeks, and manufacturers are satisfied their prices are where they will be for several months. They also are of the opinion that quality never was better, nor prices lower than at the present.

There are a few builders who have yet to announce readjustment of prices. Last week shows another substantial gain in employment, the increase being 1,162, setting the new high mark of men employed in the various Detroit automobile and accessories plants at 243,515.

The prosperity of motor car manufacturing concerns, largely operated in Michigan, is the dominant note of present industrial conditions. General Motors' report shows the concern made more net income in the last quarter than in any other of its history.

Ford continually is increasing output, and always is thousands of cars behind on orders. Chrysler is approximately 20,000 cars behind orders in production; Hudson and Essex are piling cars into the market as fast as they can be made, but in not sufficient quantities to supply the demand. Studebaker is experiencing its most profitable year, so is Packard. The Motor Wheel Co. has called nearly a million and a half of bonds.

During the last two weeks a tremendous impetus to sales has been noticed. This, without doubt, is the result of new models and lowering of prices, and the consensus is that 1925 will be the greatest year the industry ever has seen for both production and sales. The first six months set a new high record and there is little doubt that the last six will set new marks over all corresponding periods.

Nineteen-twenty-five will be known as the first "closed model" year. In practically every automobile plant in the country closed models are rapidly replacing the open types. The change came suddenly after once started, and caught the body builders unprepared. This condition, however, has been overcome, and indications are that the supply of closed bodies will hereafter be sufficient to supply the demand.

Figures show that in 1919 closed car percentage was only 10 per cent of the output. Three years later it climbed to 30 per cent and the estimate percentage for 1925 is placed at 55. The high spot in production of closed cars was in December of last year when schedules brought the production up to 65 per cent. General Motors production has, for many months, averaged 60 per cent closed models.

Tire prices, corresponding with the advance of crude rubber, are beginning to jump. One large tire factory has initiated its fourth price increase since the early part of the year. The price of inner tubes was advanced 15 per cent and casing from 10 to 15 per cent. Prices of tires sold as original equipment to the motor car manufacturers have advanced from 40 to 60 per cent. The higher prices paid for tires have increased car costs from $5 to $25.

A bit of excitement was caused this week in automobile circles by a report from California of the possibility in the very near future of both a high compression engine and a synthetic fuel which would give far greater economy and flexibility of operation. General Motors, associated with Standard Oil, would be in control. The rumor, however, was short lived and was officially denied by President Sloane of General Motors corporation.

Two factors discounted the possibility of the speedy introduction by the General Motors corporation of a new line of engines of the type specified. The first is that within the last month five GMC units have announced new or improved cars. The second factor is that an engine requiring a special fuel could not be successfully marketed until there was nation-wide distribution of the fuel. This one condition alone has prevented the introduction of a high compression engine for the last two years.

Travel from lower to upper Michigan, and vice versa, has outgrown boat accommodations at the straits of Mackinac. To rectify this condition state officials of Michigan are negotiating with the United States shipping board for the purchase of a government steamer of a type suitable for the ferrying of automobiles across the straits. Two already are working night and day, but are unable to meet demands of tourists.

Frequently two full boat loads of cars have been left on the docks, awaiting hours for their turn to cross. Each boat carried on an average of 300 cars a day.

Bus manufacturers are making little headway with incoming orders, which are greatly in excess of production. The demand was too large and came too fast to give builders an opportunity to increase facilities quickly enough.

The demand for busses and bus transportation comes from every section of the country, and already is a serious problem from the standpoint both of steam and electric roads.

Marksmen of West Asked to Spare Highway Signs

"HAVE a heart' 'is the plea of a cross coutry hiker to persons who mutilate signs posted along the public highways.

Upon completing a long trek into southern California, Lynn E. Bradley, hiker, recently requested the Automobile club of southern California to broadcast to motorists a special appeal asking them not to fire upon or throw rocks at signs so that their message is destroyed. His experience was that when directions to or from towns were often very vitally needed, the steel signs giving this information were frequently unreadable because passing marksmen had cracked the enamel from the signs or pierced them with bullets.

"The traveling public has learned to look for these signs," Bradley pointed out, "and when the signs are defaced, or as in some cases shot entirely from their supports, it works an inconvenience and sometimes an actual hardship on those who use the highways.

"Worse than a hardship, the defacing of signs may sometimes mean a matter of life and death, as it would be very easy to pass within a short distance of many water holes in southern California desert country, for instance, were it not for the signs posted nearby by the club, telling of the oasis. Other signs posted by the automobile club warn the traveler away from innocent looking water holes which contain poisonous liquids. Many residents of the desert country consider mutilation of these signs a criminal act and would readily take the law into their own hands if any one was caught defacing them, according to their word."

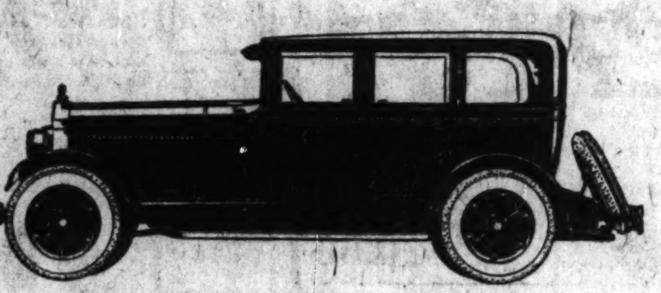
ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE



One hears constantly the assertion, "You get exactly what you pay for in a motor car." True enough on a basis of so much car for so much money. But there is an intangible worth of character, of up-to-date smartness, equal in no two cars, and in ELCAR surpassed by none. Through its most elastic facilities ELCAR is able to effect acceptable improvements in design or engineering almost instantly.

Peerless Low Prices Save $90 to $400

VALUE unapproached! That's exactly what the new Peerless prices mean. Those who know fine cars have proclaimed these new prices the most remarkable motor car values ever offered.

Everywhere these new prices have created intense interest in Peerless Eights and Sixes. For in performance, beauty and dependability Peerless cars are without peer. Peerless has always been a good car. And today, more than ever, Peerless is the result of an intense desire to build the finest, regardless of price.

We urge those who desire fullest car value at reduced prices to see these Peerless cars before they buy. Only increased production and efficient management have made possible such drastic price reductions.

Big Motor Body Advocates Speed on Safe Highways

Calls Present Laws, Based on Population, Out of Date.

GREATER safety for all highway users, less congestion, and less delay in traveling are the outstanding advantages of a plan being advocated by the American Automobile association, whereby motor vehicle departments will be encouraged to sanction higher speeds where highways are inherently smoother, wider, and straighter.

The plan is similar to the system in use in Maryland, where motorists are advised by conspicuous yellow signs when they are entering the thirty-five mile an hour zone, as well as when they are entering zones calling for reduced speed.

Explaining the position taken by the A. A. A. with respect to legalizing increased speed on the highways, Richard Haldeman, chairman of the good roads board, declared that increased speed is as logical and as unavoidable as increased traffic. He is of the opinion that the real danger lies in the delay in the proper regulation of such speed.

"Motorists must be allowed to drive faster over the highways, but the motor vehicle officials and public authorities must designate the higher speed zones," Haldeman said. "Accordingly, we propose to ask the various highway departments to notify travelers where they may speed up or where they must slow down.

"The present laws with respect to speed of motor vehicles are as out of date as the hand crank. They are directly responsible for many of the highway accidents and much of the highway confusion.

"The motor traveler in strange territory has to rely upon snap judgment regarding a safe rate of speed, whereas it would be a simple matter for the state to designate points or zones where higher speeds are permitted. Here the traveler could make time, thus removing the temptation to step on the gas when he is held back in traffic.

"It is already being done to a certain extent in Maryland, but experience shows that thirty-five miles an hour is not a generous enough allowance where roads are inherently safer.

"There is no use trying to deny the fact that millions of cars frequently travel at speeds of forty or over. Taking cognizance of this, Florida has just increased the speed limit on the state highways to 45 miles an hour. The country had better put itself to the task of seeing to it that motorists drive fast where fast driving is safe.

"If fast driving were inherently dangerous the motor car manufacturers of America would promptly limit the speeds of cars mechanically. The trouble is that there is nothing to hinder drivers from driving fast where speed is hazardous, and the stilted speed laws prevent them from taking advantage of logical opportunities to get over the ground quickly.

"The A. A. A. has gone into this matter very carefully and I do not see where anything is to be gained by continuing to play the ostrich in matters of speed and safety. One official recently remarked that if each state provided a ten mile straight concrete stretch with the invitation to motorists to go just as fast as they please it probably would be the least troublesome road in the state.

"It is a problem for city authorities as well as state, for there are many streets, bridges and boulevards where cars could move faster with safety, thereby assuring the city closer adherence to regulations where caution and slow driving are imperative. Under existing regulations the same rule applies to all streets, with perhaps a stage of leniency as the suburbs are reached. The motoring public is driving too fast over the dangerous streets and being held back for fear of a technical violation on streets where there is no reason to run slowly.

"The laws in some states, with respect to speed, are based upon the density of dwellings, the motorist being permitted to drive faster as houses are built farther apart. No consideration is made for the number of intersections, the width of the thoroughfare, the volume of traffic, or the condition of the roadway. Naturally, the regulations are variously interpreted, according to the intelligence and inclinations of the drivers. The traveler, more than any one else, has to be guided entirely by his own judgment, which often may be somewhat defective. He may drive too fast where conditions appear to be favorable, but where, in reality, they may be hazardous. He may lag behind where it may be permissible to drive faster because he is afraid of being arrested by a motorcycle officer."

Shipping of Autos by Rail-Water Is Big Task

DETROIT, Mich.—The work of getting finished automobiles out of the Motor city, and other Michigan points where cars are manufactured, is an industry within itself and growing greater every year. No matter how tourists enter Detroit they are always reminded that they are nearing the heart of the automobile industry.

It is an interesting sight to see great lake freighters piled high with automobiles enroute to Chicago, Duluth, and Lake Erie ports. These vessels leave daily throughout the season of navigation.

Besides the Michigan Central Railroad company has just placed an order for 1,600 freight cars to carry automobiles. These will be used exclusively for the moving of automobiles from the Michigan factories.

How to Tinker.

When working about the car, there are many important things to watch to prevent injury. Accidents can happen very easily and if a little precaution is exercised it will be unnecessary to call a doctor for physical repairs. When working under a car, it is wise to have the wheels blocked as well as the brake on. By all means, do not work under a jacked car. Skin cuts and perhaps blood poisoning can be prevented by wearing gloves. Watch all moving parts, such as fan, flywheel, and piston rods, and be cautious of the ignition system, the hot muffler, and exhaust pipe.

All Over World.

Showing how the world is riding in American motor vehicles, it is worth noting that during the last five months sixteen motor trucks were shipped to Greenland and seven passenger cars to Iceland, while Belgian Kongo, in the heart of Africa, took twenty-nine passenger cars and eighty-seven trucks.

Orphan Cars.

There are more than 600,000 automobiles in this country described as "orphans" by C. A. Vane, general manager of the National Automobile Dealers' association. An orphan car is one whose manufacturer has gone out of business.

Valve Clearance.

Cars doing long, hard trips or mountain work should have more valve clearance than is usually given a car for ordinary city use. Heat expands the parts and reduces space between valve stem and push rod.

Buffalo Meeting.

The directors of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce will be the guests of President Charles Clifton on the occasion of their next meeting to be held at Buffalo on July 23.

Yankee Experts Help Europe in Highway Campaign

EUROPE is turning to motor transportation as one of the means of economic reconstruction, according to reports received from the international chamber of commerce conference being held in Brussels, Belgium.

Roy D. Chapin, vice president of the national automobile chamber of commerce, and John N. Willys, chairman of the foreign trade committee of that body, are attending the conference on behalf of the automobile industry of the United States.

The report to the conference by the American committee on highway transport has outlined the practical results which have been accomplished in motor travel and highway construction in the United States. Coming at a time when Europe is particularly in need of additional facilities, this report is arousing considerable interest.

The relatively short distances in Europe make possible the effective use of short haul motor transportation at a much less capital outlay than would be required for other forms of travel. Among the chief obstacles to this development in the past have been high taxation and tariffs and the feeling that a chauffeur is a social requirement.

With wider appreciation of the economic possibilities of motor travel, it is believed that the financial levies will be lightened. The spread of the democratic spirit is also breaking down the feeling that a chauffeur for the private car is an essential.

FARM AND GARDEN

Corn Takes Place of Wheat as First Crop in Minnesota

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—[Special.]—Minnesota farmers are increasing their side lines to bring in additional revenue along with their main business of growing grain. There is a gradual increase in dairying, commercial truck crops, and fruits. As more and more milk cows are being added, changes are rapidly taking place in the crop production program of the state.

It has not been long since wheat was Minnesota's leading crop, but today corn holds first place. In general the farmers are cutting down their acreage of spring wheat, rye, and buckwheat and adding to their acreage of crops used as dairy feeds.

The discovery of marl beds and great deposits of limestone only a few feet under the surface is making it possible for Minnesota to increase its potential dairy area, and turn the attention of grain growers more to the production of milk and butter. Grimm alfalfa, the famous legume crop in the dairying districts of the northern states, was first started in this country within a few miles of here on Wendelin Grimm's farm near Carver, Minn., but it was not given a real chance in this state until after the discovery of lime. Down in the south eastern counties farmers have always had difficulty in getting good stands of alfalfa because of a lack of lime in the surface soil, but in that part of the state within a few feet of the crops' roots there are limestone beds everywhere.

Reclaimed with Lime.

With an application of lime on the surface, alfalfa is easily started. Once started, the roots penetrated the subsoil where there is plenty of lime to keep the plants going.

Until recently farmers on the sandy land along the Mississippi river have had difficulty in raising enough legume hay for their dairy herds, but they are now able to get good stands of both alfalfa and clovers after they have limed or marled the soil. Unproductive peat soils are also being put to good use with lime or marl and fertilizers. Peat land is being reclaimed by many for the growing of clover.

Up in the iron range country where corn does not do well sunflowers are being grown for tillage.

By reclaiming the sand and peat lands, farmers are avoiding the necessity of using the cut over land where it costs from $30 to $75 an acre to get rid of the tough pine stumps that have to be blasted out with dynamite before the soil can be cultivated.

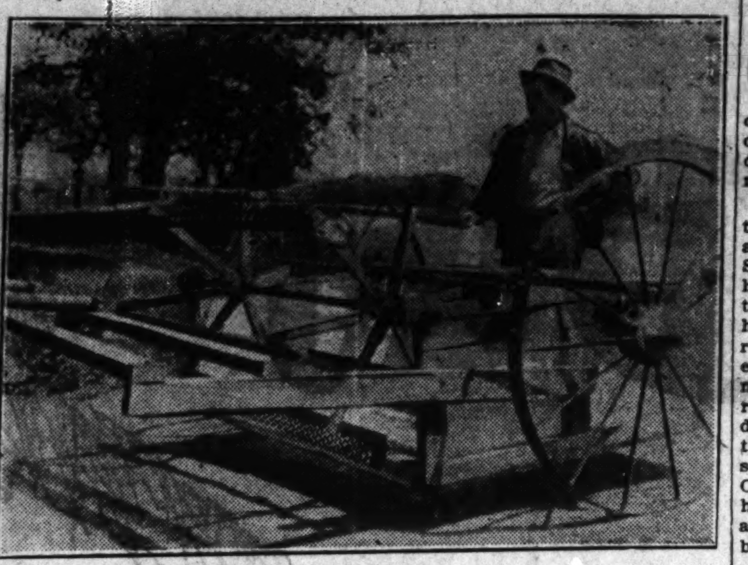
Successful with Fruit

Together with the increase in dairy farming are more and more orchards, vineyards, and truck crops. Great strides are being made in the production of superior grades of fruit even this far north. Horticulturists successfully crossed wild raspberries, plums, and cherries with fancy commercial varieties that were too delicate to withstand the cold winters here. Minnesota's Latham raspberry, Tonka plum, and Zumba plum-cherry compare favorably with the best.

This year Minnesota orchard owners expect to have nearly 700,000 bushels of apples with the condition estimated at 45 per cent in July. The condition of peaches in this state is estimated at [illegible] per cent; pears, 50 per cent, and grapes, 46 per cent.

Minnesota has the largest acreage of flax ever seeded in the state—an estimated area of 740,000 acres. This is further evidence of the gradual swing from spring wheat to other crops. Crop reporters estimate that the yield of flax seed this season will be more than 6,000,000 bushels.

LOUSE HARVESTER



APHIDOZER HELPS SAVE WISCONSIN'S PEA CROP.—Badger farmers use this contraption to gather aphides, or plant lice, from their pea fields. Last year a farmer in Wisconsin gathered eighty-nine pounds of lice from a twenty acre field in a machine like this. The lice are among the worst pests pea growers have to deal with, and this machine is a life saver in Wisconsin, where more than half the canned peas in America are grown. It picks off about 80 per cent of the lice. Note the reel with perforated paddles that knock the lice off into the tray below. Ten per cent of the lice are knocked off on to the ground and 9 per cent of them are killed or stunned so they never get back on to the pea vines.

Farmers' Roadside Sales Need More Board Advertising

VALLEY CITY, N. D., Aug 15.—[Special.]—Ambitious merchants in towns all over the middle west have strung combination bulletin boards and advertisements along the highways in front of farm homes, but so far the little black board has been apparently of little aid to the general live stock and grain farmer in disposing of his surplus product to shoppers who travel the rural boulevards. In touring through Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, and North and South Dakota, THE TRIBUNE party has counted literally thousands of these miniature blackboards and not more than two dozen of them being used by the farmers.

Despite the fact that farmers now have an abundance of vegetables, fruits, eggs, chickens, and dairy products for sale, nearly all the bulletin boards are blank, with the exception of a few used by operators of established roadside stands near the larger towns. So far the bulletin board's chief value is in advertising local merchants and bankers. With the producer's increased interest in selling direct to the consumer, his first lesson in merchandising may soon be written on these blackboards.

Selling farm products over the roadside stand is a new business to the average corn belt farmer who claims to know little about merchandising and advertising. In a few instances farmers are keeping pace with the fast moving traffic that passes their front gates and are catching the eye of prospective customers by posting signs for hundreds of yards up and down the road passing the farmhouses, giving the tourist time to slacken his speed before reaching the front gate stand where the products are attractively displayed.

Missouri is making a definite move to aid farmers in establishing roadside markets. The state board of agriculture urges farmers to preserve their wood lots along the highways to be used as free camp grounds for tourists who will be in the market for fresh farm products. Crisscrossing the state with two sets of concrete highways, two running from north to south and two from east to west, Missouri farmers expect the bulk of the transcontinental tourists to cross their state, greatly increasing the outlet for farm products sold direct from grower to consumer over the roadside counter.

State College Aids.

A study is now being made of the roadside stand by the Wisconsin State College of Agriculture. Stands are to be operated by the college marketing experts to determine the best methods of grading, packing, displaying, and advertising.

In starting a roadside stand the farmer often makes the mistake of charging as much for his products as his competitor, the green grocer in the nearby town. Few take into consideration the fact that the shopper is in the habit of buying from central distributing points, and if they are to compete successfully in selling direct from the farm quality must be high and prices low.

Dairymen's Jottings

"Hogging off" and "sheeping off" corn and soybeans are becoming more and more a common practice in Wisconsin, according to a recent bulletin, No. 375, on "Soybeans; a Good Legume Borrowed from the Orient," published by the agricultural experiment station. Dairymen, wherever legumes will grow, will be interested in this bulletin because it tells them how to get started with this crop, how to take care of it, how to harvest and use it. Copies are available at the College of Agriculture, University of Wisconsin, Madison.

Nearly 100 entries have been made in the storage butter contest of the National Dairy exposition which is to be held this fall at Indianapolis, Ind., October 10 to 17, according to W. E. Skinner, secretary and general manager. The entries come from eleven states and Canada. Iowa tops the list with thirty-four entries. The butter has been stored under commercial conditions and will be scored for keeping qualities at the dairy show when the final ratings and awards will be made.

TALES OF THE TRAIL

By Jenks

ON the Road in Minnesota, Aug. 15.—[Special.]—Forty-three hundred miles of open road lie unwound now behind the wheels of the demon Paige as mute evidence of the ease and safety of touring conditions this season in the west and northwest.

So far THE TRIBUNE expedition has touched the high spots of a considerable cross-section of these United States west of the great lakes and has touched every transcontinental trail with the exception of the Bankhead highway and the most southern roads. From Chicago it swung south, east, west, north, and west again over more than 500 miles of Illinois paved roads, leaving the state at Quincy and dropping down to Hannibal, Mo. From that point the route was west and south to Jefferson City, west to Kansas City, west again to Topeka and Manhattan, Kas., south to Hutchinson, and north, through Kansas and Nebraska, to Lincoln.

The search then turned east through Omaha and south and east through Iowa to Des Moines. From Des Moines the threat of rain drove the car north to the paved and graveled districts about Fort Dodge and west to the Missouri river, then north across the tip of Minnesota to Sioux Falls, S. D., and north along the border to Ortonville, Minn. The route then went west to Aberdeen, S. D., north to Valley City, N. D., and east through Fargo to the Minnesota lake district and the Twin Cities. With the exception of about 100 miles in North Dakota, the trip has been made without encountering a really dangerous stretch of road.

Down in the roller coaster hills and velvet smooth earth road district of Iowa, the favorite story is one about the flivver driver and the city slicker who tinkered up his motor for speed. The flivver driver, so the story runs, was loafing over the hills at about 35 when the camouflaged racer overhauled him and went by in a cloud of dust. Reaching town the slicker parked in front of a drug store and went in to sit with the boys. A half hour later the flivver limped up to the store and its driver, badly battered and with his arm in an improvised sling, dragged himself out of the seat and into the prescription counter to be patched up.

"You're the bird who passed me out there a piece, ain't you?" he demanded, spying the slicker.

"Yes, I passed you, but I didn't touch you, did I?" was the reply. "How come the wounds?"

"No, you didn't touch me," groaned the victim, "but you went by so blamed fast I thought my engine had stopped, and got out to crank it!"

Some French perfumer, with a going plant in Gary or Camden, will take a drive through the country some day and come home to make his fortune in sweet clover essence. Up here on the divide which turns rivers to the north and holds the western sun until bucolic bedtime, clover perfume is drifting in through the open window like a summer song. Out on the road a hundred boulevard-weary drivers are breathing it while they bowl along over smooth gravel roads and watch the shadows lengthen down the ridges.

Another of our nail experiences occurred about 11 p. m. on the steep, winding hill leading west from Granite Falls. The admiral had just shocked the natives by inquiring innocently concerning the possibilities for a Scotch highball at the leading café and soft drink parlor in the village.

"Nothing like that!" gasped the awe stricken waiter, pointing his finger heavenward. "Don't you know that this is Granite Falls, and, besides, Mr. Volstead's office is right above this store!"

Later he hinted that a little alcohol might be had if the proper sources were broached, and that some of the boys made pretty good "moon." When the tire went flat the admiral pointed a moral about respect for a prophet in his home town.

Motors to Rescue.

Government officials, trade boards, and universities of European countries are assisting George F. Bauer, foreign trade secretary of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce in an educational campaign on motor transportation. He has lectured recently at Cologne, Frankfort, and Aachen.

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question $5 is awarded to Horace K. Doane, Moorpark, Mich.

The Question.

Dou you consider balloon tires practical for mountain driving?

Where Asked.

Michigan avenue and Ohio street.

The Answers:

Glen R. Grim, 1410 Catalpa avenue, advertising man—I do not think the low pressure type of tire is as practical for mountain work and rutted country roads as the high pressure tire. The old high pressure tire stands up under hard work and does not pick up every stray nail in sight.

Clifford Arnold, 849 Cornelia avenue, chauffeur—I certainly consider them practical. On rough roads they cushion the car and save the motor. In ruts they ride right along and they carry the car through the worst mud without the usual trouble. On mountain roads where a skid is often fatal, they are particularly useful.

Morris Overland, 1006 South Paulina street, chauffeur—I like the big doughnuts for all sorts of driving, especially on country roads and hills. They do make the car a little harder to steer at times, but they save skids on bad grades and ride like cushions over rough roads.

Rudolph Englehardt, 6881 Rohns avenue, Detroit, Mich.—I like balloons much better than the high pressure tire, particularly in the Michigan sand roads. They are certainly better for mountain driving and for use over rough country roads. I believe they stand up as well as the old standard type.

Henry Topp, 620 North Michigan avenue, auto accessory dealer—The balloon tire is practical over any sort of road and is here to stay. They are better in mud, in the mountains and on city boulevards. They save the car and the driver and act as a safety valve on the worst country roads.

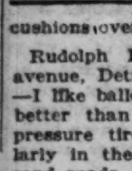
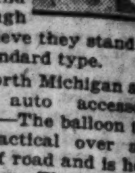
Truth About Motordom

skid is often fatal, they are particularly useful.

Morris Overland, 1006 South Paulina street, chauffeur—I like the big doughnuts for all sorts of driving, especially on country roads and hills. They do make the car a little harder to steer at times, but they save skids on bad grades and ride like cushions over rough roads.



Rudolph Englehardt, 6881 Rohns avenue, Detroit, Mich.—I like balloons much better than the high pressure tire, particularly in the Michigan sand roads. They are certainly better for mountain driving and for use over rough country roads. I believe they stand up as well as the old standard type.



Henry Topp, 620 North Michigan avenue, auto accessory dealer—The balloon tire is practical over any sort of road and is here to stay. They are better in mud, in the mountains and on city boulevards. They save the car and the driver and act as a safety valve on the worst country roads.

A decided widening of the spread in beef cattle prices featured last week's trade, with inferior to best at $6.25 to $14.10, the top advancing 60c over previous week, while the general average dropped 10c at $12.40. Top steers were $4.45 above high point in May, while the average of good beef steers gained only $2.30 over high week in that month.

Fat Beeves Higher.

Choice to fancy grades of fat beeves closed 25@60c above a week ago, while other classes closed that much lower, with instances of more declines. Native butcher stock finished on a weak to 50c lower basis, calves gained $1.00 and stockers and feeders closed strong to 25c higher. Fancy heifers sold up to $13.75, equaling year's high point. Calves sold as high as $14.00 and steers sold to go back to the country as high as $8.75. Week's receipts of western rangers totaled 8,000 and prices held fairly steady.

Only a handful of hogs arrived closing day of the week, the total at 2,000 being smallest on record under normal conditions. Quality graded poorer than usual, which compelled about half the packers to remain out of the trade and for the same reason some eastern orders were canceled, only 500 being shipped to the east. Prices ruled weak to 25c lower, with poorer quality accountable for lower prices on paper. Best sold at $14.00, with general average at $13.00, against $14.05 and $13.20 respectively a week ago.

Hog Arrivals Small.

Receipts of hogs at Chicago last week totaled smallest in ten months at 101,900, being practically a third smaller than a year ago and over 30,000 below the five year average of corresponding week since 1919. Estimated average weight for the week, however, at 246 lbs equaled previous week, the two heaviest since last September, against 243 lbs. a year and two years ago, 256 lbs. three years ago, and 248 lbs. for the five year average. Week's average price declined 15c to $13.25, against $9.20 a year ago, $7.50 two years ago and $9.95 for the five year average.

Late Lamb Trade Strong.

Closing sheep and lamb prices were best of the week, being strong to 15c above previous Saturday. Packers, shippers and feeders all went as high as $15.50 for best western lambs. General average price of lambs for the week landed at $14.90, with the sheep average at $7.00. Few aged wether sheep numbered among the week's arrivals.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 21,000 cattle, 35,000 hogs and 20,000 sheep, against 19,795 cattle, 28,806 hogs and 18,446 sheep, a week ago and 25,457 cattle, 49,635 hogs and 16,837 sheep, the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 57,000 cattle, 110,000 hogs and 80,000 sheep, against 61,809 cattle, 142,234 hogs and 71,734 sheep a year ago.

CASH GRAIN NEWS

Export sales of 200,000 bu wheat in all positions were estimated at the seaboard, including Manitobas, durums and springs. No demand of consequence was reported for other grains, although a little oats and some barley was placed abroad.

Chicago handlers sold 15,000 bu wheat, 40,000 bu corn and 105,000 bu oats to the domestic trade.

Demand for cash wheat here was fair with millers taking some No. 2 hard winter from store. Track lots of No. 2 hard were quoted at 1½@3c over September, while No. 2 red was 6½@7c over. Outside markets were 2¢c lower, with a slower demand at Kansas City and the basis there was easier. Basis at Minneapolis was about unchanged on spring, while durum was weak.

Offerings of cash corn were only fair and the basis was about unchanged with No. 2 mixed 1½c over September, and No. 2 yellow 2@2¼c over. Outside markets were unchanged to 1c lower.

Cash oats sold at unchanged prices as compared with September, No. 2 white bringing ¾@2c over and No. 3 white September price to ½c over.

Official receipts of grain at Chicago Saturday: Wheat, 74 cars; corn, 245 cars; oats, 180 cars; barley, 26 cars.

BANKRUPTCY PETITIONS

The following bankruptcy petition was filed here yesterday:

Albert M. Rodwell, involuntary; Charles Stone, petitioning creditor; claims, $1,000; no attorney.

SELLING HEAVY; GRAINS DECLINE AS WEEK ENDS

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Scattered liquidation was on in wheat. With further aggressive selling by houses with eastern connections, the deferred deliveries declined to a new low for the week. The finish was well toward the bottom with net losses of 1⅜@1⅝c, though September gained fractionally on the December wheat. Coarse grains showed a firm undertone with corn unchanged to ⅛c lower. Oats closed ⅜@½c lower and rye was off 1⅝@2c.

Grain prices were on the downgrade last week. While there were numerous strong rallies, the finish was at net losses of 6½@7c on wheat, ⅛@⅝c on corn, 1⅞@2c on oats and 4@4¼c on rye. Provisions were influenced by the break in hogs and a continued slow cash demand and lard lost 27½@40c, ribs 5@17½c, and bellies 2½c for the week.

Bear Sentiment in Wheat.

While there was nothing in the general run of news that attracted much attention, there was a noticeable increase in the bearish sentiment amongst local traders, and support was less aggressive than of late. December at the low point showed 9c under the high on Thursday, and some stop loss orders were uncovered on the way down. Crop reports from the Canadian northwest were mixed, with heavy rains in parts of the three provinces which may delay harvesting.

No material change was noted in the basis on cash wheat here or in the southwest, and millers were fair buyers, the demand for flour at Minneapolis broadening as the result of the break in futures. Liverpool came better than due, closing ⅛d lower to ⅜d higher, but it had only a momentary effect at the start when the best figures of the day were made. Export demand continues limited, with sales of inn positions around 200,000 bu.

Corn Gets Good Support.

While corn held within narrow limits, there was fair support on all declines, and when compared with the sharp break in wheat the market showed considerable resistance to pressure. Local sentiment was somewhat less bearish, and the September was inclined to act a little tight at times, the same as it has for some days past. Crop reports were generally favorable. Demand for cash corn was only fair, and messages from central Illinois claimed that the demand from outside markets had fallen off. Oats held within a range of around ½c and closed at the bottom in sympathy with other grains. Hedging pressure was in evidence at times. A little export business was put through at the seaboard.

Trade in rye continues light and the action of the market is determined largely by that of wheat. Export demand is very small.

Easy Tone in Provisions.

Scatered liquidation was on in September lard, while cash interests were buyers on the breaks. Weakness in cotton oil had some effect. Closing trades were 2½@10c lower on lard, with ribs unchanged to 2½c lower and bellies 5c lower. Prices follow:

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Sentiment amongst wheat traders is becoming increasingly bearish. The strength in the domestic statistical position is generally admitted, but the failure of the market to hold in the face of the strong position has induced many local operators to turn to the selling side, and few of the pit element were long at the close. Houses with eastern connections have been persistent sellers for several days. Owing to the lack of a balance wheel in the way of a large stock of cash grain very eratic fluctuations are expected to continue.

General run of news has but little effect on the wheat market at the present time, and to some extent to the action of prices is influenced by the attitude of the local element. Unless aggressive support is received from strong interests it would not surprise many traders to see a still lower range, although numerous sharp rallies may be witnessed when the local operators get oversold.

With wheat on the downgrade, corn bulls said it was hard to expect that coarse grains would continue strong. There was rather persistent buying of corn on dips by scattered commission houses, but the light trade continues to prevent a decided price movement either way.

A moderate increase in the domestic visible supply of wheat is expected to be shown for the week by traders, while the local stock will probably show a liberal reduction. Receipts here the past week were 1,382,000 bu and shipments 2,766,000 bu.

"Unless we have an export outlet for a portion of our wheat the northwestern markets are likely to sink to a shipping basis under us," said J. P. Griffin of J. S. Bache & Co. "The outlook impresses me as decidedly bearish and such rallies as may develop from technical situations are not likely to hold."

With Chicago well below a shipping difference on wheat as compared with St. Louis, Kansas City and Minneapolis it is not surprising that the movement to this market remains small. Local bulls called attention to the fact that there was little prospect of a stock being built up here.

Yields of wheat as high as 50 bu per acre, with a general average of around 30 to 35 bu per acre are expected to be secured this year between Humbolt and Prince Albert, Sas., a distance of 150 miles, according to crop observer R. O. Cromwell. Cutting is almost general in some places.

Yesterday's break in wheat futures brought in a better demand for flour at Minneapolis, and mills were fair buyers in that market as well as here.

Further offerings of Russian wheat for August-September wheat were reported in Liverpool cables.

CORPORATION EARNINGS

WILLYS-OVERLAND.

The preliminary statement for the first half of 1925 shows approximate net profit of $10,500,000 after ordinary taxes, interest, and expenses of new models, but before federal taxes, in comparison with $2,781,692 in the corresponding period last year.

Net profit of about $10,500,000 is equal to $47.62 a share on $22,049,500 7 per cent preferred stock, against $2,181,692, or $12.61 a share, in the first half of 1925. June quarter net profit was approximately $7,328,000, or $23.24 a share on preferred and $3.06 a share on common after regular preferred dividend requirements. This compares with $3,171,466 or $14.30 a preferred share and $1.23 a share on the common in the preceding quarter and $621,172, or $2.81 a preferred share, in the second quarter of 1924.

INTERNATIONAL TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH.

[Including subsidiaries.]

Net income $652,306 after interest, depreciation, etc., for quarter ended June 30, is equal after deductions of preferred dividends and minority interest in surplus of subsidiaries to $2 a share on 279,505 common shares outstanding, against $628,473, or $3.06 a share on 179,950 common shares in preceding quarter and $588,427, or $3.06 a share, on 174,154 shares outstanding in second quarter of 1924.

For six months ended June 30 net income amounted to $1,267,565, equal to $3.95 a share on 279,585 common shares, against $1,083,422, or $5.60 a share on 174,174 shares, in first half of previous year.

TIMKEN-DETROIT AXLE.

Reports cash of $1,117,299, notes and accounts receivable of $2,221,628, inventories $3,893,802, total current assets $7,232,730, against accounts payable and accruals totaling $868,158 as of June 30, 1925.

June 30 balance sheet shows surplus of $1,240,644, which compares with surplus of $675,770 as of Dec. 31, 1924. This would indicate profits after taxes and preferred dividends for six months of $564,874, or 70c a share, on $8,239,200 of $10 par common shares outstanding.

SEEK TO LESSEN TAX VEXATIONS OF BUSINESS MEN

Accountants to Urge Legal Clarity.

The business man's burden, preparing each year an income tax return that will satisfy Uncle Sam, will be one of the principal topics for discussion when the American Institute of Accountants holds its annual meeting in Washington, D. C., Sept. 15 and 16. The accountants hope to simplify the process.

Government officials and other authorities on taxation have been invited to attend to discuss the problems and accountants from all parts of the country will make suggestions. Recommendations later will be made to congress.

The accountants also are co-operating with chambers of commerce, trade organizations, banks and public officials. Among their activities is an effort to reduce business crime and to extend the use of commercial arbitration.

The inconvenience and uncertainty of levying and collecting income taxes are a source of as much complaint on the part of the business man, the accountants believe, as the amounts.

At the convention George O. May, of New York, will be one of the speakers. His subject will be "Taxable Income and Accounting Bases for Determining It."

STATE BANKERS HAVE PLAN TO CATCH BANDITS

Illinois bankers will offer to sheriffs of the state a plan of consolidation of forces in the fights against bank robbers, it was announced yesterday. R. C. Saunders, field organizer of the Illinois Bankers' association, and other officers will go next Tuesday to the sheriff's convention at Joliet to lay the plan before the officials.

UNCONDITIONALLY GUARANTEED BONDS

A vital new phrase with a vital new Meaning to Investors

George M. Forman and Company recently announced the farthest advance ever made for the protection of investors. One of the largest of the conservative old-line indemnity insurance companies will, at the investor's option, unconditionally guarantee the prompt payment of any Forman Bond, both interest and principal.

No more important development has ever occurred in financial history. Safety is now made absolutely certain. Risk has not merely been reduced to a minimum—risk has been entirely eliminated.

For forty years the safety of Forman First Mortgage Bonds has been unsurpassed. In forty years, no investor has ever lost a dollar. Now, the unsurpassed safety of Forman Bonds is unconditionally guaranteed by an entirely independent insurance company.

Countless investors, whose first consideration is safety of principal, will welcome this new kind of protection for the greater safety it affords and the decidedly attractive yield of Forman Guaranteed Bonds.

MODERN SLUMP RICHER THAN OLD U. S. PROSPERITY

BY SCRUTATOR.

The sheer momentum of the new capitalism as developed in America since the war has been responsible for the failure of many financial forecasts made by men who failed to grasp how the new conditions have upset old modes of calculation.

When the end of the last fiscal year disclosed such enormous gains in foreign trade, we accepted it as a matter of course. Few took the trouble to recall the assertions of our internationalist financial writers who told us following the 1920 break that foreign trade never could recover unless we entered on a program of elaborate assistance to Europe and sacrifice of our domestic industry for the purpose of restoring old trade currents.

We see the revival of the farmer's income, and as a rule do not remember that it was declared to be impossible on high authority. We are paying a tax bill that ten years ago would have spelled national disaster, and men are just beginning to realize that it is fallacious to compare American and European tax burdens, because of the different character of the things for which our tax money has been and is being spent, as compared to the European objectives for which taxes are levied.

And yet Americans are spending their money for things which are quite as non essential from one point of view as Europe's tremendous payments for war debt and military preparation. Last year was a time of universal complaint about slow business.

In the dead of summer jobless hordes milled about in this city, and a formidable radical political movement was launched with great confidence of precipitating a far reaching political upset and presidential deadlock.

From tens of thousands of soap boxes men were told that they were being robbed and oppressed.

But they smoked and chewed $1,847,000,000 worth of tobacco, shook their heads and voted to play safe. They drank $820,000,000 worth of kickless pop and milk concoctions at soda fountains, and spent $934,000,000 on movies and shows.

They and their women relatives and friends ate $689,000,000 worth of candy and spent untold millions to get rid of flesh thus acquired, while draping their reduced forms with $453,000,000 worth of new jewelry and $352,000,000 worth of furs.

We danced to the music of $440,000,000 worth of new musical instruments, some of which were heard over $150,000,000 worth of radio sets sold by a few leading corporations. Women bought either direct or through the expensive ministrations of the beauty parlors $261,000,000 worth of cosmetics and perfume, while golf hounds ran the receipts of sporting goods houses up to $431,000,000 and tin can tourists spent over a billion on touring at home, as American tourists abroad scattered $600,000,000 among the benighted people who have never yet discovered the trick of chewing $87,000,000 worth of gum per year and thereby helping to attain wealth and welfare.

The huntsmen of our forests and head hunters of our urban jungles spent $67,000,000 for shot guns, rifles and pocket artillery—a sum which would tempt a Balkan kingdom or a Central American republic to declare war on the world.

WHOLESALE PRICE LIST HIGHER IN JULY, U. S. SAYS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 15.—[Special.]—A further rise in the general level of wholesale prices is shown for July by information gathered in representative markets by the United States department of labor through the bureau of labor statistics. The bureau's weighted index number, which includes 404 commodities or price series, rose from 157.4 in June to 159.9 in July, a gain of 1.6 per cent and the highest level reached since February, 1921.

Farm products developed the largest increases over prices in the preceding month, due to advances in cattle, hogs, sheep, cotton, eggs, hay, hides, milk, potatoes, tobacco, and wool. Prices of corn, oats, rye, wheat, poultry, flaxseed, and onions averaged lower than in June.

In the food group there were increases for meats, butter, lard, oleo, cottonseed oil, and oranges, which more than offset decreases for coffee, flour, cornmeal, sugar, bananas, and lemons.

In the group of miscellaneous commodities continued advances in rubber prices brought the index number for July to a point 4 per cent higher than in June.

Anticipate Market Reaction.

Those who are riding the bull market with enthusiasm at this time should realize that, unless they get down in time, they may be riding for a fall.

When the market steadily mounts and continues strong, with a number of stocks establishing new high records, the public generally climbs aboard and, in its optimism, believes that it can ride indefinitely to higher levels with safety. As a rule it rides too long and is carried down when the fall comes.

Business in general has been very good so far this year, and indications are that it will continue to proceed on a fairly high scale of activity for some time to come.

A good many industries showed satisfactory earnings during the first six months of the year, which gave impetus to stocks representing those industries.

Recently, however, a good deal of price cutting, some of it drastic, has taken place in industries that have been showing profits. Among these are the recent reductions in automobiles, gasoline, plate glass, radio tubes, some steel products, and woolens. Domestic competition as well as, in some instances, increased foreign competition doubtless accounts for some of these reductions, but overproduction seems to be the chief cause.

Price reductions usually bring about diminished earnings, and industries whose stocks have boomed during the first half year on the strength of excellent earnings may show a decided diminution of earnings, as a result of price cutting, during the remainder of the year.

When earnings suddenly fall off the stocks begin to fall, and those who have climbed on the market at its crest are caught.

We do not attempt to predict the future course of the market or just when a reaction may set in. It may come any day. It may have started even before this article goes to press. But we do want to caution those who are riding the market filled with optimism not to let their enthusiasm carry them too far. We want to make them realize that a reaction or break may occur any day and that, if they have a profit now, it is well to consider the advisability of taking their profit and getting out before it may be too late.

The profit that is yours today is better than the possible profit that may be yours tomorrow, but which may be turned into a loss.

Trade with Latin America Increases $170,000,000

Washington, D. C., Aug. 15.—[Special.]—United States trade with Latin America during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1925, increased over $170,000,000 beyond the figures of the previous year and totaled $2,053,246,442, according to R. F. O'Toole, chief, Latin American division, department of commerce. Exports to Latin America during the year amounted to $924,533,737 as compared with $794,166,699 for the earlier period, a trade advance valued at over $130,000,000 and imports to the United States from this region reached valuations of $1,128,712,705, as against $1,087,433,105 for the year ended June 30, 1924, showing increased purchases amounting to more than $41,000,000, or 16½ per cent.

WALL STREET NOTES

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Market operations on the curb exchange today followed along lines similar to those that prevailed in other local markets. Trading was quiet, and, while a strong undertone prevailed in the general list, little importance was attached by market followers to the price movements, with the trend and volume assuming a half-holiday appearance.

Western Power held a foremost position, scoring a gain of more than 5 points, and International Utilities B, which became an active feature Friday on reports of the purchase of additional property, was again in demand, selling to the week's high mark. American Light and Traction ranged from 219½ to 223, and National Power improved moderately.

Oil stocks developed a fairly strong tone as the session progressed. Vacuum Oil and Standard Oil of Nebraska were prominent, advancing materially on few transactions.

Bond prices displayed a firmer tone than has been noted in recent half-day sessions. Better demand was noted for many issues, with institutional buying again a prominent factor. Activity in Norfolk and Western convertible 6s carried them a point higher, but the gain was lost near the close. Chicago and Terre Haute income 5s and Southern Railway general 4s moved up fractionally, but Reading general 4½s were heavy. Oil company liens showed improvement, Skelly 6½s, Sinclair 6s, and Pan-American 6s holding a gain of a point or so.

Pacific Gas and Electric 5s led the utility group with an advance of 1½ points. Public Service Corporation of New Jersey 6s yielded slightly. New debentures 6s of the Southeastern Power and Light were active, selling on the curb at 97, half a point above the offering price on Friday.

FINANCIAL NOTES

Common stockholders of Marlin-Rockwell corporation of record Aug. 22 will be offered rights to subscribe for new stock at the rate of 15 per cent of their present holdings at $15 a share, payable in full on or before Sept. 14. Proceeds of the issues will be used partly to finance substantial enlargement of the company's capacity.

Negotiations are pending, it was learned, for the acquisition of additional public utility properties in Canada by the International Utilities corporation. Details are being withheld pending the completion of conferences between officers of the international corporation and the companies to be taken over, which are now taking place in Banff, Alberta.

A considerable decrease in the number of failures in the United States is reported to R. G. Dun & Co. this week, the total being 319. This is 43 less than the number last week and is 54 below the 373 defaults of a year ago. All sections of the country show decreases in comparison with the returns for last week and also for this week of 1924. Of the current week's failures, 179 involve liabilities of more than $5,000 in each case, which compares with 201 similar defaults last week and 195 a year ago.

The International Telephone and Telegraph corporation made known that they have acquired a controlling interest in the Mexican Telephone and Telegraph company, operating telephone systems in Mexico City and a number of other cities in the republic south of the Rio Grande.

The Western Electric company has called for redemption on Sept. 13, at $110 a share, all of its preferred stock outstanding, amounting to $24,679,600, of an authorized $50,000,000 issue.

A new schedule of prices was posted by the Humble Pipe Line company and shows a reduction of an average of five cents, making the new differential six instead of eight cents. Oil 28-28.9 gravity posted at $1.35. Six cents is added to each degree thereafter up to 44 degrees and above. The Gulf Oil and Transcontinental Oil will meet the cut in gasoline announced by the Atlantic Refining, effective tomorrow.

Debits to individual account reported to the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago for the week ending Aug. 12, by 267 banks in 37 leading clearing house cities in the seventh federal reserve district, aggregate $1,140,638,000, a decrease of 14.0 per cent compared with a week ago [$1,326,248,000]. Compared with the corresponding week of last year [$1,060,285,000], an increase of 7.6 per cent was shown.

Smelters and refineries in the United States and Mexico produced 65,215 short tons of crude lead in July, 62,057 tons of refined lead, and 1,530 of antimonial lead. These compare with 63,608 tons, 64,289, and 1,218 respectively the month before.

United States exports of leather during first half of 1925 jumped $968,989 over shipments during the same period in 1924.

DRY GOODS MARKET.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Substantial purchases of percales by jobbers have been made this week from the large printers, many express shipments being called for. Gray cloths for printing and converting sold in moderate quantities for September-October delivery. Fair sized duck sales were made during the week. Business in worsted men's wear has been good in specialties for fall delivery, and a better spring demand appears to be looming up. Raw silk was firm and unchanged. Jacquard and fancy looms were very busy on silks, and sales for the fall continue full. Burlaps were slightly higher in Calcutta and unchanged in the local markets, with the demand light for the day. Moderate improvement was noted in linens.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Live old hens declined ½c, while springs and geese were off 1c and ducks 2c. Receipts were 4 cars.

A fair demand prevailed for fruits and vegetables with little change in prices.

No change was noted in the price of butter and eggs. Receipts of butter were 19,498 tubs and eggs, 9,918 cases.

COTTON CLOSES LOWER

Unresponsive cables from Liverpool led to selling and a decline in cotton prices early, but the loss was recovered later on buying induced by continued hot and dry weather in the southwest, and talk of boll weevil and army worm damage. Trade, however, was not large and a reaction came toward the last and the finish was unchanged to 5 points net lower here while New Orleans was 14@15 points lower, and New York was 6 to 19 points lower for the day. Prices follow:

DRY GOODS AND GARMENT NEWS

[Copyright: 1925: Fairchild News Service.]

PARIS.—Rochester, Chicago, and New York men's clothing industries are beginning to make an impression in the European trade. For years the ready-to-wear markets of the United States have made sporadic efforts to win favor on this side of the ocean, but not until the present season have their products been accepted as serious competitors.

LONDON.—Further substantial improvement in profits is reported by the Cellulose Holdings and Investment company during the year ended June 30 last. Net surplus, after providing for interest and all other charges, amounted to £35,134, as compared with £14,830 the year previous.

METAL MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—COPPER—Prices shaded slightly from the peak of the recent advances with moderate sales reported at the 14¾ cent level. TIN declined below 58 cents for prompt shipment straits. LEAD has been advanced further by the leading producers. ZINC—Firm. ANTIMONY is a shade lower for spots and futures, owing to increased offerings from China.

RUBBER MARKET.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—RUBBER—Smoked ribbed sheets, spot, 78c; October-December, 63½@65c.

STOCKS STRONG AS SHORTS BID UP INDUSTRIALS

YESTERDAY'S AVERAGES

	High.	Low.	Last.	Net chge.
20 railroads	84.13	83.68	83.93	+.50
20 industrials	158.33	156.83	157.88	+.93
40 stocks	121.23	120.26	120.90	+.71

New York, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Renewed bidding up of the high priced industrial stocks was the feature of today's brief and relatively quiet stock market. With business conditions showing further signs of improvement and the prospect of easy money for some time to come, the general list held relatively firm. Cessation of selling pressure in the oil shares, despite an extension of gasoline price cuts, was a significant development of the day's trading.

Shorts, who sold high priced industrials freely in the last week or two on the theory that the technical condition of the market warranted a sharp reaction, were again forced to bid high for stocks in order to cover their commitments. American Can was an exception, breaking over 5 points to 237⅜ and then rallying to 238½ for a net loss of 4⅜ on the day.

Westinghouse Soars 10 Points.

Westinghouse Air Brake soared 10 points to 136; Mack Truck, 8⅛ to 218, and General Electric, 5¾ to 327¼, all record high prices. Dupont, which will receive a substantial cash payment through declaration of the recent cash dividends on General Motors common, of which it owns large holdings, jumped 11 points to 165.

A sudden revival of activity in Havana Electric carried that stock up 4 points to 192. Postum Cereal was another outstanding strong spot, climbing over 5 points to 122. Additional new 1925 high prices were recorded by Reynolds Tobacco B, Famous Players, Chicago Pneumatic Tool, U. S. Shoe Machinery, and General Outdoor Advertising.

Buying of the rails was of a selected character, with further accumulation noted in the Wabash issues, Western Pacific common, New Haven, and Great Northern preferred, all of which broke through their previous year's maximums. Jersey Central advanced 5 points on one sale.

Marine Preferred Off 2½.

There were a few soft spots. Marine preferred dropped 2½ points to a new low level for the year at 27, and then rallied feebly, and Westinghouse Electric preferred dropped nearly 4 points to 110, below the lowest of the year. Net losses of 2 points or more also were recorded by Associated Dry Goods and Kelly Springfield 8 per cent preferred.

The weekly statement of the New York clearing house banks today revealed an excess reserve of $5,067,270, a decrease of $14,690,150, while loans, discounts, etc., increased $40,831,000. Net demand deposits increased $11,484,000 and time deposits $6,360,000.

Loans, discounts, etc., totaled $5,253,487,000; net demand deposits, $4,375,015,000; time deposits, $575,704,000; circulation $32,798,000; aggregate reserve, $593,186,000.

RAILROAD NOTES

Contract with the General Electric company to electrify 18 more kilometers of the Mexican Railway from Vera Cruz to Mexico City at a cost of $250,000 has been signed and work will begin immediately, S. D. Holloway, vice president and general manager of the road, announced.

Increased lumber rates from Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., to Chicago and Milwaukee, which were to have become effective yesterday, were suspended by the interstate commerce commission until Dec. 13 to await investigation. Present rates to both Chicago and Milwaukee are 21 cents per 100 pounds, and the new schedule would raise them to [illegible] cents for Chicago and 23½ cents for Milwaukee.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

The local unlisted securities market was very active last week, closing with a firm undertone and substantial advances in a number of issues.

Acme Steel rose over 5 points to 57½ bid, 60 asked. Kellogg Company was wanted at 73, exdividend 11 1-9 per cent stock dividend. The McCord issues were erratic, the preferred being wanted at 85, an advance of almost 10 points; while the common sold down to closing transactions between 12 and 12½. Bids of 22 for Standard Cap and Seal again failed to attract sellers near the current level. A good demand existed for Butler Brothers, advancing this issue fractionally to 33⅜ bid, 33½ asked.

Union Stock Yards of Omaha was traded around 115 to 117. Hall Printing was in better demand at 27 with limited offerings at 29. Interstate Iron and Steel common was traded between 34 and 37, and the preferred between 96 and 99. Little change was noted in Albert Pick preferred at 91½ to 93. National Tea preferred changed hands between 107 and 108. Bids of 75 for Elgin National Watch failed to attract sellers below 78.

In the public utility group Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee issues, which have been inactive for some time, were heavily traded at advancing prices. The common changed hands at 26—up 6 points; while the preferred closed at 75 bid, 77 asked—up 2 points. Chicago Rapid Transit was slightly easier at 6¾ to 7⅛. The 7.2 per cent prior preferred free stock was wanted at 96. The employe's stock was unchanged at 90 to 91. American Public Utility issues were in better demand, the common moving up to 97 bid, 99 asked. The participating preferred was traded in at 80, closing with stock offered at 80½ and buyers at 79½. Little change was noted in the prior lien at 88½ to 90.

Illinois Power and Light $50 par, 6 per cent preferred, was wanted at 40. The 7 per cent preferred moved up slightly to 95½ bid, 97½ asked. Eighty was freely bid for North American Light and Power 7 per cent preferred. Central Indiana Power was offered at 91 with bids of 90. North Continent Utilities common was again wanted at 5. Standard Power and Light of Delaware new common changed hands between 22 and 23. Standard Gas and Electric 7 per cent prior preferred was wanted at 98 with offerings at 101.

Trading in bank stocks was on a limited scale, with few important price changes. National Bank of the Republic was the feature, showing an advance of some 15 points to 215 bid, 220 asked. Continental and Commercial National closed at 394 bid, 397 asked. First National gained an additional 3 points at 514 bid, 518 asked. Illinois Merchants was unchanged at 475 bid, 478 asked. Central Trust Company of Illinois was wanted at 259 with limited offerings at 262—up 3 points. The bid for Northern Trust improved 5 points to 425, with little interest on the selling side. Bids of 340 for Union Trust failed to bring out actual offerings below 350. State Bank of Chicago was again quoted 560 bid, 565 asked, with no reported sales.

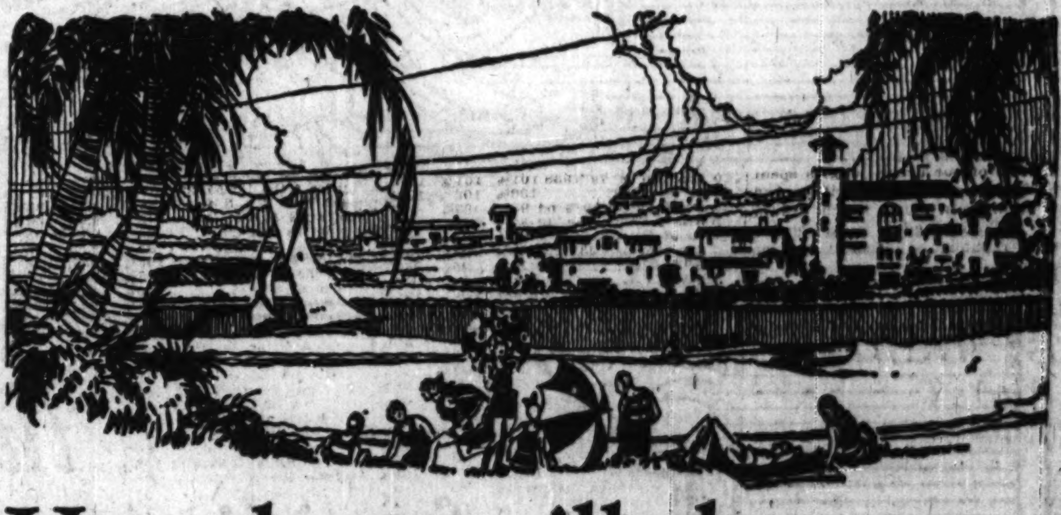
Associated Packing Co.'s Plant Sold for $32,000

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Final disposition of the plant of the defunct Associated Packing company, in which stock purchasers and creditors lost millions of dollars, was announced yesterday by George C. Williams, receiver. The buildings and 35 acres of land were sold to Ed L. Wegener for $32,000. The sale brought the assets of the company up to $97,000 which will be applied on claims amounting to $300,000. Stockholders who purchased nearly $4,000,000 of stock will not share in the distribution of assets.



How long will the Florida "boom" last?

Read this keen analysis of Florida's lightning growth, by G. L. Miller, recognized authority—in August 15th Forbes

America's eyes are on Florida today. That is why B. C. Forbes, editor of Forbes Magazine asked G. L. Miller to write this article.

Is the Florida "Boom" really a "Bubble"—or is there a solid basis for Florida's expansion? You don't hear so much about Florida's commerce and industry, but what are the real facts?

There is something more than "Boom" in Florida. Of course, there's plenty to thrill in the overnight deals of huge proportions, and the fortunes built up in a few short weeks. But there's more, too. A real development—not pioneer style but 20th century style—where capital is plentiful and speed is demanded. America works fast these days. These are years of commercial miracles.

You ought to know the truth about Florida. No matter where you live, you will be interested in this remarkably clear picture of Florida and her resources. It is written by G. L. Miller, president of G. L. Miller & Co., Inc., a recognized authority on realty values and real estate mortgage bonds—a man who came from Florida and made a fortune in the North. Mr. Miller, whose business activities are now national, still is interested in Florida. Therefore he has not only first-hand knowledge, but also the perspective necessary to speak with authority. After reading this fine article you will be much better able to judge investments in Florida.

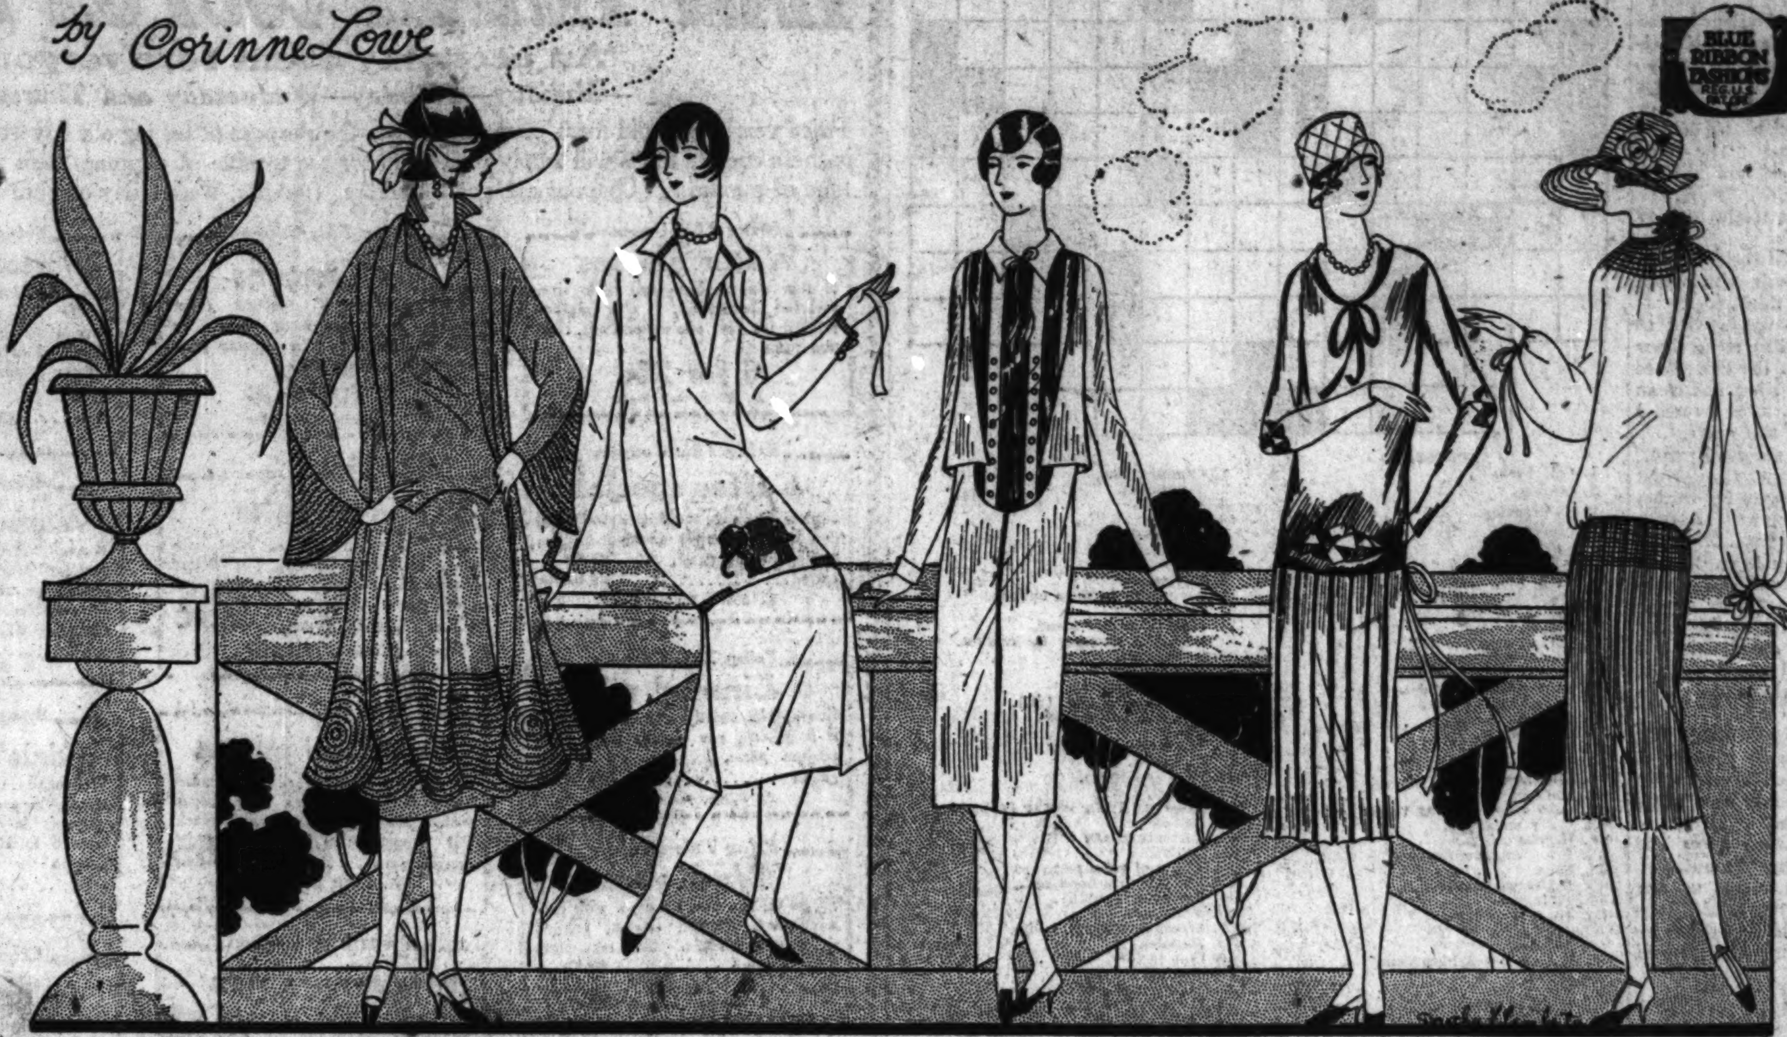
WHAT ARE THE CHIC WAVES SAYING?

(REFLECTIONS OF THE MODE FROM SUMMER COLONIES)

by Corinne Lowe



Going into one's shell pink is hardly a mark of a retiring nature nowadays. For the tint represented in the chiffon ensemble at the left—that exquisite tint known as shell pink—is today given the greatest publicity. This costume is trimmed with silver braid and topped by a large black hat faced with the color of the costume. Next, the jumper frock of kasha for cool days at the shore extends its hospitality to an embroidered elephant in gray and gold. The color of this is tangerine, and there are various touches of gold braid. In the center another bolero type is furnished by Bernard et Cie in satin back faille trimmed with white faille and red buttons. Martial et Armand show you in the model second from the right that patches, far from being a sign of poverty, are now a sign of chic. On this black georgette, with its plaited skirt, appliques of fuchsia and pink crepe are arranged with cubist effect. Last, a chiffon in pansy purple.

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—A friend of mine who has been up in the sacred Westchester precincts wrote me this month, "I wish you could have seen Mrs. Frank C. Gould out at the Westchester-Biltmore Country club today. She was clad in a white dotted Swiss and she was playing croquet. What do you think of that for a relapse? Are we going back to the sweet girlish ways of the eighties and nineties?"

Dotted Swiss and croquet! Here indeed is a sinister pair of symptoms. And they gain significance from the fact that Mrs. Gould is only one of the well known women who have felt the contagion of the lingerie frock. It seems to me that the batiste and cotton voile and linen, also the Swiss and organdy, have obtained a stronger foothold at fashionable summer colonies than for some time past.

Let us take, for example, the celebrated jumper sports mode. Perhaps the combination of balbriggan jumper with skirt of a different fabric, such as crepe or flannel, is the dominant interpretation of this fashion at the present time. The all crepe jumpers are another apparition encountered everywhere one goes. Yet here and there bobs up a woman of fashion wearing this two piece mode in linen. This wash fabric often occurs in white—indeed, many of the smartest sport clothes of the summer are in this tone—and through the services of vivid Bangkok or felt hat, and perhaps a parasol, the white linen costume gains a tremendous dash.

It has long been a fashion maxiom that if you see a style at Southampton it's true. Therefore, when one notes at the exclusive Long Island beach a number of women electing simple little cotton voile frocks dependent chiefly upon tucking and faggoting for their appeal, one asks, "Is perhaps the day of the tomboy mode on the wane? Are we going back on the theory that girls will be boys? By the time another two summers roll by, shall we have foregone the jumper and the mannish coat in favor of the most feminine frocks?"

These little cotton voile dresses come often in pink and flesh and powder blue. Beige is another favored tone, and one Southampton matron sponsors a model of this last named tone, which is set off at each shoulder with a semicircle of plaited self material presenting the illusion of a partial cocarde. The natural waist line is defined by fagoting repeated on the short sleeves and in bands accompanying the horizontal plaits of the skirt. A soft pink rose at the side of the waist supplies the one touch of color. With this is worn a hat of brown balibuntl—you know, the swell name for a swell Bangkok.

Shell pink—here is a tint which with true logical impulse every smart wave of the eastern coast is casting up. We see this color in crepe frocks of various persuasion, in lingerie models, and also in the flannel creations. And let me say once more at this point that flannel has no thought of making its will. It's in the most robust of health and is used in every conceivable way on the fashionable strands. Sleeveless jumpers of this fabric often accompany matching plaited skirt in the costume selected by the golfer or tennis player. Flannel ensembles are quite as good as ever. And often one completes a frock of tinted flannel with a coat of self-material in one of the neutral tones. For example, a girl at Southampton topped her one piece frock of powder blue flannel with a pinky beige coat of the same fabric. The latter was collared in brown fox and a small felt hat yielded in color to the suggestion of the frock.

As to the white flannel coat, this has lost none of its former social position. Neither has the white kashmir coat trimmed with white fox. And, while we are, speaking of coats for resorts wear, let us not forget the ascendancy of the velveteen type for sports wear. Both hip length and three-quarter versions make their appearance with equal propriety, and they consort with almost every kind of sports frocks. One of the most stunning alliances noted was that of a straight three-quarter length velveteen coat in golden brown worn over a chintz frock combining tints of yellow and green.

Yes, indeed, the ensemblance is still with us, and, while one does not need to incorporate a single one of these ensmble costums in even a fashionabl wardrobe, one certainly won't be the victim of unfriendly criticism if one goes ahead on this line. At the left we show a very charming ensemble in shell pink chiffon which has been adapted from a model show at the Exposition of Decorative Arts and Industries recently held in Paris. Dull silver braid pursues an unrestrained course over both frock and coat, and its swirling motifs seems part of the circular fullness of the skirt. Observe the basque-like fit of the short bodice with its high braided collar and then turn to the big picturesque poke. This latter may be of fabric, of hair, or of Neapolitan. But, in any case, it is in black faced with shell pink chiffon and set off by a sloping bow of dull silver ribbons. The stockings match the costume and the pumps combine black and pink suede.

This costume, designed for any afternoon occasion at the chic resort, is followed by a kasha jumper frock of tangerine which may be substituted for the flannel frock on a cool day by sea or mountain. Here is indeed something for your trunk—that elephant embroidered in gray and gold which forms the salient point of the model. The gold is repeated in braid applied to sleeves and collar and the edge of the jumper. And, before leaving this costume, plase note the double V arrangement of the neck line.

Such embroidered motifs of animals walk quite frequently into the ark of sports clothes. So also do the monogram devices. At the present, however, the game seems to be, Hunt the Monogram, for they have a fashion of tucking it away in the most unsuspected grottoes of the costume. Thus a tunic of shell pink crepe retires its monogram to the side front of its tunic edge.

Whether the bolero is going to make greater headway this autumn than at the present moment is a disputable matter. All one can say is that they are whittling away on these bolero effects pretty consistently at the present time. In the center of the page we find Bernard & Co. of Paris exploiting their idea of youthful bolero type. This occurs in satin back faille, a fabric which, following the popular command of "Get thee behind me, Satan," is quite frequently stressed in both coats and frocks designed for midsummer. Here the satin side is revealed in a rounded vestee crossed by bands of white faille stressed with buttons of the same rich red employed in the gown. Cuffs and collar are also of white faille. The back of this frock may be developed in two ways. Either you make a real honest-to-Spain bolero in the back or you suggest the idea only in front by means of those wide revers.

In either case, the model is a charmingly youthful one and girls who already have an eye upon their college wardrobes will not go wrong if they make a note of this model. Of course, too, it is not limited to this one medium. I can fancy that a rep developed in this way might make an admirably practical model for college.

The black georgette frock has as many ways of making itself useful as the old maid in the family. Whether one be in town or at a resort, the model second from the right is bound to prove a serviceable possession. I don't think that there were ever more black georgettes than at the present moment, and each of them seems successful in finding some new touch of trimming to make it look altogether different.

In the model of Martial et Armand, sketched here, the designer has called in the cubist vogue as first aid to style. Could anything be more tricky than to place typsy little patches of fuchsia and pink crepe right at the elbows—that point where patches are usually so logical? The cubist motif is repeated at the front edge of the jumper and together they foretell a time when if this cubist fever keeps up we shall be altering the Mikado thus:

A thing of shreds and patches,
Who cares about style that matches
Or aught but little snatches
Of this New Art Roundelay.

The last sketch represents one of the most charming resort frocks I have seen. It is of finest chicon in pansy purple, and it has several style features identifying it with the latest mode. The bloused bodice, for example! This appears constantly in the midsummer offerings. So do those peasant sleeves, and also the yoke, here formed by shirring and repeated on the skirt. This frock is completed by a charming hat of lavender Neapolitan trimmed with a purple rose. At the neck line of the frock you find a bunch of violets.

MR. NICKELDICK IS NO WASHER-WOMAN.

BY WM. DONAHEY

He Bounced Out of Bed

MR. NICKELDICK hated Monday. It was wash day in the Nickeldick house, and Mr. Nickeldick could not stand the smell of soap. Not that he was uncleanly. Far from that, for Mr. Nickeldick was extremely clean. He changed his shirts twice a day, and every morning he put on a fresh suit of underwear.

It wasn't exactly the smell of soap that distressed Mr. Nickeldick. It was the fact that the smell of soap made him think of all the mussy shirts and underwear in the wash, and that always gave him a sort of wanting to be empty feeling in the pit of his stomach.

One Monday morning Mr. Nickeldick awoke gradually. The sun was streaming in through the bedroom window. Outside the birds were singing and Mr. Nickeldick felt wonderfully happy. He bounced out of bed and did a few fancy dance steps in his pink pajamas, but suddenly he remembered that it was wash day, and his ears slumped down until they touched his shoulders.

"O, well," mumbled Mr. Nickeldick, "I don't have to stay around the house and smell that nasty soap. I'll go over and play croquet at the club."

Mr. Nickeldick was most particular to dress properly for every occasion, so he took down his croquet suit and quickly slipped into it. He washed his neck and ears carefully, brushed his teeth, and went down to breakfast.

"Now, Tilly," said Mr. Nickeldick to his colored cat cook, after he had eaten a bowl of clover seed breakfast food, "I shall spend the day at the club, but you can expect me for supper at seven-thirty."

Mr. Nickeldick selected a mallet from the mallet rack in the front hall, and set off for the club.

He had gone only a few steps from his front door when he was stopped by a young raccoon who dashed up all out of breath.

"I'm Mrs. Raccoon's little girl, and I have come to tell you that my mama is sick and she won't be able to do your washing this week—she's sick with somethin'," said the little raccoon.

Mr. Nickeldick bit his nails, and stared at her.

Mrs. Liberty Raccoon had done Mr. Nickeldick's washing for several years, and this was the first time she had failed him. It was most distressing.

"I have only one clean shirt left," muttered Mr. Nickeldick, and he backed into the house, still staring at the little raccoon.

He stepped into the library, and drank a couple of glasses of carrot juice—he needed something to steady his nerves. Then he went into the kitchen, where the colored cat was washing the breakfast dishes.

"Tilly," he said weakly, "my washing is sick. I mean my wash lady is sick. I'll have to ask you to do the washing."

"Mr. Nickeldick," answered Tilly, breaking a piece out of the Haviland plate she was wiping, "it was done 'greed when ah done come heah fo' to do yo' cookin' dat ah was fo' to do no washin', and no washin' is ah gwine fo' to do."

Mr. Nickeldick leaned against the sink, and cried.

"Mr. Nickeldick," said the colored cat, "I'll have to ask yo' not to cry into de sink. Yo' salty tears done rust de plumbin'."

Mr. Skittle Refused Point Blank.

Mr. Nickeldick pulled a scrubbing bucket out from under the kitchen table, and wept into that. The colored cat joined him, and they both wept into the bucket for some time.

"Ah would suggest," remarked the cat, who had run out of tears, "that yo' all get Mr. Skittel fo' to do yo' washin'."

Mr. Nickeldick liked the idea, so he went up to his dressing room and took off his croquet clothes. He put on a neat walking suit, and whimpered off to Bill Skittel's house.

Mr. Skittel refused point blank to do the washing. He told Mr. Nickeldick he had promised his grandmother that he would never go near the water and he meant to keep his promise.

"I promised myself that I would never go near the water," said Mr Nickeldick, "but it looks as though I will soon be breaking my word to myself. I would much rather break my word to myself than to wear dirty linen. Ugh!" The mere thought of his soiled linen made Mr. Nickeldick shudder so violently he burst off several buttons and flipped his watch out of his vest pocket.

There was nothing to be done but to do the washing himself, so Mr. Nickeldick hurried home to change his clothes. He was somewhat puzzled as to just what sort of clothes should be worn when washing dirty linen. He looked through a book called "The Weil Dressed Rabbit," but it said nothing on the subject, so Mr. Nickeldick thought a bathing suit might best fit the occasion.

Mr. Nickeldick carried the clothes to the cellar, filled the tub with water, and then sat down to think.

He knew that soap was needed to make a washing successful, so he threw five cakes of soap into the tub. Once he had cleaned grease spots out of an overcoat with gasoline, so he poured a quart of gasoline into the water.

"Turpentine will remove paint," mused Mr. Nickeldick. "I'd better put in some turp, in case any of my clothes might have paint on them." And he added a cupful of turpentine.

Mr. Nickeldick knew Mrs. Liberty Raccoon always used bluing when washing, so he poured in a bottle of that fluid. It made the water terribly blue.

"I don't like that effect," thought Mr. Nickeldick. "If I added a bit of red, it would turn the water to a lovely purple."

He dropped in a bottle of red ink, and the result was highly pleasing to him, for lavender was his favorite color.

Next he added a bit of rose water and a pint of glycerine.

"That will protect my paws and keep them from chapping," he muttered.

The washing went along in fine shape, although Mr. Nickeldick was not just pleased with the color his shirts picked up during the process.

Mr. Nickeldick Bit His Nails.

They came out a light pink lavender.

When the shirts had been washed, Mr. Nickeldick put on the wringer and started to wring out a dress shirt.

He must have leaned down too far, or, it might have been due to the fact that his spirits were low and his ears drooped.

His ear caught in the wringer. Mr Nickeldick screamed for help, but it was a long time before he could make the colored cat hear. She had been singing a hymn.

"Unwring my ear!" bellowed Mr. Nickeldick, when the cat finally appeared.

The colored cat was so excited she hadn't the least idea which way the handle turned to wring or unwring, nor could Mr. Nickeldick tell her. It was hard for him to think with his ear in the wringer.

"Get the ax and chop the wringer away from my ear," cried Mr. Nickeldick.

"Ah am 'fraid ah might hit myself," answered the cat. "Ah can't trust maself wif a ax."

"I'll take a chance on that," said Mr. Nickeldick. "I've got to get away from this wringer even if you do hit yourself."

The colored cat was quick witted, after she had time to think things over, and presently she had an idea.

She unscrewed the wringer from the tub, carried it upstairs, with Mr. Nickeldick still held fast by the ear. She put the wringer in a wheelbarrow and started for Billy Skittel's house. It was rather painful for Mr. Nickeldick, but there was nothing to do but hop along, for the wringer held fast.

Billy Skittel had a good sense of machinery, and he quickly unwrung Mr. Nickeldick's ear.

The colored cat wheeled Mr. Nickeldick and the wringer back home in the barrow. Poor Mr. Nickeldick tied up his ear with a mustard plaster and went to bed.

The colored cat was really most kindhearted, so she decided to finish the washing, but she carefully left the wringer alone.

"Ah ain't gonna take no chances on dat ole wringah," she said to herself. "No, sah. Ah is gwine to wring dem clothes out by paw."

ISN'T IT ODD?

By William Atherton Du Puy

ISN'T it odd that the finger of a bat should be twice as long as its body! It is, when one comes to think of it, the most remarkably developed finger in the world.

The front leg of the horse, the wing of the bird, the hand of man—each is the forward member of a quadruped variously developed. The hoof of the horse has the remains of five fingers in it. The tip of the chicken's wing shows the remains of bones that were once five fingers. These two animals quit using their fingers, and they have almost disappeared. Man has kept using his and they have remained distinct. The bat has found a peculiar use for its digits, and they have developed phenominally. It has used them as a frame over which to stretch the membrane of its wings. These long, delicate bones in the bat's wings are finger bones strangely developed to meet special needs.

The bird solved the riddle of flight by developing feathers on its arm to catch the air. The insects solved the riddle of flight by evolving a membrane for the same purpose. The bat found the third solution of the flight problem produced by the ages by stretching thin skin over these remarkably long fingers.

Of all that higher type of animals known as mammals, animals that suckle their young, only the bat has been able to fly. The bat is not a bird nor an insect, but a mammal, as is the cow or the mouse.

The thumb in the hand of the chicken is today represented by a bit of a spur that sticks forward at the turn of the last joint. The thumb of the bat has become a claw, a hook with which it clings to the wall.

The chicken, the horse, the bat, man himself, have corresponding bones in their arms. There is the upper arm, the forearm, the bones in the hand. They are all variations of the same design. Somewhere back in the past all these animals had the same ancestor.

The bat has man's upper arm, forearm, fingers. The fingers have corresponding bones and joints down to their very tips. But these joints have been greatly lengthened. They become as small and delicate as tiny wires. A thin, rubberlike membrane has been stretched over them. A hand has become a paddle with which to beat the air. It has become so amplified that its owner can maintain itself aloft by pushing against that medium.

Think of the Fun of Going with Sally to See the Big Aurora Fair!

By Sally Joy Brown.

HERE'S a party you'll all want to be in on, girls and boys. We're going to have all kinds of fun—an automobile ride in the country, circus acts, fast rides, everything—for a week from next Thursday we're going to the Aurora fair in Aurora, Ill.! Think of the fun that means for everybody!

First, there'll be the ride, in big automobile coaches, twenty or thirty miles out through beautiful country to the fair grounds. And when we get there, we'll see one of the biggest fairs held in the state, with thousands of prize animals, a show with a thousand babies, a midway a mile long with rides, an underground river, bumping automobiles, a wild west show—everything we can pack into an afternoon. And we'll have luncheon, too, and then see everything we have time for, take the rides, and keep busy every minute until it's time to drive home again.

That's the party—and I know you'll all want to start your letters right away. All you have to do is to tell me why you'd like to come, and what fun you expect to have, so I can pick the hundred girls and boys who'll enjoy the party the most. Also give your age and street address. Then mail your letters as soon as you can—the sooner the better, because I pick the winners next Thursday morning—and then next Sunday I'll tell you who the lucky hundred girls and boys will be.

Remember—it's for the Aurora fair on Aug. 27, a week from next Thursday, and start your letters right away.

Here are the names of the hundred girls and boys who'll be my guests at the Chicago Round-up World Championship rodeo in Grant Park stadium next Friday, Aug. 21.

$5 APIECE FOR BRIGHT SAYINGS

The Tribune will pay $5 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

Buddy was crowded on the sofa with the other children while mother was conversing with her callers. He sat unusually quiet and looked pensive.

One of the callers remarked "Bud, what are you sitting there thinking about?"

Buddy replied, "I'm not thinkin'."

The caller laughed and said, "O, you are pust sitting, are you?"

The little fellow promptly replied, "I'm not even sittin' very good."

Janie is the oldest of a family of three little tads, the second being two and the baby not quite six weeks.

The other day I met her pushing the perambulator.

"Hello, honey," I greeted her. "You're giving the new baby a nice airing, aren't you?"

"Why, this ain't our new baby," the little girl corrected, sweetly, meanwhile pushing back the buggy top for me to see the occupant; "this is jus' our old one!"

AIDS FOR THE COMPLEXION

by Antoinette Donnelly

Here Are Lotions and Hints for Keeping the Skin as Lovely in Summer as in Winter.

NEW YORK. — [Special Correspondence.]—How can a beauty editor allow this season of the year to go by without a word of warning to both young and old? It is the time of year when people delight in lolling lazily in the midsummer sun upon some sandy beach, or following the illusive golf ball from green to green, disregarding the ugliness and discomfort of the ungodly twins, freckles and sunburn. However much can be said for swimming and golf as delightfully healthy exercises for mind and body, care must be taken for both neck and arms when that lovely new evening gown, to be purchased a couple of months hence, must be worn.

One must admit a healthy coat of tan is most attractive to the olive skinned, but once a real coat of tan is acquired, it takes a long, long time to bleach it out again. The girls with naturally fair complexions must necessarily endure the agonies and unsightliness of sunburn.

The benefits of exercise in the open air are far too great to consider for a moment relinquishing them to save the pink and white beauty of the schoolgirl skin.

Sunburn May Be Avoided.

Don't forget the proverbial ounce of prevention in regard to all of these. Protect your face as much as possible from the sun and wind. Before you go out rub a good cold cream into your skin and then dust your face lightly with a pure face powder. For the light summer freckles try equal parts of glycerin and lemon juice, or, if your skin is too tender to stand glycerin, rub a fresh slice of lemon over your face, letting the juice dry on and remain for a time. The following formula, too, is effective: For light freckles, take of lactic acid, 4 ounces; glycerin, 2 ounces, and rosewater, 1 ounce. Treat stubborn freckles with Nunci's paste, made as follows: Oxychloride of bismuth, one dram; calomel, one-sixth grain; peroxide of hydrogen, one dram; lanolin and vaseline, four ounces each. For sunburn, apply equal parts of linseed oil and lime water.

At this time of the year comes the frantic cry from women the world over for a good face and neck bleach. Everywhere, every one of the fairer sex is hoping and praying that some kind genii will bestow upon her the peaches and cream loveliness of the billboard, newspaper and magazine advertisements. Her cry need not necessarily be in vain, but she must bear in mind that there is a great deal of indiscretion among women in the use of bleaches. Care must be taken that a bleach in which lead or mercury is used should never be applied. Both of these ingredients are dangerously injurious. The following preparation has no harmful ingredients in it, and does effective work:

Lactic acid, 1 ounce; glycerin, 2 fluid ounces; tincture of benzoin, 2 fluid drams, and water enough to make sixteen fluid ounces. If the skin shows slight irritation, discontinue for a day or two and use cold cream.

Popular Superstitions.

While we are on the timeworn subject of facial blemishes let us now consider the lowly mole.

With rare exceptions moles are wished upon us at birth. Occasionally they make their appearance later. They have no useful purpose so far discovered. Nor are they particularly destructive unless you irritate them or try to eject them from your premises without skilled medical aid.

If you are superstitious, the following may help you to let the mole lie unmolested: If you have a mole on the neck, you'll have money by the peck. If you have a mole near the bottom of the nostril you will be very lucky—on the eyebrow, early and happy marriage.

So long as they have no disfiguring effect you are warned to leave moles alone. In fact, there are individuals to whom they give a slight distinguishing mark, and if placed at the correct angle upon the cheek they may serve as decoratively as a beauty patch. Moles once present, usually remain stationary and increase in size only if irritated.

Irradicating the Wart.

Warts, on the other hand, are neither birthmarks nor are they, except in the rarest instances, apt to develop into dangerous growths. Unless situated in locations where they are exposed to injury, they give no trouble. They are probably caused by micro-organism of low virulence which invades the skin. The bacteria are mildly contagious, but are spread from one part of the body to another by the individual. Warts can be burned off with heat or with chemicals, tied off, removed with X-rays, radium or carbonic snow. Warts on the face can be removed without leaving a scar, but you must be absolutely sure that the work is being done by a reputable physician. Ordinary warts are not contagious.

For warts on the hands, the following lotion is recommended: One dram of salicylic acid, one ounce flexible collodion. Mix well. Apply with a tiny camel's hair brush for four nights. Then soak in hot water. This will take away part of the horny covering. Continue the treatment until the wart has disappeared.

Another remedy is to burn the wart with a red hot needle. Take a large needle, hold it over a gas jet until heated white, then press quickly down on the wart. After a few weeks repeat, and the wart will probably disappear.

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

TUNIC FROCKS STAY.

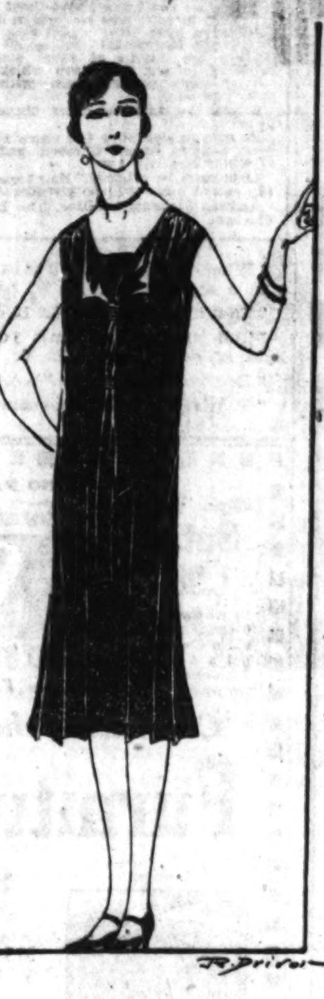
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—There is always one feature of fashion that unites one season with another. Sometimes it is the sleeves which remain unchanged in a changing silhouette, and sometimes it is merely waistline effects, or hemlines that remind us of the season just past.

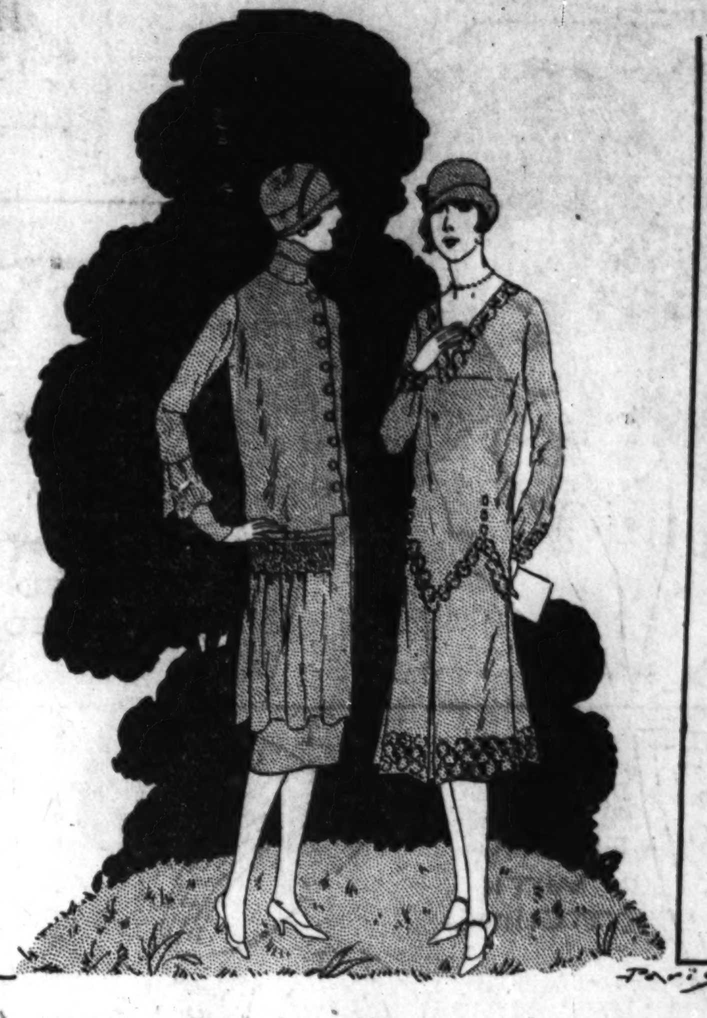
This season the tunic seems to be elected to carry on and do the job of bridging over from summer to fall. We are strongly prejudiced in favor of the tunic, and Paris has the hard task of changing styles without disturbing our affections too much. Waistlines are changing. Hemlines are moving up and down like an equinoctial barometer, sleeves are tampered with, and necklines are altered. The tunic is a stabilizer—something we can recognize as a sure thing. Every woman knows the tunic is wearable—that some version of it is becoming to her—and it does a lot to quiet the alarums of innovation for autumn.

Of course, we are going to find our old friend changed, but not, from present indications, beyond recognition. It is being improved and rejuvenated, and it is helping along in the "better hip line" movement.

The hip line problem is usually more acute in the sizes that begin with forty than under that, for it brings in all sorts of other difficulties that have to be solved along with it. Big hips are inconsiderate enough to accompany a figure too short, or they are present when height is exaggerated. Then there are a lot of minor disadvantages that go with them. Even the lathlike figure has its hip problems—usually of the deficiency kind. Nobody wants to look like a clothes tree dressed up.

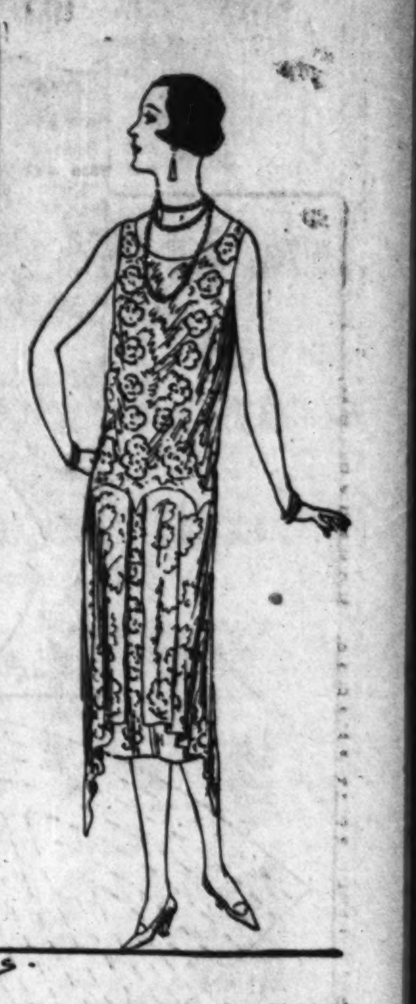


Black crepe satin frock with side flaring tunic.



New rough surfaced silk in bordeau red.

Afternoon gown of veronese green georgette.



White georgette showing skirt tunic embroidered in green and pearls.

The first steps in the solution involve corseting, naturally; after that comes the gown, which is not doing its duty unless it carries further the improvement of line. One reason for the retention of the tunic—particularly of the long tunic—is its aid to the hip line. The straight tube tunic that everybody wore to some degree last season was a good thing, and the new long tunics are even better.

Our first offering shows one of these new long tunics which are being shown considerably in Paris. In this case the tunic is full length, and is flared at the sides, which makes a graceful line for the large hipped figure, whether tall or short. The tunic is cut away at front and back to display the straight slip worn beneath.

The material of this frock is black crêpe satin, a fabric that is always elegant and invariably safe when you have defects of figure to minimize. It follows an easy and graceful line from shoulders to hem, with the flares at its sides as its only variations. The tiny yoke upon the shoulders, with a slight shirring below, gives an easy fit that is becoming, and that eliminates the often too severe effect of a perfectly plain shoulder line. The neck is V shaped with two flat revers piped at the edges, and from the lower part of this is suspended the black satin ties, which are passed through two marcassite circles, and hang well below the cut-out top of the tunic.

Our second model displays the latest version of the tunic for the thin figure that runs to shoulders and has hips that are negligible. Such a figure calls for a building up process, which will be artistic enough to look natural and not deliberate. In this frock Marthe Pinchart has created a nice line without getting away from simplicity and grace. The blouse and skirt of this model are cut straight and in one piece, with a left side front fastening to the waistline, which is made quite high. The material is a new Bianchini silk called En Fuidine, with a rough surface and no particular luster. The color is Bordeaux red, which, as I have told you before, is a smart shade indeed.

Over this plain slip dress Pinchart has put a shirred tunic of the same silk, cut with an irregular top, so the higher waistline suggested by the buttons is again emphasized. Around this is placed a narrow belt of red suede. This type of tunic is chic and specially becoming to the woman who is thin, but whose shoulders are good.

The tunic ends about four inches above the hemline, and this double break in the silhouette is extremely good. It will not do at all for the short, plump woman, but her thin and rather tall sister can get away with it spelendidly. Even the sleeves are designed for this type, with their flaring set-on pieces below the elbows, and their easy fit from armholes to wrists. The ensemble has a new and distinguished line. It has cachet, and it looks like Paris.

Tunic treatment for the in-between figure, that is not particularly exaggerated in height or breadth, is shown in our third figure, a sketch of one of those indispensable afternoon frocks that can be worn for a lot of border line festivities between afternoon and evening. Marthe Pinchart has here made a full length tunic, slit at center, sides, and back of the skirt, with flares at the sides of the skirt. The pointed waistline indicates a break in the line of the silhouette without making it too obvious, and the neckline repeats this V dip at the center front.

The color of this frock is called Veronese green—a rather dark green with a bit of blue in it—and the material is crêpe georgette. Bands of embroidery made out of narrow faille ribbon in the same tone appear at the neck, the irregular waistline and the bottom of the tunic. The sleeves are bishop, gathered into a simple cuff at the wrists and embroidered just above the cuff. The incrustation of ribbon embroidery gives weight and elegance to the crêpe.

Another example of this is shown in the informal evening gown which is shown in our fourth figure—white crêpe georgette heavily incrusted with silk and pearl embroidery, in green and white. This embroidery is used to give weight to the skirt tunic with its irregular hem, so the line of the silhouette is straight, and broken happily by the curved waist and hem lines.

This curving makes the divided skirt and bodice becoming to the stout figure, and the flat side tunics are another detail that is good for such a woman. The sleeveless bodice is heavily beaded and embroidered. It is straight in cut, with a round neck, and rather high waistline.

HATS FOR SPORT.

SPORT hats are popular for any season of the year. They can be made for northern resorts, and with a little care in handling and packing can be used for southern wear the following winter. Velvet is smart, and is worn in all colors. Some of the shades are Lanvin blue, much like royal, jonquil yellow, raspberry red, and white, stitched in black or vice versa, and black stitched in silver or gold metal thread.

This stitching is done at shops where hemstitching is done, or can be done at home if the hole in the plate of the sewing machine is large enough to have heavy thread run through it. Wind the bobbin—rotary shuttle—with the thread, using either metal or sida floss, a soft, heavy silk used in embroidery. If gold thread is used, thread the top of the machine with heavy tan sewing silk. If silver, use white silk thread.

A black felt brim, rolling off the face, and a four section velvet crown stitched in black, is also good style and can be trimmed on the right side with two white gardenias—one on the upper brim and the other under the brim, just in front of the ear. Do not use any design in stitching the crown or brim of velvet. Stitch sections of the crown diagonally, or begin on the outer edge and fill in with rows of stitching one-fourth of an inch apart, as illustrated. The jonquil yellow may be stitched in white sida floss, and the raspberry in a deep mulberry.

As canvas frames are used and wired with a fine lace wire on the edge, the velvet can be fitted smoothly on the brim and embroidered on the machine. Start at the back, one-fourth of an inch from the outside, go around one-fourth inch apart, and finish off in head size. A narrow piece of velvet one-eighth of a yard wide, on the bias, can be stitched the same way and the raw edges folded in to make an inch and one-half band for a finish around the bottom of the crown. A small flat bow at the right side gives it the right touch.

Three-fourths of a yard of velvet is required to make any of these close fitting hats. The floss or metal thread comes on large spools, and about thirty yards are used on each hat.

A FRIEND IN NEED

by Sally Joy Brown

I want to be the medium through which the friend in deed and the friend in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy and you would gladly give if it you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail, a stamped, addressed envelop should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

Books to Give.

"I have a complete course on traffic management, a fourteen volume set and everything that goes with it, almost as good as new, to offer to some one who would like to have it. "H. C. P."

Some one is sure to want this splendid set of books. There's a world of traffic information in them, that more of us should know.

Offers Knitting Machine.

"I have an auto-knitting machine, in perfect condition, together with ten pounds of yarn and a book of instructions, which I will give to anyone who wants it and can afford to pay the postage charges. R. L. S."

Have you been thinking about doing some home work during your spare time hours? We are sure this offer will appeal to you, if you want to make money on the side.

Wants Guitar Music.

"I have a Hawaiian guitar, but no music for it. I wonder if some of your readers have music which they no longer want. I should appreciate any gift of music, as I cannot afford to buy it at the present time. "M. M. S."

Few of us are able to improvise music, so we know our correspondent will be happy indeed to receive any gift of music you have for her.

Invalid Wants Radio.

"I have written to you before, but perhaps I am too far away. I hope you can help me to secure a radio with a loud speaker. I am on a lonely farm in Michigan and have an infection in head and hip, which keeps me an invalid. I see only the four walls of my room, day after day, and feel a radio would mean a world of happiness to me. M. M."

What an outlet into the world a radio would mean for our shut-in friend! Please let us know if you have a radio to give.

Typewriter to Give.

"I have an old typewriter, which I no longer need, and will give to some reader who can call for it. It requires some repairs, but I am sure will prove a great asset to some one who would like to have a typewriter for home use. L. E. R."

This machine, while not of a standard keyboard, will be an advantageous addition to your household. Housewives find the typewriter valuable in typing recipes, and menus, and in taking care of the business letters connected with the home.

Then She Stopped.

When I lived in the country my neighbor and I had a habit of visiting over the telephone. Since it was a party line, we often used it much longer than we should.

One morning I called Molly with the usual, "Well, I just put the baby to sleep, so I thought I'd call you." We chatted, chatted and chatted. A receiver, somewhere on the line, came down, then went up again at least five times, but we paid no attention.

Finally a crisp voice spoke up, "Madam, your baby has awakened for his dinner."

Needless to say I gave up the line to the gentleman, for I was too embarrassed to say good-by to Molly.

MRS. E. C.

Why They Smiled.

Speaking of embarrassing moments my wife experienced a good one today when she had our 3 year old daughter out shopping.

While trying on various hats, she noticed other people having a good laugh and on looking into the hat show case was annoyed to find our little lassie sitting within and trying on all the hats, emphasizing her choice with various gestures.

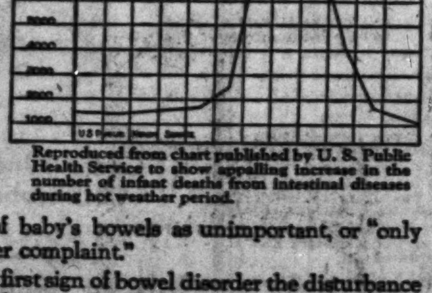
WATCH BABY'S HEALTH CLOSELY IN SUMMER

U. S. Public Health Reports Show Terrific Increase in Infant Mortality From Intestinal Disease During Hot Weather

"Summer is the purgatory of motherhood," according to Assistant Surgeon General W. C. Rucker and Surgeon C. C. Pierce of the United States Public Health Service, in a Supplement to the Public Health Reports.

From 12 to 20 out of every 100 babies born in the United States die during the first year, and the majority of these deaths occur during warm weather.

The principal contributing causes are given as improper feeding and intestinal disorders. Many valuable suggestions are made for proper feeding, sanitation and general care of children in summer.



Reproduced from chart published by U. S. Public Health Service to show appalling increase in the number of infant deaths from intestinal diseases during hot weather period.

The mother should nurse the child for the first year if possible; if not, modified milk is the best substitute. Keep baby cool during hot weather, especially by proper clothing and frequent bathing in tepid water. Give plenty of boiled water. Keep flies away from baby and all utensils used in preparing its food. Never consider any disturbance of baby's bowels as unimportant, or "only summer complaint."

At the first sign of bowel disorder the disturbance should be immediately remedied. In thousands of homes Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is relied on to correct and regulate the bowels. This mild, pleasant laxative, free from injurious drugs, can be given to even the tiniest babies with perfect safety. It can be bought at any drug store.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS OF PARIS.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Here we are in Paris, after a pleasant trip across from London via the air route. The first thing we noticed sartorially about Paris was the freer use of color than was evident in the London streets. More gayety in attire, yet always, with the well dressed Frenchman, a careful blending of colors so that there is never a clash, never any feeling that it is being overdone.

Another distinct impression is that the well dressed Parisian is not an effeminate dresser, as is the idea with many Americans. It is true that the Frenchman's taste in suits is different from that of the average smart dresser of America or London, but because it is different does not mean it is not good. The Paris gentleman has no use, for instance, for the loose cut of the English type of suit, or for the fullness of the trousers, or the extreme breadth of shoulders. His suit coats are slightly more waisty, though not to the extreme. His shoulders are cut narrower, and his trousers narrower.

The coats as a rule tend toward the peaked lapel, and button to one, two or three buttons, the lowest button always being placed considerably higher than that of the American or the Londoner. There are no vents in the jackets, and I walked behind a good many well dressed Frenchmen to become enlightened on this point.

The Frenchman's trousers are cut extremely high, and are considerably shorter than ours, there being, in fact, quite a gap between the trousers and the shoes when the latter are low. And the trousers are plaited at the top, like the English ones, even though they are narrow. Suspenders invariably keep the trousers up, which doubtless accounts for their being worn so high at the waist.

Another of the outstanding features of the Frenchman's attire is his hat. The illustration shows the typical headwear of the Englishman, the American, and the Frenchman, as I have seen the three in Paris. The Englishman is invariably to be seen with his derby. The American may be spotted by his felt, with darker band. But the Frenchman wears a soft felt hat of unusual shape, one with flat broad rim, and slightly curling. There are different heights of crown, but they are always crushed at the sides. Some of the crowns taper a bit, though some are straight. The band is narrow usually, and of the same color as the hat, or a slight shade darker, never the extreme contrast of a black band with a light hat, as the American wears it.

The Parisian is no coward when it comes to using color in his shirts. Yet the well dressed Frenchman knows just how to use this color so that it is a valuable addition to his outfit, and not a reason to call the police. For instance, he would never wear a vividly colored shirt with an equally vivid necktie, nor with a suit of decided pattern or color. And this may be taken as a sartorial lesson. The Frenchman is partial to a red necktie, but he never wears one except with a suit of subdued hue. The French shirts include such colors as apricot, Nile green, robin's egg blue, lavender, tans and yellows. Solid bodies with harmonizing stripes are often seen. Although the stripe seems to be the favorite right now, there are many shirts with designs such as flowers, spots, squares, and bars.

The collars matching the shirt are usually soft, and often pinned. A noticeable point is that the collars, whether stiff or soft, white or colored, are considerably higher than those of the Englishman or the American, and they tend more toward the narrow opening, stand up effect rather than the long pointed low ones we wear.

Few bow ties are seen, although occasionally I noted some smart ones of checked pattern. The four-in-hands are rich in coloring and pattern.

Shoes are slightly more pointed than those off the continent. The tendency is more towards an extremely light gray glove, sort of an ash gray, than towards the chamois favored by the Englishman.

Spats, of an oyster or light gray shade, are included in the smart Parisian's outfit, as also the stick.

The Frenchman also favors the short black jacket with the striped trousers but, as with his lounge suits, the jacket is more waisty, the vest is cut higher, and the pockets are placed high.

LOVE LETTERS

The Tribune will pay $1 for every love letter published. So, if you can write a good one, or if you have one in your private or family possession you would like to enter the contest, send it to Love Letter Editor, The Tribune, Chicago. As no letters will be returned send copies of the ones you wish to keep.

AFTER FIFTY YEARS.

MY Dearest Husband: Tomorrow will be our golden wedding anniversary. As I look at the bond you placed on my finger—so thin it is, worn with the years—I think this anniversary was truly named. It is given to few to number so many years, so many golden years, together. Each year has brought new happiness; has brought us more closely together.

I look back at my life tonight, down that vista of golden years to the time I first met you. It was at the strawberry festival at church, and that was the last time I ever had a date (as Kathleen would say) with any one but you. The next year we were married, under the trees in the orchard and all the neighborhood thought we were crazy. But we both loved the orchard so in bloom time and fruit time. No other bride was as happy as I; no other wife has been and is as happy as I.

Then the babies, and then their babies, and just the two of us again. It wasn't all easy, my dear, or free from worry or sorrow, but we always had one another; we always loved one another.

You have been so tender and thoughtful and unselfish always. Your letter yesterday telling me to stay with Mary until she was well, even though it separated us on our day of days, has proved you so still. As my telegram told you, Mary will be all right now, though it will take a long time for her to regain her strength. She will always be our little Mary, won't she, our first born, though her Mary is out of high school now?

Before long I will come home again, and we'll doubly celebrate. Every day I am away only teaches me the more to love you.

MARY.

How does it do it?

WHILE other washers are exerting themselves to wash a tub of clothes in fifteen minutes—the Maytag, without effort, muss, fuss, or noise does it in three to seven minutes! ¶ Where other washers require two hours to do 50 lbs. of clothes, the Maytag is through in one hour.

Twice as fast! How does it do it? The exclusive Gyrafoam principle utilizes the dissolved soap particles which ordinarily float as idle suds on the water's top, mixes them thoroughly with the water and then forces this penetrating, cleansing, soapy solution through the meshes of the garments—the most efficient washing principle ever developed!

Of course such action is quicker! And more careful! And so thorough that even wristbands, cuffs or collars need not be hand-rubbed.

Try the Maytag—wash with it! Call any authorized Maytag dealer—and then—if the washer doesn't prove to you that you cannot afford to face another washday without it—return it. There's no obligation.

THE MAYTAG COMPANY, Newton, Iowa

9 Outstanding Maytag Features

1—Washes faster. The Gyrafoam Principle creates a more highly energized, turbulent and continuously effective water action. No idle water.
2—Washes cleaner. The Gyrafoam Principle mixes the soap evenly through the water, and forces the super-cleansing, soapier washing solution through the meshes of the clothes. No idle suds.
3—Largest hourly capacity in world—50 lbs. ordinary family wash per hour.
4—Most compact washer made—takes floor space only 25 inches square.
5—Cast Aluminum tub—can't warp, rust, rot, swell, split nor corrode.
6—Easily adjusted to your height, and height of tubs.
7—Clothes can be put in or taken out while washer is running.
8—Tub cleans itself in 30 seconds.
9—Metal swinging wringer. Low. Swings into 7 positions. Adjusts itself automatically for handkerchiefs or blankets. Automatic drainboard. Instant tension-release. All parts enclosed.

9 Reasons for World Leadership

Table and Chair Set All This Dining Room Requires.

Built-in Equipment.

BUILT-IN commodities go a long way toward simplifying the furnishing problems of the present day. This fact is being emphasized in modern apartment buildings all over the country. Wherever possible, built-in features are installed with a resultant facility in quick renting. Young married couples, as well as older people, realize that a saving may be effected in the purchasing of furniture where there are built-in accessories.

This theory is admirably demonstrated in the charming apartment of a young bride. At one end of the living room a group of recessed windows forms a sort of sun parlor. Seats are built in below the windows. These have hinged tops, so that the space beneath may be used for storage. Fitted with boxed cushions, the seats furnish the recess completely. In the opposite wall is a pair of French doors with frosted glass lights, concealing twin folding beds. Adjacent to the bed closet is a dressing room, fully equipped with built-ins. Across one side is a combination cabinet of steel, enameled white. One-half of it is lined with cedar and fitted with hooks. The other is divided into drawers of various sizes. There is a built-in dressing table with a three-way mirror and electric light fixture above. An additional electric socket beside the dressing table is used for the curling iron, etc., so that the lighting arrangement need not be disturbed. This combination of bed closet and dressing room connected with the living room makes possible the accommodation of overnight guests.

Furnishings for the living room are unpretentious and truly pleasing. The walls are papered in two toned sand colored paper, in a semi-visible, formal pattern. Floors are rugged in taupe chenille. At the windows glass curtains of ecru silk marquisette, exceedingly sheer, are used beneath draperies of jade green sunfast patterned in a sand colored, geometric design There is a comfortable davenport upholstered in niggerhead brown velvet, with extra cushions of jade green taffeta piped in brown, and brown piped in jade. At the end is placed a small table which supports an antique gilded wrought iron lamp decorated with amber prisms and shaded in finely plaited ecru georgette over soft rose silk. In one corner is a big, inviting Coxswell chair, upholstered in deep brown mohair with rose underground. It is accompanied by a reading lamp with a banded parchment shade, and an end table holding a colorful enameled set of cigaret box, ash tray and match container.

There is a combination radio-phonograph in the room, encased in a French walnut cabinet. Above it hangs a mirror in a dull red laoquered frame. Nearby is a comfortable barrel arm chair upholstered in a jacquard patterned mohair of rose taupe. Here the man of the house may thoroughly relax while twiddling the dials to his heart's content. Between a pair of built-in bookcases in one wall space is a cabinet desk with an accompanying bench.

Color monotony in the room is relieved by coverings on the window seat cushions. These are of gay cretonne in violet, blue, soft rose, and green on a sand colored ground. Extra cushions, carelessly placed about the group, repeat these colors in solid tones. At one side of the recess a drop leaf tea table is placed. It is fitted with a set of jade green and silver china. Opposite it a little walnut muffin stand, so that the appointments for afternoon tea are quite complete.

Another French door opens from the living room into the compact little dining room. Built-in beneath double windows, as shown in today's illustration, is a set of spacious drawers with a cupboard in the center, forming a buffet and serving table as well. This provision of drawer and cabinet space in the dining room solves the problem of storing linens, silver and extra dishes. The only furniture needed is a table and chair set. Walls in this room are painted light pistachio green and woodwork old ivory. The furniture is enameled jade green with mauve edgings. Glass curtains are of ivory dotted grenadine with draperies of flowered glazed chintz.

Connected with the dining room is a most efficient equipped kitchenette. Double china cabinets separate the two rooms. These have doors opening from both sides, to facilitate setting the table and putting away after the meals. Over the sink and over the electrically cooled refrigerator are white enameled steel cabinets. One wall space is entirely taken up by a built-in steel cabinet. This provides a work table with shelf space above, flour and sugar containers and drawers and cabinet space below the table, to say nothing of a compartment for brooms, etc., at one side.

In the wall beside the gas range there is an incinerator for the disposal of all rubbish, garbage, etc. Green and ivory linoleum in large squares covers the floor.

A short passageway connects with the bedrooms. At one side of this is the bath. The walls and floor are tiled and there are built-in niches for soap, tumblers, etc. Over the built-in tub there is an adjustable shower.

One bedroom has a light French gray wall paper and French gray woodwork. Both windows are recessed with built-in seats, which afford storage space beneath. Ecru marquisette, dotted in pink, makes the glass curtains. There are jade pink taffeta valances, with draperies of a lustrous sunfast material showing wide stripes of jade pink and narrower ones of light blue and ecru, separated by hairlines of black. The furniture is French walnut. Covers on the bureau, chiffonier, and bed are jade pink taffeta. The bed cover has a flounce of the striped sunfast at the sides. The chenille rugs are deep damson rose.

In the other bedroom the furniture is painted peacock blue. There are twin four post beds with a night stand between, and there is a dear little lamp on this stand. It is made of an old fashioned china figurine in a rose colored dress. Her rose silk parasol, edged with soft green, makes a shade for the electric light. Dresser, chiffonier, and Windsor chair are painted to match the beds, and all are decorated with floral motifs, in which rose is the dominant color.

The wall paper shows little nosegays of flowers in natural colors. Ivory gauze glass curtains are used with turquoise casement cloth draperies edged with narrow ecru braid. The closet door is fitted with a long mirror and there are built-in drawers across the back of the closet.

2446—Woman's and misses' dress—Sizes 16 years and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 36 inch material with 3⅝ yards of 21 inch lace.

2392—Girl's dress—Sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires 1¾ yards of 40 inch material with ¼ yard of 30 inch contrasting.

2480—Woman's and misses' dress—Sizes 16 years and 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3 yards of 36 inch material with ½ yard of 32 inch contrasting.

How to Use the Patterns

ONE of the lovely striped flannels or cotton broadcloths would make up prettily by pattern No. 2480. It is a simple but smart design, and bound to be becoming. The dress is cut in two pieces—front and back—and will not be at all difficult to make. At the sides below the waist line inverted plaits are laid, and these are pressed flat so that the line is not broken; and yet one has plenty of room to walk in easily.

For size 36 the dress, with plaits pulled out, measures about 2⅛ yards. In putting it together, the shoulder and side seams of both waist and skirt parts are stiched together—the edges overcast or bound separately, and pressed open. Then the plaits should be laid, folding from top to bottom. Be sure that both outside and under folds are smooth—then baste from top to bottom and leave the bastings in until after the final pressing. Of course, when the hem is laid at the bottom, the plaits will have to be loosened there, but after the hem is finished, baste the plaits in again to the bottom of the dress.

The dress is slashed down from the neck in the center front, underfaced, and rolled with the collar. This slash is deep enough to make it easy to slip on and off. The collar is a little different from those seen usually, and quite pretty, extending as it does beyond the front edges of the dress. After the collar has been stitched to the neck of the dress, turn it wrong side out and stitch together across the ends and across the bottom to where it meets the front slashing. Then turn in the lower edge of the collar and hem down by hand over the seam. A pattern for a shield is included with the other pieces, and this may be made of the same material, but showing only the plaits.

The long shoulders that form short sleeves may be lengthened with one piece sections, gathered at the bottom and set into narrow wristbands. Then a pretty finish is given to the dress by the inserted pockets and these are set in with welts. We have grown so accustomed to the convenience of having at least one pocket in a dress that it would be difficult to try to get along without it.

Pattern No. 2392 is a pretty design for a challis or crêpe dress for a young girl. It is a one piece, slip-on dress, slashed down from the neck in the middle of the front—the slashed edges being bound and finished for closing. The round collar and turned back cuffs could be made of something contrasting, although they would look well made of the dress material. Where fullness is let in at the sides of the skirt, smocking would be an attractive finish. If challis or crêpe de chine is used and made up without much trimming, it should be possible to wash it instead of sending it to a cleaners—and if it is washed, it should be ironed when properly damp, and not allowed to dry first.

Pattern No. 2446 is a lovely design for a dancing or dinner frock, and, while a dress of this kind costs a good deal if bought ready made, or made to order, one can have a beautiful dress at a compartively small cost if made at home. It is often possible to find real bargains in lace, as well as in any of the dress materials, and for size 36 1⅞ yards of 42 inch material will be needed and 3⅝ yards of 21 inch lace. The dress is simply cut in two pieces—front and back—and the long shoulders form the short sleeves. If the dress is made of crêpe or satin it can be finished with French seams, running the right side seams by hand. Then put the deep hem in by hand, taking care not to let the needle come way through to the right side in the hemming. After the neck and sleeves are nicely bound the dress is ready for the lace.

When the pattern pieces are laid on the material ready to cut out, the pointed outline, showing the place where the top of each piece of lace is put, should be marked with a fine basting thread. Have the lace squares picoted, and then baste carefully in place on the dress and finish with the same binding that is used for the neck and sleeves or stitch close to the edge without the binding.

HEARING BOTH SIDES

by Doris Blake

Being Frank Discussion and Criticism of Each Other by Members of Both Sexes.

AT a recent meeting of a Chicago bridge club, evenly divided in membership as to sex, a discussion arose over the broken engagements of several former members.

It took on the form of a lively, heated debate when one young man suggested that the girls were responsible for the broken romances. His accusation, supported by the other members of his sex, was based on the habits, demands and conduct of girls generally met today. The girls present retaliated with a few right hand shots on male behaviorism.

Finally, one pacifically inclined young woman ventured. "Well, how then must we girls act to meet with the full approval of men?"

The hostess right here suggested that she furnish each person present with paper and pencil, on which the boys were to write their ideas of how a girl should act, the girls to put down their ideas on the subject of becoming male conduct.

One of the girls present sends me the returns on the "bout" staged for the benefit of romance.

From the Boys' Angle.

From the boys: "We do not like to see girls smoke. It degrades them, in our opinion. No matter how acceptable the habit may be in polite society, we do not like it. It is not a becoming habit in one you look upon as a partner for life. Let the other girls smoke if they want to. We'll take ours sans cigaret odors.

"We do not like girls who roll their hose and who with each step or each sitting posture, display that which attracts attention. It is not the kind of attention we want our girls to attract.

"We do not like to have to listen to girls who entertain us with the traits of former suitors. We are not born impersonators. We don't want to be like them—especially when they are already discarded.

"We do not like to hear our conversations with girls retold to us by one to whom they have been confided. We don't care to have them published.

"We don't want girls to expect us to pass up every former girl acquaintance. We naturally do not want to be, nor will be, too friendly with an old friend if our interest is centered in one. Yet we wish to keep friends with our old acquaintances. We should be allowed to speak to them in a friendly way even though we no longer keep their company. Most girls are envious and do not want us to be friendly with any but themselves.

Can't Afford Everything.

"One thing girls do not seem to realize is that money does not grow on trees, nor in our pocketbooks. If we can't afford to take them to every big show that happens along, it isn't because we don't want to please them. If they go and date up with some one who can afford it, we naturally figure them out as preferring us only in ratio with our spending ability.

"We have a hard enough grade taking the one girl along, so why should aunt, mother, cousin, sister, or an extra girl be included in a theater or movie engagement?

"We don't like to be called up during business hours and be expected to carry on a long conversation. The boss doesn't like it, and neither do we like being embarrassed in front of a crowded office, or in a business meeting.

Dislike Cosmetics.

"We don't like girls who begin arguments with us in the company of others. If we don't say what we should, time enough to be called down when we are alone. Then we will more willingly listen and correct our faults.

"We don't like girls who use too many cosmetics.

"Not one paper," my informant tells me, "missed including this cosmetic item. In fact, there were more objections—so many don'ts, which I have generalized here for brevity's sake, that I could go on forever. I never dreamed women could be so imperfect in the eyes of men as these answers disclosed her to be."

As Girls See It.

But here's how the girls retaliated on romance breaking charges laid to men: "Don't expect us to give you a detailed account of every minute we spend out of your company. We do not like to feel we cannot be trusted.

"We don't like men who come to call saturated in tobacco smoke. We don't like men who can't walk a block, or talk five minutes without lighting a pipe or cigarette. In moderation, we do not object to smoking.

"We don't like to have to listen to the nice things former girl friends said to you. We don't like the insinuation that they cared a great deal for you. We don't think it quite true to them nor to us.

"We like a little romance thrown in with our courtships. We like to be told how nice we look when we have spent precious time aiming for the effect. A word of appreciation now and then, and we will listen more agreeably to what you have to say about our faults.

"We don't think you should be offended when we say, at parental dictation, that we have to be in by eleven-thirty. If your former friend stayed out later, we cannot help that. We think you ought to regard us more highly and believe that in later years you will respect us more for respecting our parents' wishes.

"We unquestionably do not like men who are careless of their appearance. Gaudy ties, hosiery and so on are just as bad.

"If you take an old girl out once in a while, we think you have no right to object to our going out with an old boy friend. You can hardly expect us to see the fairness of your getting peeved if we take advantage of that lonely evening your jaunt off with another girl provides us.

"We don't like to have to listen to shop talk all the time. A little of it—yes, we are glad to hear. We are interested in what you are doing if what you tell us is interesting. But it gets to be a deadly bore having to hear again and again about office squabbles, and goings on, and how you put this one in his place and that, including the boss. We like a young man who is abreast of the times in newspaper reading, who is informed on other subjects than the deal he put over today. We will listen all right if you give us something to listen to.

When Returns Were Read.

"The amusing feature of the whole proceeding," further confides my informant, "was the good natured way in which the 'returns' were taken by all of us. No names were attached to the papers. The hostess read off the answers. As each was unrolled we had no idea who the writer was. But we each believed our own friend had written aiming directly at us, our faults sounded so familiar.

"The men," she adds, "were most surprised at our objection to their being tobacco soaked, which was funny in view of the fact that almost to a man they raised dissenting voices over the cigaret habit among women."

Doris Blake's Answers TO LOVE PROBLEMS

Have you a perplexing love affair on which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake, care The Tribune, Chicago. If you wish a personal reply inclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

It Can Be Done.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young man, 20 years old. I have been keeping company with a young lady of 17.

"Before meeting her I had a pretty bad reputation, which I have tried to live down.

"Now her father claims it cannot be done—living down the past and going straight in the future. Shall I give her up? BUDDY."

It can be done, Buddy, and you should make every effort to do it. It will require will power. Do it, not only to prove to her father that you can, but for your own good, as well. You can't expect to make anything of your life unless you live properly, and do things in moderation. Nor can you expect to win the love of a good girl if you do not prove yourself worthy of it.

You Must Apologize.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 17 and in love with a boy 3 years my senior. I made an appointment with him and I did not keep it. My girl friends kept me away from keeping this appointment and now I want to go with that boy some more as I care for him. Shall I call him up and explain or try to forget him. A. S."

Breaking an appointment calls for an explanation. You should have offered one before this, dear. He may not wish to make another appointment with you, and you can't blame him if he feels you are unreliable. If unable to keep an appointment, send word or an apology as soon afterwards as possible. We must be considerate of the feelings of others if we will keep our friends.

Winning Him Back.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am very much in love with a young fellow with whom I used to go around quite often. He went away for a short time and when he returned he was different. Not that he didn't care for me any more, because I know he does, but it seems for certain reasons he was not allowed to go with me any more. How can I find out these reasons and so win him back? I know he still loves me but something keeps him back. SISTER."

The best way to find out the reason is to ask him, Sister. Tell him frankly you realize there is a difference in his attitude toward you, and knowing of nothing you did to warrant it, you are naturally curious. If he is reluctant to explain, I shouldn't insist, if I were you. Rather let things work out in their own way.

Love or Riches?

"Dear Miss Blake: I have been going out with two young men. One is rich and is going to Canada to his people. He wants me [illegible] marry him and go with him but [illegible] care for him in that way. The other is poor but he has a good position at $60 a week. He also declares his love for me and I love him. Shall I go to Canada with the rich fellow [illegible] clothes, money, anything I want, [illegible] marry the poor fellow and live on that? HARRIET."

You won't [illegible] happiness married to some one [illegible] not love, Harriet. Happiness c[illegible] be bought with money or fin[illegible]. When you consider that ma[illegible] raise families on $60 a week, [illegible] many times on less, you should b[illegible] manage nicely on that amount [illegible] and not feel poor.

I found a new way to TAKE off FAT

The latest way to take off fat does not call for drugs, exercises, diets or creams, all one needs to do to have a trim, slender figure is to get from the drug store some of Dr. Folts' Soap for Reducing, and apply it night and morning on fat parts. Mrs. W. B. writes us that for five weeks she faithfully used this soap with the most wonderful results. This is all she did: Every night she made a good lather with Dr. Folts' Soap, applied it on her bust, hips and double chin, left the lather on a few minutes, then washed off. Her measurements before starting this simple, easy way were as follows:
Bust, 53. Today Bust is 38.
Hips, 64. Today Hips are 44.
She says that she had a double chin which made her look years older. It has entirely vanished. Dr. Folts' Soap has already helped a great many people to take off excess fat, although in the past it had only been made in a limited quantity by the Doctor himself, who kept his formula for his private practice. Lately it has been put up in convenient soap form, and can be had from most leading Drug or Department Stores. No diets or exercises are necessary. It is guaranteed ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS, and is remarkable to beautify the skin and rid it of pimples or eruptions. BEWARE OF WORTHLESS IMITATIONS. ASK FOR AND GET DR. FOLTS' SOAP. If your druggist is out of it, he can get it for you from his wholesaler, or you can send a check or money-order direct to the Scientific Research Laboratories, 1841 Broadway, N. Y. C. Dr. Folts' Soap sells for 50c a cake or 3 for $1.20.

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO. NEVER SACRIFICE QUALITY TO MAKE A LOW PRICE

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

EDITED BY JANE EDDINGTON

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

ON DUCK COOKERY.

GENTLEMEN, sportsmen, and men artists of various sorts are likely to have an enormous admiration for duck meat, when it is presented to their taste, and they do have taste. Bersekers, or bear men, or their supposable equal, the he-man, also seem to like duck, but these men are not so fastidious about its cooking, quantity rather than quality being mostly their ideal in eating.

One restaurant in Paris alone made the Rouen duck as famous as the Pantheon, and cosmopolites of every nation were its constant patrons. In England, the Aylesbury duck has been famous for its quality, although there seems to have been no famous English way of preparing it. Our Long Island duck has great fame in the hotels of our land, even those as far west as the Grand canyon, but in private homes this duck—the Pekin—finer even than the famous Rouen, it has been declared, is not well known, although our wealthiest people not only use it constantly, as also the one pound duckling, for their finer repasts.

Carving a Duck.

To get back to our sportsmen and artists, who often can cook, and take rather an intense interest in doing so, here are a few of the things Bozeman Bulger, in 1920, wrote about a duck cooked, "personally," by his Wilmington friend to show how they did this in Delaware: "Our host was an epicure. He proved it with the first stroke of his slender, flexible carving knife. Driving a fork through the breast of the duck near the wishbone, he made a dexterous, whiplike stroke with the keen blade, clearing one side of the breast free of the bone. With it he took a tiny part of the wing and all of the leg, at the joint where it attaches to the body. Turning the bird around, he sliced off the other side with a similar stroke. Each slice made a serving for one man. The rest of the frame he pushed aside.

"I expected to see him place the frame in a press and use the squeezings for gravy. But he had no press, it seemed. He placed a fried hominy cake on the side of the plate with the helping of duck, and poured upon it what juice had come from the cutting. There was more of this juice than I had ever seen come from a roasted wild duck. That it developed was the secret of the Wilmington man's process of cooking that we had stopped over to test. Even the guide admitted that he had never tasted a better cooked duck. It was neither too rare nor too gamy."

Juice of the Duck.

One of the most famous of the French duck cooks used the duck press with such effect that the whole cosmopolitan eating world knew of his prowess, and Bozeman Bulger has certainly suggested that the juicy duck is the ideal. Such a duck cannot be secured in our commonest cooking fashion with poultry—that of stuffing it with bread stuffing which absorbs the juices of whatever is roasted with such a dressing. A little salt pork, and a group of juicy vegetables in the inside of the duck, pork fat on the outside, and partial protection in the pan, will give an ideally juicy duck meat. I took suggestions from the recipe given by Mr. Bulger when roasting a five pound Long Island duck, but could not use a casserole for anything of its size.

Duck in Casserole.

Here is the recipe given by Mr. Bulger: "Pick the birds carefully, removing all pinfeathers. Never skin them—that is a crime. Stuff the birds with a few slices of raw apples or onions. Carrots also are good. Place them in a deep pan, preferably a casserole that has a cover. Pin two or three slices of salt pork over the breast of each duck and place another slice in the bottom of the dish. Pour a small quantity of water into the dish—a wine glass full [equal four tablespoons] is enough. Sprinkle black pepper freely over the entire dish. Place the cover on so that it fits snugly and set the dish in a hot oven. Allow the birds to steam this way for half an hour or more. Then remove the cover and allow the ducks to brown nicely on top.

You may cook them as done as you please, but the juice will always run when you slice the breast. If you have a press, squeeze all the juice you can from the discarded frames—it is useless to try to eat the backs—and by the addition of a sauce and a touch of lemon juice make a dressing of it.

Roasting Long Island Duck.

Following something of the model above, but strictly omitting the pepper, I stuffed a five pound Long Island duck with about a half cup or a little more of chopped celery, two onions and three carrots, also put through the coarse disc of a food chopper with an ounce of salt pork, and three apples pared and quartered, just a bit of salt, the mixture firmly while the neck and wings and legs are skewered in with a needlelike skewer, tied down. The duck was then placed flat in a dripping pan, because so it is easier to baste than when raised on a grill, and some hot pork fat poured all over its breast. A long dripping pan was put over it and it fitted down rather closely, while touching the breast for a three inch square space where it browned it slightly and acceptably before it was removed.

The duck then went into a four hundred and fifty degree oven for thirty minutes, when the upper pan was removed and the duck was roasted for a little more than half hour longer, with several bastings, or until the surface had browned somewhat. It would not brown well, because this duck had become soaked in the packing for safe transportation. The juice flowed remarkably from this duck when the carving knife cut in beside the breast bone and sliced off slices out toward the wing.

There is a little meat on the back of a five pound duck, and good, for it corresponds to the "oyster pieces" of other poultry. But in general we may follow the directions of the old Roman which were: "Let the duck be brought to the table whole; but only the breast and the neck are worth eating; return the rest to the cook." The cook can put the frame in water to cover and by long simmering get a stock serviceable for cooking vegetables, for simple sauces and soups.

Broiled Duck Liver.

The liver of the duck, turned over and over in a French dressing, which we call a marinade, and allowed to rest in it fifteen minutes or so, and then broiled is, with or without melted butter sauce, superior to broiled chicken liver, to my way of thinking.

Broiling Mallards.

My friend, Mrs. Helen Ruggles, expert in cookery, broils mallards for just twenty minutes. This, of course, leaves them rare. She splits them, skewers down the wings and legs, and rubs them plentifully with soft butter. The wives of men who go duck shooting want to know things like this. But good duck stew is what the country woman specializes in, after her husband has been out in his blinds.

Orange Marmalade Sauce.

One of the standard accompaniments for duck has been sliced orange. Currant jelly of the finest sort is also suitable, and either this or the marmalade may be used in a duck gravy, made by pouring off all but a little of the fat from the pan, and using what is below with some thickening and meat stock for a gravy. The product in that pan is never a standard product, because no two people are likely to get the same effects, but if to three tablespoons of a good gravy are added two tablespoons of orange marmalade a handsome and palatable sauce will result.

The New Morrison, when completed, will be the world's largest and tallest hotel, 46 stories high, with 3,400 rooms

THE MORRISON TOWER
A Monument to Economy and Service

ONE of the three or four outstanding landmarks on Chicago's skyline is the enormous tower which forms the culmination of the Morrison Hotel's new 46-story section on the Clark Street frontage. It is the tangible expression of the Morrison's time-honored economy policy, under which rooms are rented for $3 to $5 that would cost $5 to $8 in other leading hotels. This policy is being greatly extended by the increase in the number of rooms; there will be 890 in the new section, each with bath and Servidor, and practically free from ground rent, owing to valuable store subleases.

The Morrison's present capacity is 1,054 outside rooms, each with bath, eventually to be increased to 3,400—the largest hotel on earth.

The Morrison is the home of the Terrace Garden, the celebrated "dance-and-dine" rendezvous. The artists engaged for the week beginning Monday, August 17, will be:

HENRI THERRIEN — Eminent Tenor and Victor Record Artist
RUTH PRYOR — America's Daintiest Character-Danseuse
OLIVE O'NEIL — Favorite Musical Comedy Soprano
Dancing Between the Acts to the Music of GUS C. EDWARDS AND HIS ORCHESTRA (A Benson Organization)

DeLuxe Motor Tours

You can't imagine a more delightful trip than a tour through the scenic and historic East in our Parlor motor coaches! Or, a tour 'round Lake Michigan—cooled by lake breezes all the way.

The thousands of people who have taken GRAY LINE TOURS agree that they travel even more comfortably than in the finest private limousines—yet the cost is low. For instance:

Around Lake Michigan, $100. A 7 day tour covering 1,000 miles, going completely around Lake Michigan, and visiting such places as Milwaukee, Green Bay, Marinette, Escanaba, Mackinac Island, Petoskey, Charlevoix, Ludington, Muskegon, Holland and South Haven. The price includes everything. All transportation, sightseeing trips, rooms and meals. A few reservations open for tours leaving Aug. 23rd and 30th

Chicago Sightseeing. The real way to see Chicago. Trips leave our Chicago office every hour or so, covering everything of interest. 'Phone us for schedule.

Private Coaches for Hire. Parties of 10 or more can charter private coaches to go anywhere—a few miles, or many thousands. The cost usually figures less than railroad fare.

Circle Tour East, $195. A 15 day tour covering 2,350 miles. The itinerary includes Detroit, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Albany, the scenic Hudson River, New York City, Atlantic City, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington. Then back across 3 mountain ranges thru Columbus and Dayton, Ohio, Indianapolis and Chicago. The best cuisine on the North Atlantic

Whatever Price You Want to Pay

YOU enjoy the finest service afloat, dollar for dollar, when you cross the Atlantic on any one of the six United States Lines ships. Go now. Choice accommodations are available. This is an ideal time to visit Europe.

Round Trip $155

You can buy a Tourist Third Cabin, round passage for $155-$175. Many who can afford far more are traveling this way and saving the difference. Curtains, pictures, flowers, snowy linen and very best food. Music, dancing and deck sports.

Round Trip $280

For $280-$300 up you have the choice of a round trip by the famous "one-class" ships AMERICA and REPUBLIC or second class aboard the speedy LEVIATHAN or GEORGE WASHINGTON. Long decks, deep carpeted lounges and smoking rooms. Private dining tables. Luxurious travel at moderate cost.

Round Trip $380

For $380 and up you can travel first class aboard the distinguished PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT and PRESIDENT HARDING where every stateroom is an outside one. Real beds and period furniture. And a round trip, first class, on that great Atlantic favorite, the GEORGE WASHINGTON, costs only $420 and up.

Round Trip $530

$530 and up buys the thrill of a lifetime aboard the mighty LEVIATHAN, flagship of the fleet and the most famous ship in the world, with its Pompeian Swimming Pool, Winter Garden and Louis XIV Salon. World famous chefs will cater for you. You will live like a prince.

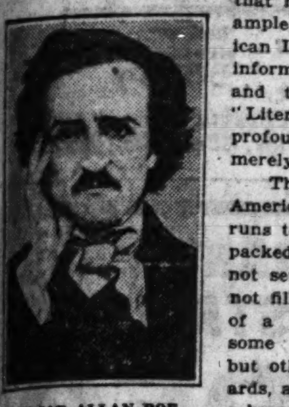
A Chance for a Bright Young Man

By H. L. Mencken.

MANY books cry aloud to be written in this our incomparable republic, but none more pathetically than a history of the national letters. I mean, of course, a sound one, a complete and judicious one, an honest one. There are plenty of the other kind; every high school boy has been through one of them. There are even several that have a certain merit for example, Dr. Leon Kellner's "American Literature," sensible and well informed, but too short and casual, and the late Barrett Wendell's "Literary History of America," profound in spots, but usually merely prejudiced.



EDGAR ALLAN POE, too little known as the critic he was. [From the painting by Louis Dieterich.]

The Cambridge History of American Literature, though it runs to four large volumes and is packed with useful information, not set down anywhere else, does not fill the bill. It is the product of a whole posse of professors, some of them highly competent but others mere pedants and dullards, and so it lacks direction and coherence. One consults it for the bald facts, not for the underlying causes. It is like the report of an autopsy. What the man died of is described more or less accurately, but there is little to indicate what sort of fellow he was while the breath of life was yet in him, and God battled with the devil for possession of his soul.

The thing that is needed is something in the manner and on the scale of George Brandes' "Main Currents in Nineteenth Century Literature"—a sweeping survey of the whole field, exact in detail but concerned chiefly with fundamental causes. It must go behind the history of concrete authors, and show what brought them into being, and the influences that prepared their audience for them. It must trace clearly the relations between one author and another. It must examine scientifically the rise and fall of literary fashions, and the effects of foreign prejudice and example. And it must relate the whole story to the general history of the country—not its mere political history, but the history of the origin and development of its basic ideas.

Our Most Original Critic.

Many specific problems of great difficulty confront the literary anatomist who tackles this great task; he must go to the sources, and put in many a weary day plodding through dead files. There is, for example, the problem of Poe. How did such a man come to exist in the America of antimacassars and crinolines? He was, in some ways, the complete antithesis of what we have come to regard as the formal Americano of his time, and yet he somehow forced himself into recognition and even honor, and if he had lived ten years longer the chances are that he would have made himself dictator of the national letters, and vastly influenced their subsequent course.

But when he died at forty he died all over: in five years things were as if he had never lived at all. Here is a mystery, and the literary historians so far heard of have failed to deal with it illuminatingly. In particular, they have evaded the

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD MORNING!

Now did it ever occur to you that Tom Mix is a ladies' man?

Tom, you say, TOM? TOM MIX? No, no, you cacchinate. NOT TOM! A man's man, Tom. A breath of the plains—Tom! The small boy's hero and his horse's idol—Tom—dependable like a tree trunk for the clinging ivy WOMAN to lean against in time of stress, but a lady's man—well, you say—you'll bite. What's the answer?

TOM MIX

The answer is, my little ones, that Tom Mix is to be a ladies' man if the Fox company has anything to say about it. They have opticked that while pop and the boy friend are always ready for a night at the movies when a Mix picture is the attraction, momma and the girls usually plead gloves to wash or a mean little eye ache or a date with the dressmaker or the need of sleep at such a time.

Pressing reasons that never come to the front when one of the great lovers is advertised in a film.

"He's got to be a ladies' man as well as a man's man!" decided the Fox folks. And they gave Tom "Dick Turpin" to do.

Starts and Ends in the West.

Dressed up in a dashing period costume boasting a hat with flowing plumes, silk stockings that showed his shapely manly calves, laces that billowed about but did not obscure his strong and well kept hands, Mr. Mix was a thing of beauty—and as he performed many deeds of chivalry for the sake of one fayre ladye, the beauteous dames of his optiences allowed warmth to steal into eyes that had been cold with the expectation of seeing "just another 'western.'"

Box office receipts told the story that Tom Mix in this new sort of role had looked good to the ladies. The company officials rubbed their palms together and started the boy right to work on "The Lucky Horseshoe."

The piece starts in the west and ends in the west. As a matter of fact, it's all in the west, but a wonderful dream the hero has after having been efficiently swatted on the head by a henchman of the man who thinks he's going to marry The Girl and gets left, transports the doughty foreman of The Girl's ranch to a picture book country, where, dressed in picture book clothes he performs

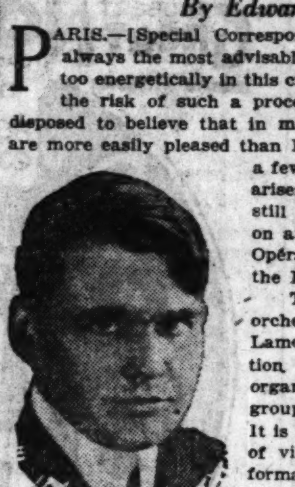
When Paris Seems Easy to Please

By Edward Moore.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—They say it is not always the most advisable practice to speak one's mind too energetically in this cradle of the fine arts. With all the risk of such a procedure in my mind, I am still disposed to believe that in matters of music the Parisians are more easily pleased than I would have thought possible a few weeks ago. This opinion has arisen from a somewhat hasty but still liberal view of what is going on at present from the Opéra and Opéra-Comique on the one side to the Folies Bergére on the other.



EDWARD MOORE, whose first European letter on music appears today.

This is the off season for the orchestras. The Concerts Colonne, Lamoreux, Pasdeloup, not to mention the various chamber music organizations and similar small groups, are closed for the summer. It is rather too bad from my point of view, for by far the best performances I have heard up to the present have been the sections of the proceedings that were in the hands of the orchestras in the opera houses.

They tell me, too, that it is the off season for the opera, as well, though both houses are still open. That is to say, many of the regular singers have gone away on vacations and their places are being filled by unknowns. My informant added, however, that one frequently finds better talent among some of these youngsters than among those with better known names. That is as may be. I do not know yet.

"Lakme" with Unfamiliar Sections.

As the Théâtre National de l'Opéra-Comique, to give it its full title and accents, was the place of my first visit, it may as well come first in this account. Here is a superb building of its kind, less impressive, less hefty, smaller in every way than the Opéra, but ideal for such musical works as need a little intimacy. Inside it has a floor space about the size of that of the Studebaker in Chicago, but with almost half the main floor taken up by an orchestra pit. From this it rises gallery after gallery, and wherever you go, spacious promenades and stairways, fine paintings and sculptures. But also, dirt wherever you go, dust on the hangings, grime on the statuary. It was almost symbolical of the performance.

The opera was Delibes' "Lakme," a lovely work, as we in Chicago know, but given more completely than we in in Chicago hear. A few numbers, customarily cut down, were restored to their full length, a whole section that I had never heard before was put into the ballet, and there were yards and yards of spoken dialogue. For, lest we forget, let me add again that opéra-comique does not mean comic opera but opera with dialogue interspersed.

Promptly to the second at 8:30 two lights flashed in front of the conductor's stand, and the orchestra began. A great orchestra, by the way, at least for this purpose, with wonderfully suave strings, ideal wood winds, and brasses a little more brilliant in tone than we are accustomed to hear, but capable of giving a most entrancing ping to a final chord. Before the performance had gone far I began to wish the orchestra was playing alone.

WEIGHING VALUES OF CAST AND PLAY

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—In Kate MacLaurin's new play called "It All Depends" the story is of the familiar flapper daughter who burns with secret fire and yearns for the adventure of complete freedom and what it will bring her—even if the man is married.

She has courage, too, as most of them have. She is willing to run away with her neighbor and stand the scourge of scandal if she is named a co-respondent.

KATHERINE ALEXANDER has a flapper rôle in "It All Depends." [Matzene Photo.]

But she weakens when she sees how her mother is hurt when her father also goes off the line and trades kisses with another wriggly little friend of hers.

It all depends on whose family is hit. And this flapper decides you can't just go and do things that hurt other people. You can't cheat and watch others suffer. Not if you love them.

So she turns dutifully to a somewhat supersweet juvenile who is going away to dig into the Aztec ruins or something. Turns to him for the moment, at least. I have no idea she married him after the play.

An Excellent Cast, but Unconvincing.

Curious how an excellent cast can sometimes take the heart out of a play for you in place of putting heart into it, which is often true when the cast is expensive rather than wisely chosen.

William A. Brady Jr. and John Cromwell, who have gone into the producing business together, have spent a lot of money hiring players for "It All Depends," but because none of the relationships they have arbitrarily arranged struck me as being possible I could not believe the play. And you just have to believe domestic plays if they are to mean anything.

Here, for example, is the solemn and dignified Norman Trevor pretending, in a woefully thin part, to be fascinated by such a simple, wriggling little empty head as Lee Patrick plays.

And Katherine Alexander, the most attractive and sanest of the flappers, falling desperately in love with Felix Krembs, grown suddenly thick about the waist and puffily unromantic.

Could happen, possibly. But not for me. The McLaurin story is pretty stagey at best. And with the added handicap of unconvincing characterization the play strikes me as being fairly hopeless.

"June Days" Arrives.

We swing, none too excitedly, into the early weeks of the season. The weather is still a bit sticky when it really isn't hot, and the tourist trade alone does not seem sufficient to tempt the managers into production.

Three plays last week and three more this is the August record to date. There have been standees at each of them, showing the usual eagerness of the playing crowd, but there has been nothing like a display of great enthusiasm for any play so far offered.

The first of the musical pieces to reach Broadway is the "June Days" that has been playing recently in Chicago. It

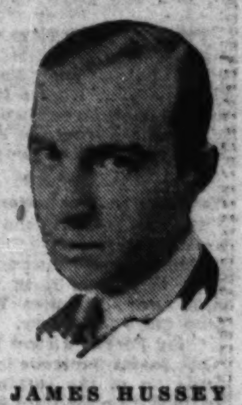
Mid-August Chitchat of Actors and Their Plays

By Frederick Donaghey.

ACCORDING to Burns Mantle's year-book of the American stage for 1924-'25 [it is on press], the present season in Chicago dates from June 7; but, save for "Laff That Off!" it really takes life tonight, when there will be three new pieces—"Service for Husbands," "The Patsy," and "Mercenary Mary." Counting "Why Men Leave Home," disinterred from the New-York discard of some seasons back, there will be four. . . .



JAMES HUSSEY
He's coming soon to his home-town to perform with Miss Elsie Janis in her revue.

Raymond Hitchcock comes back to perform in "Service for Husbands," which is by a new playwright, Bates Hunter; and in it he is a nice chap who emerges from the vicissitudes of Greenwich Village to exploit himself as a proficient in being the fourth man at bridge, the fourteenth at dinner, a trustworthy chaperon of wives whose husbands are too busy for the opera and the dance-places, and an all-round man on call for the social utilities. . . . A well-liked player is Mr. Hitchcock, with a roll of rôles running back to 1890. Remembered names in his company are Miss Helen Flint, Miss Dorothy Blackburn, Miss Carrie Reynolds, and Percy Ripple.

"The Patsy" involves Miss Claiborne Foster in the title-part—that of a girl whose position in the family appears to be like that of the Ugly Duckling in Hans Christian Andersen's fable. (The title, I assume, derives from the old variety-stage afterpiece named "Patsy Bolivar": a patsy is one who is made the butt and gets the worst of things as things come and go. The play is by Barry Conners, who wrote "Strange Bedfellows" and "Applesauce," concurrent diversions in Chicago last Autumn. . . . Miss Foster is a pretty girl; and in the list of her assistants I find the name of Peter Lang, who may be remembered as the actor of Guy of Gisbourne when The Bostonians were in the height of their vogue with "Robin Hood."

Miss Juliette Day, Louis Simon, Allen Kearns, Sam Hearn, and Frank Kingdon are in "Mercenary Mary," which is a song-piece made over by William B. Friedlander and others from an unnamed farce by Emil Nyitray and Herbert Hall Winslow. One or the other of the Misses Fairbanks also has been in it; but she is replaced by Miss Jean Carter-Waddell—of the Virginia Carters, the press-agent swears, and a (or maybe it is the) great-granddaughter of Stonewall Jackson. So! . . . "Mercenary Mary" was on view in New-York from mid-April until a week ago, and has been (or is about to be) staged in London.

This Playwright Avers He's All Through.

Save that it is credited to Avery Hopwood and was shown some time ago in New-York, I know nothing of "Why Men Leave Home." . . . And Mr. Hopwood, a day or two ago, told the ship-news reporters down there that he would never write another play—that he had written twenty-six, and was tired of the pastime. I've not seen twenty-six of his plays; but I've seen ten or, maybe, twelve since in 1906 he emerged with one named "Clothes," and have not seen

Mid-August Chat of Actors and the Plays

By Frederick Donaghey.

a good one. And in that time he has taken down a higher total in royalties than any other American playwright, —and, by that token, than any other playwright anywhere: he has absorbed so much money from a third-rate talent that he has every right to be tired. . . .

One of the reporters asked him if, in the interests of cleanliness, he didn't think that "parts of Frederick Lonsdale's plays should be eliminated"; and he is quoted as having replied: "Yes! I do! I should like to eliminate a good deal of the stuff Mr. Lonsdale has written, and incorporate it in my own new plays." . . .

Two of the new plays referred to by Mr. Hopwood are, respectively, "Four Stuffed Shirts" and "Naughty Cinderella." . . . As the latter is to be used by Miss Irene Bordoni, I assume it is the one from the French heretofore referred to as "The Cuckoo Club."

Novelties in Manhattan.

The new things of the week in New-York theaters are:

"The Family Upstairs," by Harry Delf, with Miss Ruth Nugent, Miss Enid Gray, Theodore Westman, and Miss Clare Woodbury.

"Gay Paree," a show in the form of what passes for revue in this country, made up of the surplus scenes and settings from the third issue of Artists and Models. Chic Sale, Miss Winnie Lightner, George Le Maire, and Billy V. Van are in it.

"Oh, Mama!" a comedy from the French of Louis Verneuil by Wilton Lackaye and Harry Wagstaff Gribble, with Miss Alice Brady, Edwin Nicander, and Kenneth McKenna.

"The Mud-Turtle," by Elliott Lester, with Miss Helen MacKellar. . . . The author teaches school and broadcasts for the radio in Philadelphia, where the play had a try-out some weeks ago.

Trials of the Traders.

A New-York law has it that a broker in theater-tickets may not charge more than fifty cents above the face-price. One of the firms trading in tickets is asking for a Federal injunction to restrain enforcement of the law, holding that it violates the Fourteenth Amendment. It does, of course: most of the new laws violate something or other than was built into the Constitution. . . . The human-interest argument put up by the plaintiff is that brokers are sometimes unable to dispose of their stock, and that unsold tickets in such cases represent a loss that is not made up by the lawful fee of fifty cents. And that, of course, is infernal nonsense as an argument for relief: the business of trading in theater-tickets is not in the list of necessary occupations. It is, instead, a cheap and tawdry gamble, with the element of chance wellnigh invisible, on the risks taken by the producer of a play. That greed and competition at times urge the broker into taking on more tickets than he can profitably dispose of doesn't alter the basic fact—that he is in spirit a sure-thing sport, screaming "Murder!" when he makes a bad guess on the box-office value of a manager's venture. . . .

But a bad law is a bad law; and any law having to do with the right of reselling theater-tickets is a bad one. I know that any broker who would obey such a law out of mere regard for law would be rushed to an asylum, there to have as cell-mate any manager who would sell tickets to a broker for so low a premium as to permit the latter to pocket a profit on resales at fifty cents. The explanation given by the New-York brokers when questioned as to premiums in excess of fifty cents is that the excess is for "service"; and it is a capital explanation. The cost of "service" is, of course, regulated by the demand for the show. And, as I have ever held, the value of a theater-ticket is not one penny less than the sum the purchaser pays for it. He, after all, is the person who makes the price; neither the manager nor the broker has anything to do with it.

The person most concerned in what is paid for tickets is the person who, as such things go, really says least about it and generally is a victim of the barter between the managers and the brokers. I mean the author of the play: he is entitled to his royalty on the gross total paid for tickets in the course of a week. In the case of a play that draws $15,000 in a week, it is my experience that here or in New-York at least half that amount would be sold through brokers, who pay a fee for the right to trade in the tickets. If a two-fifty ticket is sold by the broker for three dollars, the manager takes half of the premium, which, on a basis of $7,500 sold by the brokers, would be $750. Ten per cent of that would be $75 for the author. . . . And my figures are conservative to the verge of austere self-denial. A play drawing an average of $15,000 a week in Chicago would be in such demand as to warrant the broker in charging more than fifty cents per ticket,—and as to warrant the manager in charging the broker accordingly; while authors who turn out $15,000-a-week successes are able to obtain as much as fifteen percent of the gross when it runs higher than $10,000 or $12,000. . . .

There ought to be a law, of course; but, to be effective, it would have to do with the theater-goer, and not with the manager or the broker.

Miscellany.

Mrs. Edith Ellis hopes soon to have her dramatization of W. Somerset Maugham's "The Moon and Sixpence" staged in London, with Henry Ainley in the principal rôle. (It is the general belief of those who have read this fine tale that Mr. Maugham meant his hero to be Gaugain, the French painter.) . . . Mr. Ainley was in this country early in the current century, acting with Miss Maude Adams for a season or so in a piece named "The Pretty Sister of José." He is my notion of a bad actor; and London adores him.

Mr. Maugham is said to have made a play from his recent novel, "The Painted Veil." . . . And Mrs. Ellis' play named "White Collars" is among the season's bookings in the Cort. Others are "Pigs," which had a run last season in New-York, and "The Poor Nut," which is among the current successes there.

Bruce McRae and Miss Carlotta Monterey are named for the principal rôles in a play Jesse Lynch Williams has made from his story of "The Lovely Lady," published about two years ago. . . . It has been understood that Mr. McRae would spend the season with Miss Grace George, who is eager to tour the country in "She Wanted to Know."

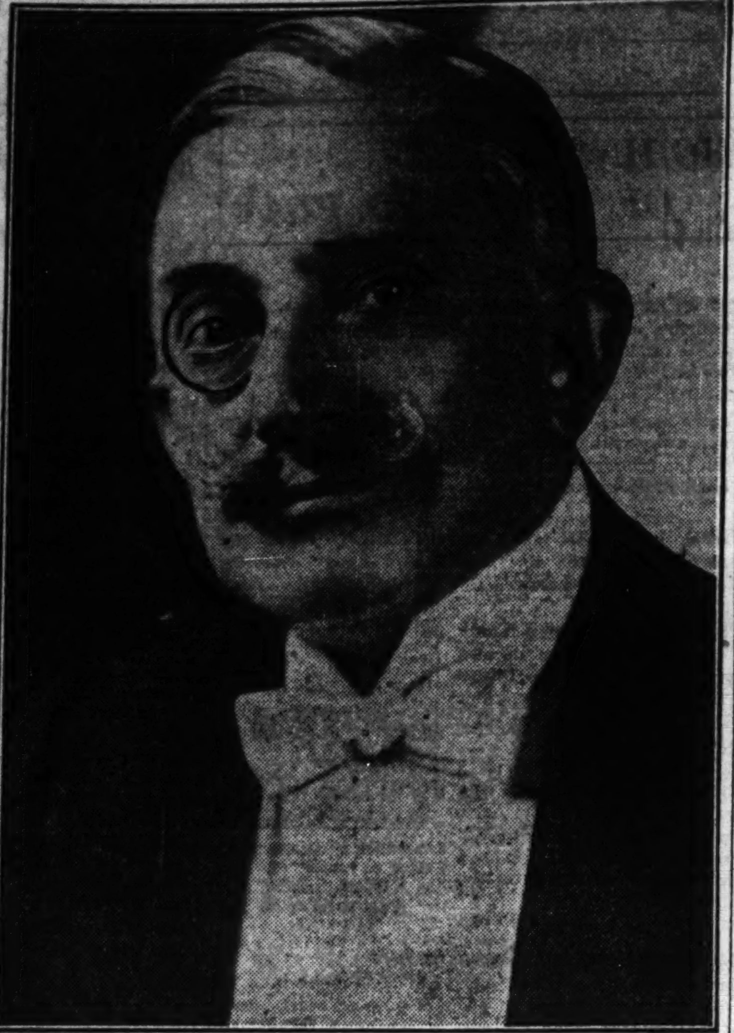
I told in a paragraph the other day that the Messrs. Schubert, moved to an interest in the mercantile values of Cellini by the success of "The Firebrand," have articled Harry B. Smith to write a libretto about that celebrity of art and the major sins. It seems that the music is to be written by Oscar Straus, whose "Riquette" impends. . . . Conditions are so bad in Vienna that the operetta-men are in hot rivalry for American commissions. The money is here for them if they will deliver the tunes,—although even that fair exchange of values is not inevitable. There was Leo Fall's bully score of "Madame Pompadour": it was regarded in advance of the American production as the one certain success of last season, and was killed in a night by inept, stupid management.

Miss Barrymore is reported from London as thinking well of a play named "Wet Paint," by the Earl of Latham, who is now identified as the author of a piece called "Ostriches" which was among last season's New-York flivvers. However, when the play was acted there, the authorship was ascribed to Edward Wilbraham. . . . And I take an extra line to add that "Wet Paint" is a dandy title.

Thomas Hardy has made a dramatization of "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," and, after a great deal of fussing about an actress for the title-part, has selected Miss Gwen Ffrangcon Davies, —a daughter, if I'm not in error, of the late Ffrangcon Davies, the Welsh baritone. . . . The author is quoted as having told Miss Davies that both Bernhardt and Duse were eager to have the rôle of Tess. . . .

I ran across a paragraph in a London newspaper [I've forgotten which newspaper] to the effect that a "pirated" dramatization of Hardy's novel was acted some years ago in the United States. The only dramatization of his "Tess of the D'Urbervilles" ever given in this country was the one made by the late Lorimer Stoddard for Mrs. Fiske; and I am certain it was not "pirated," and that the novelist, through his publishers, was paid properly for the use of his tale. . . . That dramatization was of small account as a play when considered apart from the novel; but it was, as I recall it, as good as could well be made within the limitations of the stage, and as good, I should hazard, as Mr. Hardy's own, whatever it may prove to be.

COMIC FRIEND OF THE FAMILY



RAYMOND HITCHCOCK

HE is all through, he hopes, with the song-plays and the revues, and the like; but he has thought the same thing in other times, and has been called on to think again. However, Mr. Hitchcock wangled through season-before-last in "The Old Soak," and through last season in "The Sap"; and he's returning tonight, to act as a trusted bachelor in a comedy named "Service for Husbands," which he has tried out in Cleveland.

They've Made Mix a "Ladies' Man"

By Mae Tinee.

picture book feats in storybook fashion.

All of which provides the fillum with castles and armor and moats and dancing girls, with flowing hair and robes for the heroine and plumes and laces and swords and courtly manners for the hero. Which, it seems, is what the ladies want and is what they are going to get from now on in Mix mixtures.

Tom Foster is the name of the hero, and he manages the ranch of Eleanor Hunt, whose father had been his good friend. Eleanor thinks a lot of him, and just hates to leave him to go to Europe with her aunt.

Once there, however, with French gowns and a handsome Englishman crazy on her, her cowboy adorer becomes more or less of a hazy memory. She agrees to marry Alan Dennis.

In the meantime, good old Tom at home has been making her ranch thrive like a green bay tree. New house, new cowsheds, chicken coops 'n' ever'thing. And he has a lot of tricky new clothes COMplete from soup to nuts that fit him like the paper on the wall in which he is a perfect stranger to the stock. Everything is hotsy-totsy awaiting the moment when the beautiful gal shall step down from the glossy new wagon and with open arms receive unto herself as the one and only the boy wonder which is Mr. Tom Foster.

Well, Eleanor comes home. But not alone, ah, not alone! With her is a gay party of friends AND Mr. Dennis and the friends are there to be guests at a wedding scheduled to take place in a few days. The wedding of Eleanor and Alan.

However, when Eleanor sees Tom she becomes faintly troubled, as L. J. L. would say. Her heart palpitates. The noble foreman is vurr', vurr' disturbing.

Alan becomes more than faintly troubled. He becomes strongly SORE. He hires some rough boys to do way with Tom until after the wedding is over. Which is what they try to do and provides opportunity for the scrumptious dream.

Suffice to say that Tom wakes up before the ceremony has got to the legal point. Lots of action. New bridegroom.

Where does the horseshoe come in? Why, when Eleanor went abroad she gave Tom a little horseshoe that she said would bring him luck. He carries it always, and the finale proves it was a good talisman.

Miss Dove as the girl is beautiful and Mr. Mix is beautiful and Tony is beautiful and so is the scenery. Some may think Alan beautiful too, but his disposition ruined him for me. Though, to be fair, one can hardly blame him for being touchy. When a gentleman comes all the way from Europe to marry a woman, it would be a trifle chafing to meet with the luck that did Alan.

Fast, furious, and—frilly, "The Lucky Horseshoe." Ladies, applaud! It is for you!

See you tomorrow!

Subsidy for the Irish Players

The Irish Free State has provided an endowment of £850 for the little theater in Abbey Street, Dublin, that was the "home" of the Irish Players, as Lady Gregory's unique little band was known in this country. . . . The point is made that this makes of the Dublin Abbey the "first state-endowed theater in any English-speaking country"; and that doesn't say so much: there are not many English-speaking countries, for one thing, and £850 would barely serve to pay for staging a play of such simple requirements as [say] "The Lady Next Door" or "Is Zat So?" . . . What is astonishing about the endowment is that the Irish Players were regarded at the time of their first American visit, in 1911, as essential enemies of everything that the Free State is supposed to be. Weighing Values of Cast and Play

By Burns Mantle.

seemed a particularly stupid affair to me its first night, with little to redeem it except a pretty production and Elizabeth Hines.

It has had a strange career, this piece. Done originally as "The Charm School" by Alice Duer Miller, being taken from her novel of that name and fixed for the stage with the help of Robert Milton, it was, in idea, one of the promising comedies of its season.

Here, for example, was the story of an engaging and slightly serious young man, who was to inherit a girls' school and be forced to run it or suffer misfortune of some sort. He was to take over the school with the understanding that teaching the young women how to acquire charm would be his principal duty. As a result, the loveliest of the students and the most pathetic of his spinster associates fell in love with him, and he was forced by the end of the evening to marry one of them and give up his teaching.

A promising idea, indeed, for comedy purposes, but it never quite worked out. Sam Hardy and Marie Carroll played the principal parts. He was amusing and she was professionally petulant, but the treatment of the story was fantastical and unconvincing, even as fiction. The crowd sniffed it out of the theater.

Try, Try Again.

Then the Shuberts decided to make a musical comedy of it. This they did, with the help of Dorothy Donnelly and a composer named Ayer. "School Belles" it was called, and Lynn Overman and June Walker played in it. Again it failed.

Still the though persisted that it was a likely idea if the right use could be made of it. So it was rewritten twice—once by Harry Wagstaff Gribble and again by Cyrus Wood, and fitted to new tunes by Fred Coots. In spite of which I don't see just how it could be more stupid than it is now.

It is helped by Miss Hines. She is a gracious heroine, with enough voice to entitle her to the best songs and of great attraction in the dance. But it is fearfully blasted by a youth named Royston—Roy Royston—imported a year or so back by the Shuberts for the musicalized "Peg O' My Heart."

I have seen few worse performances in the theater than this self-conscious young man gave here the opening night of "June Days." How he escaped suppression in Chicago, if he smirked his way through the run there, I can't quite understand. The old town must be losing its self-respect.

Life of St. Francis.

The season's first plays include a poetic drama entitled "The Little Poor Man," being no less an undertaking than a dramatized life of St. Francis of Assisi, done mostly in rhymed couplets by Harry Lee—and very well done as far as the writing goes.

An instructive bit, too, inasmuch as Broadway knows comparatively little about the saints—particularly St. Francis. St. Anthony has a larger following.

In "The Little Poor Man" we meet the gentle soul before he took to poverty and the coarse shirt. He was, says the drama, something of a roysterer in his youth, given to scarlet clothes and petting parties in the square. Nights when the troubadours were abroad Francesco, being the disappointed son of a burly merchant, would frolic with Zea, an amorous gypsy, and drain the cup that cheers and frequently inebriates.

Then suddenly he turned upon his old friends, even upon the gentle Claire who loved him. Giving away all that of which he was possessed, he made solemn marriage with his true love, poverty. And there after he was the holy man, beloved of beasts and birds and such humans as could understand him, until he died and was, we have every reason to believe, gathered to his appreciative fathers.

The production has been made by Clare Tree Major, who, during the winter, conducts a school of the theater for the training of actors. This is probably a sort of postgraduation celebration for the most promising of her pupils, though certain of the parts are played by porfessionals. There is much studied eloquence in the playing, and several of these curiously hollow, affected voices young people adopt to prove that they are, indeed, histrionically gifted.

Among the Producers.

Evidence accumulates that the season progresses. Came a story to my desk during the days that Edward W. Browning was riding his adopted daughter, Mary Louise Spas, around in the big blue limousine for which he paid a rental of $800 a month. Clifton Webb, it read, who is rehearsing with Marilyn Miller in "Sunny," feeling the parental urge, had radioed an offer to the eight Tiller girls who are coming over to join "Sunny," offering to adopt them one and all and give them the protection of an American gent's apartment during their stay in America.

And today I have a note from the Sam H. Harris offices stating that if Senator James J. Walker, the current candidate for Mayor Hylan's mayoralty office, will write the lyrics for a song to be called "The Family Upstairs," Irving Berlin will provide the tune and Mrs. Walker can sing it at the opening of "The Family" next Monday. All this because Senator Jimmie in his youth composed one called "Will You Love Me in December as You Do in May?" and the present Mrs. Walker sang it in concert.

The gentleman who went to see David Belasco, expecting the veteran producer to announce his impending retirement, found the governor calmly planning more productions than he previously has made in any one season.

He will do six plays this year, he says, and give to each of them his personal attention. In addition to which he will send those excitable heroines of his, the two "ladies of the evening" and the one lady of "The Harem," touring after they have been revived in New York, and arrange a road season for "The Dove." Sir David is the type of worker who has to be kept busy. Take the thrills and responsibilities of his theater adventures away from him and he would go into a decline within the year.

Hampden Gets a Theater.

Walter Hampden has leased the Colonial theater, which is in Broadway north of Columbus circle, at 62d street, and will rename it the first of September Hampden's theater. He will make the usual alterations in color scheme and decoration, add something to the equipment of the stage, which happens to be one of the largest in New York, and reopen the house early in October with a revival of Hamlet.

HER NAME'S IN THE LIGHTS

MISS CLAIBORNE FOSTER

SHE is a familiar and a well-liked figure in Chicago theaters, wherein she first took attention as long ago as the flivver of a piece named "Rolling Stones," acted in the La Salle. She was here in 1922 in "Two Fellows and a Girl," and again last season in the long run of "Applesauce!" . . . Miss Foster returns tonight as the proforma star of a new piece, "The Patsy."

IN IT, ANYWAY

MISS SHIRLEY DAHL

She does something or other in "Mercenary Mary"; and the management appears to regard her chore therein as important: this one of seven photographs of her sent to the Tribune with a request to use.

Picture Dolls in Dempsey's Room!

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—Estelle Taylor Dempsey, slim and vivid wth her dark hair and eyes and wearing a purple georgette dress, was entertaining tea guests in her new home with Jack up in Los Feliz Heights.

Like all brides she was glad to show off her new home, and while we toured the charming house she said "Jack claims that for once he got a good break—he married a girl with furniture."

The pretty ivory bedroom was furnished from Estelle's own boudoir. There was a white satin spread with a filmy lace cover. A canopy of pale blue silk draped the head of the cushion strewn bed.

The bureau, under the glass of the top showed a pale blue silk spread embroidered in roses by Estelle's own hands. A great blue floor cushion with flower ornaments supported a large and exquisitely languishing French doll with a hoop skirt and powered wig.

Huge dragons encircled the cloissone urn with which an enormous white bearskin comprise Jack's contribuion to the furnishings.

In Jack's own dressing room the feminine touch is equally evident. Pale green painted furniture with spreads of orchid and gold changeable taffeta, ruffled and trimmed with flowers from Estelle's nimble fingers, and tiny taffeta ruffled curtains at the windows furnish this room. Dolls of high degree snuggle under the tables or rest on the chairs or bed. Imagine dolls in Jack Dempsey's own room! And tiny vanity cushions, lace be-ruffled, accompanying them.

Jack, with the easy good nature of the newly married husband, accepts all this as his own, but absolutely refuses to permit any of his men friends to take a peek at this. He says he's afraid they'd kiss him. But a virile scarlet dressing gown and leather slippers peeked from the clothes closet.

Jack's own masculine possessions are kept at his dressing room in the gymnasium, for these days he has little time at home, Estelle confided, because of arrangements pending for another battle in the ring.

Valentino at Work.

Valentino has been giving himself the most violent sort of exercise the last few days, working on his new picture, "The Lone Eagle." Seen twenty-five miles out on location last Tuesday in a black Cossack uniform with red sash and red silk shirt, Valentino was busy lifting a horseback rider right off his steed. The rider was supposed to pass under a bridge on which Rudy lay. Rudy lifted him from his horse and dropped him on to a donkey which was following the horse. As this exercise had to be repeated six times to satisfy the rapacious cameraman and as the temperature was dancing round 100, perspiraion was pouring from under the screen's most famous pompadour.

"At every lift," said Rudy, "that man gained twenty pounds. And to think that I put in that piece of business myself."

Conversation turned to charm in woman, and in answer to a question as to whether restfulness was a charm in a woman Valentino vowed he had never found a charming woman restful.

Sir Frederico Beltran-Masses, the famous Spanish painter who is a boon companion of Rudy's appeared at this point, rosy cheeked and clad in Hollywood rompers [local lingo for knickers] to announce that the only restful and charming woman in the world was death. Whereat the party climbed into the red leather upholstered gray racer, and was whisked into Hollywood proper at forty-five miles an hour, Rudolph Valentino Guglielmo acting as chauffeur.

Celebrities at the Montmartre.

Rudy has been having a bit of vacation baching it, as Winifred Hudnut Valentino has been in the country for a short rest, to recover from a severe cold.

Wednesday noon saw him with masses at the Montmartre enjoying the dancing and food. Anita Stewart, in a flowered lavender chiffon dress with a picture hat of lavender and purple, was his dancing partner, while Mrs. Clarence Brown, in scarlet, danced with Masses.

The Voice of the Movie Fan

On Many Things.

Dear Miss Tinée: Why do they insist on changing the movie story from the real one? I don't believe I was ever so disappointed as I was in "Chickie." Dorothy Mackaill is good, but as Chickie she doesn't fit. Either Claire Windsor or Viola Dana in a blonde wig for that. Munson in the picture had a sinister look and that was not at all like the kinglike Jake of the story.

Instead of marrying Barry, Chickie should have been shown when she started life anew. A really wonderful story was spoiled by the screen version.

I enjoyed "The Shock Punch," although my husband says it also was different from the story.

Mae, dear, I love your articles and seldom disagree with them. I wish I could meet you personally. In spite of your name, I imagine you are blonde and tall—not "tinée." Well, I'm getting rather long winded for my first letter.

Please describe yourself so as to settle a dispute in the family. Hubby insists you are short and have dark hair and eyes. I insist you are tall, with light hair and blue eyes. Are you either of these or between the two.

Please tell me who the cute little girl who was played opposite Dickey Dix in "The Shock Punch."

Well, love to you and the family, if you have one. ETHEL.

[Editor's Note: Me? Well tanned at present. Otherwise sort of a compromise, I reckon. Frances Howard. Thanks for your pleasant letter.]

Reasons Why They Flock to Ravinia

By Martin Stevers.

MONDAY night's concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, with Eric DeLamarter conducting, features Marie Sundelius, soprano, and Alfred Wallenstein, 'cellist, as soloists.

"Lakme," with Elvira de Hidalgo as the daughter of the Brahmin priest, and Schipa as Gerald, the venturesome British officer who woos her, will hold the boards on Tuesday evening. Others in the cast include Leon Rothier as the priest, Defrere as Gerald's companion, and Merle Alcock, Paltrinieri, Margery Maxwell, Falco, and Virgilia Grassi in support. Louis Hasselmans conducts.

Wednesday evening will feature Rosa Raisa and Giovanni Martinelli in "Fedora." This is the vehicle in which Mme. Raisa appeared in the title rôle two weeks ago last night, and in which Martinelli as Count Loris gives a superb account of himself. In support are Giuseppe Danise, Maxwell, Ananian, Paltrinieri, D'Angelo, Grassi, Rothier, singing a small part by courtesy to carry an outstanding aria; Max Toft and Louis Derman, with Gennaro Papi at the baton.

What might be called a juvenile edition of "Hansel and Gretel" will be offered in pantomime by the Academy players at the Thursday afternoon children's concert. The program also has the regular children's concert numbers by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Eric DeLamarter. Seats are free on this occasion.

Two changes of cast add to the interest of Thursday evening's work, the comedy, "L'Elisir d'Amore" ("The Elixir of Love"). Florence Macbeth will sing the heroine, with Mario Chamlee as her vis-a-vis. Vittorio Trevisan will be heard again as the quack doctor whose elixir produces strange results, while Basiola and Falco, with Papi conducting, complete the roster for the evening of hilarity.

Taking Children Seriously.

Among the many facets of Ravinia's activities as America's summer music capital we can well afford to give attention to the Thursday afternoon children's concerts. This dictum is inspired, not only by the fact that admirable entertainment for the younger generation is available, but because the ideas embodied in these programs by Louis Eckstein, president of Ravinia, and Eric DeLamarter, who conducts the programs, explain much of Ravinia's success in capturing the allegiance of America's adult music lovers as well.

It would be hard to find more common sense concerning the art of concert giving for any audience than is contained in the explanation Mr. DeLamarter gave last week of his ideas concerning these entertainments. "Children's concerts," his notion of the matter runs, "are dismissed too often by one or another observation. Either they are regarded as brief amusement for the youngsters or they are solemnly considered as potential culture makers, as a deeply plotted scheme for recruiting concert audiences for the next generation. Ravinia's concerts are in neither category.

"The idea of interesting the children is foremost in mind. Naturally, it would be a source of abiding regret if there were no trace of growth in appreciation of music as a result of such concerts. But a concert is not a sort of culture stuffing clinic. No one ever has been able to inject culture of any sort. And if this be true with mature audiences, it is doubly true with children."

All of which is excellent philosophy, whether a program be for children or adults. In working it out in his Thursday afternoon programs Mr. DeLamarter shows rare discrimination in selecting his offerings. Practically every selection has an interesting story, something which his youthful auditors can trace, or else gives them an opportunity to notice unusual bits of work by the horns, the big bass fiddles, the kettle drums or other members of the orchestral family. The programs set forth these points of interest in simple terms, and the children enjoy immensely listening for them. And, in addition, they get the habit of listening to music intelligently—so in spite of his disclaimer, Mr. DeLamarter is creating culture in no mean amount.

And—as has been pointed out more than once this season—Ravinia carries out much the same idea in presenting works for adult entertainment. "Get people interested first — then keep them interested" is the Ravinia idea throughout, and Mr. Eckstein's artists pursue it faithfully, even though time-honored traditions of performance must give way. Naturally, more and more people who always thought opera something they didn't care much about are becoming devotees to the art of opera they hear out on the north shore these evenings—thanks to this exceedingly common sense policy.

Novelties of the Week.

Two novelties promise to make this week at Ravinia unusually interesting, not only to those who attend opera for enjoyment, but to those who like to know the "whys and wherefores" in operatic art. The first is Ravinia's revival of Donizetti's "Don Pasquale," after an absence of several years from répertoire, next Friday night, while Verdi's "Il Ballo in Maschera" ["The Masked Ball"] will be given on Saturday evening. Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday evenings will be devoted to repetitions of works heard earlier in the season, with a symphony concert for tomorrow night, and "Madame Butterfly" scheduled as the offering this evening.

With Ravinia's demonstrated knack for comedy in mind, Friday's offering of "Don Pasquale" promises to make a delightful addition to the already generous offerings of opera buffa to date this season. It is one of Donizetti's lighter productions, and deals with that favorite comic theme, the efforts of a loving pair to win the consent of the lady's father to the match. The music throughout is dainty and sparkling, and contains, among other features, the concert stage favorite, "Com' e gentil."

The crotchety father will be portrayed by Vittorio Trevisan, while the lovers will be played by Lucrezia Bori and Tito Schipa. Giacomo Rimini and Giordano Paltrinieri also have responsibilities, while Gennaro Papi will be in charge in the pit.

Next Saturday's performance of "Il Ballo in Maschera" brings to culmination considerable work on the part of Rosa Raisa and Giovanni Martinelli, the two principals entrusted with the leading rôles. As stated before in these columns, this work of Verdi's has the peculiar interest of a setting in colonial Boston, and music which many think to represent a considerable advance upon that of "Il Trovatore." Giuseppe Danise also has a rôle of considerable responsibility, as does Ina Bourskaya, while Florence Macbeth will have a charming rôle as a boy. Virgilio Lazzari, Louis D'Angelo, Desire Defrere, and Giordano Paltrinieri complete the cast, with Gennaro Papi conducting.

Coming back to the first of the week, tonight's performance of "Madame Butterfly" features Madam Raisa as Cio-Cio-San, with Mario Chamlee as Pinkerton. Mario Basiola is to be Sharpless, while Bourskaya will be heard as Suzuki.

When Paris Seems Easy to Please

By Edward Moore.

The Lakme was a certain Mlle. Flore George. Presumably she is young and good looking. At least her picture looks so, and the semi-gloom which a merciful convention of the Opéra-Comique decrees as full stage light did nothing to disabuse the mind of the notion. Her voice was brilliant, a quality approved by the Parisians in a soprano voice, but in this case so much so that we would call it shrill. Here was where I began to believe that Parisians were easily pleased in their music, for while she could sing high notes and rapid notes, and discounting their quality, she was not always on pitch or in the rhythm of the orchestra.

Just the same, she was the hit of the show. Every time she sang a solo, every time she took her part in a duet, the house went into continued spasms of applause, storms of hand clapping, and vociferous shouts. Wherefore I, who for years back have been hearing the part sung a million times better at the Auditorium and Ravinia, marveled.

The tenor part, Gérald, was sung by M. Marcelin, a friendly appearing person and personable in spite of a highly emotional blonde wig. Not a bad voice, either, though too light in weight for a house of larger dimensions than this, and during the first part of the performance apparently preoccupied by the importance of the occasion.

By all odds the best artist in the cast was Francis Combe, who sang the part of Nilakantha. In voice, in manner, in personal dignity, I believe he gave the best performance of the part ever heard. He would be first class material for an American company of high grade. However, as I have said, the vote of the audience went to Mlle. George.

Chorus Badly Trained.

The half dozen minor principals were so-so. Mlle. Billa-Azéma, as Mallika, had a voice of quality much like Mlle. George's, which did not materially assist "Sous le bois epais" in the first act as far as I was concerned. Mlle. Tiphaine, as Mrs. Benson, gave a fearful and wonderful libel on the English people.

The chorus, about three dozen strong, was fair in voice and badly trained in routine. Not that the chorus in "Lakme" has much to do except move slowly on to the stage, sing, and move slowly off, but here some moved their arms on one cue, some on another, and some not at all. In fact, stage discipline at the Opéra-Comique, except in such matters as beginning on time, is not so good. One does not have to be highly alert to see faces that belong back stage peering around from behind the scenery.

There was a ballet of fourteen headed by Mlles. Mona Paiva and Luparia. The corps de ballet is hereby earnestly advised not to attempt an American tour, but Mlle. Paiva did some rather good snaky writhings of her arms after the fashion of Ruth St. Denis ten or twelve years ago.

But there was an entrancing orchestra, and there was a conductor, Maurice Frigara, who seemed to know his job in thorough and efficient fashion.

As the Opéra, the other famous place of song, needs special discussion, it will be reserved for another time of writing. All that is necessary to say about the Folies-Bergère is that never, even in the lowest depths of early American jazz, was so much stupid light music served up in one collection. They will tell you that the Folies-Bergère is designed and prepared for the foreign trade, but in listening to the conversation around my seat I am sure that by no means all the ticket holders were English or American. Once, and only once, a tune fell as refreshingly as dew upon a desert. It was "All Alone," by Irving Berlin of New York.

The Café de la Paix is keeping up its reputation as to the impossibility of going there without meeting acquaintances. I found two in less than ten minutes. One was Jules Dalber, once of the Chicago Opera company, managerial side; the other, Gladys Axman, who sang at the Auditorium with the San Carlo company last winter. Mr. Dalber is directing the financial affairs of the Baireuth Wagner festival. I expect to see him and it later in the summer.

Crossing the Atlantic was a good deal of a surcease from music. Not even a radio was on board except the ship's Marconi. There was only a string quintet that played for meals and at most other times. A certain Mr. Davies, in making a speech in the orchestra's behalf near the end of the crossing, referred to its "indefatigable" efforts. I have seldom heard an adjective better applied.

Odds and Ends from Hollywood

Hollywood, Cal.

Much joy is being felt in Hollywood that the accident in which Zasu Pitts was injured has not turned out as badly as at first feared. Louise Fazenda, busy on her new picture "Compromise" and her two new houses that she is building, spent much of Friday with red eyes, waiting for news of Zasu, who is a dear chum of years.

Putting a synthetic pop into fake champagne nearly ruined the day at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayers this week. Mae Murray, playing in "The Masked Bride," appears in a scene in the Paris Montmartre with a comedy waiter, played by Leo White. Leo's stunt was to shake up a bottle of vinegar, to which had been added some lowly baking soda, and at the proper moment to remove the cork and, presto, movie champagne would fizz forth.

The idea was fine, but the denouement came too soon, for the cork hit the ceiling, and as the startled White whirled, the spurting bottle encircled the set drenching Mae, Francis X. Bushman, and Director Von Starnberg.

A little earlier the same day Mae had been dancing for the camera in a bead and spangle gown which somehow didn't seem able to stay with her, for every swirl brought a shower of beads rolling over the floor and impeding serious minded Von Starnberg who, megaphone in hand, was running about trying in vain to stem the inundation of popping crystals.

The Charleston craze has Hollywood by the toes; one casualty in line of duty is reported by Evelyn Brent, who has lost a perfectly good colored maid, named Violet. Said Violet, who hails from a tiny town in Georgia, got a night off last week, and with her beau skitted about in a café on San Pedro street in such an arresting manner that she was offered a job by a visiting dancing teacher "to teach white folks how to dance the Charleston" at the modest sum of $20 a day. As Violet has been doing the Charleston since she learned how to walk, it looks like chicken dinner to Vi'let, and Evelyn is minus a fine maid.

Radium Is Restoring Health to Thousands

The wonderful curative power of Radium has been known for years. However, the benefits of this precious health giving substance have in the past been only within the means of persons of wealth.

Since the invention of Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad, any man or woman, poor or rich, can afford this treatment which offers so much relief from suffering and disease.

Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad is worn next to the body day and night. It pours a constant stream of radio-active energy into the system while you work, play or sleep, helping to build up weakened nerves and tissues to a strong, healthy condition. It creates a vigorous circulation of blood, thus removing congestion, which is the real cause of such diseases.

To prove just what this remarkable treatment can do for you, we will send our appliance on trial with the understanding that we will not charge you a cent if it fails to give satisfactory results. This offer is open to any person who has pain of any kind, nerve weakness, high blood pressure, stomach, kidney or liver complaint, bladder trouble, or disease of the lungs or heart.

No matter what your ailment or how long you have had it, we will gladly let you try the appliance at our risk. Write today for free literature giving complete information. Radium Appliance Co., 1481 Bradbury Bldg., Los Angeles, Calif.

CHICAGO MECCA THIS WEEK OF RADIO AMATEURS

Relay League Convention Attracts Host.

Speakers of international note will be heard in Chicago this week in connection with the sessions of the third convention of the American Radio Relay league, which opens on Tuesday, Aug. 18, at the Edgewater Beach hotel and continues until Friday.

Among those who will deliver addresses are Dr. A. Hoyt Taylor, in charge of the naval research laboratories at Washington, D. C.; John C. Warner of the General Electric research laboratories, Schenectady, N. Y.; Donald Mix, who served as radio operator with the MacMillan expedition to the Arctic and maintained constant touch with the radio stations in the United States from his set aboard the Bowdoin; K. E. Hassel, one of the pioneers in the "low loss" field of research, and many others.

Coming from Abroad.

Every phase of radio work will come under discussion during the convention, and delegates from every state in the Union, as well as most provinces of Canada, are expected. From abroad will come still other radio enthusiasts, and advance reservations at the Edgewater Beach hotel indicate that amateurs from England, France, Spain, Mexico, South Africa, South America, and Australia will arrive in Chicago for this big biennial affair.

Those attending the convention will hear described not only the details of emergency work by amateurs in Santa Barbara at the time of the recent disaster, but also the story of how Tate of station 9BLO of Harrisburg, Ill., kept in touch with Schweitzer of station 9AAW of Chicago to supply the only means of reaching the tornado stricken district of southern Illinois last spring. They will hear how Dr. A. Hoyt Taylor of the naval research laboratories in Washington, D. C., communicated on low wave lengths with Operator F. H. Schnell aboard the Seattle, flagship of the Pacific fleet, during the recent naval war game in the vicinity of Hawaii; and of how Donald Mix of the MacMillan expedition sent and received from his little radio station aboard the Bowdoin far up in the polar regions.

Officers of Association.

The present officers of the Chicago Radio Traffic association are W. E. Schweitzer, president; Paul H. Davis, vice president; R. C. Schweitzer, secretary-treasurer, and Orlando Nichols, sergeant at arms. The office of the secretary is at 4264 Hazel avenue, Chicago. The committee appointed to arrange for the convention and look after the welfare of the visiting delegates consists of W. E. Schweitzer, chairman, and F. J. Hinds, O. Nichols, R. Woolsey, R. C. Schweitzer, R. H. G. Mathews, L. M. E. Clausing, Paul H. Davis, and M. H. Romberg.

BRITISH PLAN LAW THAT BARS RADIO RECORDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 15. — A bill introduced into parliament proposes to make it definately illegal for any one to make an unauthorized phonograph record of the broadcast programs of any artist from British stations.

A number of records have been made by enthusiastic listeners-in to preserve their favorite dance tunes played by the Savoy Orpheans popular orchestra or other orchestras. Several records of British bands made by American amateurs have been received in London.

It is already illegal to offer such records for sale. If the bill goes through, as is expected, it will be a punishable offense to make such records even for private use. The bill will protect phonograph companies, individual artists and concert promoters.

CONFERENCE ON RADIO THIS FALL, HOOVER DECIDES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 15.—[Special.]—A radio conference will be held this fall in Washington, Secretary of Commerce Hoover announced upon his return from his California vacation. The date has not yet been fixed, but reports that there would be no annual conference are not true, Secretary Hoover said. It is understood that Judge S. B. Davis, the solicitor of the department, and officials of the radio section advised strongly against another conference, fearing, probably, that it would either get out of hand or complicate matters to a greater extent than at present.

Secretary Hoover is expected, however, to present to the conference definite suggestions regarding the future guidance of the industry, inasmuch as he has personally taken the matter out of the hands of his staff.

RADIO TO GUARD FLYERS IN THEIR JUMP TO HAWAII

Elaborate radio plans are under way for the one day non-stop flight of navy seaplanes from the west coast to Hawaii Sept. 1. The starting point will be either San Diego or San Francisco. Eleven warships will be stationed along the route between California and Hawaii.

In addition to the protection afforded by the navy ships, arrangements will be made for merchant vessels along the line of flight to keep a sharp lookout.

Each of the three will be equipped with a radio transmitter and receiver, working only on 550 kilocycles, and the crew of each plane will include an experienced radio operator.

Inside the— Loud Speaker

with Quin A. Ryan, the Voice of W-G-N

HERE are some thumbnail sketches of people you know in the radio field in and around Chicago:

Logan "Steve" Trumbull, chief announcer of KYW, was formerly a reporter on the Chicago Daily Journal [Dem.], but looks 21.

In his time Steve has been all around the world or somewhere; he was wounded in the battle of Chickamauga, and as a result speaks several languages feverishly.

He is fond of cracking peanuts, so he is unmarried and belongs to an exclusive club. He likes nothing better, when he has finished his day's labors in the radio studio and has trudged wearily homeward, than to part his hair.

Walter "Uncle Bob" Wilson, the children's story man at KYW, is the inventor of the quaint human habit of eating.

Walter is the founder of the fraternal order of Singer's Midgets, but lost his amateur standing. He is the only radio singer who didn't write "Dardanella."

The children love Walter; there isn't a child who wouldn't give him the whole lemonade stand. He is Santa Claus' big brother.

Uncle Bob is happily married and belongs to two exclusive clubs. He likes nothing better, when he has finished his day's labors in the radio studio and has trudged wearily homeward, than to run into a barbecue.

Harry Geise, director of WIBO, was born at 6310 Broadway, and wrote "How Do You Do" while he was still a member of the G. A. R. At the age of 11 Harry learned to make change, and since then has been illustrating for magazines, using the name of Maxfield Parrish.

His favorite hobby is spinning tops.

He lives on a farm in Wisconsin, is happily married, and the father of Dan Russo and Ted Fiorito. He likes nothing better, when he has finished his day's labors in the radio studio and has trudged wearily homeward, than to belong to three exclusive clubs.

Henry Selinger, musical director of W-G-N, founded the Ancient Order of Hibernians, but resigned many years later. He is an authority on the subject of inkwells, and is the author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and "Main Street."

Hardened old sailor that he is, he still is just a boy at heart and spends his lunch hour climbing trees. He is happily married and belongs to four exclusive clubs. He likes nothing better, when he has finished his day's labors in the radio studio and has trudged wearily homeward, than to hear a few sopranos.

Interview Made Easy.

Another innovation in radio is announced by the Drake hotel. Lines have been strung from all floors to the radio station on its top floor for the accommodation of visiting celebrities if they will permit themselves to be "radio-interviewed." In less than three minutes a microphone can be placed before the chair of a guest in his room, plugged into the wall socket on his floor and his answers to an interviewer's questions broadcast to the four winds. (Other hotels please copy.)

Jabberwocky.

The radio announcers of New York City and its commutable environs must be a roguishly loquacious lot of ballyhooers.

The ballyhooey before and after musical offerings has gone so far rampant in the eastern stations that even the editorialists of the newspapers are viewing with alarm.

Bruno Lessing, on the editorial page of the New York American, consecrates his column to the proposition that announcers are too gabby; that their function is that of a butler—and not the life of the party.

A considerable acreage of the editorial page of the New York World was devoted recently to exhorting announcers to pipe down: "The time has come to tackle another public question: Why do we have radio announcers? It is true, if the radio announcer confined himself to the job in hand, he would perform a useful service. He tells the station that is broadcasting, the title of the piece and the name of the singer, and that much is worth knowing. But he does not stop there. He aspires to bravura and puts artistic touches on his work. He tells you what time it is, and why the lady lecturer was run out of Russia, and what the two Irishmen said when they went into the hotel. . . . Altogether, taking everything into consideration, radio announcers overstep themselves. They should employ the technique of train announcers: a clear, distinct tone of voice and an impersonal manner. Otherwise, there will be a movement that they be abolished, or possibly we shall have a law against them."

Talky Announcers.

The radio critic of the New York Herald-Tribune, who confines his reviews in the main to his local stations, is annoyed enough to write in a magazine:

"If there is one thing in this wide, wide world that stirs these old bones to action it is a talky announcer possessed with the notion that he is about the wittiest thing on the air and that, were it not for his literary pie-throwing, his station would be about the saddest spectacle in airdom. Short, easy, facile announcements in a well modulated voice, with an occasional salting of witticism, register strongly in this neck of the woods. There is one announcer up at WGY who just tickles us all over. Some of our worthis seem to think that the interim between features should be stretched out and filled up with a heavy brand of arid hokum designed to send the listeners into prolonged fits of laughter. There is a technique to being cheery and there is a technique to being humorous, but there is no technique to the incessant unloading of parlor wise cracks. Let us have more announcing and less talking!"

Moral of It All.

And the moral is that, although we in Chicago have twice as many stations as New York and its environs, our announcers have now had the editorial writers of the newspapers threatening to call the constabulary down upon them for their long-windedness. Take any of them—Hay, Boneil, Kaney, Sullivan, Hager or Geise—you may like or not like their manners of speech, but the Chicago announcers cannot be accused of vaudeville cutups or orgies of elocution.

They know that announcers should be heard and not felt!

CRICKET DOES HIS STUFF, HORNING IN ON CHIMES BROADCAST

Radio fans listening to WSAI program a few nights ago at Cincinnati secured an added feature that was not scheduled or even announced over the air by Mrs. C. Raine, who is assisting Paul A. Greene before the microphone.

Announcement of the chime concert had been made and Robert Badgle, chime soloist, began playing "I Can't Tell Why I Love You, but I Do" when a wee small voice joined in the chorus in perfect harmony with a modulated chirp, chirp, chirp. Investigation by operators of WSAI brought to light that a cricket was nonchalantly poised before the microphone doing his stuff.

MORE ATTENTION GIVEN TO RADIO SCIENCE BY TECH

More and more attention is being given radio by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Cambridge. As the time available does not permit of a detailed study of the various circuits used in radio work, because of their large number and rapid changes, emphasis is placed upon the theory of operation and the physical characteristics of the various pieces of equipment, and upon methods for testing and experimentally determining the characteristics of such equipment. The knowledge thus gained is equally applicable in the fields of radio, carrier telephony, and ordinary telephony, and is therefore the more valuable.

FINE CROPS IN TORNADO ZONE DUE TO RELIEF

Financial aid given the farmers in the tornado stricken area of Indiana has resulted in fine crops, despite the temporary handicap, and a renewed morale among the farmers, according to a report made to Samuel R. Guard, director of the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural foundation, whose radio station, WSL, raised a total of $214,000 for storm relief. The report was sent by James G. Covert, manager of the farm bureau relief depot of the Indiana Farm Bureau federation, through which part of the WSL Listeners' relief fund was distributed in rehabilitating Indiana farms wrecked by the tornado.

LOW-LOSS
ISOLANTITE BASE
borrowed from the war by De Forest Exclusively
DURING the war, a more nearly perfect insulating material for airplane spark plugs was needed. The French discovered Isolantite, an artificial quartz with insulating properties from 8 to 50 times as great as ordinary compositions. De Forest has secured the exclusive right to use Isolantite for radio tube bases. This means added volume and quality of reproduction, because the full signal strength is delivered to the tube instead of ebbing away in part at the base.
Sold only by authorized DeForest dealers who display this sign.

BOLIVIA BOASTS RADIO HEAVEN; STATIC UNKNOWN

La Paz Is the Place, Two Miles Up.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 15.—At last the fan's Utopia has been discovered. With radio reaching La Paz, Bolivia, the highest capital in the world, it has been found to be a city free from static. It is because of the altitude, for this South American capital is situated in the heart of the Andes more than two miles above sea level.

So the possibilities of radio there are regarded as beyond imagination, especially since the Bolivians are home loving people. They gather in their homes in the evenings with friends and neighbors and enjoy the phonograph, which is everywhere; the piano, and violin. They are music loving and interested in the outside world.

Americans Bring Radio.

But the radio has been slow in reaching there. Ten years ago the government installed twelve wireless stations which were used for governmental purposes. Until six months ago an impression prevailed that radio would interfere with the governmental use of the wireless, that it would pick up strictly confidential messages going over the wireless. The government, therefore, was disposed to be adverse to radio. But in La Paz the Methodists of the United States support two large colleges known as the American institutes. The teachers are all from the United States and the young Bolivians who attend learn English and learn it well.

Six months ago a Professor Smith, in charge of the classes in physics, built and installed a radio set and it didn't interfere with wireless. It became the wonder of his classes. It is now in operation. It picks up Buenos Aires and other South American stations and Havana and Pittsburgh are also heard.

President's Brother a Fan.

Now Dr. Roberto Villanueva, brother of the newly elected president, Dr. Jose Villaneuva, has come along. Dr. Roberto with another brother is a civil engineer and they have fitted up a large radio outfit in the engineer's home which picks up stations 3,000 miles away.

And it so happens that Dr. Roberto Villaneuva is the minister of hacienda or finance, who controls matters as to import taxes, and he has just issued, with the consent of President Saavendra, a decree fixing a tax of 1.80 bolivianos, or about 60 cents U. S. currency, on radios per kilogram (2.2 pounds) for their admission, thus formally and legally arranging the import tax and thereby admitting them.

AMATEURS CAN GET SHENANDOAH DURING FLIGHT

Washington, D. C., Aug. 15.—When the U. S. navy dirigible Shenandoah makes its cross country flight into the northwest about the second week in September, amateurs will have their first opportunity to hear what is believed to be the most powerful airship transmitting set in the world. The new apparatus is now being installed at Lakehurst, N. J.

According to present plans the Shenandoah will make the flight which was previously undertaken by the Los Angeles, which had to turn back because of engine trouble. The general route will be to Minneapolis and St. Paul, by way of Detroit.

Inasmuch as the Shenandoah's new set is expected to be heard from 8,000 to 9,000 miles, there is every indication that it may be picked up by amateurs all over the United States and Canada.

Alleged Radio Monopoly Hearings Sept. 15, Maybe

It is understood the frequently postponed federal trade commission hearings of the alleged radio monopoly may be held in New York City about Sept. 15.

INDIA STRIVES TO BE POWER IN RADIO WORLD

LONDON, Aug. 15.—India plans to become a big nation in the radio world. Hitherto this country, with eight times the population of Britain, has been occupied with radio only in a rudimentary way. The radio clubs of the great ports and one or two large centers have made a beginning by broadcasting concerts and other items, but the stations are small and can do little more than serve the cities in which they are located, leaving the vast outside spaces untouched.

Now it is announced here that applications for permission to establish a wireless broadcasting company in India will be received by the director general of posts and telegraphs, wireless branch, Simla, up to Aug. 31, together with applications for a separate company for Burma. The government will require that at least 60 per cent of the capital be offered for subscription in India and that a majority of the directors must reside in British India.

A license will be granted for a period of ten years, with a broadcasting monopoly during the first five years. No restriction and no monopoly will be permitted as regards manufacture and sale of apparatus, which should be of interest to American wireless firms.

The Pearl Headed Pin

by Roy Vickers

INSTALLMENT I.

RIPE BEAUTY

It was early afternoon on an Easter bank holiday. In the parks—bereft of any hint of green—determined holiday makers walked briskly, challenging the east wind and the gray sky; the streets were for the most part empty, swept clean of idling crowds by the bleak weather.

"Surprisingly cold for the time of year," murmured Colonel Hallett.

Colonel and Mrs. Hallett, sitting companionably over their coffee, were not in the least inconvenienced by the inclemency of the elements; in their luxurious, well ordered, leisurely life cold winds and dark skies could so easily be circumvented—if the cold really grew too great they could, for instance, slip away to some southern land and find summer there. But Colonel Hallett had for so many years hidden an active mind behind a platitudinous manner that he dropped his little commonplaces even when alone with his wife.

Mrs. Hallett did not mind in the least; she understood her husband absolutely and loved as absolutely as she understood. She ignored his comment on the weather, knowing his thoughts were in reality still on the subject that held hers—the reconstruction of her fine old house in Chelsea. Critically, she held out a sample of peacock blue brocade.

"This for the little drawing room?" she asked. "With white walls, picked out with gold, just to lighten the room a trifle? Mr. March told me he could see no satisfactory way of windowing that room; whatever is done in the end about the courtyard, the little drawing room will be on the dark side, he fears. . . . You're making faces at the peacock blue, George, but that's because it clashes with this abominable room."

Colonel Hallett glanced 'round the drawing room. They had taken this flat furnished while the structural alterations to Cordways House were being carried out and, like most people of decided tastes and ample income, they were heartily impatient of its defects, although to many eyes the rose and cream paneling and dull green draperies were pleasant enough.

"I wasn't making faces at the brocade, my dear. I like peacock blue; always have. What you mistook for a grimace was my absorption in the movements of your fingers. You told me twenty years ago that I should not admire your hands when I was forty-five. Well, I shall be forty-five next Friday—when you will, I hope, remember that I very much want a new traveling flask. And I still think your hands the most beautiful I have ever seen."

Mrs. Hallett blushed delightedly and strove to hide the blush by a display of indignation.

"You old fraud! You say things like that when you happen to think of them, because you never notice me when I really look nice. When have you ever even known the color of the thing I was wearing?"

"I couldn't describe what you're wearing at this moment, but I know you look exactly right in it."

Smiling a little, Mrs. Hallett turned her head and studied her reflection in a long mirror to her left. She knew she was beautiful and she reveled in the knowledge, because during her girlhood she had been merely "good looking." Later, in the early twenties, life had dealt hardly with her, and her good looks had almost vanished, leaving her only grace of movement and her inborn distinction of build and carriage. Then had come her marriage to Colonel Hallett, and gradually the happiness it brought had widened her deep gray eyes, coaxed the curves of youth back into her face, and laid a ripe beauty upon her lips. Her hair alone had refused to retain its rich copper hue, and so, wisely, she had had it bleached to a dead white, thus enhancing the delicate coloring of her cheeks and the darkness of her arched brows. She was forty-two and looked thirty-five—and would continue to look thirty-five for the next twenty years.

Her mind, wandering from the present to the past, was abruptly switched back to the present by an unpleasant recollection. She realized, by her husband's instant concern, that her face had betrayed her.

"Not sad thoughts, Margaret? A penny for 'em, dearest."

"A paragraph in the Times this morning. I think you must have missed it." From a revolving rack by her hand she took the newspaper, folded it back, and passed it to him. "The one in small type in the corner of the page."

Colonel Hallett took the paper and read:

"FAMOUS CRIME RECALLED.

"The release today of John Selkirk, who has completed the full term of twenty years under a commuted death sentence, recalls what was one of the most sensational crimes of the day. Selkirk was charged jointly with another man, Henry Ledway, with the murder of a prosperous company director. Ledway, knowing arrest to be imminent, failed to warn his confederate, and himself fled from London to Newcastle. Here he was arrested by a Scotland Yard detective, who handcuffed his prisoner to his own wrist, intending to remain so throughout the journey. The journey, however, was never completed, for after passing Brayden the train left the rails at high speed and crashed down a steep embankment. In the disaster, one of the worst in the history of our railways, over forty passengers lost their lives—amongst them being Ledway and the detective, whose bodies were recovered, burned almost beyond recognition, but still handcuffed together.

"Both criminals were men of education and respectability, and the motive of the crime was the unusual one of commercial rivalry in the exploitation of a patent building process—which subsequently proved to be of no value. Selkirk was tried after the death of his confederate, and though his guilt was abundantly clear, a commutation was granted in the special circumstances."

Colonel Hallett laid down the paper and looked gravely at his wife.

HERE is a smoothly written, well constructed mystery story especially designed to make your backbone feel like an icicle. It is written by Roy Vickers, a man who has mastered the technique of the mystery story. He knows how to jam excitement into every installment—how to give each chapter a kick—and still produce a story whose main theme is undisturbed.

You'll enjoy "The Pearl Headed Pin." It is presented in short, daily installments in The Tribune especially for fiction lovers who have little time for extended reading. The story is laid in England and the characters include ex-convicts, sedate society folk and young adventurous lovers.

This absorbing tale of murder and tangled evidence begins in tomorrow's Tribune. Don't miss the thrills that are coming to you! Part of the first installment appears at the left. Read it now and continue the story in tomorrow's issue of highly interesting and important question of Poe's influence as a critic. He was, in point of plain fact, the most powerful and original critic that we have yet produced. Prejudiced, bombastic, and often downright disingenuous, he yet saw clearly what was sound and what was not sound, and his expositions of the difference between the one and the other remain almost unmatched for shrewdness and pungency to this day.

By H. L. Mencken.

Yet the mark that he made upon the American criticism of his time was so faint that, at this distance, it is almost impossible to detect it. The instant he died his enemies closed in over his grave, and it was almost two generations before his main critical ideas began to win any general acceptance. American criticism, during that time, followed the lead not of Poe himself but of his chief enemy, Rufus Griswold, an almost fabulous incompetent—a Baptist preacher turned arbiter in letters. When I was a boy in school, and beginning to be concerned about books, the dominant critics of the land were all Griswoldians: Stedman, Stoddard, Mabie, Howells, and their kind. I had to discover Poe [that is, as a critic] for myself; there was absolutely nothing in the textbooks about him, and his ideas, when I encountered them at last, seemed as strange as if they came from some remote and fantastic land.

One of Many Problems.

The problem of Poe as critic is only one branch of the general Poe problem. The historian of the national letters, when he comes, must give a large part of his attention to it. In the existing books both Poe's origin and his influence are treated superficially. He is usually hooked to E. T. A. Hoffmann, now chiefly remembered as the protagonist of the opera "Hoffmann's Tales." But the evidence for the relationship is almost as slight, it seems to me, as that which once connected Dreiser with Zola and the Russians. Poe and Hoffmann both dealt with the fantastic, but there their likeness ended.

Nor is there much more sense in the common belief — especially strong among literary pedagogues—that Poe was the father of the American short story. The truth is that the American short story, in so far as it has any peculiarities at all, differs enormously from anything that Poe ever wrote. It concerns itself, in the main, with matters that didn't interest him, and it approaches them in a way that is as far from his own manner as anything could be. If you seek a model for its structure in his works, you will seek in vain, and if you look for any foreshadowing of its psychological approach you will waste your time even more surely. In all the line of American short story writers, in fact, there is not a single one who shows any debt to Poe. Imitators of him, of course, exist, but they are all anonymous hacks writing for the cheap magazines.

Nor is there much more sign of his influence as a poet. The Longfellow-Whittier wash obliterated him in that department, as the Griswold wash obliterated him as a critic. In the latter case he was rescued and revived years afterward, and today his influence upon American criticism is very strong — in fact, immensely stronger than his influence upon so-called creative writing, whether in prose or in verse. As a poet, indeed, he was only a bugle blast in a lonely wood. When the American poetasters of today look backward it is always Whitman that they see, and not Poe.

Of His Country and Day.

As I have said, the new literary history that I describe, if it is to be worth anything, must relate the history of American letters to the general history of the American people, not merely by a few obvious bridges, but intimately and constantly. One of the chief defects in the existing textbooks, next after their general stupidity, is their complete failure to do this. They depict the man of letters as a man without a country. In the case of such men as Poe and Hawthorne they even stress the point, and argue fatuously that some merit is hidden in it.

But there is little in the facts to support it. Despite his apparent strangeness, Poe was not merely a sound American; he was, in many ways, an almost typical one. And he was an American of one particular time—to wit: the era of Andrew Jackson. It would not be absurd, indeed, to contend that he reflected some of its salient peculiarities almost as brilliantly as Davy Crockett. Taking him as he stood, and remembering his limitations as well as his competencies, it must be manifest that he belonged thoroughly to his country and his day. It would be hard to think of him as an Englishman, and it would be impossible to think of him as a German or a Frenchman.

No man can escape such influences even though he flee them. Who tried harder to throw them off than Henry James? And who remained under them more plainly? James, in fact, was almost the archetypical New Englander of the Puritan Dämmerung. In him, even more than in Barrett Wendell, the abject colonialism of decaying Boston reached its most mortuary flower. The fact is so plain that actual professors begin to notice it. Facts like it must be kept to the fore when the history of the national letters is written. For when they are forgotten, the result is always what we have now: literary history that has no history in it, and is unaware of the forces that shape literature.

The Voice of the Movie Fan

Movies and Budgets.

Dear Miss Tinée: Several years ago the movies seldom interested me, and never enough to prompt me to spend my energy, pen, and paper writing on the subject. But since then I married and I find that the glorious movies, like the radio, are the only form of entertainment that fit without too much crowding in our budget.

Your nice, cheerful column has endeared itself to me, too, along with the movies, and there is one thing so fine about your reviews. If the picture is poor you say so, and if it is good you don't pick it to pieces before you grudgingly tell us.

I cannot forget Mary Brian in "The Little French Girl." How sweet and naive she is. I hope she always gets such parts. And there is Richard Dix. He remains so sincere and likeable, even though he is a first rate star with the plot built around him and the players all helping him to show his personality off. I read an article not long ago by Virginia Valli and she lamented on the public's demand for new faces in the movies. The public pays for those new faces, as well as everything else the movies offer.

Without that "unfair" public there would be no movies, and it's only natural we enjoy a new personality who is pleasing to us. I hate to say it, but I'm bored with some of the old stars. I've seen them so often I know all their little bag of tricks. I hope we see lots of new faces in the movies.

Sincerely, H. H.

[Editor's Note: The movies ARE a blessing for those who crave entertainment on a modest budget, aren't they? So glad you wrote, H. H.]

We Thank You.

Dear Mae Tinee: What a wonderful actress is Anna Q. Nilsson! I have just returned from seeing her in "The One Way Street," and if I had missed that picture I think I would have cried real salt tears.

That was a picture that the public wants—nothing sexy about Miss Nilsson or the picture either. It was just a true to life picture.

May your corner never be put out because we want your advice.

G. R.

[Editor's Note: Nice letter.]

Women the World Over

At the age of 78 years Dr. Eliza M. Mosher of Brooklyn, N. Y., who has just completed fifty years of continuous practice as a physician, is the oldest practicing physician in the United States.

Mme. Chanzy, widow of Gen. Antoine E. A. Chanzy, finds that 12,000 francs a year is not enough for her to live upon, and has asked the French government to increase her pension to 18,000 francs a year.

Mrs. Elizabeth Holdane of Cloan, Scotland, who has just attained her 100th birthday, is considered the most remarkable woman in Scotland, being a keen student of world politics.

The long stride taken in walking by Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, wife of the President, has now become a fashion among the summer colony at Swampscott.

Despite the fact that she is totally blind, Miss Elsie Turnbull operates sixteen company telephones and five trunk lines for a St. Louis firm, using a specially designed switchboard, with bells and buzzers of graded tones.

Mlle. Odette Pauvert, aged 22 years, is the first woman painter to be awarded the "Grand Prix de Rome" of the Academy of the Fine Arts in Paris.

A Record of Leadership Maintained by the
BUSH CONSERVATORY
CHICAGO

Kenneth M. Bradley
President

Edgar A. Nelson
Vice-President

THE retrospect of the past year's successes is well in keeping with the traditions of the Bush Conservatory. Its mission has always been one of leadership—evidenced in many ways. It was the first to establish a Master School—first to install student dormitories, and the prestige of its Symphony Orchestra is enough alone to give premier standing to any school of music and dramatic art.

It is not only an accredited institution offering all departments of music, with courses leading to certificates, diplomas and degrees; by constant expansion, such as the absorption of the Lyceum Arts Conservatory, it has developed from field to field through the range of the expressional arts.

THE DEPARTMENT OF MUSIC
Has Pupils from All Over the World

This department has attracted pupils from forty-three states in this country and from twenty-one foreign nations.

Free Tuition in the Master School

Under the patronage of Mr. Samuel E. Moist, the Master School offers free tuition to advanced students in Piano, Voice, Violin and Composition. The students are taught by artists of international reputation.

Free and Partial Scholarships will be awarded this season to a large number of talented music students whose means are limited, and who are not sufficiently advanced to qualify for the Master School.

DRAMATIC DEPARTMENT
Graduates in Demand

Elias Day, Director, Department of Dramatic Art and Stagecraft, and formerly President of the Lyceum Arts Conservatory, has placed 26 dramatic companies on the road in the last 3 years, and a larger number of concert companies. These professional appointments are mentioned simply as an illustration of the character and quality of the instruction given.

Day and Evening Instruction

Private and class instruction in all branches of Music, Dramatic Art, Stagecraft, Expression, Public School Music, Opera, Dancing and Languages. Special instruction for children.

Promotional Credit for School Teachers

Student Dormitories for Women and Men

Real Home Life TODD 78th Year

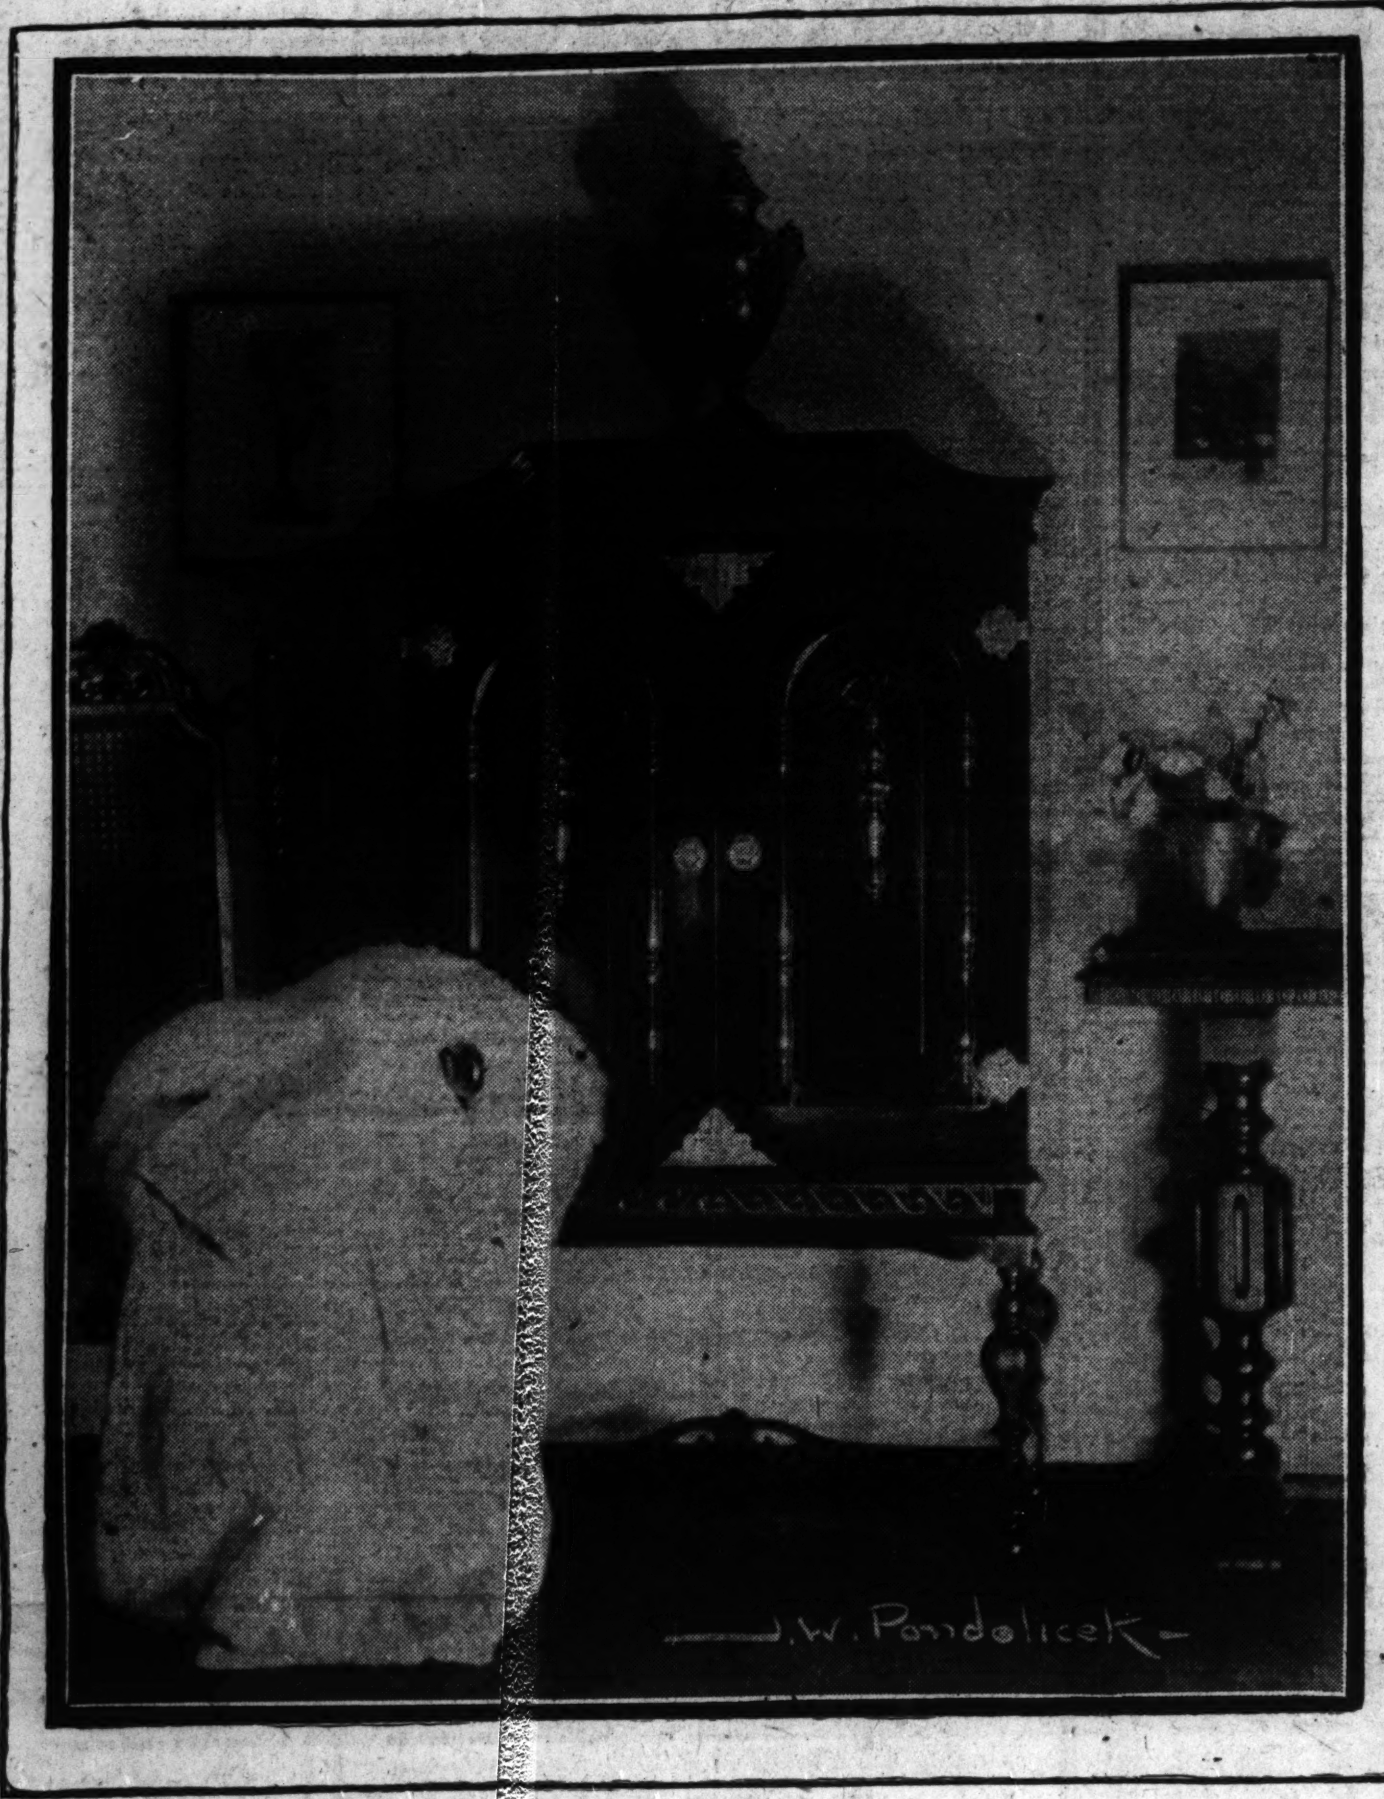
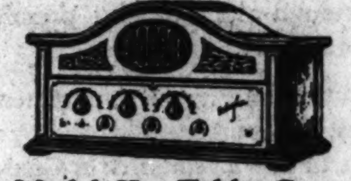
Todd is unique. Boys 6 to 16. Faculty of 20 for 100 boys. 1 hr. from Chicago. Noble Hill, Prin. Woodstock, Ill.

Now you will really enjoy radio

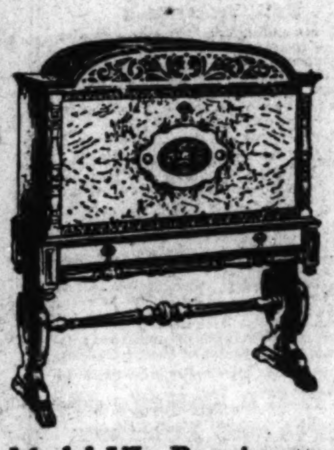


Just a hint of the elegance and beauty of the Buckingham is shown in this rich, massive English Tudor Console, Model VII. 56½" high—31½" wide—16¾" deep. Price $350

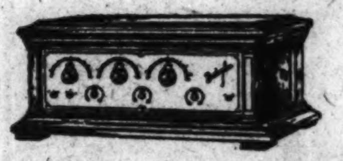
Beautiful programs that you have never been able to hear before, come in with a clarity and richness surpassing any reception you have ever enjoyed. Interference is a thing of the past.



Model II—Table Console, 31" wide, 19½" high, 15½" deep. Price $150.

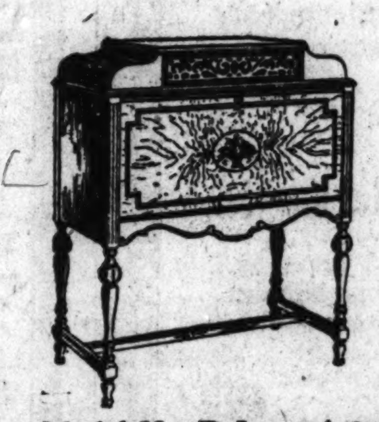


Model VI—Renaissance Art Model Console, 48" high, 39" wide, 17½" deep. Price $350.

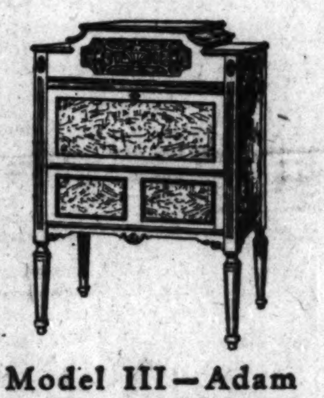


Model I—Table Style, 31½" wide, 13⅛" high, 14¼" deep. Price $125.

Radio in a Tiffany setting is what Buckingham offers you. Here's cabinetwork so exquisite with rare inlays of precious woods, such fidelity in period reproduction, that you will gladly move out your best piece of furniture if necessary, to make room for your Buckingham.

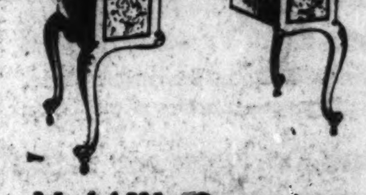


Model V—DeLuxe Art Model Console, 45" high, 37" wide, 20" deep. Price $295.



Model III—Adam Period Console, 47" high, 31" wide, 16" deep. Price $215.

All prices quoted less tubes and batteries.



Model IV—Queen Anne Console, 40" high, 42" wide, 17" deep. Price $275.

FINALLY, a receiving set has been built that elevates radio to the plane of the cello, the pipe organ, the violin. It is a veritable musical instrument itself, producing even the finest shadings in overtones. Grace notes dance out with all their original delicacy.

If you are not prepared to discard your present radio set, or to pass it along to some needy person—do not hear or see the Buckingham. For here's radio in a Tiffany setting. Cabinetwork so exquisite with rare inlays of precious wood parquetry, that you will unhesitatingly move out the best piece of furniture you possess, if necessary, to make room for a Buckingham Console.

Hear just one bar of music

If you are a newcomer to radio and its technical terms are meaningless jargon—or if you have heard the best to date and remain skeptical—then by all means hear a Buckingham demonstration. One single spoken sentence, or one bar of music from the special inbuilt speaker will revise all your conceptions of radio.

Music is reproduced with such fidelity that you forget you are not in the presence of the musicians. You sense their presence so strongly that you find yourself as reluctant to tune out for another station, as to interrupt a program at Orchestra Hall. Even conversation in your own living room during reception will strike you as almost rude.

Simple to get station you enjoy

All this marvelous beauty holds true for every station within receiving range. When you tune in on Buckingham it is silent night for every other broadcaster but the one you want. Instead of having most of the stations overlapping and crowding each other as on the dials of all other sets, Buckingham distributes all stations evenly, from the lowest to the highest. Interference is a thing of the past. Anyone can tune in on a Buckingham.

If you do not find Buckingham on display in the finest store in town, mail the coupon for our beautiful illustrated catalog and name of exclusive dealer in your community. Buckingham dealers welcome those who prefer to buy their radio on deferred payments.

DEALERS: A delay of even a day may cost you double the business you did last year

Our representatives are covering the territory as fast as train schedules permit. Invariably every town is closed on the first call. If you rank among the first two radio dealers in your community and our salesman has not yet reached you, write today for first rights to consider the Buckingham exclusive franchise plan, backed up with an intensive advertising and merchandising campaign of unusual character. Promptest action is necessary. A delay of even a day may cost you double the business you did last year.

Dealers are cordially invited to visit our Radio Salon conveniently located on the 19th floor of the Straus Building, corner Mich. Ave. and Jackson Boul., Chicago.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

MISS BETTY MARSHALL MISS WINIFRED SMITH MISS ELIZABETH BOYDEN

[H. S. Reick Photos.]

Miss Betty Marshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin H. Marshall of 49 East Cedar street, is to be presented at a tea on the afternoon of Sept. 4, from 4 until 7 o'clock, at the spacious and unusual studio of her father bordering the Wilmette harbor.

The gardens of the William Cowper Boyden residence in Winnetka will be the setting for a tea on Sept. 12, when their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Boyden, will be presented to their friends. The possibility of Mr. Boyden being named ambassador to Japan, to succeed the late Edgar A. Bancroft, will lend color to this debutante's first season, whether it comes to pass or not.

Miss Winifred Smith is another debutante who will make her formal debut at a ball to be given on Dec. 18 at the Blackstone by her father, Walter B. Smith of 1200 Lake Shore drive. Miss Smith is spending the summer with her grandmother, Mrs. Byron Laflin Smith of Lake Forest.

Eastern Seaside Society's Favorite Summer Rendezvous

By Mme. X.

HERE we are past the middle of August and the taste for summer's not dulled or sated in the least! It's been such a cheerful, beneficent season, without extreme heat or cold or rain, that the dweller in this part of the world has the same sensation as that of a man or woman mated to an equable, serene, and entirely lovable fellow being.

The apples that hang in gorgeous crimson among the olive tinted leaves of the tree just outside my window are daily dropping, slowly, one at a time, in a stately sort of fashion, unmindful of whether they cast themselves in front of crushing automobiles or hide their glory under the hedge. At night in wakeful moments I hear them plop-plop onto the grass or roadway, as the stars whirl by above and the little birds squeak in the vines that cover my summer resort. It is the moment of Nature's fulfillment of promises.

It is also the moment of the year when the majority—in fact, one might say, everyone—composing the so-called gay world, subsides from what sometimes amounts to a frenzied speed of entertaining and being entertained, is content with few social dates, delights in the exceeding peace of evenings at home, of luncheons in the bosom of the family, and relaxes tired muscles and taut nerves. Whether one enjoys this balm of tranquillity at home or abroad, it is of all the year's experiences the sanest, sweetest, most choice.

A cheerful quartet, the Joseph Cudahys and the Watson Armours, departed last Monday for a fortnight's visit with the Frank Hibbards at Watch Hill, R. I. Dr. Frank Billings and his daughter, Mrs. George Nichols, and her two boys, also have a cottage there. It has long been a favorite seaside resort for Chicago folk, who delight in its sea bathing, its quaint charm, and in the old traditions of the place, for it has been popular with easterners for many generations as a place for a family holiday. New Yorkers, Bostonians, Philadelphians have long made it their summer rendezvous, and a pleasantly gay society has become a feature of the season there.

Chicagoans at Hyannisport.

Hyannisport, too, farther along on the same coast, has had its quota of our fellow citizens. The George S. Paysons have for many years been devoted residents there, and their house on the windswept hilltop is one of the chief gathering places of the clans. The William Secor Cunninghams and the Thornhill Broomes are other Chicagoites who delight in the sunshine, sea views, and opportunities for sailing furnished by Hyannisport. Not far away, at Harichport, the Roseyans Baldwins and John R. Winterbothams have been spending the summer in a couple of cottages. Cape Cod has a flavor all its own. Those lovely, low browed, shingled houses, painted by salt sea breezes a matchless silver; those storm twisted trees, that scramble up and down those squat sand hills; the people themselves, salty and full of character, all combine to create an atmosphere as different as possible from that of our clamorous, vigorous, hustling, soot-ridden community. The smell of the sea is always in the nostrils and the sunsets across salt marshes lure painters from all parts of the land to study and depict.

Many of those vacationists who don't hie themselves to the seashore take their lares and penates to the hills, whence cometh our strength. So enchanted was Mrs. Ralph Poole with the Adirondacks, where she visited Mrs. Noble Brandon Judah lately, that she returned last week, and, with her husband, packed up the family, consisting of four youngsters, and returned to a camp not far from the Judahs for a two weeks' sojourn.

On the eastern side of Lake Champlain, whose western shore bathes the feet of the Adirondacks, Mrs. Howard Gillette, young Howard second, Mrs. Morris Johnston, and Miss Angela Johnston are together in a camp where they are leading the out of door life which is summer's choicest gift to mankind in this part of the world. Nearer home, over at Long Lake, Mich., are other summer campers whose names figure on the winter's social calendars. Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Follansbee and their four children; Mr. and Mrs. William S. Monroe and their son, and Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Armour are all to be found if one penetrates the depths of that thickly wooded and much laked country. There are no dinner parties, no afternoon teas, no bridge luncheons there. There is plenty of time to commune with nature and to read. Such days of loafing, reading, communion with a few friends, cross-country hikes, rowing on, bathing in, and fishing out of the placid little tree-bound lake are the acme of a summer holiday.

Making a Lake.

There are many who delight to get their recreation on the shores of lovely lakes; there are few, who get their recreation out of creating lakes. Of such rare, unusual mortals is Samuel Insull. His times of so-called rest are more replete with activities than most men's busiest moments. Some years ago he built himself a big estate on the southern edge of Libertyville. He modestly called it a farm, just as Ogden Armour calls his almost royal Italian palace and its surrounding park a farm—Mellody farm, to be exact.

Mr. Insull's four or five thousand acre estate is just yclept. "The Insull Farms." He made it a place to which to retire when the world was too much with him. Any other man would have used it for loafing, for rest, for diversion of some type quite remote from what we call business. Not so Mr. Insull. He has never stopped developing the place from every angle. The grounds are extensive and laid out most carefully and with great taste and require the services of a numerous corps of gardeners and under gardeners. The farm itself is run with a precision and efficiency not surpassed in any of his great and famous public utilities. He is, you know, the father of public utilities in this great region of the land. He has steadily stretched out in that district gathering in acres and developing every inch of the ground.

His latest enterprise, however, beats all the others. He is making a little lake in that lakeless country. With a thrift which amounts to genius, he is taking in a perfectly legitimate manner from Peter to pay Paul, as he is digging up and hauling away gravel with which to build the roadbed for his new electric line that is to tap that part of the country lying northwest of Chicago along the Des Plaines river and stretching east and

They show carefully studied details and an intricacy of design that mark them definitely for first Fall wear.

Satins and Silk Crepes, in marvelous new colorings, are chosen for many of the frocks in this extensive collection. Intricacy of cut is noted at once, the line of the gown depending on subtle drapes and flares. Trimmings, neck-lines, belts, yokes, and hem-lines add an odd and uneven touch. Sleeves are important, characterized by great diversity, and frequently incrusted with bright trimmings. Colorings vary from the dark blues, browns, and blacks to soft shades of blue, violet, green, and gold. This advance presentation is of supreme interest, as it embraces every new style trend at extremely moderate prices.

west of this harmless little stream. And out of the hole thus created in the earth he is making a lake which he is going to surround with a suburban community which can come out on this new electric line and watch the sunset reflected in the waters of this man-made or hand-made lake. It is a scheme which tickles the fancy as nothing else in this world of efficiency and expansion has done for a long time. The project is so perfect, each part of it fits so neatly into the rest, that it gives one the same sense of satisfaction that an ingenious crossword puzzle does.

Death of the Puzzle.

By the way, have the makers of crossword puzzles all died or retired to insane asylums, driven thither by the mental wear and tear of creating these enticing devices? Whereas a year ago our book stalls provided any number of little books with black and white squares and long twin lists of definitions to be clothed in words and fitted into those squares, this year there is none to be found, except in certain newspapers and periodicals which still provide what was one of the most diverting, stimulating pastimes that have sprung up in a lifetime of such. Living as the X family does, a ride of about three-quarters of an hour from town, these crossword puzzles used to provide us with an occupation which made the approach of either end of the trip a swift surprise. This year we still have one or two sources of these left in the ephemeral literature offered by our news stands of which we can avail ourselves on the homecoming trip, but the morning town bound one is unprovided with such a time passer.

But for these diverting puzzles we might never have become familiar with ai, the three toed sloth of South America, or with Ra, the sun god of Egypt. We might have remained ignorant of the fact that a mullay was a muraenoid eel; that Eos was the goddess of dawn, or that a schelm was a scoundrel or a pestilence. The passing of the crossword puzzle is but one more instance of the impermanence of human fads and fancies. It is odd that this experience does not make us less enthusiastic about each new one as it comes along, but it doesn't, though it must be admitted that this summer doesn't seem to have any successor to that passionate occupation of last summer when we traveled the land with dictionaries and waited not for an introduction before we asked entire strangers as to possible words to fit certain definitions. Alas for the fugitive quality of even our most entertaining modes!

The Changing Times.

Among the once seemingly fixed quantities which have become fluid and fugitive are kings and queens. Fifteen years ago we would not have thought they would ever in our time be at a discount, yet such has come to pass. Last winter in Florence a well known Chicago woman, perhaps our best example of a real grande dame, a lovely and much beloved social leader, who had a villa on the slopes leading up to Fiesole, was asked to invite to tea the ex-Queen of Greece, who is the sister of the ex-ruler of Germany, Wilhelm, the second of his brief dynasty. She did not get the name or title of the stranger to whom she was asked to be hospitable, and did not know who it was until the ex-queen's lady in waiting came the following day and asked to see the list of the guests the hostess was expecting as the queen always had to know who was coming to the parties she attended.

The queen, however, wasn't the only one who had to know who was to be among those present. When some of the others who had been invited to this afternoon tea found out that this wandering member of the Hohenzollern family was to be there they declined to be present, which showed an unnecessary resentment not quite in line with the New Testament teachings which bid us forgive our enemies, love them that hate us and so on.

So charmed was the ex-queen with the charming hospitality of the woman from Chicago that she came again and again, and eventually asked her to give a dance for the royal princesses, her daughters, so that they could meet "some nice American young men." Being the soul of kindly hospitality, the Chicagoan did do this and the two young girls enjoyed a party where they were treated like any other dance-loving girls and had a good time.

If anyone had prophesied fifteen years ago that any American woman would have declined to meet kings and queens because she did not like royal politics it would have been hard to find a person inclined to take stock in such a wild prediction.

A Marriage of Note.

There are many in Chicago's gay world who remember that agreeable and cheerful young architect, Henry Outhout Millikin, who lived here a decade or so ago. These will be interested to hear of his engagement and approaching marriage to Miss Harriet Paige Greene, daughter of the George de Boketen Greenes, of Cherry Valley, Otsego county, N. Y. The wedding is to take place on Saturday, Sept. 5, at the home of the bride's parents. The bride herself has a more than customary claim on the attention of the public as she is the granddaughter of Capt. George Dana Greene, who commanded the Monitor at the celebrated battle of the Monitor and the Merrimac in the James river when the little hornet stung the big bumble bee to death. Mr. Millikin has made his home in New York since he left here, so it is probable that the newlyweds will settle down there after their honeymoon.

The Greenes have a charming old house, part of which dates to the revolutionary era, in a lovely and secluded valley not far from Otsego lake, where Mrs. Arthur Ryerson has her beautiful country place, Ringwood. That region is one of the most picturesque and historic in New York state. James Fenimore Cooper filled it with romance and adventure in his famous novels about the red man and his conflict with the white man. Besides this, some of the most important battles of the revolutionary war were fought there. In this district Gen. Herkimer led his half trained, but wholly brave and loyal troops time after time against the highly trained and well equipped Britishers and ultimately broke the back of the English hold on the eastern states at the same time that Gen. George Washington was opposing them in New Jersey and Pennsylvania. A small New York town and large and fragrant cheese now bear Gen. Herkimer's name on to posterity.

A Night to Remember.

Ye gods and little fishes! What a gorgeous rendering of that tremendous little opera, "Pagliacci," was given last week by Mlle. Bori and Signor Martinelli! We shall never hear its like again unless this gifted pair unites once more in rendering it, and two such preëminent stars are too much for even so generous an impresario as Signor Eckstein to present to an audience twice in a season. Danise also must be included in the panegyrics evoked by that evening. His Tonio was as masterly in its way as any interpretation given at Ravinia this summer.

In fact, it is not out of place to call attention to the delightfully competent and artistic handling of lesser rôles as presented by such able actors and highly trained singers as Desiré Defrere, Paltriniere, D'Angelo, and the rest of this splendid troupe. They are as finished and careful in what they do as their more famous contemporaries.

MRS. ARTHUR WOLFORD.

[Ise Photo.]

Miss Evenly Ross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ross, was married on Aug. 7 to Dr. Arthur Wolford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wolford of Hyde Park. Dr. and Mrs. Wolford have gone on a wedding journey to British Columbia and will reside at 7034 Crandon avenue upon their return.

IMPORTANCE OF WATER POWER

THE scale on which the world's water powers have been explored and developed during the last ten years is one of the most significant engineering features of the decade. Three times as much water power is used now as was used ten years ago. The advance has naturally been most rapid in those countries which have depended in the past for their power largely on imported fuel —where "white coal" may be substituted for black. Thus France has added 850,000 h. p. to the 750,000 h. p. of 1915; Switzerland now has some 1,500,000 h. p., as compared with 850,000 h. p. in 1914; the output in Spain is 900,000 h. p. as against 150,000 h. p. before the war, and that country is engaged on a scheme for developing a further 2,000,000 h. p. The same kind of story may be told of Canada, the United States, Italy, Japan, Norway, Sweden, and India; where also the water turbine is rapidly altering industrial conditions, despite the liberal coal deposits in some of those countries.

The world's total potential water power has been calculated at 200 million h. p. Estimates must be accepted with reserve, as the surveys have necessarily been very incomplete in the almost unexplored regions where ultimately some of the greatest developments may be expected. So far only 25,000,000 h. p. of this energy has been turned to account. Even at this stage, however, the economies resulting from harnessing water power are apparent. In the best steam plant of large size 9 tons of coal must be burned to give one horse power continuously for a year. Therefore 225,000,000 tons of coal, or approximately the whole output of our coal mines per annum, represent the amount that would have to be fed to boilers to produce the energy of water already doing service. The world's total water power would on this basis exceed that obtainable from the world's coal output in 1913!

It may be that the development of water power will in the future affect the center of gravity of the world's industries, for these tend to move toward cheap power. A rather interesting illustration presents itself. In north Sweden are vast deposits of iron ore, formerly mined for smelting in England and other coal producing countries. But Sweden, though poor in native coal, is rich in water power, now being developed to run great electric furnaces in which the ore will be converted into iron and steel, thus enabling her to compete in the world's markets under favorable conditions. Her waterfalls have given Norway a new industrial importance. Who shall say that a country like Brazil, with its estimated 26,000,000 horse power, and British Guiana, the Zambesi basin, New Zealand, and other naturally favored countries, may not in future years become industrially important, thanks to the energy of falling water?

Electric Lighting.

It is unnecessary to discuss what we owe to electricity in the form of light; it is evident to every one. If an electric current be forced through a very fine wire able to stand extremely high temperatures without melting, the resistance encountered causes the generation of heat, which is partly converted into that form of energy called light. In this way we get the incandescent electric lamp, which is simply a fine wire of tungsten enclosed in a glass bulb, from which all the air is exhausted to prevent the metal being burnt by combination with oxygen, the wire being made white hot by the current. We may admit, after exhaustion, a little inert gas which has no effect on the filament; the lamp is then known as gas filled. Adding the gas makes the lamp more economical, since it gives considerably more light per unit of current consumed, and this is why the gas filled lamp, made in strengths up to several thousand candle power, has largely replaced the arc lamp. In an arc lamp two carbon pencils, connected with the circuit, are brought together point to point. The tips become white hot, and if they now be separated slightly, atoms of incandescent carbon leap across the gap, from one tip to the other, in a continuous and intensely luminous stream, which is called an arc, because the path of its particles is curved.

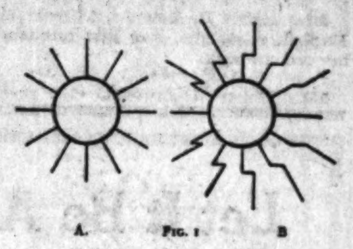

FIG. A PICTURES AN ELECTRIFIED BODY AT REST.—The electric lines of force radiate out from it in straight lines. In B the electrified body is in motion and the diagram represents the state of affairs an instant after the motion has begun. The electric lines of force take time to pick up the motion, as it were. Thus the kink shown in the lines represents, roughly, the fact that the lines near the body have taken up motion but that the rest of each line is still lagging behind. The lines pick up the motion very quickly, of course. As a matter of fact, the kink travels along each line at the speed of light, 186,000 miles per second.

An arc lamp includes apparatus which automatically keeps the pencils the correct distance apart as they burn away; allows them to fall together when the current is switched off; and draws them apart to start the arc when current is switched on. Though more troublesome than the incandescent filament lamp, the arc can be much more powerful; and, as its light proceeds from a very small area, the rays may be accurately focussed by lenses and mirrors and projected in an intensely luminous beam, such as is required for searchlights and cinema projectors.

Arc lights of up to 90,000,000 candle power are used in lighthouses. There was, and perhaps still is, at a station on the Jungfrau railway a lamp that projected a beam visible for sixty miles, which enabled a newspaper to be read in the streets of Thun, thirty-five miles away.

Though, where current is cheap, electric is the cheapest posible form of artificial lighting, besides being far the most convenient, from a scientific point of view it leaves much to be desired. About nineteen-twentieths of the current that produces it is dissipated as heat; and where it depends ultimately on coal, only about one part in a hundred of the coal's energy is converted into light. It has been said that if we could convert energy into light as economically as the glow worm, a single boy turning a handle could light a fair sized town. There are evidently great fields still to conquer in the realm of electric illumination.

Heating by Electricity.

For heating purposes electricity is much more efficient, since electrical energy is only too willing to change into heat. One of the difficulties associated with large electrical apparatus is that of keeping parts cool enough to prevent insulation being burned away. Domestic electrical heating appliances derive their heat from wires or very thin films of metal or other suitable material through which current is passed in sufficient strength to make them glow. Some electric radiators are practically the same as incandescent lamps in design and construction; others, again, are mere wires wound on refractory material and exposed to the air. Electric irons, hot-plates, kettles, etc., have the conductor embedded in mica or asbestos, in close contact to a metal cover, through which the heat is conducted to the matter to be heated.

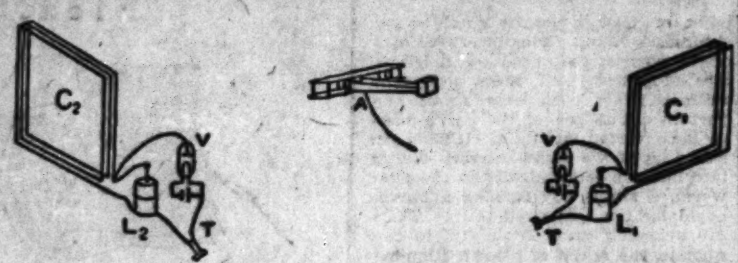
There are very few cooking or heating operations that cannot be performed electrically. So that we now have, besides electric ovens and hot-plates, electrically heated soldering apparatus, glue-pots, foot-warmers, cigar-lighters, bed-quilts, and so on. The aeroplane pilot, soaring many thousands of feet above the earth, would often be paralyzed by the intense cold but for the meshwork of insulated wires hidden in his gloves and other clothing, which distributes a grateful warmth due, when traced back to its source, to a small propeller driving a dynamo.



A diagram showing the manner in which two receiving wireless stations equipped with directional frame aerials can determine the position of an aeroplane which is sending out wireless signals by its trailing aerial wire A. The frames C1 and C2 receive signals well from a station lying in the plane of the frames, but do not receive signals in a direction at right angles to the frame. Two such frames can therefore be used to locate a station—such as the aeroplane in the diagram. The planes are rotated until the signals are most clear. The aeroplane must then lie in the direction of each of them and therefore at their point of intersection if produced.

[From "Fifty Years of Electricity," the Wireless Press, Ltd.]

Only a comparatively small part of the electrical energy that is purposely converted into heat is used for domestic purposes, however. Vast quantities of electrical power are now generated for heating furnaces in which are produced all the aluminum we use, all the calcium carbide from which acetylene gas is made, all artificial abrasives, and certain fertilizers containing nitrogen stolen from the atmosphere. Electrical furnaces now smelt iron and convert it into high quality steels by the hundred thousand tons. The furnaces are in principle enlarged editions of the arc lamp and domestic "resistance" heater; and all taken together they consume millions of electrical horse power continuously.

A very important branch of electric heating is that concerned with welding. The electric current has given the engineer an invaluable ally when dealing with repairs to heavy machinery. A typical instance of its helpfulness is supplied by what happened during the war when enemy vessels, interned in American ports, had their boilers and engines rendered useless before abandonment. Under old conditions the only remedy would have been to replace the injured parts by new ones; but with the aid of the electric arc it was possible to unite the edges of broken pieces and affix patches so securely as to render broken machinery as good as new in effectiveness, if not in appearance. The result was in a very short time many large ships that the enemy regarded as definitely hors de combat were plowing the seas again and doing useful service.

The electric weld is replacing the rivet in many manufacturing processes. The steel plates of a ship's skin may now be joined without the use of a single rivet; and "welded" vessels are actually in commission. Many articles of every day use are electrically welded. To make a "spot" or local weld, the parts to be joined are pressed together between the points of bars connected with an electric circuit, and the heat set up by the current causes the parts to fuse and amalgamate over an area between the bars. Again, suppose a short bar has to be affixed to a thick plate, to project from it. Instead of drilling a hole in the plate, tapping a thread in it, and cutting a thread on the bar, the last is merely pressed against the plate and a powerful current passed through both parts; and in a few minutes the two are practically one.

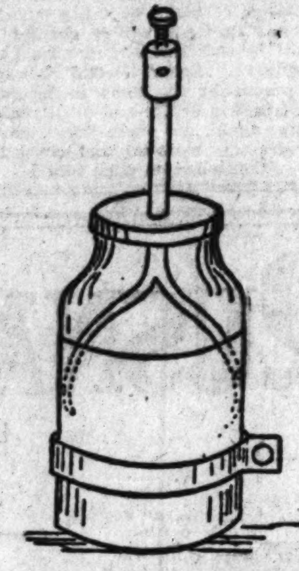
Wireless.

Remarkable progress has been made in recent years in wireless telegraphy and wireless telephony—a new department of applied science, which has already produced astonishing results. Wireless messages are flashed over great distances with the speed of light, across land and sea, from continent to continent; as one writer has picturesquely put it, "the whole of our planet is now converted into one vast auditorium through which human speech can be transmitted by wireless telephony." Articulate speech can be transmitted across the Atlantic; the traveler on a great liner, far out on the ocean, can listen in a comfortable easy chair to a concert going on in far off Paris, London or New York. The aviator, thousands of feet high in the air, lost in the clouds or in a thick fog it may be, can receive help and direction by wireless messages, for it is quite possible to carry on conversation between the pilot of an aeroplane in the clouds and a wireless operator at a land station. Wireless direction finding is destined to be of great service in guiding aviators safely to their destination.

There are, it is said, one million private people receiving wireless messages in America. This number had grown from 600,000 in the course of one year. "There is transmitting at all hours of the day," we read; "news of topical interest is flashing all the time. City men get their stock exchange quotations, women the current prices from various shops, sporting and holiday bound people weather prospects." The broadcasting of news has reached such great dimensions that restrictions of some kind are likely to be imposed. In present conditions some limit is necessary for the use of the radio telephone communication between single individuals. Wireless telephony is used primarily for broadcasting news, conveying commercial information, and for providing general entertainment. At present the Marconi company broadcasts a concert once a week. The wireless amateurs receiving messages in Great Britain number something like 8,000. In their homes they can enjoy the music broadcast from distant concert rooms, or amuse themselves by communicating with friends who may have transmitting sets, or by tapping wireless messages from unknown sources. Today any one by making a request at any postal telegraph office in Great Britain, may have a message transmitted by wireless to a passenger on board an ocean liner in mid-ocean.



LEYDEN JAR.—This jar consists of a glass bottle, coated internally and externally with tinfoil to within a moderate distance of the opening. A brass rod, terminated by a ball, is connected with the inner coating and passes out through the neck without touching the neck. By connecting together the outside covering and the brass ball the jar is discharged. If, instead of actually connecting together the two coverings in this way, we bring a conductor connected to the outer covering to within a little distance of the ball we shall get an oscillatory spark discharge. The current will leap backwards and forwards across the air gap, in the manner explained in the text, producing a brilliant spark. An arrangement of this kind is a necessary part of a wireless outfit.

Wireless has made travel by sea safer than it ever was. It would probably be well within the mark, it is estimated, to say that at least 5,000 persons owed their rescue from death by drowning to wireless even before the great war in 1914. How many more were saved during the enemy's submarine attacks on merchant vessels it is impossible to say. In innumerable ways during the war wireless was used with striking effect, from the small transmitting and receiving wireless sets—packed in boxes not not more than eighteen inches over all—used in the trenches to transmit messages to a base behind the lines, to the contrivances employed to enable ships to find their way through hidden dangers.

The ship to be guided is provided with two coils of insulated wire, placed one on the port and the other on the starboard side below the water line. If a telephone is inserted in each of these coils, sounds will be heard in it as long as the ship steers along and near to the cable. If the ship deviates from this course, the sounds become fainter or vanish in one or both telephones. Hence a ship can by this means feel its way along the cable into a harbor or up a river, even at night, or in a fog, or through a minefield.

Lieut.-Col. Slaughter of the United States army has described how, immediately following the declaration of war by America, orders were issued for an aeroplane wireless telephone set to furnish telephone communication between different aeroplanes of a squadron. In May, 1918, "groups of aeroplanes using the wireless telephone sets were being drilled in the evolutions which the equipment made possible. In June, 1918, a squadron of 39 aeroplanes, equipped with wireless telephone sets, went through a course of drill in the air in such a manner as to demonstrate the remarkable possibilities of a voice commanded squadron." Subsequently the training of aviators progressed at a rapidly increasing rate, "so that at the time of the signing of the armistice many thousands of flights had been made. The record of these flights is a glowing tribute to the efficiency of the design of the wireless telephone set, which performed in such a manner as to give far less trouble than the aeroplane engine."

We have referred to the number of lives saved by means of wireless messages and the increased safety it affords to travelers by sea. Today it is unlikely that a disaster of such magnitude as the loss of the Titanic in 1912 with over 1,500 lives could take place. Even then, 711 passengers on the ill fated liner owed their lives to wireless, but had that unfortunate maiden voyage been made today probably the great liner would have received timely warning of her danger; cruising about in the North Atlantic, there is now an ice patrol on the lookout for icebergs, the exact position and size of which is broadcast to all ships in these northern waters twice a day or oftener. The expense of maintaining this patrol is borne proportionately by all the maritime nations using the Atlantic.

WOMEN THE WORLD OVER

Painted knees are the latest thing among society folk.

More than one-third of the women in South Carolina are wage earners.

Organized girl laundry workers in Detroit work only five days a week.

Blanche Sweet, the motion picture star, has applied for $150,000 facial insurance.

More than 60 per cent of the women workers in New York state work only 48 hours a week.

Nearly seven-tenths of the women workers in Rhode Island have a schedule working week of forty-eight hours.

Colorado was the first state to choose a woman for the position of state superintendent of public instruction.

Mortality statistics show that country women, in spite of their long hours of hard work, attain a ripe old age.

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, widow of President Roosevelt, has become a member of the Needle Guild of America.

Miss Mollie P. Downes, 17 year old English schoolgirl, has just published her second book.

Miss Helen V. Boswell, vice president of a New York City bank, a lawyer, and a member of the National Republican committee, has the distinction of being the first woman delegate to a national political convention.

COLOR

"She used to be so plain; now she's positively pretty!" Nothing in this world can work that magic except color.

There's a new witchery of color. A new method, an entirely new material. It is makeup of an utterly different sort. The name is JARNAC. The formula is French. But all America has accepted JARNAC almost overnight. Because:

You don't scrub this rouge off a brick-red, brick-hard cake into delicate pores. You use no bedraggled puff. Nor do you need any lipstick. JARNAC does away with all. JARNAC is moist color—made of solidified pure oils—a true blood-red. A fingertip tinged with JARNAC gives your cheeks a glow, and your lips a brilliance perfectly natural. It's a joy to apply—a three-minute job—and how this oil-base film of color lasts! Moist itself, it is impervious to moisture. And good as any ointment for the skin.

If you "want what you want" remember there is no "same thing" as JARNAC. Most drugstores cheerfully sell it—on the red counter card—fifty cents. Or, direct of JARNAC, 540 W. Randolph St., Chicago.

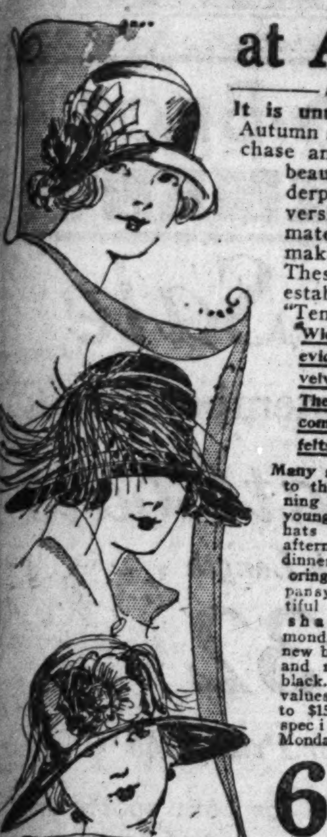
"Tenne" Fall Pattern Hats at About Half

Sixth Floor—State Street



It is unusual at this period of the Autumn season to arrange for the purchase and exhibit of so many truly beautiful pattern hats so far underpriced. There is a great diversity of styles. The richness of materials and the artistic touch make each hat a masterpiece. These are the attributes that have established the prestige of "Tenne" hats.

Wide brimmed hats are much in evidence. They are made of Lyons velvet; some have ribbon crowns. There are other modes of velvet combined with satin; soft French felts, beautiful velours.

Many small, chic models that will appeal to the debutante, the young girl planning her wardrobe for college, or to the young matron. There are smart tailored hats for street or business, hats for afternoon and evening; hats for the dinner dance. In autumn's brilliant colorings—wood, pansy, beautiful purple shades, almond, cedar, new blue, etc., and many in black. The values range to $15. Very special for Monday at 6.95

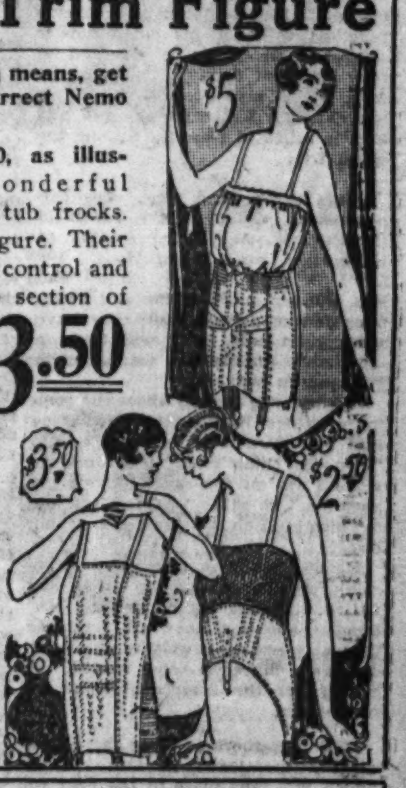
Nemo Corsets are the Correct Fall Reducing Garments for a Smart, Trim Figure

Third Floor—Dearborn Street



The new Corsetry creates Princess lines, the very latest word from Paris—which means, get slim—be slim—stay slim. This is not such a hard problem if one wears the correct Nemo underthings. We specialize in garments for correct reducing.

To get the much wanted straightline effect above the waist, most women require a garment that controls and remoulds—circlet No. 2524 is such a model; note the boning over the diaphragm and the garters at the side that give an added reduction to the diaphragm and also keep the brassiere from slipping up over top of corset; if you want a reduced diaphragm and neat waistline try this model; sizes to 50, at............ 2.50

Nemo-Flex Style 10-350, as illustrated, is a wonderful slenderizer, to be worn with tub frocks. They beautify and mould the figure. Their special feature is the way they control and slenderize the abdomen; wide section of elastic at side, reinforced across lower back and other places where there is danger of stretching; sizes, bust measure, 34 to 48, special at 3.50

For the "slim as ever" frocks you should wear the tried and true Nemo Self-Reducer style No. 506, as illustrated, which has been worn by women with very gratifying results—a gentle massage melts the fat so that it can be absorbed and "burned up" by the system; the bulging diaphragm, the protruding abdomen and other faults are taken care of in this corset; low bust and very comfortable; sizes to 38, at....................... $5

Circlet Brassieres—Style 2021, give a very flat bust and wonderful control of diaphragm, the fan arrangement of the boning will give more control than straight boning; size 38 to 50, at..... $2

Circlet Brassieres, Style 1519, the ideal brassiere for short, stout women with short arms who cannot fasten a garment either at side or in the back. Sizes 38 to 54, at....................... 1.50

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Churches Announce World Conference on Life and Work

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—The Universal Christian conference on life and work, which will convene in Stockholm, Sweden, Wednesday and continue to Aug. 30, will be attended by delegates representing every important Protestant denomination in the world and also by representatives of the Greek Catholic church. The announced purpose of the conference is to discuss the right Christian attitude towards industrial, social, and economic questions. It will not discuss matters of faith and doctrine.

A later world conference on faith and order will discuss questions of doctrine, but even then no attempt will be made to enforce uniformity, but simply to state doctrinal beliefs in the hope that a better understanding of each other's viewpoint will promote the cause of Christian unity. At the Stockholm conference there will be an attempt to get the churches to express themselves on moral questions, such as prohibition, duelling, public lotteries, and gambling, and thus seek by union to influence the world in a way possible only by united action.

The commissioners on the subject of Christian education in a preliminary report state, "A weakness of the churches is that too often those who speak in the name of religion have thrown themselves open to reproach of inadequate knowledge, hasty generalization, and doctrinal deliverances. The church must in its investigations follow rules of evidence which guide honest minds always and anywhere."

Dr. Shailer Matthews of the University of Chicago is the chairman of the commission on industrial relations. Such questions as coöperation versus competition, collective bargaining profit sharing by employés and elimination of the middle man in agriculture will be among those discussed.

A correspondent from Cardiff, Wales, refers to an address made there at the meeting of the Presbyterian alliance by Dr. John Timothy Stone, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church, Chicago, who is just completing a tour of the world, as follows: "Dr. John Timothy Stone of Chicago electrified the audience by the vehemence of his presentation and extreme practical value of his epigrammatic address." Dr. Stone is expected in New York on Sept. 15. The report from Cardiff says Dr. and Mrs. Stone and daughter Katherine are well and greatly benefited from the around the world trip.

While at Portland, Ore., your correspondent visited at the ranch of the Rev. W. A. "Billy" Sunday at Hood river, near Mount Hood. We found Billy in working clothes and Mrs. Sunday in a bathing suit swimming in the private tank they have had constructed. Billy will begin a tabernacle evangelistic campaign in Portland on Sept. 6.

In answer to inquiry about the coming meetings, Billy explained what he said he regarded as wise philosophy. "I never think about the meetings when I am on the ranch having my vacation," he said. "After I get into my meeting I do not think of anything else."

He was ready to talk about swimming, raising cattle, the crops, but not about the coming campaign. 'Ma' Sunday, however, knew all about the campaign and was ready to discuss it. Portland churches were raising the money for the tabernacle while we were there.

Church gatherings other than those already mentioned in this column which will take place in the near future at Winona lake, Ind., will be the national conference of the Brethern Church (Dunkards) Aug. 24-30; Eel river Christian church conference, Aug. 24-30, and the conference of the United Brethern church, Sept. 1-6.

Congregationalists are now engaged in the church press in a spirited discussion of the questions to come before the biennial meeting of the National Council of Congregational Churches, which will be held in the new auditorium at Washington, D. C., Oct. 20-28. President Coolidge is honorary moderator and, it is hoped, will preside at one of the sessions. Dr. Rockwell Harmon Potter of Hartford, Conn., is moderator, but will, according to custom, retire at this session and be succeeded by another minister or layman, as the council may vote.

Dr. Hugh Elmer Brown, pastor of the First Congregational church, Evanston, is a member of a committee which has recommended the ten benevolent boards of the denomination be merged into two—a foreign and a home board. Other recommendations call for a merger of the ten into five boards. Another live denominational question concerns the merging of the Congregationalist, the church weekly, with the magazines which represent the missionary societies.

Dr. A. W. Palmer, pastor of the First Congregational church, Oak Park, is chairman of the business committee of the council, and Dr. R. W. Gammon, Chicago, secretary of the Congregational Educational society, is chairman of the nominating committee.

Headquarters for the International Eucharistic congress of the Roman Catholic church, to be held in Chicago June 20 to 24 of 1926, have been established in the Quigley Preparatory annex, southeast corner of Cass and Superior streets. It is from these offices that the Very Rev. Mgr. C. J. Quille, general secretary of the congress, will conduct the tremendous task of preparation for the event.

Seventeen committees with a membership of more than three hundred, appointed last week by Cardinal Mundelein from the clergy and the Knights of St. Gregory of the archdiocese, will constitute the assistants to Mgr. Quille and the Rt. Rev. E. F. Hoban, honorary president of the congress. A large corps of office workers will be installed in the headquarters building in the near future to handle the correspondence and many other matters, already beginning to flood the office of the secretary.

Chicago ministers who occupied pulpits in Los Angeles last Sunday were Dr. Josiah Sibley, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, who preached in the Immanuel Presbyterian church, Los Angeles, and Dr. Benjamin Otto, superintendent of the Baptist executive council, who preached in the First Baptist church of Hollywood.

The pastor of the First Baptist church is Dr. Samuel J. Skevington, formerly pastor of the Belden Avenue Baptist church, Chicago. Dr. Allison Ray Heaps, formerly a pastor in Aurora, Ill., and a graduate of Northwestern university, preached in the Hollywood Congregational church. Dr. Frank Dyer, a former Chicago pastor, has recently completed the erection of the Wilshire Boulevard Congregational church, one of the most beautiful churches in this city of churches and on the boulevard where the finest residences are located, preached last Sunday on the merger of the Congregationalists, Methodists, and Presbyterians in the United Church of Canada, as an example of the churches in the United States to follow.

Dr. A. H. Briggs, who preached in the First Methodist Episcopal church, and Bishop C. W. Burns, who dedicated the $200,000 Vermont Square Methodist Episcopal church, are other ministers well known in Chicago or vicinity. The Rev. Clinton Wunder of the Baptist temple, Rochester, N. Y., preached in the Temple Baptist church of which Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher is pastor, and the Rt. Rev. E. V. Shayler, Episcopal bishop of Nebraska, formerly rector of Grace church, Oak Park, Ill., preached in St. John's Episcopal church, both in Los Angeles. Dr. C. F. Aked of Kansas City, formerly pastor of the Rockefellers at Cleveland, O., a nationally known minister, preached in the Los Angeles Plymouth Congregational church.

Prof. William Lawrence Sullivan of Meadville Theological school, Meadville, will be the preacher today at Mandell hall, the University of Chicago.

The Episcopal church of the Advent, the Rev. Gerald Moore, rector, will canvass this fall for funds with which to erect a new church at a cost of $75,000. Plans have been drawn by Elmer C. Jensen, and $15,000 in cash has already been gathered.

The board of foreign missions of the Methodist Episcopal church has decided to hold its annual meeting this year, Nov. 14-18, at the Ohio Wesleyan university, Delaware, O. It is said this is the first time the board has ever met outside of the larger cities.

ART AND ARTISTS

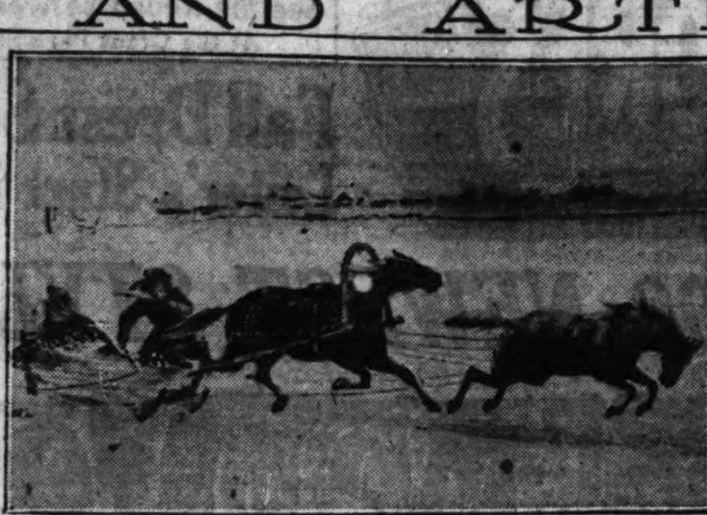
Russians Evolve Color Art from "Suprematism"

There grew three birch by a pool
  Where the wind sang a lullaby;
The night enshrouded the day,
  And a young moon sailed the sky.

Through the dusk of the world walked Pan
  And stood by the clouded pool—
The three birch mocked with their boughs
  And called him a fluting fool.

Pan shrugged at their silver laughter,
  The young moon fell from the sky.
From the darkened pool Pan caught it up
  And tossed it back to dry. E. J.

By Eleanor Jewett.



"Winter in Siberia," by B. Kchrenov, a Russian painter, is part of the exhibit of modern Russian art now on view in one of the rooms of the east wing gallery of the Art institute. This exhibit has much to commend it. The pictures run from the highly conservative to the decoratively radical. They will remain on view until Sept. 13.

THERE are always the Russians. We may know what we like best, and go to it, straight as a die, with stern determination not to be tricked or waylaid, but, before we have done with that east wing gallery in the Art institute, the Russians have been too much for us, have caught us, forced us to observe them, to wonder at them, to dislike them, and to approve them. Yes, indeed, there are always the Russians.

However, today, for a change, first we shall mention something that has a ring like that which clinks from a tale of fairies; first we shall do what we like best and stop for a long, restful moment before a wood scene by Diaz. Diaz was a painter who could paint trees—birch trees. Evidence of his ability is found in both the McCormick loan collection and the Neilson. The Diaz we stop before today is the large canvas in the Neilson collection. The painting fairly chants a story. We tell it in the poem that heads the column.

It could run on, endlessly. The story of the beauties of the forest, that is the secret Diaz knew, and knew how to tell. But the Russians wait——

Some time ago there came from an authentic source—the Russian information bureau at Washington—a synopsis of a bulletin on modern Russian art as practiced in Russia. It was enlightening. The Russian painters found that "suprematism" or complete freedom from the subject lands one, at long last, in an impassé. Consider it a minute. "Complete freedom from the subject." It could easily land one in an impassé. In fact, taking it in deep earnest, I fail to see how an adherent to its essence, its basic and fundamental principle, could ever even set brush to paper. Freedom from the subject, a subject, any subject, what could it lead to but a swirl of paint upon the paper, meaning nothing, leading nowhere. Impassé? Cul-de-sac.

They discovered this, those Russians, and from its disorder they evolved a magnificent project, a new form of art. "Color Art" is the name they have given to their unique system of painting in which all depiction of objects is rejected, nothing remaining but colors and their mutual contrasts. That reads well.

Form achieves an extraordinary importance in color art. In suprematism the color masses were surface areas separated from the remainder of the picture by straight or curved lines. Now they are so no longer. On the contrary, the color masses in color art are produced rather by the mutual relations, the coördination and rhythm of the various color tints. The chief exponent of the school, Borissov, in fact, renounces all attempts to depict subjects in painting and confines his efforts exclusively to building his pictures on rhythm of tonal groups, falling back if you follow his idea, on musical laws, as it were.

His procedure, at all events, enables him to record his work in notes, and thus establish a system of color nuances. To me it sounds most horrible gibberish, but to some it may carry sense. The conclusion arrived at by his work is that color art affords the possibility of creating an unlimited quantity of color variations, the beauty of which may be determined in advance. The last phrase of the foregoing sentence will stand being read a second and third time. Is there any other school or system of painting that can offer as much to its devotees?

A concluding statement made by the Russian bulletin may possess some truth. It says these experiments of Borissov are of particular value to decorative art, to industrial arts as well. Think of a Borissov evolved carpet, a Borissov wall paper, a Borissov lamp shade!

Borissov does not figure in person in the exhibition of work by Russian artists now to be seen in a room of the east wing gallery of the Art institute. Others like unto him, however, do flourish there. Several painters are represented, although L. M. Brailovsky has the major showing.

A fine and powerful painting, "Don Cossack" by Guzhavin, excites the imagination and is a splendid and realistic, with no ism or nonsense to it, picture of a rider and horse, running at full gallop.

Under the title "Landscapes of Russia," Miasoldov has collected three conservative, gray, and good canvases. The best, in its melancholic appeal, is the desolate harbor shore, cold, bleak, forbidding. The other two are of a house by a railroad track, just that, and of a road, fringed with shorn fields and defiant, twisted hay stacks. Gray Russia and black Russia show their lean faces through the pensive, resigned beauty of these sketches.

"Landscapes in Siberia," by Kchrenov, carry a more stirring message. The best of these, to my mind the best picture in the room, is that of two horses running madly over the snow, pulling a sleigh with two men. There is vivid action in it, life, interest, color, realism, theater.

Brailovsky is reminiscent of other Russian eccentrics. He is full of suggestions of other artists. The Russian ballet is not far from some of the ideas started by his work, nor the opera, for which various Russians have invented for us weird, and odd, and often lovely stage settings. Were Russian names not so difficult to remember (and to spell) a list of them would fill, just here, two lines of type.

However, leaving the others one side, Brailovsky is important for himself. He is a leading Russian artist. He has achieved success at home and abroad. One can applaud him vigorously and feel in the correct swim. He has color, and mystery, and typical Russian vagueness and incongruity. He has a childlike faith in the power of color and a Slavic predilection for excess. A riot of rich reds and gold, huge forms, amusing faces, you find him among the confusion, a ramping, roaring god.

"The Market Place of a Small City" shows him up well, as does the "Joyous Carnival in a Russian Province," and also "To the Gypsies in Three-Horse Span." "The Council" is amusing in its Icelandic dignity. "Guests at a Merchant's House" is laughable, an amusing tea table. A card game of sorts, with something of Flemish ingenuity in catching the dignity of the interior, is seen in "The Landlord's Evening."

"Kremlyn in the Fog" is a different type of painting. It is good. A boisterous wind, mad enough to sweep a world away, is rampant in "Windmills." "A Russian Peasant Woman Going for Water" is a serious study. Besides these there are numerous other paintings, none of great size, of all imaginable subjects. There are costumes, knights of war, a convent, priests, processions, family meetings, and so forth and so on, until one's head spins with them. The incontrovertible fact is their Russian origin. The facts that lie open to controversy are the entire rest of the story.

Emile Walters, a graduate of the Art institute school, has had the unusual honor of having his painting, "Blossom Time, Canada," hung in the Tate gallery, London. This is the most important landscape exhibition in London, and the young artist may well feel himself honored to be hung beside such celebrated painters as Watts, Manet, and Degas.

The attendance at the Art institute for the month of July has exceeded that of any other month during the year. Seventy-seven thousand four hundred fifty-three visitors were recorded. Of these, 10,910 were paid admissions, 2,410 were members of the museum, and 64,133 entered on free days. In July, 1922, there were counted 61,091. The July of the following year saw 64,042 visitors. Last year, July had 72,282 counted against it. The present year shows another increase. The figures indicate that the Art institute in this midsummer month is becoming of greater and greater importance as a favorite haunt of the summer visitor.

The interesting set of etching plates, made by James McNeill Whistler, now on display in the print rooms of the Art institute, were lent to the museum by Walter S. Brewster.

If There Is Room.

A traveling salesman died suddenly in Baltimore, and some of his friends telegraphed the undertaker an order for a large wreath. Investigation showed that the telegram read as follows:

"'Rest in peace' on both sides of the ribbon; if there should be room: 'We shall meet in heaven.'"

The undertaker was out of town and the new assistant handled the job. It was a startling piece which turned up at the funeral. The ribbon was extra wide, and it bore this inscription: "Rest in peace on both sides, and if there is room we shall meet in heaven."

"Get the Hatchet."

In a certain suburb there is a cottage, the door of which must be raised a little to be opened, and for this purpose a hatchet is generally used.

One night a knock came at the door and a youngster was sent to see who was there.

"Who is it?" inquired the boy.

"It's me," said a voice outside.

The youngster, recognizing the voice, shouted back, "It's Mrs. Murphy. Get the hatchet."

Mrs. Murphy didn't wait.

Wash Away Pounds of Fat By Simply Bathing With La-Mar Reducing Soap

Shrinks the Skin and Leaves It Soft, Smooth and Unwrinkled

Thousands Use La-Mar Daily; Read What Some of Them Say

"At last a new way to reduce fat, new yet not untried, for thousands now use it daily. You simply use La-Mar Reducing Soap as a toilet soap, bathe the parts to be reduced or use it in your bath and thus you wash away your fat, leaving the skin smooth and unwrinkled. The results are quick and amazing, nothing internal to take, no dieting or exercising. You wash away your burden of fat without changing your daily habits. Double chins, fat, ungainly ankles and wrists, arms, shoulders, busts—all yield to the magic of La-Mar. You know fat is a burden fatal alike to beauty and to figure—often dangerous to health and life. Why do you endure it when you may be rid of it so easily? If the thought of reducing easily and quickly by simply bathing startles you and seems too easy and too good to be true, read what others say who have tried it:

"Enclosed find $1.00 for which send me 3 bars La-Mar soap. I have been using it for about two months and from 46 inch bust have reduced to 40 inches. Am much pleased with it." Mrs. [illegible]

"Please send me 3 cakes La-Mar reducing soap for $1.00 enclosed. It has helped me wonderfully. I lost 11 pounds with 3 cakes." [illegible]

"I lost 18 pounds in six weeks and am delighted. Send 3 more cakes and I will pay the postman on delivery." Mrs. [illegible], San Francisco.

"Enclosed please find remittance for 6 cakes. I am now using the third cake and am much pleased with it. The first week I used it I lost 3 pounds and the next week I lost 4 pounds." [illegible], Wash.

"Enclosed find $1.00 for 3 cakes of La-Mar reducing soap. Have reduced my feet so I can wear shoes a size smaller but I want to reduce some more." Miss L. M. H., Rocky Mount, N. C.

"Please rush to me 3 cakes La-Mar reducing soap. My ankles were 14 inches when I started this Tuesday night. They are 12 inches now. I have no bathtub so I stand in the water." [illegible], Ohio.

"I am writing to let you know how La-Mar is doing. It has reduced me 6 pounds in less than two weeks and I am feeling better every day. I want to keep it up, so send me 6 cakes more right away." [illegible]

"Please send me 3 cakes La-Mar soap. I am getting slender now though I thought I would never get slender again. My weight was [illegible], now just [illegible]. Don't you think that is doing fine?" Mrs. L. F., Nashville, Tenn.

We could quote hundreds, yes, thousands of others, many as enthusiastic and so strong as to seem unlikely, but why should we since we guarantee results or refund the purchase price. La-Mar Reducing Soap is sold and guaranteed by all good druggists and department stores, or sent direct to you by mail, postpaid. Price 50c a cake, or three cakes for $1.00—enough usually to accomplish its purpose. Order today and begin to reduce. You will be surprised at the results.

A CALL FOR FIFTY SUBDIVISION MEN.

Salesmanagers and Salesmen

I am selling a ninety acre tract, located right in the heart of the fastest growing northwest suburb, a ride of 35 min. downtown; repeated offers to subdivide this property have been consistently turned down since 1920. I am willing to pay good commissions, advertise and give leads; improvements are now going in and my display advertising that will shortly appear in the leading daily papers should furnish enough buyers to sell these lots fast. Men who have never sold real estate before can sell this easily. This is not a high powered proposition, but the sale of ripe land, ready for building, and offered at fair prices. Now whether you are a salesman or not come in and see me, the owner, at Rm. 1601, 11 S. La Salle-st.

A SALES PRODUCER.

We are expanding and need several high grade men with proven sales records and pleasing personality. We offer a service that has a strong appeal, one that you can put your heart and soul into. Work is permanent, traveling limited. Remuneration is very good for the right sort of men from the start and increases from year to year as territory is developed. Must be men of vision, keen ability, and with successful specialty experience to properly interview and sell the chief executives of the businesses called on. Exclusive territories in and adjacent to Des Moines, Indianapolis, Milwaukee, Duluth, and Chicago. Write fully in confidence your past experience. Address K B 286, Tribune.

Daddy Hobbs, Rm. 353, Conway Bldg., 111 W. Washington-st.

WANTED—MALE HELP.

Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.

A SALESMAN.

Let's forget for the time being that you are a salesman seeking a new connection and that we are a big organization serving over 11,000 concerns in American business today, but let's get our heads together and see what there is about our big plan that is making these concerns renew and buy it year after year.

We cut payroll losses . . . we cut overhead expense . . . we increase net profits . . . we increase production . . . we not only promise to do it, we DO it, and we carry PROOF of these statements over the signatures of executives who are recognized and respected the country over.

Right now we are getting ready to launch our second big constructive campaign to follow one that in less than two years' time created a clientele of over 11,000 users. These concerns are clamoring for more constructive help to continue to keep up the good work that they started two years ago.

Due to several promotions in the ranks of our sales force whereby we promoted salesmen to executive positions, we are now ready to fill their ranks with men who can qualify for work such as ours. These men must be between the ages of 30 and 40 years; must be able to call on chief executive heads in business; must be able to dominate and sell on first interview. These men must have a background showing an earning capacity of $5,000 per year, or more. They must have the ability to convince Mr. Executive and they carry unquestioned proof to back up every statement of claim they may make.

We can place a man in a central west territory that is now open, under exclusive contract with full credit on all renewal business to be secured in this territory, thereby putting him immediately into an earning capacity from $10,000 to $20,000 per year, which is the sum that our average man is earning in this business. We pay you while being trained in the particular knacks and methods of our business.

Unless you mean business and feel that your past sales experience measures up to the standard that we require in this work, do not waste your time or our time, but if you do measure up, let's get down to cases and get some immediate action. Address L N 102, Tribune.

AN OPPORTUNITY.

Are you making the money you think you are worth?

If not, and you have personality, are honest, and not afraid of hard work, I have a position to offer you, where the pay checks are what you, with our co-operation, make them.

I'll show you where quite a number of our men earn from $500 to $1,000 weekly. It's real estate! "YES." BUT, C, how different from the average.

A CITY IN THE MAKING.

You have seen our full page ads in this paper, a dozen or more; and more to follow.

IT'S IVANHOE.

The new wonder city, the talk of Chicago, bisected by the I. C. Ry.; station center of property. All improvements in and paid for. Restricted and zoned.

AN EXTREMELY ATTRACTIVE SALES CONNECTION IS NOW AVAILABLE.

We require the services of a high grade salesman, preferably one with experience in the Hotel and Institution business, although we would consider a man with a fine personality and a definitely successful sales record in other lines. We are not looking for a man of ordinary caliber, but one who is capable of meeting and selling big men. The man we want is probably now employed and looking for a connection with greater outlook. We will offer a permanent proposition with very great possibilities. Applications should be made by letter only and will be held in strictest confidence.

AN OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME FOR REAL ESTATE SALESMEN.

JUST WHAT YOU ARE LOOKING FOR.

We want to talk to a few serious minded, successful real estate salesmen, at present employed, but who are willing to increase their incomes and who can make a decision when they see something GOOD.

COMMISSIONS ARE HIGHEST PAID IN CHICAGO.

Our properties are located on prominent paved boulevard—the principal thoroughfare through Calumet City—less than 4 blocks to Illinois Central main line express suburban service, with 30 minute service to the Loop.

Property is well restricted and purchase price includes all improvements. Riverside bungalow lots, on high terrace and beautifully wooded. Inside lots as low as $800. This combination of low prices and highly desirable property reduces sales resistance to a minimum.

KRENN & DATO,

THE MOST SUCCESSFUL REAL ESTATE SUBDIVISION ORGANIZATION IN AMERICA, OFFERS YOU THE OPPORTUNITY TO SUCCEED AND ATTAIN A BIG MEASURE OF FINANCIAL INDEPENDENCE.

Increased activities in our Real Estate developing operations demand the services of additional salesmen. We have reorganized to meet the requirements of a rapidly growing Real Estate Institution. This is the most opportune time to connect with a firm that can offer you the following opportunities:

First: An opportunity to make more money than you have ever made before.
Second: An opportunity to sell the best properties in and around Chicago that big money can buy.
Third: An opportunity to enjoy ideal working conditions under a very liberal new plan of commissions and bonuses.
Fourth: An opportunity to be in the subdivision business and share in the profits with the firm.

Our business is rapidly growing. We are expanding and need high grade, forceful men between 28 and 45 years of age who are willing to work and take pride in their character and ambition to succeed. This is a rare opportunity for the capable, red blooded, quick thinking type of men who will appreciate the advantages that a concern of prestige, capital, and excellent working conditions can offer.

Because of our leadership in the business and improved methods of selling, the sales resistance in the field is slight, if any.

The earnings of even the average salesmen are big and substantial. Experienced or inexperienced, we shall make serious endeavor to help you step in on a professional footing through the instructions given you at our business training school and Real Estate practice.

Promises cannot be cashed in unless kept. We do not promise, but we are in a position, as a red blooded and healthy organization, to give you an opportunity for which you have been looking for a long time.

Come, we have just moved to our new headquarters, which are large and comfortable—the best in the city. Apply at Room 203, 1009 N. State-st., between 8 a. m. and 8 p. m. You will receive every courtesy and consideration.

An emergency condition has prompted the largest organization of its kind in the United States to offer employment [either full time or part time] to two hundred men; work of sociological nature; positions positively guaranteed. Requirements: White, over 21 years of age, one city reference; refinement essential. Write distinctly.

Name ....

Occupation ....

Hours employed..............................

Fill in carefully, clip, and present in person only at Room 406 London Guarantee and Accident Bldg., 360 N. Michigan-av., at 8 o'clock Friday evening, Aug. 14.

Positions are absolutely genuine, affording an opportunity to earn additional income. Henry Ford's latest industrial venture has made it possible for us to make this unparalleled offer.

Ads appearing in Chicago newspapers of similar wording but different street address have no connection with this firm. Every one applying Friday evening will be given fullest consideration. [The greatest opportunity since Henry Ford built his first car. Items have appeared in all Chicago newspapers.]

SPARE TIME WORK.

To the man who is ambitious enough to want to increase his present income with extra work we offer a real and genuine opportunity to do so, without interfering with his present occupation.

Every man who started working on this plan with us has in a few brief weeks found that he was earning more money with us than he made in his regular job and has become a full-time member of our organization.

We have trained supervisors whose only duty is to assist and train you in our work and help you to make sales.

We will give you real and intelligent assistance thus eliminating the necessity for previous experience in our work.

APPLY 9 A. M. TO 5:30 P. M.
T. F. McFARLAND CO.,
7439 Cottage Grove-av.
Third Floor.

MEN, 21 TO 45.
GET OUT OF THE RUT.

With a little successful preliminary work, we can start you in salesmanship, and if you know the city, pay you a salary even though at the beginning you do not make sales. This is worth your time to investigate at once, for it not only pays real money now but if successful, within a few years you will be financially independent. Call after 9:30 a. m.

R. S. WHITE,
Suite 902, 6 N. Michigan-av.

AMBITIOUS MEN.

One of the largest distributors of a very popular light six motor car has an unusual opening in their retail department for two real hustlers that assures an income of over $500 per month. READ EVERY WORD.

An emergency condition has prompted the largest organization of its kind in the United States to offer employment (either full time or part time) to two hundred ladies; work of sociological nature; positions positively guaranteed; requirements: white, over 21 years of age; one city reference; refinement essential. Write distinctly.

Name ....

Occupation ....

Hours employed ....

Fill in carefully, clip, and present at room 406 London Guarantee and Accident building, 360 N. Michigan-av., at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening, Aug. 19.

Positions are absolutely genuine, affording an opportunity to earn additional income. Henry Ford's latest industrial venture has made it possible for us to make this unparalleled offer.

Ads appearing in Chicago newspapers of similar wording but different street address have no connection with this firm. Every one applying Wednesday evening will be given fullest consideration. [The greatest opportunity since Henry Ford built his first car. Items have appeared in all Chicago newspapers.]

SUCCESS FOR LADIES.

Last week Miss Lila Farrell, the nationally known character analyst, talked with nine ladies who answered this advertisement. She went over their qualifications and reported two unfit for our special work, 3 can be made successful by special training, and 4 with every qualification for success. We believe this is the scientific way of fitting people to positions. We need several more ladies for our new working unit now being formed. If you are over 25 years old, call Monday after 10 a. m. and learn from Miss Farrell if you are qualified. She can definitely read your character.

1120 LAKE SHORE DRIVE
THE ULTIMATE IN A 100% CO-OPERATIVE BUILDING

Every modern convenience for enjoyable living at the price of the ordinary. Ten minutes from the loop, yet in the finest residential district in Chicago.

Although this building is not yet completed, this investment is so obviously desirable that it has been sold twenty-two times to twenty-two representative business men—among these are engineers, brokers, realtors, capitalists, and lawyers—men who are competent to test details of construction and equipment, financial set up, working budget, operating plan, and legal details—men who are best qualified by training, experience, and expert knowledge to be its severest critics and the wives of these men who are special judges of home comfort.

You no doubt have seen and admired the outside of this building, which is just three blocks north of the Drake Hotel.

You cannot really appreciate it, however, unless you see the inside of the building.

There is a variety of choice in both size and arrangements of the apartments. From 5 to 8 rooms in either simplex, duplex, or studio designs are available.

A steel constructed, fireproof, double partition, soundproof building with conveniently planned apartments. The detail is of the very best.

You will be pleased with the detail in these apartments, for example: the kitchen has automatic refrigeration and access to incinerators, porcelain stoves with heat regulators, porcelain enameled sinks with two drain boards and swinging faucet, sanitary concrete floors, etc.

The bathrooms have ceramic tile floors with tile wainscoting five feet high and metal medicine cabinets, inserted tile fixture, vitreous china pedestal lavatory and toilet, recessed or built-in type baths with shower and silk shower curtains.

The lighting fixtures and hardware are of cast brass and special design.

Wood burning fireplaces with Botticcino marble.

The master bedrooms have plaster cornices and woodwork of birch with full cabinet finish and four coat painting.

We could write columns describing the comforts and charm of these apartments. Select your own decorations in conference with expert decorators.

These new, modern apartment homes may be acquired at a price of $12,800 up. Liberal partial payment plan.

The building must be personally inspected to be duly appreciated.

THE AQUITANIA
ON THE LAKE SHORE
AT 5000 NORTH.

Picture the city apartment home you have always wanted.

It should be of unquestionable refinement. It should be beautiful and luxurious. It should be distinctive to such a degree that no one will question your good judgment or taste. Every room should be commodious and comfortable. The closet space should be generous and roomy. The appointments should be of finest quality and latest design. It should be so arranged and situated that it is more like a detached residence than just another apartment in a large building. It must satisfy, in every respect, your ideal of what a city apartment home should be.

You will find these things are a reality when you live in the Aquitania.

When men and women of refinement decide to change their residence their choice is invariably the AQUITANIA.

Under the Co-operative Plan.
The difference will pay you back the very small investment required and in place of worthless rent receipts, you will OWN YOUR HOME in a beautiful high class building in which your interest will increase monthly, $21.50 and $37.73 respectively for following 8 years. The building is ideally located in a select home neighborhood on the North Shore with beautiful gardens and only one small block from bathing beaches, bus and elevated with 20 minute service to loop. Every apartment is light and airy with plenty of sunshine and supplied with filtered water, mechanical refrigeration, vapor heat and janitor service. Real estate values are increasing rapidly here and should double before long. If you can give satisfactory references, we will gladly extend terms. We invite you to inspect these beautiful homes. Look over our neighborhood and let us explain the co-operative plan thoroughly, then use your own judgment. Now is the time for desirable locations. OFFERED BY BUILDER, 1215-1227 Lunt-av. Rogers Park 6621. M. L. REUTER in charge.

BUYS ANY ONE OF MY NEW 19 BRICK BUNGALOWS.
$5,850.
LOCATED ON MARMORA-AV.,
5900 WEST, BETW. GRAND-AV. AND DICKENS.

These 4 room brick bungalows are built with the same quality of material and workmanship that was used in the construction of the eighty 5 room bungalows which I lately built and sold in this district for $8,250, on terms of $1,500 cash and $75 per mo. They are similar to these 5 room bungalows with the dining room left out.

These 4 rm. brick bungalows are built on solid concrete walls 4 ft. high and 1 ft. thick, which in turn rests on a footing of concrete 18 inches wide. The brick used is of the best quality pressed brick. These houses each contain 2 large bedrooms, a kitchen, and a large living room and front and rear porches. The basements are as large as the entire 1st floors and are 7 ft. high, with concrete floors. Shades, electric light fixtures, medicine cases, etc., are installed without further cost to make of these houses complete homes with all modern improvements.

Gas, water, sewer, electric light, and cement sidewalks thoroughly modernize these beautiful homes.

Remember, these bungalows, which can be bought from me on terms of only

$39 PER MO.

INCLUDING ALL INTEREST AND A FIRST PAYMENT OF ONLY

$350

Would readily rent for from $50 to $60 per month.

While buying one of these houses from me your average rental is ONLY $14 PER MONTH. Balance of your monthly payment of $39 is only $25, all of which is credited to the purchase price. In other words, while buying one of these houses on terms of only $39 PER MONTH you are actually saving $25 PER MONTH, OR $300 PER YEAR.

THESE BUILDINGS WILL SELL FAST.

IF YOU REALLY WANT A HOME ON THESE WONDERFUL TERMS, SEE ME.

FLORIDA. HIGH CLASS ACREAGE.

I offer, under exclusive listing, [illegible] acres of exceptionally rich farm land, 10 mi. north of Ocala, a rapidly developing part of Marion county, with frontage of 2 miles on Dixie highway, all high, rolling, well drained and no waste. About one-half in cultivation; 300 acres merchantable timber; balance [illegible] cleared, fertile woodland. Valuable lime deposits, 4 county roads, adjoining the town of Lowell on the Atlantic Coast Line. Fine trucking, fruit, pecan, general farming, stock and dairying land. Entire tract fenced and cross-fenced. Two main and 12 tenant houses, 5 barns, all in good condition. Excellent water supply.

Part of this tract lies in original Spanish Land Grant, one of the best known Spanish land grants, which were of the choicest lands in the state. Under same ownership many years, owner having prospered and retiring on account of advanced age. Title guaranteed sound; immediate possession given but crop reserved. Tracts as good are very scarce and rapidly passing out of the market. With wide knowledge of Florida lands, all sections, I rate this the best tract of its kind and at the price in the state. I know of no land comparable to it for less than $200 an acre. Part of tract on Dixie Highway ready for townsite development. Balance easily handled as small farm development.

Terms: $75 an acre; 22% cash, balance 2, 3 and 4 years at 6%. Binder of $1,000 will hold this property for prompt inspection and will be returned if property not as represented or otherwise unsatisfactory to buyer. Present strong demand for choice acreage suggests prompt action by interested parties.

SALE OF FARM LANDS, BY ORDER OF COURT.

On Wednesday, September 9th, 1925, at 11 o'clock a. m., at the upper north door of the Courthouse in Rockford, Illinois, will be sold all of the farm lands belonging to the William H. Black, deceased, estate, consisting of three tracts as follows:

Farm of 160 acres, well improved, situate on the North Main street road, ten miles north of Rockford.

Also 40 acres situate on same road, one mile south of the village of Rockton.

Also 120 acres in the northwest part of the township of Rockton, all situate in Winnebago County, Illinois.

The last two tracts are unimproved. The 40 acre tract is a wonderful opportunity for a person desiring to engage in the truck garden and poultry business.

Said lands will be sold subject to the present incumbrances, which are as follows:
$12,000 on the 160 acre farm.
$2,000 on the 40 acre tract.
$4,000 on the 120 acre tract.

Possession can be given as soon as sale is consummated. The 160 acre farm and the 40 acre tract are located upon the Meridian Highway, which road will be paved with cement next year without expense to the land owner.

For further particulars inquire of FISHER, NORTH, LINSCOTT & GIBBONEY, Attorneys, Rockford, Illinois.

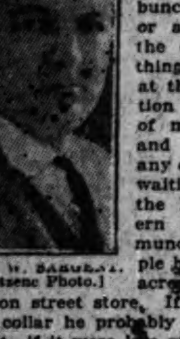
SHOPS GALORE PLANNED FOR N. W. TERMINAL

Rack Removal Brings a Roar from Commuters.

BY AL CHASE.



FRED W. SARGENT. [Metsene Photo.]

Several weeks ago THE TRIBUNE commented on the fact that travelers at the Chicago and North Western terminal couldn't buy a collar, an apple, a bunch of flowers or any other of the countless things to be found at the Union station in its group of modern shops and stands. If any one in the big waiting room of the North Western felt like munching an apple he had to trot across to some Madison street store. If he needed a clean collar he probably continued to need it—if it were late at night or on Sunday. The nearest flower store is across the river. A cigaret or candy could be secured by hiking down to the station drug store.

All this is to be changed by the new president of the North Western, Fred W. Sargent. One of his first moves when he assumed his office (and this, we understand, was planned prior to THE TRIBUNE comments), was to start action to give the traveling public some buying conveniences in the big terminal.

Work Under Way.

Yesterday it was officially announced that work is under way to give the North Western station a group of small shops which will enable the traveler to buy almost anything he or she needs.

In space formerly used for baggage checking a store 45x53 is being constructed where Buck & Rayner will operate a well equipped shopping center.

"Arrangements have been made with Louis Eckstein, president of Buck & Rayner," said a North Western official, "to operate a store which will carry such an extensive line of small merchandise as to be almost a complete department store."

Buck & Rayner's present drug store is to be changed considerably. The cigar department is to be moved over to a new shop to be built to the west of the main stairs leading from the first floor concourse up to the train shed. This space has been occupied by the terminal baggage master's office.

New Entrances to Drug Store.

New entrances to the present Buck & Rayner drug store will be cut through the space now occupied by the cigar counter. It is presumed a ventilating fan or two will be installed to make the drug store a little more inviting on hot days. It recently doubled the capacity of the already large soda fountain.

Upstairs in the big waiting room changes have been made and more are contemplated. Under the old régime the sale of a chocolate bar was considered a sacrilege. Now Buck & Rayner have established a temporary candy stand near the information booth and another stand for the sale of cigars, etc., has been placed near the men's smoking room.

Commuters Roar at Rack Order.

But right on the heels of the order inaugurating these improvements came another which has started a roar of protest from Lake Forest to Geneva and which already has created a feeling of irritation and resentment, judging from the comment made to THE TRIBUNE, which will offset any pecuniary benefits the road will derive from it.

This is the tearing out of bundle racks in all suburban trains so that an advertising agency can install ads along the sides of the cars. This means every North Western commuter will have to hold his coat, hat and bundles in his or her lap in order that the North Western may receive a profit from the rack space.

Wail from North Shore.

"The road'll lose in the long run," commented a north shore commuter. "I held a clammy bundle of fish in my lap last night for half an hour. I wonder if Mr. Sargent realizes what a tremendous inconvenience his order is working on his men and women commuters merely to make a few more dollars for the road.

"I'd gladly pay the higher suburban fare Mr. Sargent is asking the state's permission to charge, if we could have these racks back again."

Meanwhile it is pointed out by another commuter that there is no legitimate reason for tearing out the racks, there being plenty of space on the wall if the ads are inserted two or three inches above the racks.

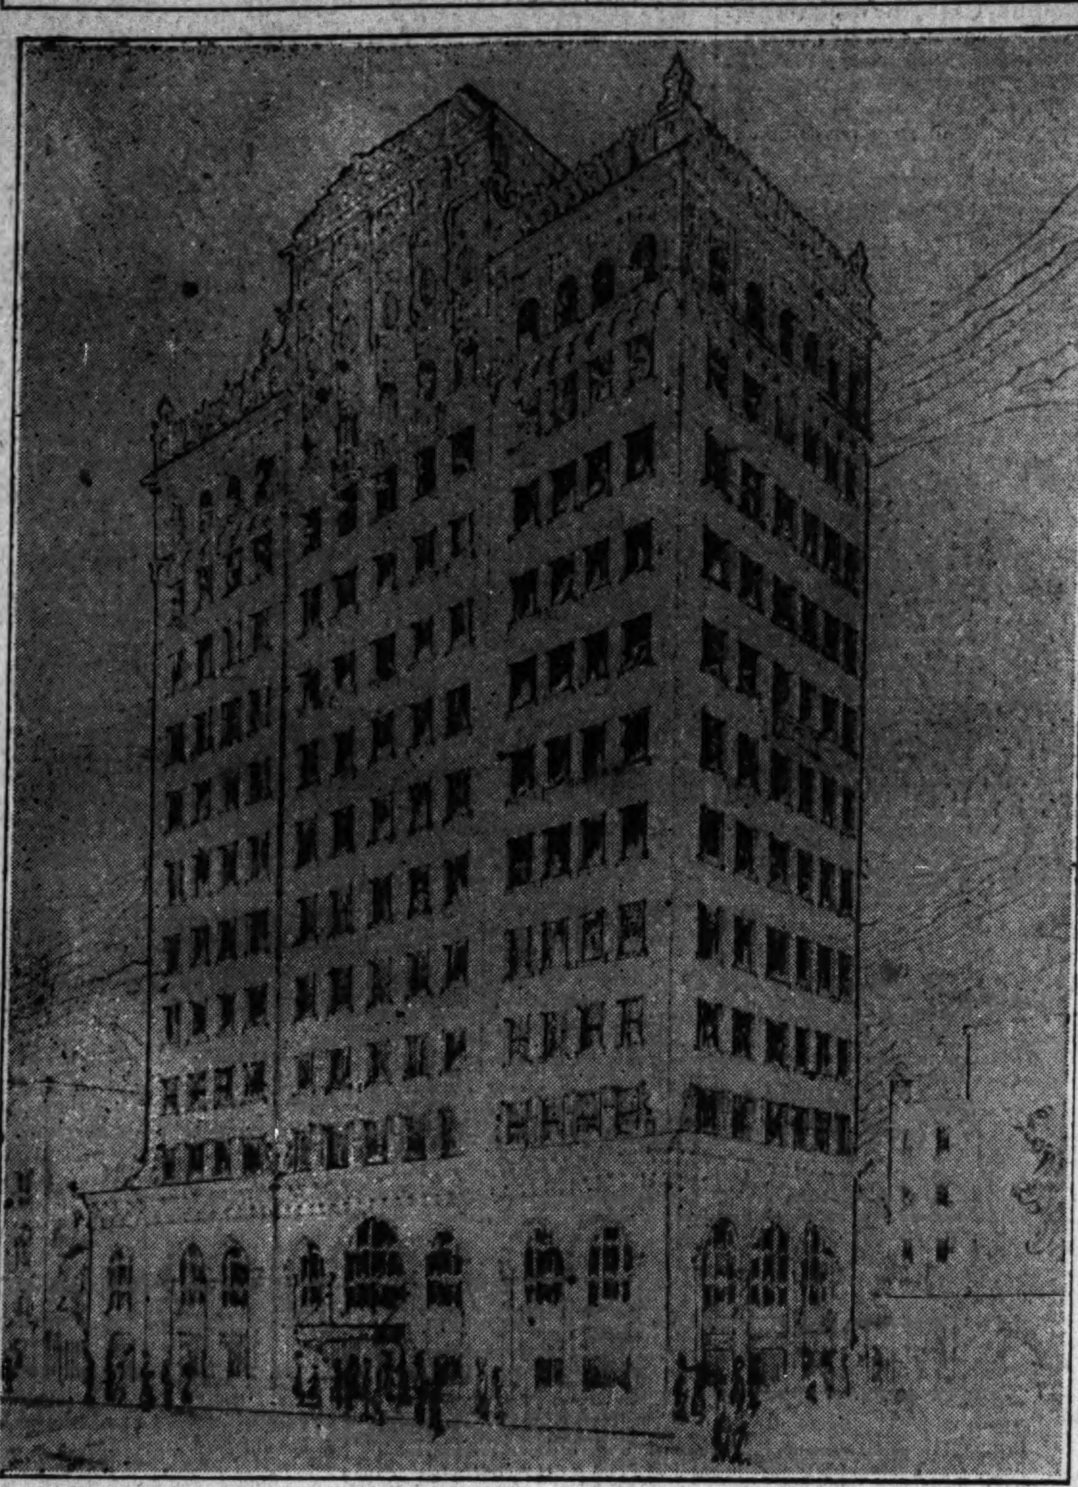
BOULEVARD APARTMENTS SOLD.

The Wilton apartments at the southeast corner of Douglas boulevard and Millard avenue were sold by Louis [illegible] to Max [illegible] for a reported $114,000. Charles S. [illegible] and [illegible] & Caplan were attorneys.

FLATS FOR DREXEL AVENUE.

Michael Telechansky, builder, yesterday bought the vacant 100x125 at 8740 Drexel avenue from Mrs. A. Mourant for a reported $90,000 and will start work in a week or so on a $210,000 flat building. Morris [illegible] was attorney.

Casa Del Mar, Hyde Park's Newest



Architect Albert A. Schwartz designed the above $1,500,000 Casa Del Mar, a 212 room hotel to be erected at the southwest corner of Hyde Park boulevard and Cornell avenue, as told about in this department last Sunday. It will be in the Spanish style of architecture, to harmonize with its name, and will be ready for guests by next May.

All four sides will be exactly the same so far as materials go, even the terra cotta trim being carried around on the elevation overlooking the Illinois Central right of way. Mr. Schwartz also has hidden all the usual roof monstrosities, such as tanks, penthouses, etc., in a setback which blends into the architectural scheme of the upper stories. The hotel will have seven shops on the first floor, a roof garden, large dining room, etc.

SEARS PLANT BREAKS WACKER DRIVE RECORD

Concrete Poured Faster, Says Architect.

Word comes from George C. Nimmons, of George C. Nimmons & Co., Chicago architects, that the recent statement made in all the Chicago papers that a speed record for concrete construction was broken in building the south approach to the Franklin-Orleans bridge where it intersects the new Wacker drive, is incorrect.

"It was stated in one evening paper that the largest quantity of concerete ever handled on a single improvement in one day—more than 1,200 cubic yards—was poured into the wooden forms of the bridge," commented Mr. Nimmons.

"Evidently this paper, and the other papers for that matter, have not heard of the record made at Kansas City on the Sears-Roebuck store where, on May 19, 1,826 cubic yards of concrete were poured in one day and on May 20, 1,315 cubic yards were poured.

"This amount of concrete done in one day would, for example, be equivalent to the floors of a building seventy-five feet wide, 700 feet long, and four stories high."

Martin C. Schwab is mechanical engineer in the erection of the Kansas City Sears-Roebuck & Co. plant. Mr. Schwab also is engineer in the erection of the two Chicago department stores by Sears-Roebuck & Co.

Holmes Pyott Company to Erect a $150,000 Plant

The property between Division and Augusta, along the east side of the C. & N. W. right of way, is now being placed on the market by Paul Steinbreches & Co. for industrial purposes. The southwest corner of Division and Kolmar, 301x268, has been bought by the Holmes Pyott company as the site for a $150,000 plant.

Du Page County Realty Board to Meet at Hinsdale

The regular monthly meeting of the Du Page County Real Estate board will be held next Wednesday at Hinsdale. Dinner will be served at the Blue Lantern tearoom at 7 p. m., according to F. Albert Jones, secretary and treasurer of the board.

Brokers' Notes.

Cramer Foot & Co. have opened new and larger offices at 65 East 79th street. They will continue their office at 7527 Cottage Grove. The phones in their new offices are Triangle 1161 and 1163.

R. M. Johnston & Co., of Wilmette, have opened an Evanston branch at 2547 Prairie avenue, half a block south of Central, in the university town. R. R. Jenness will be in charge. Their phone is Greenleaf 680.

Aaron Bodenweiser and associates of 1533 Hyde Park boulevard, have opened loop offices in suite 1756 of the First National Bank building. Their phone is Central 3053.

The Sherrill Bond & Mortgage company has moved to larger quarters on the fifth floor of the Stock Exchange building.

HYDE PARK BOULEVARD DEAL.

Charles L. Roberts has sold the six apartments at 5464 Hyde Park boulevard to Ben Simon for a reported $71,250, subject to a first mortgage of $35,000. The lot is 50x150. B. French, of McKey & Poague, and Clark & Trainer were brokers.

SUMMER RESORT FOR NEGROES.

A forty acre tract, with half a mile of frontage on the Kankakee river, between Momence and Kankakee, has been made into a summer resort for colored people.

BEGIN INQUIRY INTO 'GIVE-AWAY' REALTY SCHEMES

Real Estate Board to Investigate.

Following legal action in Wisconsin by the attorney general of that commonwealth to stop the fraudulent so called giving away of prize lots by firms with offices in Chicago, the Chicago Real Estate board has begun a campaign to clean up this evil. This move will be directed especially at the firms who operate along these lines in Cook, Du Page and adjacent counties, as well as in Wisconsin, Florida and other states.

One of the favorite methods of these give-away firms is to use a puzzle so easy a child could solve it, and then notify the persons who send in the solution that they've won a lot. Usually the land the lot is on is either worthless or valued at a few dollars an acre. The payment for the abstract [bought in wholesale lots by the realty firm] is usually more for a twenty-five foot lot than an acre would be worth. "Winners" are urged to buy another lot in the "subdivision" at an exorbitant price.

According to a wire from Madison, Wis., Jacob Goldman and Ida Goldman, his wife, of Chicago, are named by Attorney General Herman L. Eckern, in a suit just begun. In this instance name of the concern transferring alleged subdivision lots is the Howard Land association, 123 West Madison street. Platting of this land, it is claimed, was never approved by a town board.

Most of the residents of Riverside discovered a few days ago that they had all been "winners" in a give-away scheme conducted by the Lea Savage Estates, a Florida-Chicago concern. Each winner has an opportunity to pay cash for additional land. The Chicago Real Estate board is investigating this project.

BUYS VACANT ON "THE GROVE."

A price of $600 a front foot has been established through the sale of the 50x125 of vacant at 7625 Cottage Grove, across from the new Grove theater, by Luke J. Malley to Gordon M. Mellen for a reported $30,000. M. Hoffman & Co. were brokers.

IRVING PARK BOULEVARD DEAL.

Thomas K. Valos has bought the store, office and flat building at the northeast corner of La Porte avenue and Irving Park boulevard, through John J. Downey & Co., with George Zotton associated, for a reported $64,000.

BUYS RAVENSWOOD FACTORY.

Dr. C. H. Searle, president of G. D. Searle & Co., has sold the building at 4611 Ravenswood avenue, lot 100x165, which they have occupied for the last ten years, to William M. St. Clair, manufacturer of draperies, interior furnishings, etc., for a reported $75,000, through the E. E. Stults Realty company.

WHISKERED RUMOR OF NEW GLEN ELLYN "3D RAIL" DEPOT BOBS UP

Glen Ellyn's dustiest and most bewhiskered rumor, one that has been printed so often it's thin and threadbare, was tenderly handed out to the Real Estate editor yesterday by Vice President Faber of the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin railroad. The incredulous smile from this resident of Glen Ellyn brought a pained look to the official's face.

"But the plans actually have been drawn for a new station at Glen Ellyn and work is to start as soon as the contracts have been let," declared Mr. Faber.

"That's what they've all said for a hundred years, more or less. Will it be as attractive a station as Wheaton's" was the logical query.

"Well, it'll be a good looking building,' was the only reply.

The plans were drawn by the company's architect, says Mr. Faber.

News of the Architects

B. Leo Steif & Co. announce their removal from the Garrick theater building to larger quarters in the new Bell building, 307 North Michigan avenue. Their phone number is unchanged.

BUYS HURON STREET PROPERTY.

Arthur M. Wirtz has bought the 25x100 at 18 West Huron from Mollie and Catherine Scanlan for a reported $30,000, or at the rate of $1,200 a front foot. The buyer will remodel for business purposes. The Real Estate Management corporation was broker.

Building Contracts in Illinois Show Big Gain

July building contracts in Illinois amounted to $38,412,800 according to the F. W. Dodge corporation. This was a 77% increase over July of last year, although it was behind the enormous record figure for June of this year.

New construction started in Illinois during the last seven months has amounted to $363,593,800, the increase over the corresponding period of last year being 50 per cent.

Of the above amount $238,927,000 was for work to be done in Chicago which has had a 47 per cent increase over last year.

Burke Manor Hotel Leased to Wenzel Hotel System

Theodore W. Williams of Oldefest & Williams, architects, has leased to the Burke Manor Hotel company the hotel building being erected at 3616 Pine Grove avenue for twenty years at a reported annual rental of $36,500. The hotel will be four stories and contain 175 rooms.

It will be operated by the Wenzel Hotel system, now managing eight hotels in Chicago. E. L. Wenzel is president of the Burke Manor Hotel company and Harvey F. Wenzel is secretary. Morris Kempel was attorney.

WILL BUILD $145,000 FACTORY.

Henning Wennersten, Inc., has bought 363x225 on Bloomingdale avenue, south front, between McVicker and Moody avenues, from the Covey-Durham company for a reported $45,000 and will erect a $145,000 plant for the manufacture of malt extract products. Paul Steinbrecher & Co. were brokers.

PLAN NEW COMMUNITY ON ILLINOIS CENTRAL; TO CALL IT MARKHAM

Two large tracts between 147th, 167th, Crawford and the Illinois Central tracks have been purchased by a syndicate and are to be incorporated into a new city to be known as Markham, in honor of the president of the Illinois Cntral railroad.

The smaller of the two tracts, containing 270 acres, runs west from the I. C. to the Dixie highway and extends from 159th to 167th.

The other tract contains 1,417 acres and lies between Western, Crawford, 147th and 167th.

Some of the names identified with the syndicate are: John P. Harding, Fred W. Brummell, W. D. McJunkin, Michael J. Flynn, E. C. Hoyer, F. W. Spilz, and G. Frank Croissant. The latter will subdivide the properties.

Location is the Important Thing When You Buy Real Estate

Where is it? How do you get there?

If it isn't where good transportation exists or where good transportation is extending you had better be satisfied with interest on your savings.

There is only one opportunity today near Chicago to buy property along a new transportation development. And that is in the areas adjacent to the new high-speed "Loop"-Lake Forest extension of the North Shore Line, long given over to Golf Clubs, Forest Preserves and vast estates.

We offer you sites along this new line close to important stations. Attractive prices—ideal locations—small payment down and a little each month.

Blue Ribbon Fiction

The Story of a Girl Who Chose to Dream

THE citizen who named that little prairie town Paris had never been in France. Paris it was when the first double row of shacks straggled along the dusty high road, and Paris it remained when the shacks had given way to frame houses and brick blocks.

When the Reynolds moved out from New Hampshire, Will Reynolds said to his wife, "This place will please you. Not a fancy exterior, but a frivolous name."

And he pinched her cheek, because he loved her. She was extravagant, silly, impractical, but he loved her. He was not even aware of the incongruity of her costume—the bustled skirt, the tight, silk bodice, the absurd little French hat. She minced at his side, and all of Paris turned to stare. Never had the lanky, sunburned residents seen the like of her.

Will purchased a small house in Main street—not the Boulevard Hausman. This was our own Paris, built upon the rolling prairie beneath a white sky. And Reynolds hung out a neat sign painted black and bearing, in gold, the announcement that William Reynolds, M. D.'s office hours were from twelve to one and from three to five.

The house was flush with the sidewalk, but had a garden in the rear, where a wilted tree gave a little shade and there was a patch of grass. Here, her ruffles and bustles spread upon a bench, her slippered feet elevated, Mrs. Reynolds dreamed she was in a French garden. She was "expecting," but her thoughts had a habit of dancing away from this fact. She could imagine herself wealthy, courted, triumphant, but she could not imagine herself a prairie mother.

"This is new country, Maisie," Will Reynolds would say. "Bound to be great some day. It's dull for you, but I prefer to grow with a new state, a new town. Pioneers! I daresay, when this place is civilized, I'll move on again. I don't like finished things. There's something sad in work that is done. Aren't you sorry you married me?"

This was in the seventies. Paris had no sidewalks save in the center of town where boards had been laid in haphazard fashion before the bank, the hotel, and the store. Two years later, Main street was paved, and buggies from the country rattled smartly on asphalt for three miles.

Will Reynolds forgave Maisie for not being a good housekeeper. He was too sympathetic and too tolerant to be a physician, to live at all, as a matter of fact, in a world of pain. He argued to himself that a woman can't wear ribbons and bangles, and sweep and cook, can't have soft hands, and wash dishes.

Most of the housework he did himself. "Now you run up to bed, Maisie. I'll finish the dishes."

There were no servants in Paris. A Mrs. Kenyon, tiny, wrinkled, emotional, came in once a week and scrubbed everything except the doctor's office. This room, cluttered and dusty, was always left to the last, and when Mrs. Kenyon appeared in the door, straining to lift a pail, gray with fatigue, Will would say, "Now, you run along home, Mrs. Kenyon. I'll do the office." But the office was never done. A litter of bottles obscured the shelves. Maps of the anatomy, pink and blue and terrifying, adorned the walls. His desk was placed in front of the window so that he might face his patients, who were allowed the comfort of a worn chair upholstered in horse hair.

HE was too busy to dream of the child that was coming. Whenever he remembered, as he did in moments of stress and worry, it was like a warm flood of feeling from his head to his toes. And the nearest he ever came to criticizing Maisie was to wish that she might take the facts of life more seriously. She seemed to skim over the surface of things. He wished that, now and then, she would be afraid, that she would cry in his arms, that she would show him, by needing him, that she was aware of the life in her keeping.

These were transient thoughts. He loved her. And he told himself that she was marvelously plucky.

Paris whispered that the new doctor's wife was expecting any day now. And then, before any one knew anything about it, Mrs. Reynolds was seen out for a drive, prettier than ever, wearing one of the new pointed capes with ruffles, and carrying her baby wrapped in a pink blanket. It was just like her, people said, to be secretive about something that is everybody's business.

Maisie named her daughter Geraldine. Geraldine lay in the pink blanket, making those puckery, fleeting grimaces, those gum rubbings and bubblings precious to mothers. But Maisie was not interested. She was afraid Will might have lost his romantic love for her, so she pressed her shoulder against his, smiled up into his face, dimpled and blushed for him, and let him see her profile. She knew he adored her nose.

Geraldine beat her hands and blinked at the white, cloudless sky and, making a onesided effort, yawned.

This was her debut in Paris. And she is the heroine of the story.

Maisie was one of those women who care more for their husbands than for their children, and, perhaps because of this, she resented Geraldine. The doctor when he found time to make love to his daughter, did it surreptitiously—a kiss, a nudge of his blunt forefinger, a chuckle. Maisie was always there to jump on his knee, to twine her arms around him and nuzzle—he called it nuzzling—her face in his neck. "You love the baby more than you love me."

And Geraldine would be left to blow bubbles and to make old man faces alone in her crib.

When she was five, you saw she was destined to be either very plain or very lovely. She was solemn, sallow, and melancholy. Maisie dressed her in the plaids and velvets of the period, cut her black hair in a bang, and gave her pie plate hats with streamers. She was photographed thus, at five, against a background painted to represent Niagara Falls. She leaned upon a papier-mache stump, and one foot was crossed over the other in the immemorial manner of Dion Boucicault.

She never played with other little girls, and gained the impression that she was either peculiar or superior. From Maisie, she learned that she could expect nothing from her father, who was too much in love with her mother to make a success of parenthood. Maisie implanted in the solemn, yellow child an inordinate love of finery, a longing for something indefinite called "life," and a conviction that she was destined, some day, to be great. When Geraldine was seven, she painted her first picture—a Venetian lagoon, a gondola, and a crescent moon.

Maisie bent over the table, cupping her chin in her hands, and said, "Wonderful! Perfectly beautiful! I always knew you'd be an artist. My father and mother wanted me to be an artist, but I married instead. I might have gone to Paris."

"Paris?"

"Not this Paris! Across the ocean. Paris, France. If I'd gone, I'd have been great. Like Rosa Bonheur. Or Angelica Kaufman. Women who became great. I had it in me. But I married your father."

"Why?"

Maisie shut her eyes, and was shaken by a little ectasy, a ripple of remembrance. "I loved him."

Geraldine went back to her painting, unable to comprehend. She had recently come into the possession of a drawing book—thick pages bound in canvas. A shiny box of water colors, prismatic cubes imbedded in porcelain, contained the mysterious ingredients with which, were she able, she might transfer her dreams to paper. She struggled with the medium. Her visions were all of palaces, stars, roses, fountains and grottos, marble balustrades and princesses. The sketch book was full of quaint and terrible translations of these dreams and Geraldine knew the agony of one whose dreams are still born.

"She is going to be an artist," Maisie told Will. "We'll send her to Paris when she's sixteen."

"Paris!" The doctor laughed and pinched her cheek. Geraldine realized that Paris was some sort of a joke. Perhaps her mother imagined this other Paris, France.

THE Paris Geraldine knew was growing like a cabbage, sprawling over the hot prairie. In summer the sky was a hot blue, and yellow clouds hung low on the horizon, pulsing with fire, the fitful flickering of heat lightning. No rain fell. The streets were a swirl of dust. In winter the sky was fleckless, white, or lead gray, and snow fell like goose feathers, thick and warm. In spring, the roads were deep with mud, but the prairie showed green and frogs sang in the ditches and birds flew up from the fields.

Main street, not the boulevard, had decked itself with those houses antedating the Chicago fair, elaborate, fretted, and turreted confections made with a jig saw. Lawns, restrained by granite posts and cast-iron chains, surrounded the courthouse, and a bed of salvia blazed before Judge Kennedy's place. In the park, the pride of Paris, a cannon, mounted upon a pedestal, squatted upon pyramids of cannon balls like a hen upon a nest.

Maisie, wearing a plaid dress buttoned from throat to hem with jet buttons, minced the length of Main street, Geraldine's moist hand in hers. Geraldine's fingers clung to the gloved fingers, desperately. People stared at her mother. Her mother was too pretty. And something fanatical, the beginnings of prudishness, stirred in Geraldine. She wanted her mother to wear a gray apron and to do her hair in a wispy knot. She wanted her mother to pass unnoticed. She was jealous, and hurt and ashamed because people stared. Men shouldn't say "Pretty woman!" after her mother had passed. Mothers had to be different.

When Geraldine was ten a young man came to the house twice a week and showed her how to draw. He was an Italian, Maisie said, and his name was Rossi. He had long fingers and a small mouth and little white teeth. He held the pencil delicately, crooking his finger, as if he were trying to be elegant. "This is perspective. You will notice a road. It is wide—so wide—in the foreground. But as it diminishes, it tapers off, until, at the horizon, it is no more than a pin point—so!"

Maisie would clasp her pretty, smooth, plump hands under her chin and, tipping her head to one side, would murmur: "Of course! If I could have studied. They said I had great talent."

Geraldine hated Rossi. She grew sullen, stupid, and did not seem to understand anything. With a flushed face, pouting, she sat as if turned to stone. She noticed that her mother wore amethyst earrings when Rossi came. They shook in her ears, little points of violet glitter.

And Geraldine, out of an obscure need to be understood, went to her father. He was in his office, stirring something in the mortar, and whistling. He was so healthy, so big, so sane, in that room given over to sick people, against that background of gruesome, colored plates! The heart. The liver. Man. Woman. The arteries.

"Well, Gerry?"

"Mother's wearing her earrings. And Mr. Rossi's here."

Her father went on whistling and stirring, squinting at the mixture in the mortar. His face twitched once or twice. After a while he said "O," and, opening the door, he went quickly across the hall, just as he was.

Gerry heard him laughing in there, and Mr. Rossi said: "O, yes, much talent. Indeed!" The front door opened and closed, and her mother and father talked and talked. Gerry sat in the patients' chair, her eyes on a fascinating picture of a disemboweled man, and she was lulled by that murmur of voices. Then her father came in, with a curious, bright look in his eyes.

Her mother's eyes were red. "You little beast!" she said. "You jealous, hateful little beast, to tell him that!"

But her father said: "Don't scold her, Maisie! It's my fault. I'm not with you as much as I should be. Sick people—I'm so sorry for 'em! And I neglect you, whom I love more than all the world. You and Gerry. My girls! My babies!"

Gathering them up, he kissed them both.

GERRY was eleven when Maisie died. The winter had been particularly hard, a winter of blizzards and implacable winds and frozen mud. The prairie was not beautiful; it was bleak, like an empty sea.

One night, in February, the doctor had been called to a farm ten miles from Paris, where a man lay dying of a poisoned arm. Maisie had gone with him, wrapped in a buffalo coat, her hands tucked into a little, absurd sealskin muff. And a week later she had died of pneumonia.

Gerry was accustomed to her father's indifference. Only now it was deepened by grief and remorse. "I shouldn't have let her go! But she begged so!"

And Gerry cried herself to sleep night after night, because Maisie was gone. But at the same time she was glad Maisie was out of danger. Maisie belonged to them, now.

As Gerry grew up, Will bent over and crumpled and grew gray. His patients drove him, harassed and took advantage of him. "I guess I won't go on with the pioneers. It's Nebraska, now, and New Mexico, and California. Golly, how I'd like to smell the California sage! But I'm ossified. Grown into Paris, like a dead tree."

After a while he began to notice Gerry. She was seventeen now, tall, thin, sallow, with a great bun of black hair at the back of her neck, and sleeves like balloons. "Why, doggone it, Gerry, you're a young lady, and I never knew it! You'll be having a beau next!"

Gerry flushed. She was angry. "I should say not! I'm not at all interested in men. I'm going to be an artist. I'm going to Paris some day and study. Mother said I could."

Will's rambling attention focussed, and for a moment he seemed to be in contact with a world he habitually avoided. "Did she, now? Paris. France. That's a long way, Gerry."

"She promised I could go when I was sixteen. I'm seventeen."

The doctor rubbed his chin. "We'll go to Chicago. There's some sort of fair going on there. I reckon you can see as much art in Chicago as you ever could in Paris, France. Maybe more."

And so they went, the doctor absent minded and gentle, Gerry stiff with recognition of the marvel. The prairies seemed to roll back upon the horizon, as if spun upon a bobbin, and the plain gave way to suburbs, to crowded streets, to lights, noise, people, the glamorous lobby of a hotel banked with tubbed palms and starred with nickel plated spittoons. Then the exhibition grounds, the wheel, the Japanese gardens, the great, echoing, white halls; the plaster fountains and heroic statues, and midways, and pavillions. She was afraid of her emotion, afraid people might notice it, laugh at her. "Aren't you having a good time?" her father asked.

"Yes, very!"

A good time!

The sleeves of her poplin dress were like twin balloons and she wore a "tailored" straw hat. Her belt was pinned low in front with a twisted silver dragon, and she tried to bulge in the back, to "scoop" like the women of fashion. For the first time she saw women in bloomers, thousands and thousands of them, riding bicycles in Jackson park, like wheeled butterflies.

And for the first time she came into contact with the beautiful, with symmetry, with color. She saw paintings, statues, fabrics, porcelains. What she could not understand, she absorbed, like a sponge soaking up water. She accepted and admired everything, good, bad, and indifferent. She moved in a daze, a surfeit of feeling. And Will, browsing, thinking of his patients, knew nothing whatever about her. She wasn't pretty. She said little. Only her eyes were alight with some inner fire, so that they were like black diamonds, or quartz, hard and bright.

She was going to be a great artist.

THEY went back to Paris, to the hot prairie in mid-August.

Will said: "Well, it looks pretty good, after all. I never could bear cities. People smother me. I guess I'm a born frontiersman. I'd never die of loneliness, but I'd perish of crowds."

Gerry got out her box of water colors, sharpened her pencils, and painted her first masterpiece: "Roses in a blue vase."

The doctor dragged all of his friends into the front parlor, now Gerry's studio, to look at it. "Isn't it pretty? Real as life, now, isn't it? Every leaf and petal perfect."

Following this debut, Mr. Shults, who edited the Paris Star, mentioned "Our native daughter, poet of the brush, Geraldine Reynolds, pride of Paris, artistic genius, has returned from the world's fair."

And thereafter Gerry went haloed with an invisible nimbus; she wore laurel. She painted flowers, sunsets, country roads, and church steeples—landscapes created from her imagination, evoked from a crooked memory of pictures. While, all about her, the prairie shimmered in the sun and sultry cumuli heaped themselves upon the horizon, and farmers worked in the fields. She never saw them. She moved in a world of roses and marble balustrades, a world apart from plains patterned with the moving shadows of clouds. "Poet of the brush. Paris's child of genius." And she felt the weight of the invisible laurel on her hair.

When she was twenty, Joe Burch came to Paris. He had been farther west, but had turned back to the prairie because nowhere else in the world could he be himself. "O, I've seen California, and the sea, and I've smelled the sage your father is always talking about, but I've never seen anything in California to touch the prairie. Why it's as wide as a man's heart and as deep as time and as changeable as a woman. Now, if I was you, Miss Gerry, I'd paint pictures of the prairie."

Gerry sniffed. They were sitting in Maisie's parlor, Gerry's studio. Upon a bamboo easel, Gerry's latest canvas, to be presented to the Paris library, displayed an expanse of blue-white snow, a gate, a steeple and a crescent moon. Joe Burch always lounged, and one long leg was hooked over the other, so that a foot dangled and you saw the sole of an enormous shoe. He was the tallest man in Paris. He had thatched brows, a mop of hair and a big nose. Gerry always avoided his eyes because, somehow, they were too honest. There is such a thing as being too much in the sunlight, on the outside of things. Gerry preferred dreams to facts. She was working toward Paris, and immortality. She liked to pretend that she was chosen by destiny to remain always in ignorance of the brutal facts of life and death.

"Why not? Don't you like the prairie?"

"No," she said sharply, "it's crude."

"Crude." Joe Burch considered that word. Then he began to laugh, shaking his big shoulders that were made twice as big by a padded coat. "Well, now!"

Gerry flushed. She was almost pretty when she flushed. And Joe Burch was silenced by a sudden pity for her. With all that hair let down, she'd look like a little girl—but she had a mighty firm jaw! What she believed, she believed.

"Well, you come out riding with me some day, Miss Gerry, and I'll show you the prairie I mean. I've got five hundred acres. Some day, I'll have a thousand."

She went with him because he would not be denied. He had a jaw of his own. And they drove in his gig behind a pair of pacers, straight up Main street and out into the country. Gerry felt as if some one had snatched off the laurels. The poet of the brush, driving with a man, a farmer. She glanced up at him, and a funny little shudder passed through her, because his skin was wrinkled and burned, his neck creased like a workingman's neck, between the line of his collar and the straight black hair, shingled.

"This is America," he said. "This belongs to you and me, to simple folks like us. We've made it. We've planted it. Some day we'll finish it. But I like it as it is. I run away from jobs that are done! I like to begin."

"And I like finished things," she said primly. "I belong in Paris, France. Some day, when you're ploughing these fields, I'll be in Paris."

SUDDENLY he swept her into the circle of his arm and held her close, so close that she cried: "Don't! You're hurting me, Joe Burch!"

"Am I? Well I mean to! You silly little woman, you deserve to be hurt. You've got notions that ought to be squeezed out of you. And I'm the one to do it. I like you a whole lot. You're going to be my wife, some day. Soon. You're going to stop painting pictures and bake cakes. And when we're both middle aged, and sensible, we'll go to France. But first the prairie's got to bloom!"

She lifted her eyes to his face, knowing he was deeply shaken and herself panic striken. She had never thought this could happen to her, and somehow she was sorry, not for him, but for herself. She should not have come! She might have known! She had wanted to live alone in her citadel of purity and tranquillity, undisturbed, in ignorance! She felt the living warmth of this man, the weight of his body, the compelling pressure of his arms. If she gave way, surrendered to her faintness, she would never again be herself, but his, deprived forever of the laurel.

"No, no," she said. Why was it that she had never noticed what white teeth he had? If he only wouldn't smile, as if he had won her already! If only he wouldn't be so sure of her!

"We'll have a farm house, Gerry, out here. A storm roof with a peak. A porch facing south. A big kitchen. Right here, where we are now, on this rise of ground. Can't you see your house, Gerry? Feel it growing up out of the earth? A cellar, then the first floor, and the second, and the roof, and the chimneys! Isn't that better than Paris, France? Why, France isn't yours, Gerry! It never can be. It isn't real. But I'm real. And I'm asking you to marry me."

She shook her head.

Within her there was a conflict, sharp, blind, terrible, between her two undeveloped and antagonistic selves, between Gerry the woman and Gerry the genius. She stiffened. She must fight. She was chosen. "I hate you! I do! Let me go. I don't want to marry anybody."

Slowly, he loosened his arms. His face grew white; osened his arms. His face grew white;

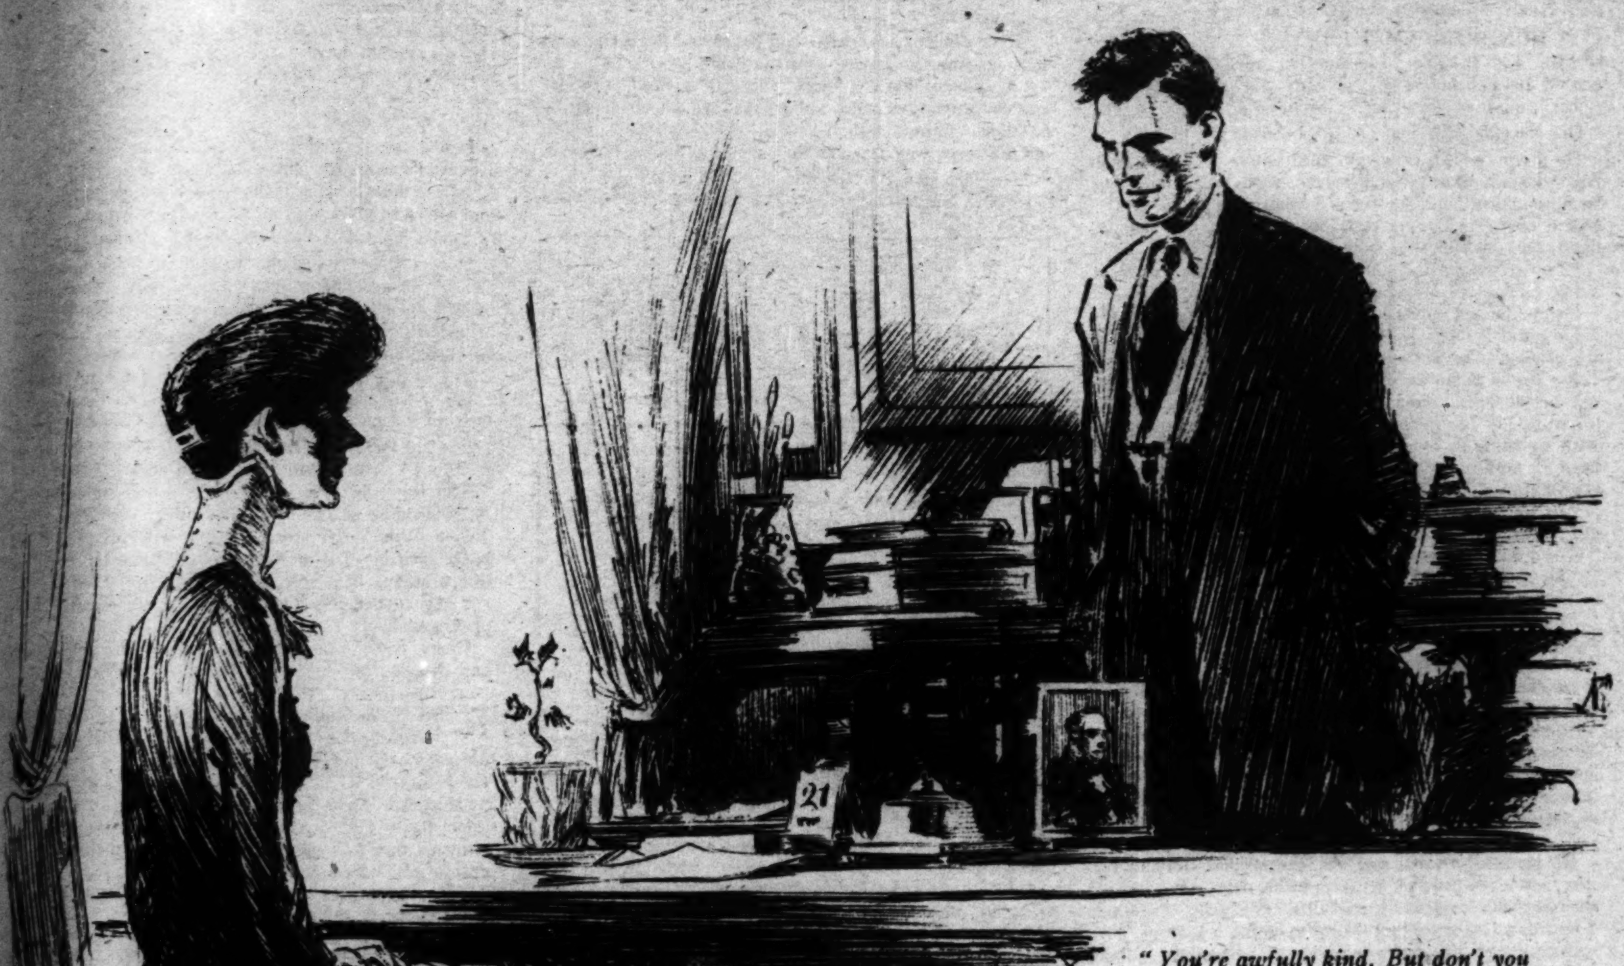
his mouth twisted in a curious way. Gerry knew she had lost him. And most desperately she wanted him back. For now, turned away from her, hers no longer, he was not a man but a child, not to be feared, but comforted, not to run from, but to cherish. She sat stiff and aloof at his side while he turned the pacers around and drove toward Paris. She longed to call him back, to say: "I was a fool! I love you." They did not speak. The horses, indifferent to what had happened, wove the curious pattern of their gait along the dusty road and the sun sank, bringing the cool shadows of late afternoon. "If I should speak, now! If I should tell him!" But she could not bring herself to look at him. Even her tears were held back; they would not overflow from her heart and spill out of her eyes.

Joe Burch left her at the doctor's door: "William Reynolds, Office Hours Twelve to One, Three to Five," in dim gold upon rusty black. He drove up smartly, handed Gerry down, tipped his hat. "Good-by, Miss Gerry. It's been a pleasant drive."

She passed the open door of the doctor's office and had a glimpse of her father, a stethoscope to his ears, his white head bent, listening to heart beats of some stranger. She ran upstairs. How funny her room looked! Unreal. And going to the mirror, she stared at herself. "That's me! Joe Burch asked me to marry him. And never will again! Never will again!"

She took off her hat, and put it in its round paper box. She folded her dress, placed it neatly in its accustomed place. She unpinned her hair. It was thick, coarse, lustrous, and it tumbled in a cascade over her shoulders. Then she knew what she had lost. Then Gerry cried.



"You're awfully kind. But don't you see, if you gave it to me, it wouldn't be mine. I've got to earn it."

Joe Burch kept away from the Reynolds. Weeks and weeks passed, and every time a carriage rattled by, Gerry's heart contracted as if it were never again going to let go, as if a hand were squeezing, squeezing.

He did not come. "Funny, Joe Burch hasn't been around, Gerry. Nice fellow. They tell me he's going to buy Fillmore's acres and build."

So Gerry went back to her laurels.

WHEN she was twenty-five, no man would have been moved to imagine her with her hair down. She wore it uncompromisingly back, even when Gibson was insisting upon the part, the soft wave and the loose knot. Gerry was an old maid in a period of our social history when to be an old maid was to be despised and scorned of man. The new woman had not penetrated to Paris, although there were intimations of her arrival in Chicago. Either you were married, or you were not.

Gerry had to see her contemporaries, one by one, enter the mysterious portal, lingering on the threshold, engaged, passing through into matrimony, emerging again, smug, self-satisfied, settled down. Wives. She had to submit to their smugly complacent pity and to know the bitterness of being left out because, "after all, Gerry, you don't belong in the married set." She had to pretend an enthusiasm she did not feel when accosted by mothers with perambulators. "Isn't he a darling, Gerry? O Gerry, what an awful pity——"

After all, Gerry's debut had not been hailed with enthusiasm. It had been, first and last, Maisie's triumph. But Gerry always said "Perfectly, darling!" And allowed herself to be pitied, because she knew that when these women were work ridden and calloused, she would be in France. The dream persisted. She cherished it, hugged it to her breast. It was her compensation.

When Will died, she was twenty-eight. He said to her, that last morning: "Everything I've got is yours. This house. The furniture. My books. All the outstanding bills. Only don't collect from the Kenyons. They haven't a red cent." He groped for her hand. "You're a good girl, Gerry. I hope you'll marry."

She did not remind him that she was a genius and that art would claim her. She kissed him and cried as if her heart would break.

After the funeral, she thought: "Now, I can go. There is nothing to hold me."

The doctor had always forgotten whatever had no importance for him. The house, Gerry discovered, was mortgaged. The furniture was worthless. And since Will had never kept track of his affairs, there were no "outstanding" bills.

So Gerry went to work at the public library. Out of pity, remembrance, perhaps of Will Reynolds' thirty years of service, an office was created for his daughter. This could not happen in cities larger and less pitiful than Paris. It is even possible that it could not happen at all, anywhere, today. Joe Burch, the Kennedys, the Sanford brothers were members of the library board. They put their heads together, and offered Gerry the post of art curator and lecturer.

She had an office of her own, a desk; a potted plant in a petticoat of green tissue paper added a feminine touch. Promptly at nine, wearing brown pongee with a brown lace collar, she reported for work. This was the period of princess dresses, tight fitting from throat to ankle, boned about the neck, and flounced about the feet. But Gerry clung to the dear, glamorous styles of her youth. She would not move with the times, because to do so was a subtle admission that time had passed. She must be twenty, no more, when her dream came true. She saw herself swaying along the boulevards in one of those tailor made masterpieces of the early nineties, with a little parasol and bronze shoes, and a "figure." She never saw herself as she was, but as she some day would be.

She lectured on Michelangelo, Watts, Raphael, and Burne-Jones to the more wide awake women of Paris. There were never any men in her audience. It was considered effeminate to have an interest in the arts. The men of Paris, released from the day's work, foregathered in the lobby of the Kennedy house and swapped stories—mostly smutty.

Gerry's salary could be stretched to cover the mortgage and to buy food and clothes. She reckoned that by going without new clothes and by reducing her grocer's bill, she could save two hundred dollars a year She wrote it out, in a neat, spidery hand, in a ruled notebook. Five years. A thousand dollars. She would rent the house and go to Paris.

AND so, for the first time, she began to speak of "my trip abroad." There was about her a new dignity and a new sweetness. She was like a woman going toward a lover. "My studio in the Latin quarter." Or "My work at the salon will be the gift of Paris to Paris." This was a delicate allusion. But no one thought to smile. Gerry's dream of Paris, France, was becoming an accepted fact. And she had the small, personal triumph she had expected. "I wish I were you, Gerry Reynolds. Free to go and come. I'm tied down with babies and housework, so's I can't call my soul my own."

"O, now, Nellie, I know you'd do it all over again if you had to."

"Maybe. But life isn't what they'd like to have us believe. The real thing isn't as good as thinking about it."

Gerry went on painting. Her memory of the canvases exhibited at the fair was not insistent. She was not limited by the doubts and confusions which beset her contemporaries. She knew nothing of impressionism. She had never heard of those disturbing and revolutionary Frenchmen who were painting in terms of light. To Gerry, a landscape was a landscape, and her formula never varied. She painted girls with cherries and children with kittens and cobblers and moonlight. She remained, unchallenged, the only artist in Paris.

When Joe Burch married, the Gerry of Maisie's creation died and the real Gerry came into being. Life had always been life with the glorious and remote possibility that Joe Burch might ask her to marry him. Now, life was life with the possibility left out. Joe Burch married Astrid Ericson, and they went to live in the house he had built out on the prairie. Gerry read the notice in the Star and caught herself all crumpled up on her bed, sobbing as if she never could stop. "What's the matter with me? I'm crazy. I didn't love him. I'm happier as I am." And she lay on her back, dry eyed, staring up at the crack in the ceiling, exhausted.

Ten dollars. Forty dollars. A hundred dollars.

She told herself she would rather be an artist than a farmer's wife. Astrid Burch cooked for Joe and the hired men, cleaned the big house, washed, ironed. Her hands were swollen and pink, her strong arms looked always as if they had been immersed in hot suds.

Gerry cooked her own meals and ate them alone. She always set a place for herself in the dining room, using Maisié's wedding linen and the silver Will had inherited from his grandmother. She always removed her apron, smoothed down her dress and ate with punctilious attention to the niceties. No one but the grocer knew she hadn't enough to eat.

As she grew older, she grew thinner. Her black hair was streaked with gray. Her eyes, seeming always to look ahead at some vision, were magnificent.

Two hundred dollars.

Five hundred dollars.

"A nice steak today, Miss Reynolds? We have some fine porterhouse."

"No, thank you, I prefer a small slice of ham. Very thin. Only one slice."

"That woman don't eat enough to keep a bird alive. Ham! Ham! Ham! Or maybe a chop. But mostly tea and rice."

SIX HUNDRED DOLLARS.

Mrs. Joe Burch's Scandinavian good looks disappeared behind layers of fat. But Joe Burch, waxing richer, remained always Joe Burch.

One day he came into Gerry's office at the library.

He stood in the doorway, his thatch of upstanding hair touching the lintel, his eyes, with that humorous twinkle, taking in the framed photographs of Notre Dame and the Louvre, the potted plant, the orderly desk and Gerry behind it—Gerry. Curator of the arts.

"Thought I'd drop in and see how you're getting along. They tell me you're going to Paris."

Gerry flushed a dull red from throat to forehead. "Some day." And then she blurted out: "I'm saving the money. I've got six hundred dollars saved."

Joe Burch came in, closed the door, and seated himself beside her. Then she knew he had not changed. He smiled at her in that old way—as if she would agree with anything he might say, because she could not help herself. "Why, you're not going to go to France with six hundred dollars!"

"In four years, I'll have a thousand. And the mortgage clear." "Four years——" His eyes deepened. "Why good Lord——"

"Don't pity me!"

"I don't. Only it's all wrong. Waiting twenty years for something to happen. Why dreams have got to come true. They do! I've never had a dream that didn't come true if I dreamed it often enough. It's some sort of law. But twenty years!" He broke off and stared into the crown of his hat at a gilt label inscribed: "Hirsh's Emporium." Then he said: "I'm ashamed, Miss Gerry, when I think of the salary you're getting. Why, you're the leading citizen of Paris, an influence for good—We're back numbers out here. I guess we didn't realise how much you were worth to us."

He leaned forward, and, for the second time in her life, Gerry noticed the wrinkles in his skin—lines carved there by sun, and wind, and dust, and rain. "I'll tell you what I'm going to do. I'm going to hurry that dream along. I'm going to give you a thousand dollars, and you can pay me back when you get rich."

Gerry shook her head. In a panic she cried: "No! No! I couldn't! It's impossible."

"You're not thinking of that day you said you hated me?"

Covering her face with her hands, she trembled violently. "I didn't! I don't. It isn't that."

"Because I forgave you a long time ago. And I'm married. And we're grown up, you and I—getting to be old folks. This isn't the time to be foolish. I've always been fond of you, Miss Gerry. Call it what you like. I always admired the way you went out after your dream. I wasn't it. You had your mind set on a city, a big, beautiful, white city full of statues and parks and pictures. You didn't hate me. You were just fighting the best way you knew how to get what you hankered for. Now, I had a dream of my own. And I've got it. Twenty thousand acres of prairie, all in bloom!" He put his hand briefly on her hers. "What do you say?"

She shook her head. "You're awfully kind. But don't you see, if you gave it to me, it wouldn't be mine? I've got to earn it."

"Well," he said, slowly, "perhaps you're right."

Eight hundred dollars.

Nine hundred dollars.

Gerry knew, now, that she would have fulfillment. Her cheeks always burned; a bright, feverish spot of color painted her cheekbones. A year——

She got out the tailor-made suit she had worn at the fair, cleaned and mended it, pressed the monstrous sleeves, stuffed them with tissue. Hanging in the closet, the garment had a frivolous, eager look. The stuff was as good as new. The silk petticoat rustled crisply. From its round box Gerry took the cherished hat, a "sailor" of the nineties. She hooked her gaunt body into a watered silk afternoon gown trimmed with circular ruffles. From the bodice an odor of rose sachet floated up, assailed her, so that for a moment she was faint. It never occurred to her that these clothes, twenty years old, were ridiculous. Paris, France, had waited for her.

BUT, after all, it was time that changed everything.

Joe Burch was driving in to the city one day. Beside him, fat, contented, red cheeked Astrid Ericson Burch looked out upon a landscape that was hers from horizon to horizon. Joe had never driven an automobile. He preferred horses, pacers, well matched. Automobiles, he argued, were dangerous. Always getting into trouble, turning over, smashing into things, burning up. No; he preferred animals to machines. Machines couldn't think. You couldn't leave an automobile alone and expect it to find its way to the stable. No, sir-ree.

A light snow had fallen and had melted again, leaving a treacherous outer crisp upon a sea of mud.

A mile from Joe's house the railroad cut west and east, two shining tracks that linked the prairie to the seaboard.

As they approached the crossing a plume of smoke curled up, thick, black, moving. "The train. The twelve-thirty. We'll wait a minute."

Joe drew the pacers to a walk. He could hear the train now, that long drawn whistle which always sounded as if the great steel monster fled across the plain crying: "Where are you? Where are you?"

Joe Burch glanced at Astrid and his mouth twisted into a wry smile. It had been just here, twenty years ago, that——

Gerry did not hear what had happened until the next day. It was the grocer who told her.

"A slice of ham? Thin. Yes'm. I don't suppose you've heard the news about the accident? Terrible accident. People named Burch. The rich Burch. Lived out Fillmore way in a big brown house with a red roof. Nice fellow, too."

Gerry hung on to the edge of the counter with both hands. She watched the long, bright butcher's knife slice into the ham—fat, lean, fat—slap. "Quarter of a pound."

"They were waiting for the train to pass. The engineer whistled. You know how it is. Awful noise. That twelve-thirty's the California express. It came tearing through and caught the buggy right on the track. Maybe the horses were scared. Tossed 'em up! Killed them both."

"The horses?"

"Yes'm. Killed Mrs. Burch, too."

"Killed—him?"

"I guess not. They've got him over at the hospital. All smashed up."

Paper. String.

"Twenty-five cents. Anything else, m'am?"

"No."

Gerry wandered up the street toward the library, her mind vacant. Funny that people could still be going about their business, laughing, meeting, talking, quite as if nothing had happened! She saw old Mr. Shultz standing in the doorway of the new Star building.

When she approached him, with that blind look in her eyes, stammering, "Where have they taken him?" he caught her by the arms and shook her. "Miss Gerry, what's the matter? Where have they taken who?"

"Joe Burch."

His look softened. "I didn't know, Miss Gerry, you cared for him. At the county hospital. We'll take a cab."

"No. No."

"You come right along."

They were in one of the station hacks, sitting side by side in a musty half twilight. Mr. Shultz kept murmuring: "Too bad. Too bad."

Gerry tried to explain, but the weight against her heart was too great. She leaned forward, staring out of the window.

AT the hospital a nurse, glancing at Mr. Shultz card, said crisply, "Come upstairs. You may see him for a moment. He will never walk again."

He lay on a narrow crib in the room that was too bright and clean; his face was averted. Gerry went forward, leaned over him. He turned his head, slowly, slowly.

"It's me, Gerry. I heard only a few minutes ago. Don't you believe them. Don't you believe anything they tell you." Out of her pity and her dread she said a strange thing: "The desert bloomed, Joe. Remember."

He looked at her. His eyes were dull. He licked his lips and turned his head away again. He shut her out.

All the way home Mr. Shultz patted her back with his delicate, withered hand. "There, there. It was nice of you, Miss Gerry. Now, don't you worry."

Again the agony of waiting! Weeks and weeks of waiting for some one to come who did not come, with that catch of dreadful hope every time the bell rang. Always it was the grocer or the postman or the newspaper man or some one selling something. But never was it Joe Burch. She heard that he had left the hospital, that he walked with crutches. "I guess I'm a fool. I shouldn't have gone to the hospital." And again she surrendered her delicious possibility.

In the spring she sold the house.

"Paris is growing in the other direction, Miss Reynolds, toward Fillmore. I could have sold the house for you five years ago at quite a figure! Quite a figure. The best I can do now is to accept, say, three thousand cash and a mortgage. Say, eight thousand. Terms. Easy terms. A Chinese laundry is looking for a house in this neighborhood."

Gerry received the Chinese laundryman in Maisie's parlor. He was young, this Chinese, with a puckered, sensitive, eager face. He fingered Maisie's treasures, rubbed his tapered yellow fingers over the surfaces of things, peered, sucked in his breath, carrying on a sort of bird singing to himself as he tiptoed from room to room. The doctor's charts attracted him: "Vlelly nice. Vlelly plitty."

It was done. In the bank, charged to Miss Geraldine Reynold's account, there were one thousand and nine hundred dollars. Her father had been dead eight years and she was thirty-seven. And Paris, France, Maisie's promise, lay upon the horizon like a beautiful mirage.

It was then, while she was waiting for the sale of the furniture, that she met Rossi's son. He came out of the past—young, dark, foreign—to confront her. "I'm Guglielmo Rossi. My father sent me. You used to study with him."

"Of course. Come in."

She led the way into the parlor.

"Won't you sit down? Of course, I remember. But I was a little girl. Not more than seven. How is your father? I didn't know he was living in Paris."

The boy did not accept her invitation. He stood in the middle of the room, his quick eyes flying, taking in everything. He stood straight with his head thrown back, braced as if nothing could shake him. He was like a statue or a tree, Gerry thought.

"My father has a store on Warner street. He's a photographer."

Gerry could not help an exclamation of sympathy and disappointment: "O! He used to be an artist!"

ROSSI'S son turned on her with a flame in his eyes. "Used to be! He gave it up because he had to. Artists starve out here. These people don't know——" He hesitated as if doubtful of a word she might not understand. Then, breathlessly, he said: "They don't know beauty when they see it. My father was a great painter, but he's spent his life taking cabinet photographs of Bohemian farmers."

"Don't you like Paris?"

He shouted: "No! Do you?"

Gerry shook her head. "I suppose not."

"It's terrible! First there was the plain, with nothing on it—miles and miles of it—as far as the eye could reach. And then they came, Swedes, Germans, Bohemians, English. And they forgot what they'd come for. They forgot what they'd left over in Europe. They built ugly houses. 'We'll be going back some day. This will do for America!' They put up flimsy fences and cheap barns and sheds and awful little churches. Because they were going back some day! And then they began to make money. The railroad came. And then they built an ugly town and an ugly hotel and an ugly railroad station in the middle of it. And they said they were too busy to plant gardens or to make fountains. They weren't too busy! They'd forgotten. 'Anything will go. This is America. We are free to do as we like.' And in thirty years they built Paris."

Rossi's son began to pace the room, peering at everything. He stopped before Gerry's canvas in pastel: "Christmas Eve." He swung out his arms.

"Now, terrible things like this!"

"Isn't it good?" Gerry asked in a small voice. Something clutched at her heart.

"Of course not! Didn't you know? You ought to know. You teach art." He began to make big sweeping motions with his hands over the precious surface. "The whole thing's silly. It isn't drawn. It's smeared on. It doesn't move, as nature moves—is always moving. It's static!"

"Static!"

There was something dreadful, final, about this word.

"It's dead. Like these houses out here. Like the Kennedy house."

He seemed to push Gerry's canvas out of his offended sight. He crossed to Gerry's side and took the chair she had offered him when he came in. Then she saw that he had a curious, whimsical face; his nose tipped

The Gates of Doom

by Rafael Sabatini

READ THIS FIRST!

CAPTAIN HARRY GAYNOR, a young soldier of fortune, is the intermediary between the Stuart pretender in Rome and his followers in England. To the government he is known as Captain Jenkyn. In England Gaynor meets

LORD PAUNCEFORT, supposedly loyal to the Stuart cause and engaged to a great heiress,

DAMARIS HOLLINSTONE. Seeking to win the girl's vast fortune for his Prince's cause, Gaynor stakes huge winnings at cards against Pauncefort's claim to Damaris. Gaynor loses. He is harbored by the girl's guardian,

SIR JOHN KYNASTON, a secret Jacobite. Sir John later warns Gaynor of Pauncefort. The latter had made veiled threats when Sir John refused to sanction his immediate marriage to Damaris. Pauncefort wanted her fortune to stave off the ruin facing him through gambling losses, and Damaris saw him then as a fortune hunter. At the Kynaston home Gaynor mistakes Damaris for

EVELYN, daughter of Sir John, and thus spends a delightful week with Damaris. Evelyn writes to Pauncefort warning him a rival for Damaris has appeared. Pauncefort fails to attend an important meeting of the Jacobites, and they are all arrested except Gaynor. The captain discovers suddenly that Damaris loves him even as he loves her. He puts his life in her hands by telling her he is Captain Jenkyn. She, too, reveals her true identity. They are interrupted by Pauncefort, who vents his rage by telling Damaris how Gaynor gamed with him for her hand and lost. Gaynor's face tells her the charge is true, and heartbroken, she flees. Gaynor forces a duel on Pauncefort, but the latter escapes just as Gaynor is about to finish him. Gaynor is arrested and sentenced to hang. Facing death, he writes Damaris the real reason for his gambling with Pauncefort for the right to woo her. Gaynor is hanged. Sir John, a spectator, tries to get his body, but body snatchers make off with it. Gaynor awakens to find he has been saved by

DR. EMANUEL BLIZZARD, who bought his body from the ghouls and found life still present. Gaynor remains at the doctor's house to recuperate. Meantime Pauncefort warns Sir John a warrant is being issued for him by order of

LORD CARTERET, secretary of state. Pauncefort asserts he may be able to save Sir John if the latter will permit his immediate marriage to Damaris. Though his ward is willing to sacrifice herself, Kynaston scorns the proposal. He is arrested by order of Lord Carteret. Gaynor, at the news, hastens to EDWARD TEMPLETON, second secretary, who had been taken in by the soldier of fortune and his confederates and who has resigned in disgrace. Templeton is convinced by the appearance of the live Captain Gaynor that he and the "dead" Captain Jenkyn are not identical, and that Sir John consequently is innocent of complicity in the Jacobite plans. He promises to intercede with Lord Carteret for the prisoner's release.

INSTALLMENT XIII.

Lord Carteret Understands.

THE arrest of Sir John Kynaston had been brought about, of course—like all the others—by the agency of the renegade Pauncefort. It was the last desperate throw he made in the game of mending his fortunes, a game which had reduced him to the treacherous infamy which he had perpetrated. But he intended that it should be no more than the means to his end. It was no part of his purpose that Sir John should ultimately suffer. That is to say, it was no part of his present purpose.

He had pointed out to the secretary of state the grounds upon which Sir John should be arrested, and he had further informed against him out of his own knowledge of Sir John's association—however slight—with the Jacobite intriguers. But once the arrest was effected he had come again to my Lord Carteret with the request that Sir John's fate should be placed in his own (Lord Pauncefort's) hands. He claimed this as part of the recompense due to him from the government for the signal services he had rendered.

Lord Carteret had listened to his request with that frank contempt which the secretary of state never failed to use toward this man who had turned informer. This contempt was rendered the more bitter on this occasion by the regard in which his lordship had ever held Sir John Kynaston, against whom, indeed, he had performed his duty most reluctantly—a feeling this which Lord Pauncefort had omitted from his calculations.

The statesman pursed his thin lips and considered the viscount in silence with that cold glance of his, which my Lord Pauncefort found it so difficult to endure with equanimity.

"I find your request more than extraordinary, sir," said he.

Lord Pauncefort laughed. "If your lordship had my own unfortunate acquaintance with the requests of creditors, you'd find little extraordinary in mine."

"By which," said the minister quietly, "you remind me, of course, that you are my creditor; or, rather, that I am your debtor for services rendered to the state. Ah!"

"I think, my lord, I deserve some recompense beyond the small sums of money which the treasury has paid me."

Lord Carteret leaned back in his armchair, his finger tips resting upon the edge of the writing table before him. "These small sums, my lord, amount to close upon twelve thousand pounds. And in addition you are kept out of a debtor's jail by my warranty to your creditors that your debts will be liquidated on your marriage. I confess, sir, that you appear to me to have been more than well paid already for the services that you have rendered. Some, indeed," continued the statesman with the faintest note of scorn in his quiet voice, "would account that you have been paid far above the value of those services, although I am not of those. I recognize the position which you occupy, the estate to which you were born, and the fact, hence, that you require to be bribed upon a higher scale than does the ordinary—informer."

The viscount swallowed that last insult as best he could. He had swallowed so many of Lord Carteret's already, in the course of these very turbid transactions, that one more or less was of little account. He kept his head high and preserved a smiling front.

"I will admit, my lord, that the payment has been generous, provided that it is completed. I mean, provided that I am enabled to redeem the warranty your lordship has given my creditors."

"I am not sure," said the minister slowly, "that 'warranty' is, after all, the proper word. But your creditors understand me, and so, I think, do you."

"Perfectly, my lord. You have honored me by giving your word as bail for me to Israel Suarez and the others."

"And," Lord Carteret added, "it is entirely as a result of this that you continue to elude imprisonment for debt."

"And," Lord Pauncefort added on his own side, "it is precisely that your lordship may be relieved of your pledge for me that I prefer my present request touching Sir John Kynaston."

"You do not forget, I trust, that I retain the right of withdrawing my pledge at any moment, should it appear to me that you may no longer continue in the assurance of being ultimately able to satisfy your debts. But that is by the way. The thing you now propose is exceedingly distasteful to me. Indeed, I am not sure that I can honorably accede to such a request. I could do so only if I were satisfied that——" He broke off, and sat forward. "But we talk in the dark," he said more briskly. "Let me understand what ends you seek to serve by such a thing."

"Reasonable ends, my lord," replied Pauncefort easily. "I have already had the honor of informing your lordship of the terms of the late Mr. Hollinstone's will, under which it is in Sir John Kynaston's power to withhold his sanction to his ward's marriage until she is of full age——"

"Yes, yes," the statesman cut in. "You have already told me all that. Moreover," he added, with another of his quietly incisive manifestations of mistrust, "I have obtained independent confirmation of the fact. Pray, continue.

"I HAVE also had the honor of informing your lordship that my betrothal to Miss Hollinstone does not receive Sir John's sanction."

"Knowing and respecting Sir John as I do, I am not surprised," was the withering comment. "Well, what then?"

"Sir John, my lord, is under arrest."

"By your contriving—yes," said his lordship. "It is a matter, let me tell you, concerning which your true motives have never intrigued me. I was aware that your betrothal to the lady was not sanctioned by her guardian" (his lordship was not, it seems, aware that the betrothal had been canceled), "and I perceived clearly enough that his conviction as a rebel would disqualify him from exercising his rights under the will. What I do not perceive is the reason of your present intervention. I hope you are attempting no double dealings with me, sir."

"Double dealings? I, my lord?"

"You don't know what they are, I suppose? Pshaw, sir! These virtuous airs are unnecessary here. Who has betrayed once will betray again. But I have no desire to recriminate, my lord. All I desire is to warn you to be frank with me. What is your aim?—briefly, now, and clearly."

The viscount was forced to swallow this peremptoriness with the rest. He was a knave unmasked, dealing with a man of honor.

"My lord," he answered, "I should have thought my aim would have been clear. I have no ill will against Sir John. If I am to wed his niece I would not be the one to compass his ruin. I hope, sir, to be able to induce him to change his mind on the subject of my marriage with his niece either before or after the marriage has taken place. I conceive, sir, that if I can visit him in prison and offer to use my influence to procure his release and pardon, natural gratitude should inspire Sir John no longer to——"

"Fiddlesticks!" the statesman interrupted. "Natural gratitude, faith! Why can you not be frank and tell me it is your intent to drive a bargain with Sir John."

Pauncefort permitted himself a wry smile. "It amounts to that, of course," he confessed. "And if I had the pardon in my pocket it would perhaps strengthen my hand."

The statesman sat back again, toying thoughtfully with a quill, and from that hesitation Lord Pauncefort gathered hope. He knew, as we know, that if there was one thing more detestable to Lord Carteret than these persistent Jacobite intrigues that simmered under the peaceful surface of the realm it was their disclosure. His policy was to stifle them; to strike alarm into the plotters and to disband them, effecting this with as little publicity as possible.

NOW it was far from the secretary of state's desire to procure Sir John's conviction, since that must mean an increased publicity for the Jacobite cause. Ample for the government's purpose was his arrest. He might now be liberated, sufficiently shaken, no doubt, to leave plotting alone in future. And if there were plausible grounds for his enlargement, so much the better would the government be served. Now Lord Pauncefort's proposal afforded just those plausible grounds; through its agency Sir John might be left under the impression that his release had been the result of a personal intervention. Nothing, then, but the statesman's mistrust of Pauncefort caused him now to hesitate, while in his mind he cast about him for any other possible end which the informer might seek to serve. Presently a thought occurred to him.

"You do not by any chance require this pardon as an instrument with which to compel the lady?" he inquired in his cold, level voice.

Pauncefort was aghast at the minister's shrewdness, for Lord Carteret had dropped plump upon his real aims. That, indeed, was the last card that he proposed to play, confident that it was strong enough to win the game for him. But if his face showed anything it showed indignation of such a suggestion. That seeming indignation kept him silent for a moment. Then he smiled slowly, as it were in contempt of Lord Carteret's mistake.

"With the lady, sir, no compulsion is necessary, seeing that we are betrothed already, and have been these six months, as all the world knows."

It was a convincing answer, and yet it did not convince the statesman; for none knew better than Lord Carteret the crookedness of the man with whom he dealt. Slowly he shook his head, though for a moment he said nothing. At last:

"When is this marriage to take place?" he asked.

"Tomorrow evening, at my place in Surrey," replied his lordship promptly—and, indeed, subject to his production of the pardon in question, such was the agreement he had that morning wrung from Damaris. His lordship fingered his quill a moment, then threw it down like one who has taken his resolve.

"Come to me again when you are married, then," he said, "and we will return to the subject. Very possibly I may do as you desire."

Almost Lord Pauncefort committed the imprudence of protesting, and thus betraying himself completely to one so shrewd as the secretary of state. He caught himself betimes. There was no more to be said, and the more readily he professed his entire acquiescence the better must it serve him.

He was checked for the moment. A fresh difficulty confronted him. Nevertheless, he smiled as he rose to take his leave.

"Be it so, then, my lord," said he. "I shall have the honor of waiting upon you again betimes on Friday."

Lord Carteret nodded. "Give you good-day," he said coldly, and Lord Pauncefort withdrew, a smile on his lips and rage in his heart, to think out the situation and discover a means to surmount this obstacle which had presented itself where he had expected none. That means he was not slow in discovering, for a half hour later he penned and dispatched from his house in St. James's street the following epistle to Miss Hollinstone:

> MY DEAREST DAMARIS: I have but left my Lord Carteret, and I take pen at once to send you these to dispel the anxiety in which I know you to be lying. The secretary of state has lent an ear to my insistence, and is preparing Sir John's pardon. It will receive his majesty's signature tomorrow, and it shall be my wedding gift to you when you come to Woodlands tomorrow evening.

This was followed by protestations of undying passion and delirious anticipation with which we are not concerned, but in which Lord Pauncefort must be done the justice of being acknowledged sincere. He did with most delirious anticipation look forward to his emancipation from Israel Suarez and this nightmare of a debtor's jail that was with him day and night and had made a villain of him.

NOW, all this happened on the Wednesday of that momentous week.

On the Thursday his lord departed for his seat in Surrey, to complete the preparations for the reception of the bride, and he took with him, to serve his needs, a poor hedge parson of the name of Pugh.

At about the same hour that his chaise rolled up St. James's street and turned into Piccadilly, another carriage drew up at Lord Carteret's door and deposited there Mr. Templeton, Sir Richard, and Captain Gaynor, who thus descended upon the secretary of state.

Mr. Templeton came to explain—a sort of chorus to this comedy, and something more; Captain Gaynor came to seek explanation; and Sir Richard came as an important witness to certain matters, should it be found that they required investigation.

They did not. The mountainous fact that Captain Gaynor stood there in the flesh entirely crushed the absurd allegation that a fellow convicted of being Captain Jenkyn, the Jacobite spy, and hanged at Tyburn a fortnight since had been this same Harry Gaynor.

Obviously a most colossal blunder had occurred. Lord Carteret's consternation flamed quickly to anger under the deft fanning of Mr. Templeton.

"Had your lordship but honored me with attention this—ah—deplorable mistake had not occurred; had not occurred." His voice rolled and boomed. "I strove with all my power, but your lordship would not be guided. Even when I produced unimpeachable evidence your lordship still—ah—preferred to give heed to other counselors. If you should now incur the—ah—ridicule of the malevolent and of your political enemies your lordship will perhaps feel some sympathy for me in what I have undergone most undeservedly."

"You are within your rights," answered his lordship bitterly, his little eyes like gimlets upon Mr. Templeton, "to point out to me the error against which you warned me, and into which I fell, that warning notwithstanding. But I will beg you, sir, not to turn the sword in the wound."

"O, my lord! I should be the last to be guilty of such an—ah—inhumanity. If I have said so much it has been to justify the insistence of my warning."

"With Captain Gaynor before us it requires no justifying," said his lordship.

"I pledged my honor," Mr. Templeton continued, "and I accounted my honor forfeit. I resigned my office under that assumption, and under that assumption your lordship accepted my resignation. I have been the butt of every scandalous tongue in town—of every scandalous——"

"It is possible," cut in his lordship, who felt it necessary to bribe Mr. Templeton into silence not only now but hereafter, "that your successor in office might be induced to resign to the end that justice be done and yourself reinstated."

"In that," said Mr. Templeton, bowing, "I recognize your lordship's high sense of justice."

"To you, sir," continued his lordship, turning to Captain Gaynor, who stood stiffly at attention, "I shall see that proper reparation is made by publishing the error there has been—an error which even now, I confess, is entirely baffling."

UPON audacity Captain Gaynor piled audacity.

"It is possible," said he, "that I may be able to elucidate the matter."

"Do you suggest one of those freaks of nature by which two men are given such identical features that one is not to be told from the other?"

"No such matter is in my mind. Though I am unable to speak as to a likeness between myself and this Captain Jenkyn, for I have never consciously stood face to face with him. I think, my lord, that the matter goes deeper. From what Mr. Templeton has told me I understand that Sir John Kynaston has been arrested for having harbored me—always upon the assumption that I was the man who was hanged a fortnight ago."

His lordship grimaced. "Ay!" he said irritably.

"That will be another error to correct," put in Mr. Templeton quietly. There can be no doubt that Mr. Templeton was enjoying himself.

"And I gather further that this, as well as the confusion of the late Captain Jenkyn with myself, is the work of my Lord Pauncefort."

"Yes," said his lordship, and he confirmed the affirmative by an oath.

"I find this the more extraordinary in that I am perfectly well known to his lordship—at least, on that score I should find it the more extraordinary did I not believe that I hold the explanation of his most singular behavior."

"What d'ye tell me?" demanded Lord Carteret sharply. "D'ye say that Lord Pauncefort knew you?"

"He knows me, my lord, as well as he knows Dick Templeton there, who is one of my oldest friends."

"Then—what the devil!——" His lordship paused. His friendship for Sir John Kynaston, combining with his mistrust of Pauncefort, spurred him suddenly to incredible conclusions. "D'ye suggest he did this thing—that he made a tool of me—to serve ends of his own?"

"I will suggest nothing," said Captain Gaynor. "I will state the facts."

He played boldly. He saw that he held Pauncefort in the hollow of his hand, and he would have played as boldly and unwincingly had Pauncefort, himself, been present—for not all that nobleman's protestations and oaths could annihilate the overwhelming fact that the man whom he had alleged to be Captain Gaynor had been hanged a fortnight ago at Tyburn, while Captain Gaynor himself was alive.

"I shall need to trouble your lordship with some purely personal details," he said. "When, upon the instances of Dick Templeton here, I came to England a month ago with letters to his cousin, the second secretary, and in the hope of finding employment for my sword in the service of my country, I sought the hospitality of one who had been my father's dearest friend. I am speaking of Sir John Kynaston. While there my lord, being in Sir John's confidence, learned that a betrothal which had existed between his ward and my Lord Pauncefort had lately been determined in consequence of the discovery of—of certain unworthy motives in his lordship's suit."

"Determined?" cried the minister. "Determined, did ye say?" And swiftly his suspicions grew to certainty. "But I beg you to proceed," he added, almost grimly. "You promise to be very interesting."

Some vague fraction of what was passing in his lordship's mind was perceived by Captain Gaynor. It served to encourage him.

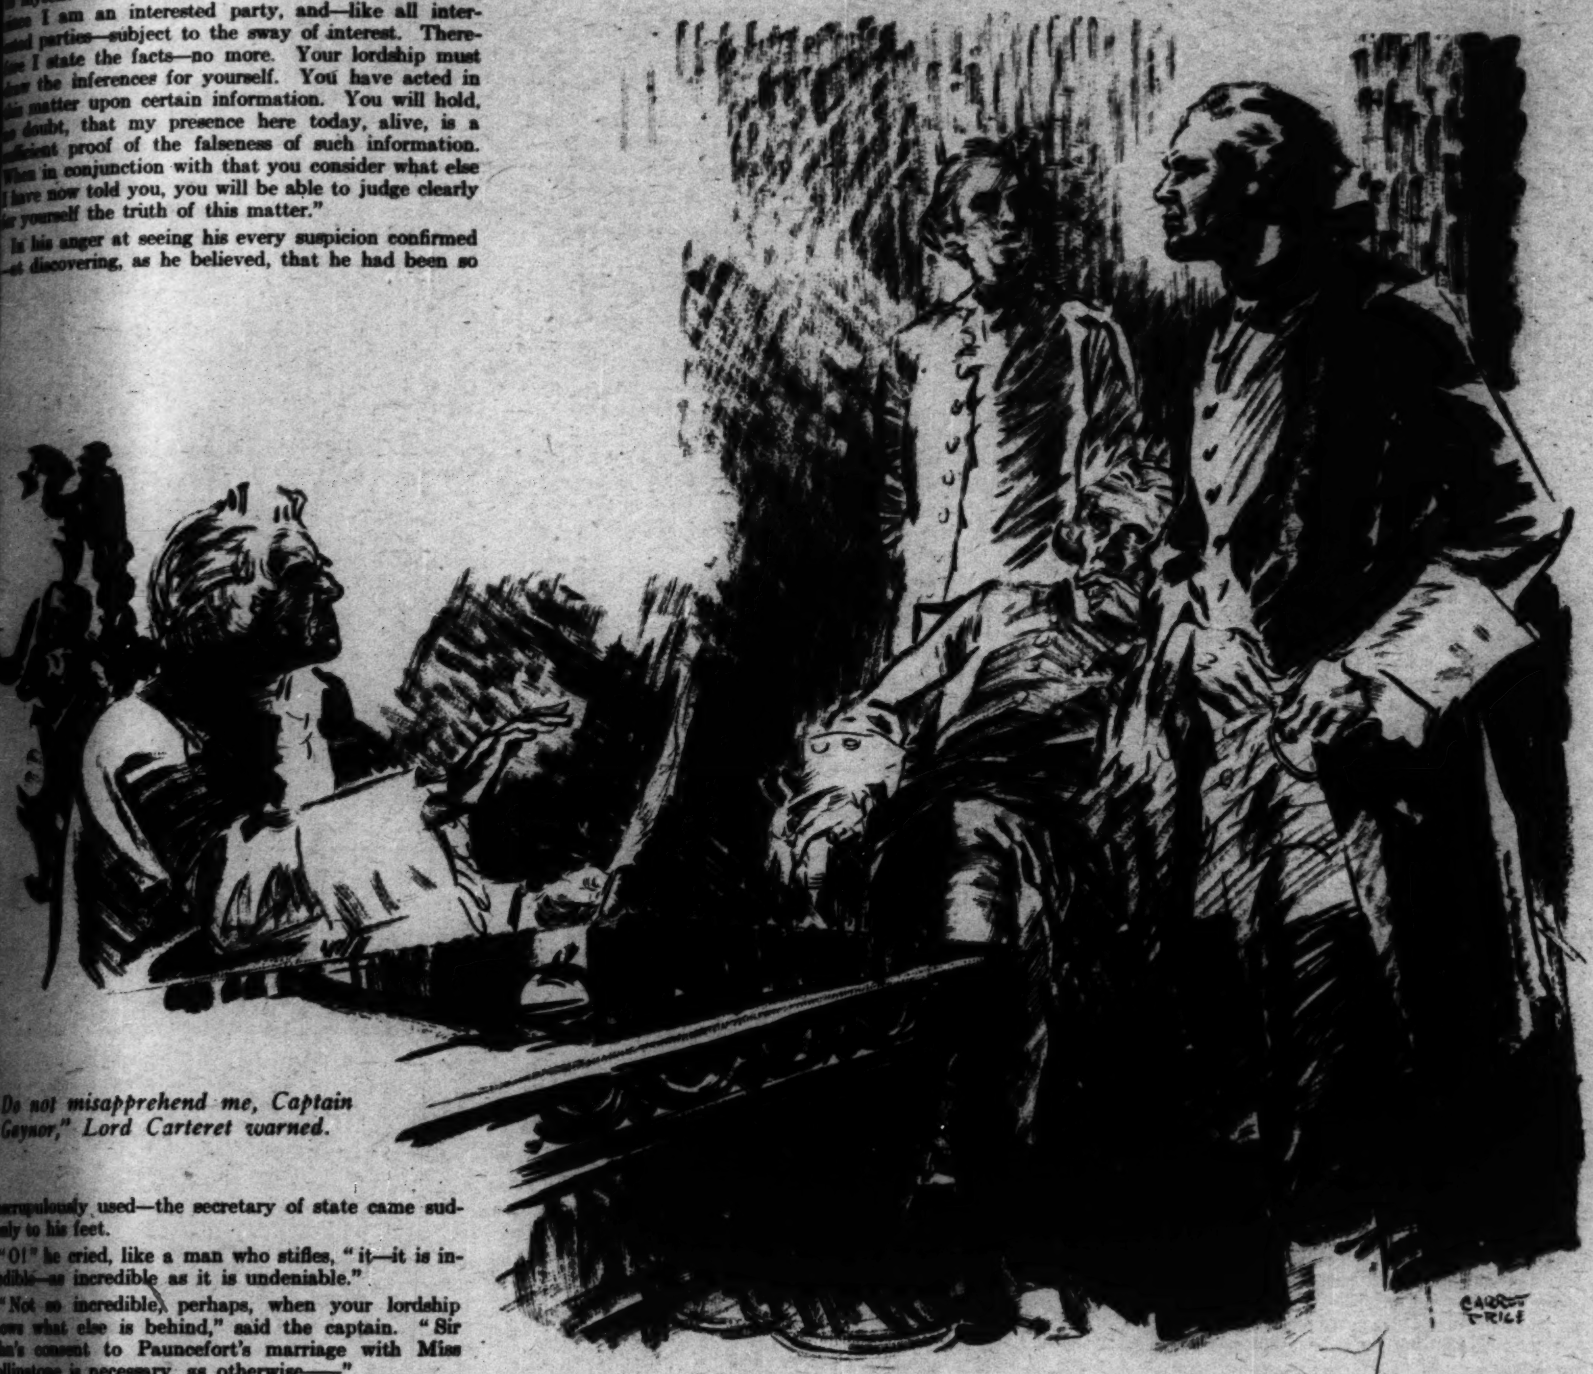
"It happened, sir," he resumed, "that I met the lady, and—and, in short, that his lordship had reason to behold in me a rival whom, under the circumstances of his own disfavor, he had cause to fear. Shortly thereafter, and in my absence from town, my name, I find, is given to a notorious rebel, the report of my execution set abroad, and my friend Sir John arrested for having harbored me."

Upon the faces of his listeners he saw clearly stamped the impression he had made and the conclusion to which all three had instantly jumped.

"Do you imply, sir, that it was to serve such ends as those that the villain so abused my confidence?" said the statesman in a voice that was like a knife's edge.

Captain Gaynor shook his head, his face inscrutable. "Far be it from me to imply anything, my lord," he answered. "Naturally I must draw my own inferences; but those inferences you will permit me to keep to myself. It would be unfair in me to utter them, since I am an interested party, and—like all interested parties—subject to the sway of interest. Therefore I state the facts—no more. Your lordship must draw the inferences for yourself. You have acted in this matter upon certain information. You will hold, no doubt, that my presence here today, alive, is a sufficient proof of the falseness of such information. When in conjunction with that you consider what else I have now told you, you will be able to judge clearly for yourself the truth of this matter."

In his anger at seeing his every suspicion confirmed —at discovering, as he believed, that he had been so scrupulously used—the secretary of state came suddenly to his feet.



"Do not misapprehend me, Captain Gaynor," Lord Carteret warned.

"O!" he cried, like a man who stifles, "it—it is incredible—as incredible as it is undeniable."

"Not so incredible, perhaps, when your lordship knows what else is behind," said the captain. "Sir John's consent to Pauncefort's marriage with Miss Hollinstone is necessary, as otherwise——"

"I know, I know," the minister interrupted. "Sir, you can add nothing that I do not know already; nothing that I cannot now perceive for myself."

It was the captain's turn to be astonished. But he was careful to show nothing of it.

"Oddslife!" swore Lord Carteret. "I suspected yesterday that he required Sir John's pardon for purposes of coercion with the lady. I did not know that the betrothal stood annulled. But you have made all clear to me. My Lord Pauncefort shall be taught a lesson that will last him all his life. As for you, sir, it remains for you to see to 't that the lady's credulity is not abused as mine has been. I could desire no better agent than yourself. That rascal Pauncefort is to marry her this evening."

THE captain's self-possession all deserted him on the instant. He changed color; his eyes dilated.

"This—this evening!" he faltered.

"Do not be alarmed," his lordship smiled. "You will be in time to prevent it." He resumed his seat. Under an exterior now of habitual iciness anger still raged fiercely in Lord Carteret's bosom at the thought that he should have been no more than a tool—as he was forced to infer—in the hands of that spy whom he despised. Thus Lord Pauncefort was overwhelmed by the peril that ever threatens a traitor. The very hand that hires such men to their work is the very first to turn against them at the suggestion that they betray their present as they betrayed a former trust.

"Even were I too late to prevent, I should not be too late to amend it," said the captain through his teeth. But the statesman held up a hand in warning.

"Do not misapprehend me, Captain Gaynor. Do not assume that I am sanctioning any such step as you have in mind. All that I desire is that you intervene in time to save a lady from marrying a blackguard. The rest you can very safely leave to others." He paused, then added: "If this wedding does not take place tonight the world will be little troubled by my Lord Pauncefort hereafter." Then, taking up a pen, and speaking in a brisk voice: "I will issue an order for Sir John Kynaston's instant release," he announced, "and yourself, sir, shall be the bearer of it. Possibly Sir John may see fit to accompany you to Woodlands. Possibly, also, he may show a proper gratitude for the very timely service you have rendered him in returning so opportunely from your wanderings."

He wrote rapidly, almost whilst speaking; then, having sanded the document, he rose and handed it to Captain Gaynor.

"There is the order," he said. He turned to Mr. Templeton and desired him to stay for a word in private, and then he escorted the other two as far as the hall.

"You were seeking an appointment in the Colonies, sir, I understand," he said to the captain at parting, "but no doubt you will be changing your mind on that score if you think of marrying. If not, pray command me."

Captain Gaynor thanked him, and took his leave. But as he went down the steps of the mansion, arm in arm with Sir Richard:

"Whatever betide me," said he, "I'll never abide in England. Ye did me an ill turn in sending me hither, Dick. 'Tis too unsettled a country; too full of plottings and schemings and intrigues to suit my simple nature."

"I think you're right," said Sir Richard. "You men of action are no match for schemers."

"Ay, ay!" said the captain sadly, and he shook his head. Presently he sighed. "Heigho!" And Sir Richard was not to guess that this was regret for dissimulation and intrigue of a singularly subtle sort—a regret occasioned by the reflection that for his very life's sake—and for the sake of others—he dare not tell the truth to this good fellow and best of friends, who was so uplifted to know him alive and well.

"I am coming to Woodlands with you tonight," said Sir Richard presently, "to see the end of this affair."

WOODLANDS, my Lord Pauncefort's seat in Surrey, was a handsome, red brown Tudor mansion, situated in a park of some two hundred acres, within a couple of miles to the north of the town of Guildford.

His lordship had dined late on that July evening, for he had been late in arriving from town, and even then, ere he would dine, he must perform an elaborate toilet as befitted the bridegroom he hoped to be ere the night was out. He went below at length, an elegant, resplendent figure in a suit of gray satin with silver lace and dark purple linings; his pearl gray silk stockings were decorated with ramifications of silver thread; diamonds hung like prismatic drops of water in the fine Mechlin lace of his cravat, and his long, graceful hands were almost hidden in his ruffles; buckles of French paste flashed on his shoes, and he wore a powdered tie wig of the newest mode, which emphasized the swarthy, male beauty of his face.

When he stepped at last into the long panelled dining room, where the Rev. Thomas Pugh—the seedy hedge parson he had brought from London—waited impatiently with his hunger, the clergyman had gasped his admiration of so very dazzling an apparition, and had all but forgotten his inner gnawings in the feastings of his eyes. And had my Lord Pauncefort been at pains to find a foil that should throw his own splendor into greater relief, no selection could have been more happy than that of this squat fellow, black as a crow in his rusty parson's livery, his lantern jaws blue from the razor.

His lordship ate but little, and spoke still less during the repast. He was in a state of obvious nervousness; vexed by the incompleteness of his preparations and anxiety lest he should fail to ruffle through and conquer Damaris in spite of this.

The dinner came to an end; the cloth was raised and the candles were lighted; still the two men sat on, over their wine now, with but little talk passing between them. Pauncefort reclined in his chair, frowning gloomily at the globular decanter of port, from which the candles struck fire, so that it glowed like a gigantic carbuncle. The long windows stood open to the stifling air, and the twilight sky was of a velvet blackness streaked with a fading but ominous purple. Not a breath stirred. The candles in their gilt sconces on the wainscoting burned steadily, throwing long shafts of reflection upon the polished timbers of the dark brown floor.

At last, from the distance, faintly came the sound of hoofs. It approached rapidly, and with it now came the grind of wheels advancing up the avenue. His lordship listened, and he seemed to have ceased to breathe. His eyes glowed feverishly. She came at last!

"I think 'twill be the bride," ventured the parson timidly—or these long spells of silence and the moodiness of his host were fretting his ill conditioned nerves.

My lord paid no heed to him, so the reverend gentleman sipped his wine and uneasily eyed his companion from under shaggy brows.

THE carriage halted. Unable longer to remain still, his lordship rose, thrusting back his tall chair. He glanced at the timepiece on the overmantel. It wanted a few minutes to nine; and nine was the hour appointed. This trifling earliness augured well, he thought.

The door opened quietly behind him. He swung round in sudden, trembling eagerness to face the liveried servant who entered and to receive an announcement which was as a shower of cold water upon his feverish impatience.

"Mr. Suares is here, my lord, asking to see you."

"Suarez?" His lordship's voice rasped harshly with sudden anger. Yet his dilating eyes and loosened mouth were evidences of still another emotion. "Suarez?" he repeated.

"I told him, my lord, that your lordship could see no one tonight. But he insists that his business is of the greatest urgency."

"And so it is, my lord," came a deep voice from behind the servant, and immediately the heavy figure and ovine face of the usurer made its appearance in the doorway.

He had followed the lackey, determined to force himself into his lordship's presence and fearing that did he wait for permission he might wait in vain.

The servant attempted now to detain him, but it was too late. The Jew thrust the fellow contemptuously aside and rolled into the room.

"What do you want?" his lordship challenged him. His face was white with anger and his eyes were murderously set upon the intruder.

"Vat do I vant?" echoed Mr. Suares, his manner excited and his speech thick with passion. "Vat do I vant? I vant a deal, my lord, I promise you. To begin vit', I vant an explanation."

"By God!" swore his lordship. "Ye're a daring rogue to thrust yourself in here in this fashion."

The other waved a fat, powerful hand. "Bah! I don't vant vords, and I don't vant ugly names. I charge for ugly names, my lord, and the rate of interesht on t'em is heavy. Shall I speak before t'ese?" And he waved his hand again, to indicate servant and parson. "Or vill you see me alone? 'Tis all one to me," he added contemptuously.

His lordship considered the man an instant, mastering his rage. Then he turned to the servant.

"Leave us," he said shortly, "and you, too, Pugh. Go wait in the library."

The parson finished his wine and departed with the servant.

Suarez looked on, a sneer on his heavy face. "Ha!" he commented. "Very 'igh and mighty! Ve-ry lordly for a damned pauper!"

Israel Suarez, proud of his Jewish blood, had naught but contempt for those who despised it. Being enormously wealthy and knowing the power of wealth, he used that power remorselessly, and upon none so remorselessly as upon those who dared to show their scorn of him on the score of race. To these he repaid contempt with contempt, insult with insult; and since he had the power on his side, his contempt and his insult usually proved the more hurtful and crushing in the end.

In appearance he had almost the air of a man of fashion, saving perhaps that with his natural taste for oriental splendor he rather overdressed the part. His claret colored coat was stiff with gold lace, as was the crimson waistcoat under it, every button of which was a ruby of price. Brilliants flashed in his lace neckware and on two fingers of each hand. A gold hilted sword hung at his side.

Massive and powerful of frame, with large liquid eyes, a pendulous nose, and a shaven, olive tinted skin, this Spanish Jew was a somewhat extraordinary and compelling personality. The consciousness of power he derived from his vast wealth lent him a forceful air. Obviously he was not a man with whom it would be safe to trifle. Save for a trouble with the aspirate, the "w," and the "th," his English was fluent and good.

MY Lord Pauncefort had made the mistake of undervaluing him. He had trifled with him; he was trifling with him now, running a scornful, critical eye over the man's person and apparel, and expressing his contempt for one and the other by the deliberate curl of his lip.

The Jew's watchful eyes observed all this. His answer to it was not long delayed. He strode to the table and poured himself a glass of port without hesitation or "by your leave." He tasted it, smacked his lips, and paused appraisingly.

"'Tis a good vine," he said, with marked satisfaction. "I 'ope I 'ave a good stock of it in my cellar 'ere."

"What the devil do you mean—damn you!" said Pauncefort.

Mr. Suarez coolly drained the glass, and sat down unbidden, leaving his lordship standing.

"I suppose I can drink my own vine in my own 'ouse vit'out explanations to you—damn you!" he answered in the same tone. He had his anger under control by now. Indeed, although by nature of a hot and fiery temper, he was your deadly fellow who knows how to be cold in the expression of it.

And then, before Pauncefort had recovered from that blow, Suarez crisply added enough to show his business there that night.

"Ye see, I've 'ad vord from my Lord Carteret t'at 'is varranty for you is vit'drawn. So my [illegible] is in possession of your 'ouse in town and I [illegible] I 'ave a varrant in my pocket and t'ree men [illegible] in t'e 'all now. An agent of mine is on 'is vay to [illegible] place in Yorkshire. Ye see, I vaste no time." [illegible] smiled up at his lordship, who was too [illegible] answer him. Presently he resumed. "You [illegible] t'irty t'ousand pounds, my lord. Voodlands [illegible] bring four t'ousand; your 'ouse in town perhaps [illegible] and your Yorkshire estate seven or eight t'ousand [illegible] I sell it. For t'e rest I must take your body [illegible] or your friends see a vay to ransom it. Now you [illegible] vat I vant," he leered. "Now you know vat a [illegible] impudent rogue I am, t'rusting myself into my [illegible] 'ouse, eh!"

Pauncefort leaned heavily against the [illegible] steady his trembling body. He was limp. [illegible] had turned to water. Of all that the money [illegible] said but one sentence remained with his lordship [illegible] sentence he echoed now in a husky voice.

"Lord Carteret has withdrawn his warranty!"

"Just so," said Mr. Suarez. "Myself I [illegible] he ever gave it."

"But——" faltered Pauncefort, ceasing to [illegible] or to seek a cause for this, and coming straight [illegible] urgent effect of it, "but even so! What [illegible]ter?"

"It matters just t'irty t'ousand pounds," [illegible] Suarez. "You know t'at not'ing but his [illegible] varranty has kept me from claiming my own [illegible] past."

"But my marriage is to take place tonight," [illegible] lordship. He was white and drops of perspiration [illegible] upon his shallow brow—that one deplorable [illegible] his handsome face.

AND now Mr. Suarez returned the other's [illegible] sneer of his apparel.

"Ah!" said he, sneering in his turn. "Ye [illegible] festive, codso! A very pretty fellow in your [illegible] groom finery!"

His lordship attempted to stiffen, but [illegible] other was too much the master of this situation.

"You know—it is your business to know—the [illegible] of Miss Hollinstone. Is not that warranty [illegible] for you?"

"T'at? Pish! No marriage prospects are [illegible] enough for me, as you vell know. Not only [illegible] not advance you a shilling on such prospects, [illegible] vould never have kept me from foreclosing [illegible] you 'adn't obtained me ord Cateret's varranty [illegible] you vould be in a position to pay, failing which [illegible] estates and your person——"

"But, my God! You'll give me until [illegible]"

"Not an 'our," said Suarez. "Vhy should I?"

"Because you'll be a fool if you don't."

Suares laughed shortly. "I vas never a fool [illegible] business, my lord. Never!"

PARIS-FRANCE

By Mildred Cram

up and when he smiled his upper lip was drawn away from his teeth, showing his gums. He had an Irish smile. There was something compact, alive, and pugnacious about him, like a prairie wind. "My father took me to Chicago a year ago and I saw a canvas by a man named Homer. Now, there was snow! Real snow! Not talcum powder. Snow you could smell and touch. And under it, the earth."

Gerry thought: "Talcum powder. Does he know how he's hurting me?"

Apparently he did not.

"Some day I'm going to paint like that. Nature, plus me."

A voice within Gerry, demanding: "Is it true? Must I believe him? A boy?" But, she believed. Suddenly she felt drained, empty. It was as if her body sat there, a husk.

"You're an artist, too?"

"That's why I came to see you. I want to study. My father told me you lectured at the library. I thought you might teach me."

"Not I! O, no. You don't know what you're talking about. I couldn't."

He flushed. "I could pay—a little. Maybe two dollars. I'm working in my father's shop. But I want to study. I can't wait."

"I don't teach. I don't know anything."

For some reason she did not say, "I am going to Paris."

He rose, offering her his broad hand, which tapered from a capable palm into a flexible wrist.

Bracing herself, summoning herself, she said. "You see, I painted—that."

He let go of her hand and rushed back to stare at that frozen blue glitter, that innocent and terrible work of art. He shook his head and turned to her again with a serious, gentle face.

"I'm sorry. I guess I've hurt you."

"You have."

"I can help you, too."

"Not now."

"I'll show you something you've missed. And it was right here all along. I'll take you out on the prairie some day and show you. Maybe I've hurt you. Maybe I was sent to help you. Maybe you needed me to show you. Why, you've been painting pictures of stage scenery! I'll show you the prairie. The prairie's real!"

"Real!" Gerry repeated.

What Rossi's son showed her, presently, she saw. She saw, too, that what she had lacked he possessed. Gerry was no fool, in spite of Maisie.

She rode with him as far as the trolley went, and then they walked toward Fillmore. The boy was hatless. He kept turning his face up toward the sun. He wore a shabby, short waisted coat and sneakers.

Gerry wore her brown pongee and carried an umbrella. She had to hurry to keep up with him.

In the distance, topping a small swell in that limitless sea of plowed land, Joe Burch's house.

"Belonged to a fellow who was injured a couple of years ago."

"My house," Gerry thought.

They climbed through a fence and stumbled across a field, following the line of the plowshare. The earth smelled hot and sweet. Little flies buzzed up and settled down again. Great, smoldering clouds heaped themselves into pyramids, towers, anvils, and glowed and burned.

ON this, and many other days, Gerry listened and learned. In this boy, the son of an Italian father and an Irish mother, there was the spirit of an art that was American. There was something spiritual, religious in her perception of it. Her own dream vanished. And simply, without self-pity, without even full realization of her purpose, she dedicated herself to it.

"I'm going to send you to Paris for a year, maybe longer," she said one morning. "I intended to go myself, but I know better."

Rossi's son remained silent, staring down at his hands. He did not protest. It was as if he were considering, not his part in all this, but the large, impersonal issue.

"I'll go," he said. "I'll learn to paint. Then I'll make them see what they've got, here and now."

Gerry sold the furniture.

The day came when the Chinese laundry man appeared on the threshold, bowing and smiling [illegible] but impatient to enter, the owner of the house. [illegible] "William Reynolds, M. D." had been written [illegible] upon black, "Ah Sing, Laundry" would be [illegible] in black upon yellow.

Gerry moved into a boarding house. And [illegible] son went to Paris. Gerry saw him off. She [illegible] self alone on the station platform. Rossi, [illegible] violent as ever; a little, dark, blue-eyed [illegible] friends, relatives, neighbors. Rossi's son, with [illegible] ter of credit, his passport, his cheap suitcase, [illegible] tered at all, kissing and patting everybody. "Good-[illegible] mother. Don't cry. I'll be home before you [illegible] I've got to go!"

Suddenly he swept them aside. Gerry was [illegible] and held close. She heard his heart thumping. "Good-by." He kissed her, before everybody.

He was gone.

Gerry went back to the boarding house. She [illegible] herself, "This is the end. This is the end of [illegible]"

She thought, "I'll go upstairs and cry. I'll cry [illegible] want to. For hours. For days. I'll cry."

But before she could climb the steep flight of [illegible] carpeted in thick, Turkey red Axminster the land[illegible] gave her a letter. "This came for you while you [illegible] out."

Gerry stared at the envelop. "Miss G[illegible] Reynolds."

"I must say, Miss Reynolds, you were [illegible] erous to send that boy abroad."

Gerry climbed the stairs. She sat on the [illegible] the bed. "I'll cry in a minute. After I've [illegible]" She took off her hat, unpinned her hair, and let [illegible] down on her shoulders. Then she slit the [illegible] opened it, and read, written in a big, scrawling [illegible]

Only in this way

can you get all the benefits of oil heating

Most any way of heating with oil is better than with coal.

Even ordinary oil burners that require attention and high priced oil, are an improvement. Few owners of even these primitive types would ever go back to the dirt and drudgery of firing a furnace.

Consider then, what a convenience and comfort the most highly developed oil burner in the world is to the tens of thousands who have it installed. Especially to those who have had it for nearly seven years!

Think what it will mean in your home.

Uniform heat without attention

From the moment you have an Oil-O-Matic installed with your present furnace or boiler, your house will be heated automatically. Better and more healthfully than it ever was with coal. And without your giving it a thought.

Simply turn it on in the fall and off in the spring. The thermostat will take care of everything but keeping the tank filled with oil. Your oil dealer will do that for you.

A blessing to womenfolk

You will especially appreciate your Oil-O-Matic during the early fall and late spring. Chill mornings and sudden cold snaps find your house uniformly comfortable. Cold rooms, hurriedly built fires and overheating, become things of the past. You cannot hire men to do what Oil-O-Matic does for you.

And what a tremendous difference in housework! With scarcely any dusting or cleaning, everything will remain spic and span. Even curtains, walls, and white woodwork. No wonder maids prefer to work in homes heated this way. If you have never been in an Oil-O-Matic heated home, you will be amazed at the difference real oil heating makes.

Costs less to operate

Fortunately, you may enjoy this comfort at a lower operating cost than that of any other oil burner. Oil-O-Matic was the first to successfully use fuel oil; which costs less than kerosene and every gallon of it has more heat units.

Most users of Oil-O-Matic find a saving over hard coal. Frequently as high as 30%. But none would replace Oil-O-Matic with coal even if the cost were greater, and there are more people enjoying this modern method of heating than any other oil burner.

Heat guaranteed—easy terms

You too, will choose Oil-O-Matic if you want everything that science and the largest manufacturer can give you. Every installation is guaranteed and you may pay for it while you enjoy it if you prefer.

The dealer in your city can make only a limited number of installations between now and cold weather. To delay your purchase even a few weeks may mean that you will be too late to enjoy it this fall. 4 Men in 7 Bald at 40

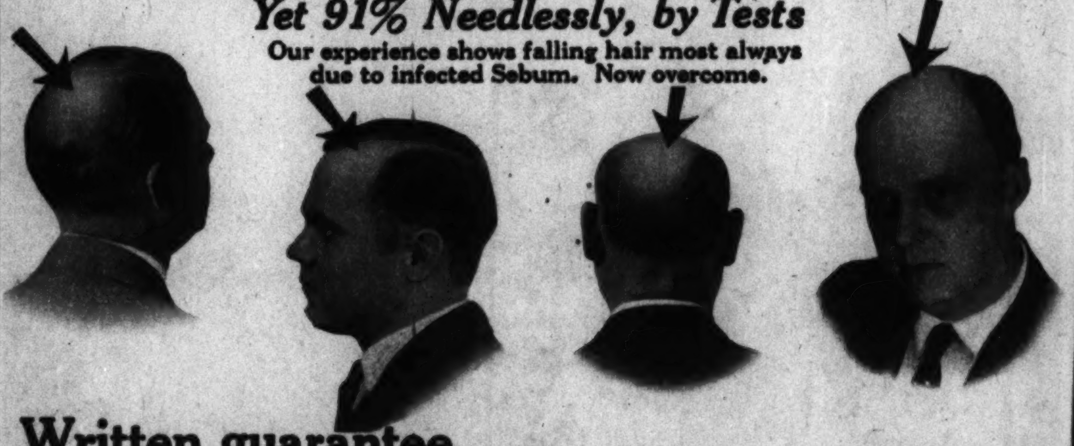
Yet 91% Needlessly, by Tests

Our experience shows falling hair most always due to infected Sebum. Now overcome.



Written guarantee from your own dealer

New hair in 90 days—or money back

This is a direct offer to grow hair on your head. An offer backed by our written guarantee, given by your own Drug or Department Store. If we fail, it costs you nothing.

We have recently made amazing discoveries. We have proven that while 4 men in 7 are either bald, or partly bald, at 40, only about 9 men in a hundred need ever be bald.

Hair roots seldom die from natural causes. They can be revived. We have proved this by regrowing hair on 91 heads in 100.

Highest authorities approve this new way. Great dermatologists now employ similar methods—many charge as much as $300 for similar basic treatment.

Baldness is a symptom of a disease. Note this fact and mark it. It is most frequently a symptom of infection of the Sebum—the scalp oil.

Infected Sebum

Sebum is an oil. It forms at the follicles of the hair. Its purpose is to lubricate the hair.

But it often becomes infected. It cakes on the scalp; clogs the follicles and plugs them. Germs by the millions then start to feed upon the hair. Semi-baldness comes first; then with neglect comes total baldness.

Remove that infection and your hair will generally grow. We back this statement with a money-back guarantee. Hence it is folly for any man with falling hair not to make the test.

Now We Remove It

Our treatment is based on a new principle. It penetrates to the follicles of the hair. It relieves infection—removes the infected Sebum. It stops falling hair. It revives the dormant hair roots, generally makes new hair grow. Remember, it is guaranteed.

Warrant Given by Your Dealer

No red tape. The guarantee is positive. You are the judge. Your own Drug or Department Store gives it with each 3-bottle purchase. Go today, ask them for the Van Ess Treatment. The guarantee will accompany it. If the treatment fails—your money back.

Over 800,000 men have tested Van Ess under this same guarantee.

Van Ess removes the infected sebum—the cause of most baldness

The Van Ess 3-bottle treatment is absolutely guaranteed. You are the sole judge. The warrant is given by your own dealer. All we require is his signature showing you have purchased a ninety-day treatment. If it fails, we refund your money. Hence you assume no risk making this test.

Note the Rubber Cap. The hollow nipples feed down medicament into follicles of scalp where it is needed.

Is America losing its appetite?

TODAY, health authorities point to loss of appetite as a growing menace in American life, due to the increase of indoor workers. Millions of people sit down to their meals without the appetite to enjoy them. And the less they eat the more urgent it is that what they eat shall contain the vital elements of nourishment.

A food that tempts the breakfast appetite of millions and makes a vital contribution to their health

YOUR appetite tells you what you like to eat, but it does not tell you the things you should eat. For modern appetites are tuned to modern foods. And the average diet of today does not give you a sufficient quantity of the various food elements necessary to vigorous good health.

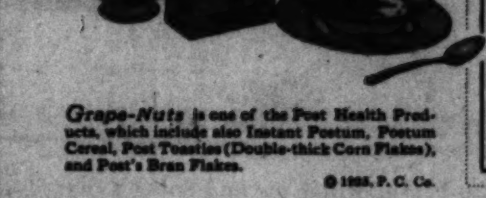
To remedy this deficiency, an expert in food-values originated Grape-Nuts. He designed it to supply five important elements often deficient in the average diet—dextrins, maltose and other carbohydrates for heat and energy; iron for the blood; phosphorus for teeth and bones; protein for muscle and body-building; and the essential vitamin-B, a builder of the appetite. With milk or cream, Grape-Nuts is an admirably balanced ration.

In Grape-Nuts is all the healthfulness of wheat and malted barley—their delicious flavors fully brought out by the special baking process which prepares Grape-Nuts for easy digestion.

Buy a package today and try it tomorrow morning. Taste for yourself the nut-like flavor. Enjoy the crispness of Grape-Nuts—a crispness that gives your teeth and gums the exercise that authorities say is needed to keep them beautiful and healthy.

A series of health breakfasts with two servings of Grape-Nuts—free!

Mail the coupon below. We will send you two individual packages of Grape-Nuts and "A Book of Better Breakfasts," containing menus for a series of delightful health breakfasts.



Grape-Nuts is one of the Post Health Products, which include also Instant Postum, Postum Cereal, Post Toasties (Double-thick Corn Flakes), and Post's Bran Flakes.

Miss Lopoukhova is a Russian dancer who has starred with Chicago and New York opera companies, as well as abroad. Some months ago she secured the annulment of her marriage to Randolfe Barocchi, an attache of the Metropolitan Opera company. Mr. Keynes is one of England's foremost economists. He was the chief representative of the British treasury department at the Paris peace conference.

LEAVING—That's your real cowboy's terse description of this act. The cowboy says "leaving" when a rider is pitched through the air by a wild broncho, and something tells us the gentleman in our picture is in the act of leaving. (Photograph copyright by R. R. Doubleday)

MEMORIES OF THE OLD PRUSSIA and its war lords were stirred vividly when the former Crown Prince of Germany appeared recently in full military regalia, laden with medals and decorations. THE HANDSOMEST WOMAN OF NEWPORT, that gathering place for the wonderful matrons of American society, is Mrs. Cornelius H. Tageman. That title was won by Mrs. Tageman during a recent charity fete at which the handsomest woman, the prettiest girl, the best dressed woman, and the most popular man were all picked by balloting.

THE PRETTIEST GIRL of Newport is Mrs. J. Theus Munds, according to the recent vote on that question at the famous resort. (All photographs from International)

THE BEST DRESSED WOMAN of Newport is Mrs. William Burden, the voters decided. That title should mean much, since the richest and most exclusive women of the country usually find their way to Newport.

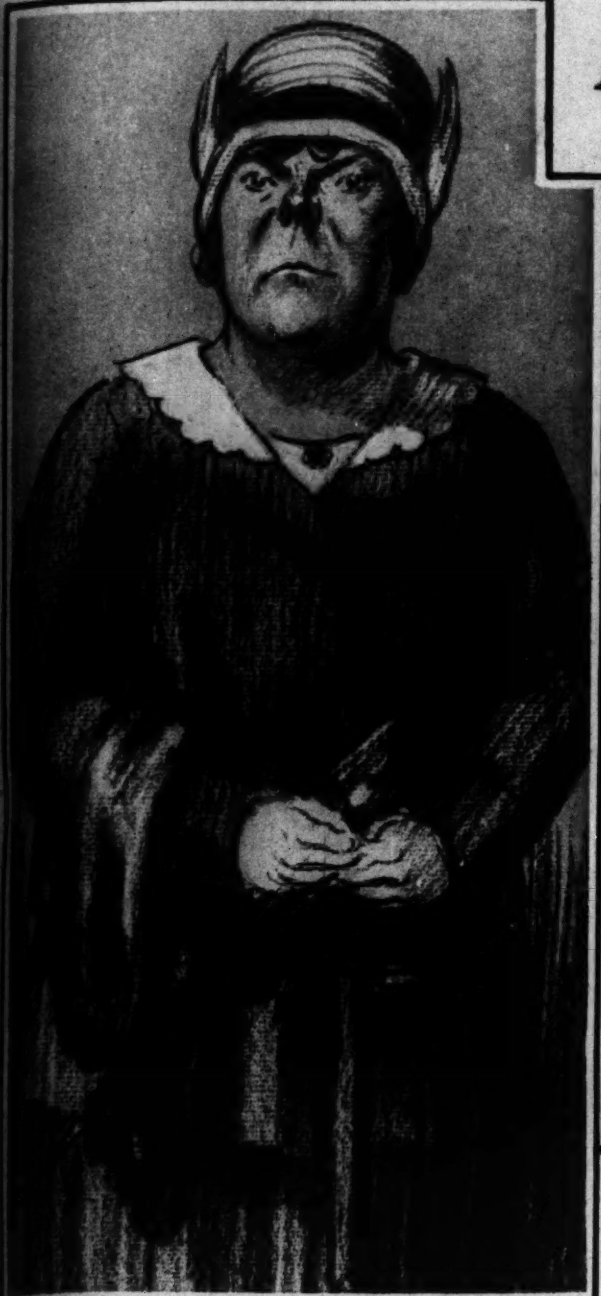
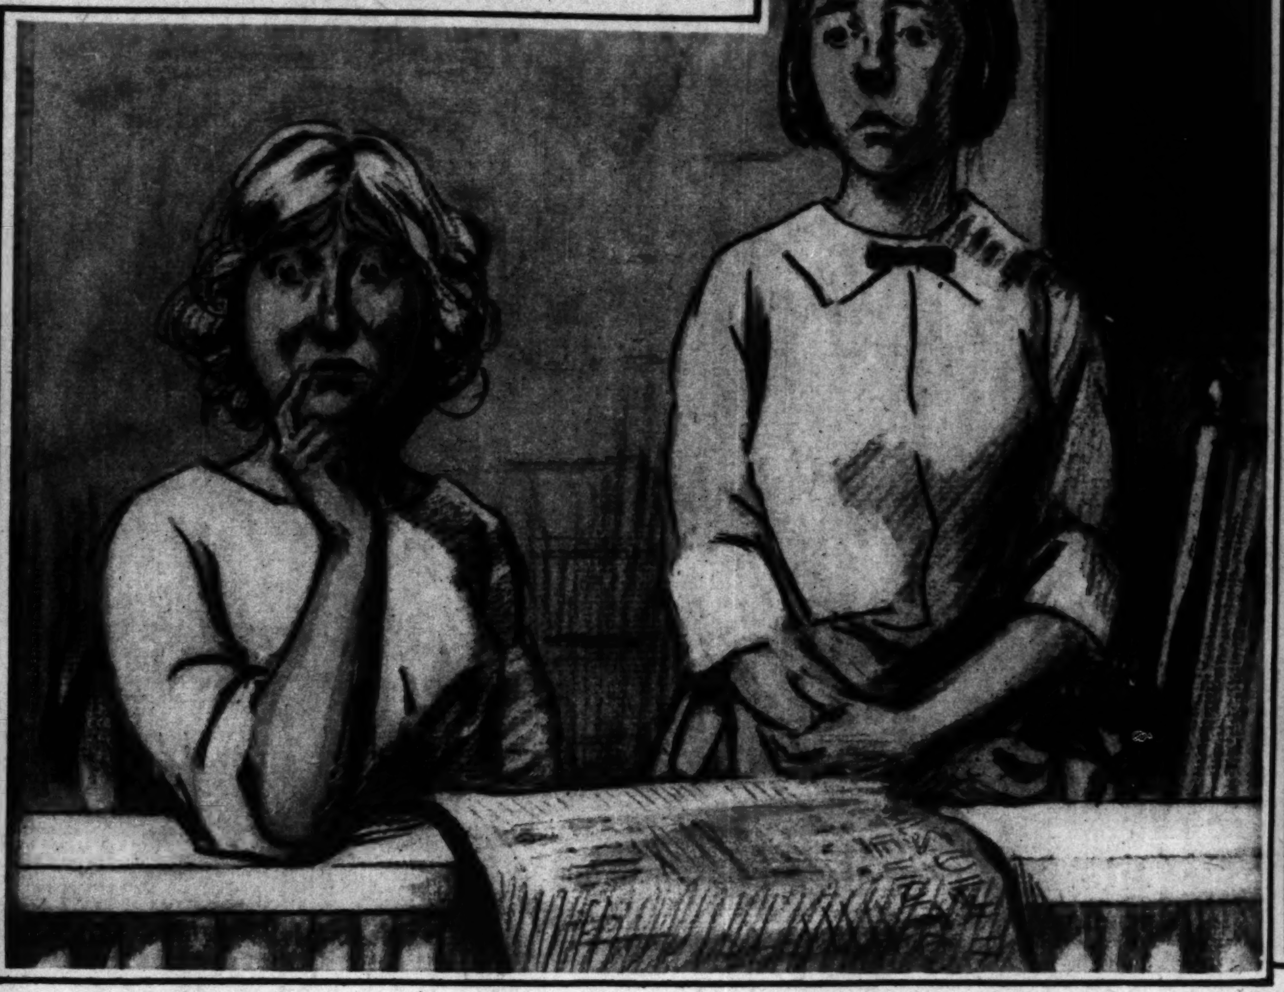
A Cook in the Country

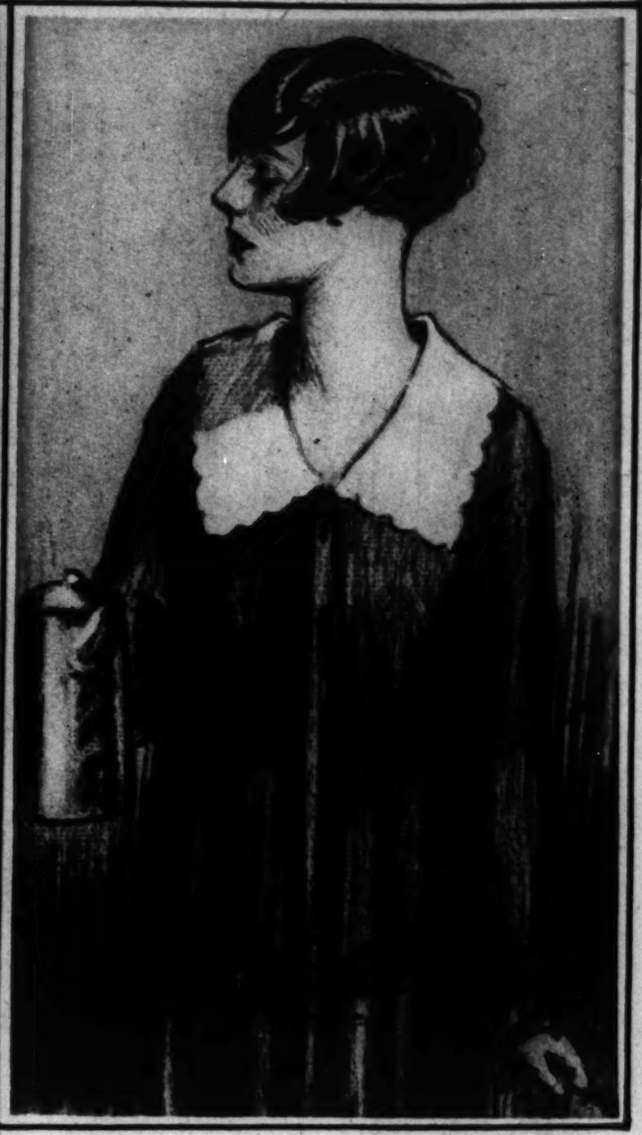
By W. E. HILL



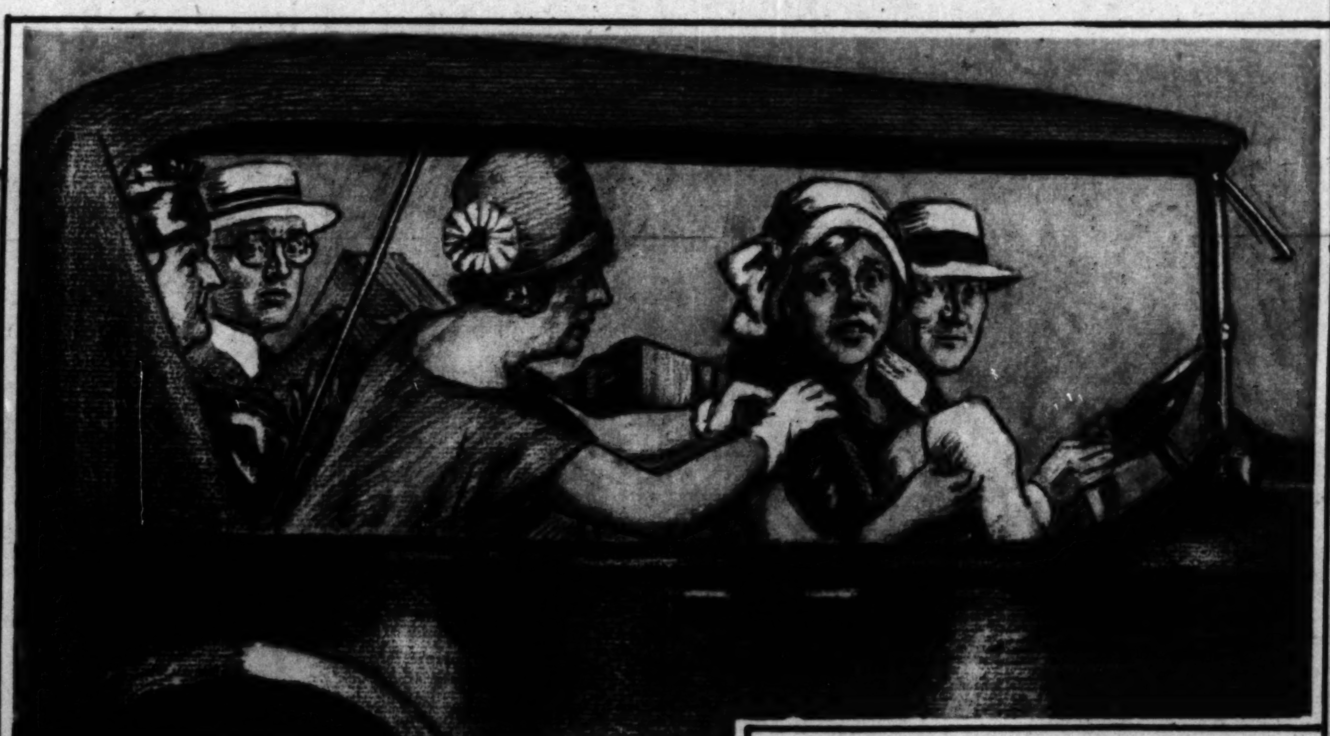
"So, she says to me, 'Margaret, I found your beauty compact on the living room table this morning. How did it get there?' 'I'm sure I don't know,' says I. 'Well,' says her husband, just as sarcastic as you please, 'I suppose it walked there of itself.' Imagine him saying that to me! All I said was, 'I'm leaving this noon,' and you could have knocked them both over with a feather."



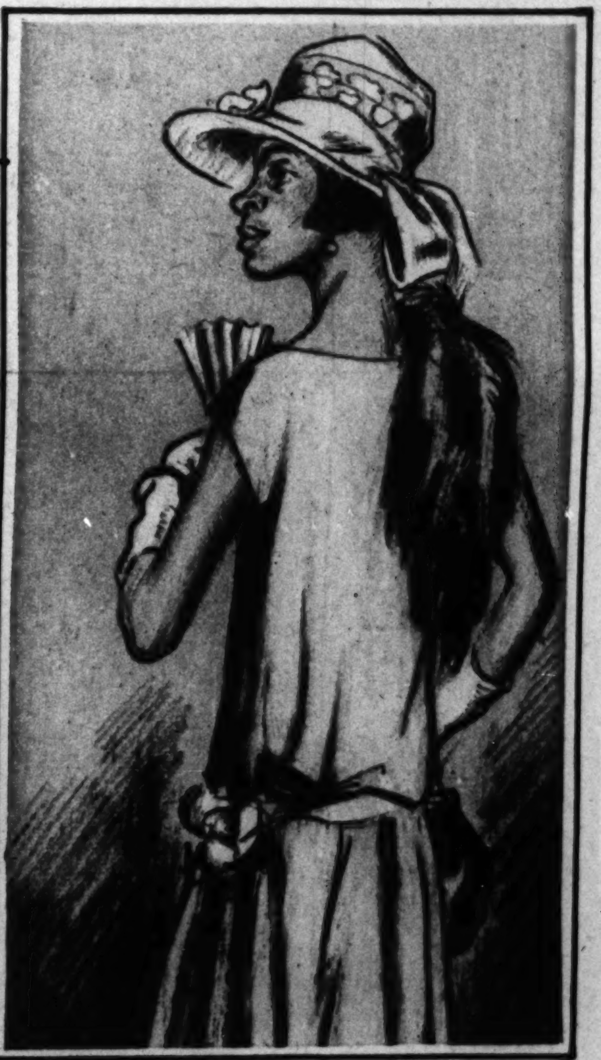
The Scandinavian help, sitting on the back porch of a Sunday afternoon with nothing but the birds, and the flowers, and the landscape, and the real estate section of the Sunday paper to keep them cheery. The cook is Swedish and the waitress is Norwegian. They have many differences. In fact, there have been several mornings when Ingebord, the cook, couldn't endure the sight of a Norwegian, and said as much in plain Swedish. There have been as many days when Hilda, the waitress, felt great antipathy toward the Swedes, and gave voice to her thoughts in even plainer Norwegian. On one subject, however, Ingebord and Hilda agree. They don't like the country, especially when one's boy friend hasn't written in nearly two weeks. Ingebord and Hilda are going to give notice. They will explain that their respective families need them just now.



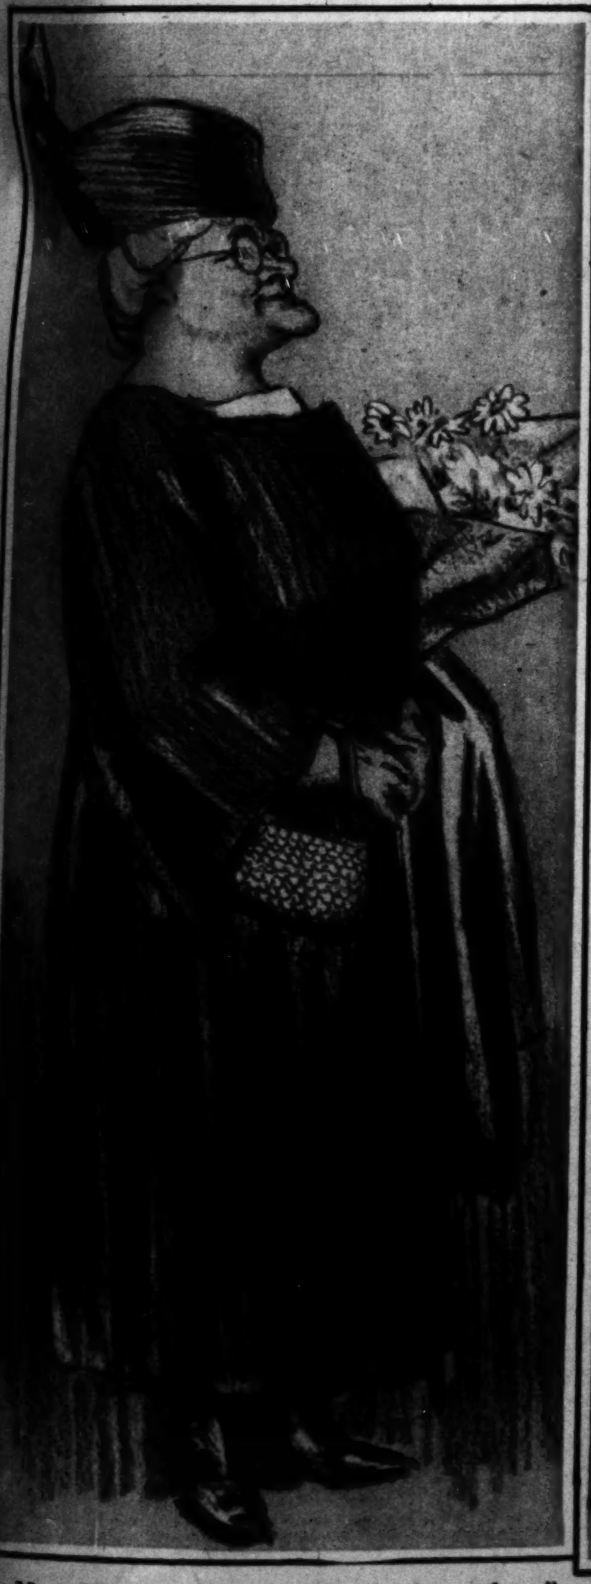
The cook is leaving this morning, and the little housewife is getting breakfast herself. Augusta, the cook, is having a nice long sleep preparatory to her journey back to the city.



When the week-end guests and the new cook arrive on the same train, as sometimes happens, the week-enders are shoved in the background. The cook's straw suitcases are piled on them and they are left to themselves. The hostess is busy hurling every ounce of her charm and magnetism at the new cook. "Remember, Frank," says she, "to drive slowly past the O'Toole place. I want Etta to see that darling little calf in the yard. Here, Etta, do wear my neckpiece. I'm so afraid you'll find the ride chilly!"



Mattie, the high brown baby, only lasted a week. There were no movies and no boy friends near at hand, and Mattie was a social girl.



Meet Mrs. Fred Murtie, who "accommodates" now and then (but only now and then) when folks from the city are stranded without any hired help. Mrs. Murtie, while a bit slow around a kitchen, knows everybody's business for miles and miles around, and is a great source of information.

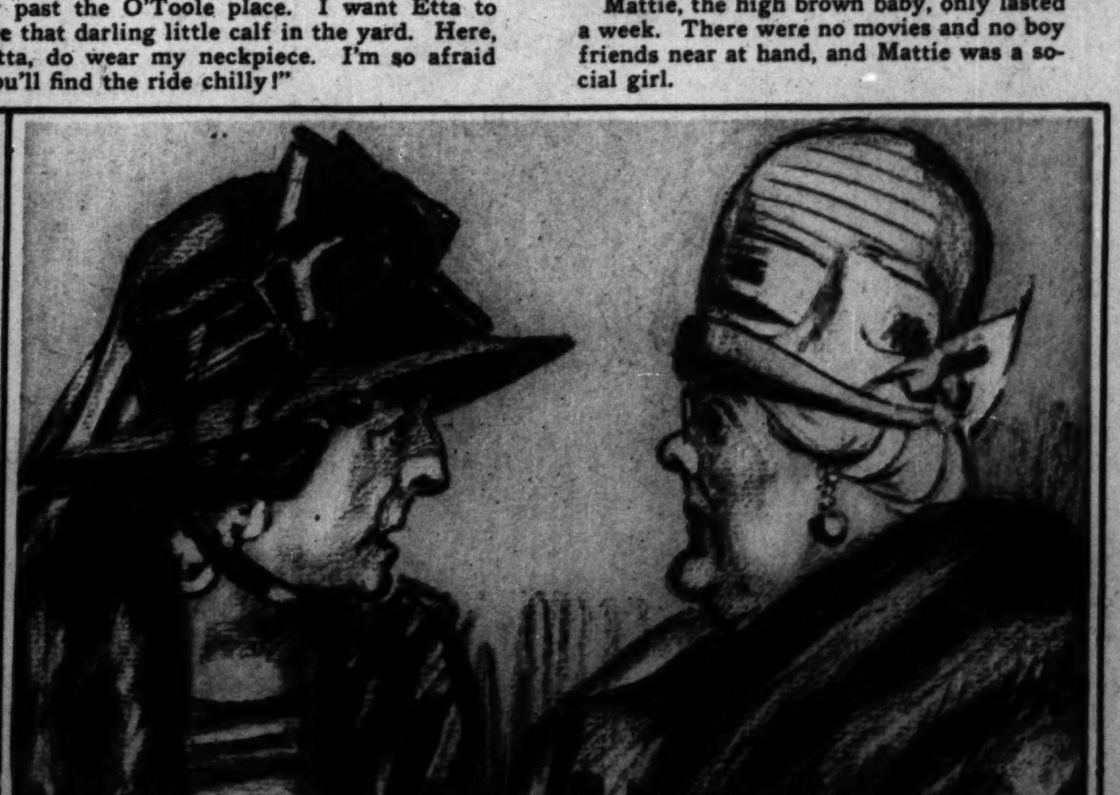
"She says she's been with a small family for some time, and now she feels she'd like to cook for a large family where they have plenty of company for a change." The lady at the intelligence office is handing out a line that would seem too good to be true. In fact, it's much too good to be true, as her employer will find after Helga has been in the country for a week. After the fifth day Helga will decide that she needs another change.



Two ladies at a country bridge party discussing the great American cook in no uncertain terms. "My dear, the one I have now is perfectly terrible! She called me a cheat and a liar, and threatened to poison Cousin Ada for going to the ice box and poking around. And twice a week we have to drive her fifteen miles to a movie. What can one do?" and so on, and so on.

UNCLE SAM'S SUMMER CAPITAL this year, as pictured by a flying camera man. In the central foreground of this picturesque New England setting is White Court, the summer residence of President Coolidge and his family at Swampscott, Mass. To the right, and a bit above, is Red Gables, the home of Frank Stearns of Boston.

ANOTHER WORLD'S RECORD was written into the ever-changing history of swimming when Miss Thelma McGarry of New York sped a half-mile free style in 12:58 1-5. Her sparkling performance came in the National A. A. U. woman's championships at Belle Island, Detroit. Thelma continued her spurt for a full mile and shattered the American record by making it in 26:33 2-5. The previous American mile record was 26:44 4-5; the old world mark for the half was 13:19.

And What About You . . .?

Depressed by skin and stomach troubles, intestinal disorders, lowered vitality, they found relief in one simple food

NOT a "cure-all," not a medicine in any sense—Fleischmann's Yeast is simply a remarkable fresh food.

The millions of tiny active yeast plants in every cake invigorate the whole system. They aid digestion—clear the skin—banish the poisons of constipation. Where cathartics give only temporary relief, yeast strengthens the intestinal muscles and makes them healthy and active. And day by day it releases new stores of energy.

Eat two or three cakes regularly every day before meals: on crackers—in fruit juices or milk—or just plain. For constipation especially, dissolve one cake in hot water (not scalding) before breakfast and at bedtime. Buy several cakes at a time—they will keep fresh in a cool dry place for two or three days. All grocers have Fleischmann's Yeast. Start eating it today!

And let us send you a free copy of our latest booklet on Yeast for Health. Health Research Dept. 695. The Fleischmann Company, 701 Wasnington Street, New York, N. Y.

"TWO YEARS AGO I was so run down that on coming home from work I frequently collapsed with fatigue. Often I was too tired to eat my supper. Fleischmann's Yeast seemed my last resort. After taking it for two weeks three times daily I noticed that constipation ceased and that my appetite had come back. I began to eat heartily, enjoying my food. I continued to eat Yeast for four months. Weakness and nervousness became a thing of the past. My cheeks filled out and I looked ten years younger, and now my face blooms with a healthy color."

Gretchen Hall, New York, N.Y.

LEFT

"MY DIGESTION was completely out of order; continued cathartics were necessary to relieve the oppression. Mornings I felt drowsy and found my mental faculties dull; Sundays (when I am obliged to fast till noon) severe headaches were the result . . . For over two months I took Fleischmann's Yeast faithfully every day, mornings and evenings. Today my stomach troubles are entirely gone; I find more energy for work and the headaches have disappeared; my parishioners have complimented me on my healthy complexion—all due in my estimation to Flesichmann's Yeast. And I still take Fleischmann's Yeast, as an ounce of prevention, to avoid any future troubles."

The Rev. Constantine Dziuk,
Vulcan, Michigan

THIS FAMOUS FOOD tones up the entire system—banishes constipation, skin troubles, stomach disorders. Start eating it today!

You will find many delicious ways of eating Yeast: spread on crackers—dissolved in fruit juices or milk—or just plain. Eat two or three cakes regularly every day before meals.

"I AM AN AMATEUR TRACK ATHLETE, a quarter-miler. During the winter of 1923 my physical condition became poor. After practice I felt 'fagged'; I could not concentrate upon studies. Face broke out in a mass of pimples—then came boils—constipation became chronic. I 'slowed up' badly in competition. I was about to abandon track when family doctor advised yeast. 'Slow but sure' he stated. For three months I faithfully carried out his instructions, three cakes a day. At the end of this time skin was cleared, no longer troubled with boils, constipation eliminated. I felt mentally awake. And I was able to compete in hard races without complete exhaustion."

Edmund Cochrane, Hartford, Conn.

RIGHT

"A NUMBER OF YEARS AGO at this most lovely time of year I became infected with a most unlovely case of boils—one after another. When I had become almost a nervous wreck as the result of a long series of lancing, I determined to go to a hospital in Chicago to consult a physician under whose care I had once been. At the end of a week, when no new boils had appeared, the doctor asked me with a twinkle in his eye if I knew the ingredient of the pellets which were given me. I confessed ignorance—and was amazed when he said, 'Fleischmann's Yeast'."

KAMP KARSEY
HE'S THE CHAMPION OF THE WORLD
THIS IS PROFESSOR KARSEY, CHESTER, THE MAN WHO HAS THE TRAINING CAMP FOR BOYS NEXT DOOR - IF YOU'RE A GOOD BOY I'M GOING TO LET THE PROFESSOR TEACH YOU TO BE A GREAT BIG STRONG MAN - HOW WOULD YOU LIKE THAT ?
OH GEE - COULD YOU TEACH ME TO BE A STRONG MAN LIKE I SAW IN THE CIRCUS ?
WHY, A BOY LIKE YOU WITH A CONSTITUTION LIKE YOU HAVE - I COULD MAKE A CHAMPION OF YOU -
HE'LL BUILD YOU UP LIKE A CARPENTER BUILDS A HOUSE - AFTER HE GIVES YOU A COUPLE OF LESSONS YOU'LL BE ABLE TO PLAY BEAN-BAG WITH ANVILS -
JUST FEEL THAT ARM - THAT'S WHAT HE CAN DO FOR YOU -
OH GEE - I WISH I'D HAD AN ARM LIKE THAT WHEN I WAS LOST ON THAT CANNIBAL ISLAND - WHEN THAT OLD CHIEF WAS KNOCKING ME AROUND WHAT I WOULD HAVE DONE TO HIM -
I'D LIKE TO HAVE YOU TAKE CHESTER OVER TO YOUR CAMP AND MAKE A MAN OUT OF HIM - OF COURSE I DON'T WANT HIM TO BECOME A PRIZE FIGHTER -
I NEVER ENCOURAGE A BOY TO BECOME A PROFESSIONAL FIGHTER - I TRY AND MAKE THEIR BODIES STRONG AND ACTIVE SO THEY'LL BE WINNERS IN THE BATTLE OF LIFE -
YOUR BOY HAS A SOUND MIND AND A SOUND BODY BUT LIKE ANY HEALTHY BOY HE NEEDS SYSTEMATIC TRAINING TO DEVELOP HIS MUSCLES - A BOY'S BODY IS LIKE A GARDEN - IF THE SEEDS OF INDOLENCE ARE ALLOWED TO FLOURISH THE FLOWERS OF STRENGTH AND HAPPINESS CAN NEVER BLOOM - DO YOU THINK CHESTER IS OLD ENOUGH TO START TRAINING ?
WHY IT'S NEVER TOO EARLY TO START A BOY ON THE RIGHT TRACK -
YOU HAVE A LITTLE BOY TO BE PROUD OF - I NEVER SAW A STRONGER, HEALTHIER OR MORE MANLY LITTLE CHAP AND I'M PROUD TO ENROLL HIM AS A PUPIL IN MY TRAINING CAMP -
WELL - CLASS TELLS - A CHIP OFF THE OLD BLOCK - LIKE FATHER LIKE SON - HE COMES FROM A RACE OF STRONG MEN - MY GRANDFATHER COULD TIE A HORSE SHOE INTO A TRUE LOVERS KNOT WITH HIS BARE HANDS -
YOU'LL BE A MAN LIKE YOUR FATHER YET - COME ON YOU DEMPSEY - WHEN I WAS YOUR AGE THEY CALLED ME WILD CAT JACK - EVERY MORNING UP AT 4 O'CLOCK MILK 30 COWS - FEED A COUPLE OF DROVES OF HOGS AND THEN GO OUT AND PLOW TILL NINE O'CLOCK AT NIGHT AND COME HOME SINGING LIKE A LARK - THEY HAD TO HAND-CUFF ME TO KEEP ME FROM WORKING MYSELF TO DEATH - I WAS AS STRONG AS A CARLOAD OF ONIONS -
JUST FEEL THAT MUSCLE AND COMPARE IT WITH A CEMENT SIDEWALK - THAT'S THE KIND OF A HUSBAND YOU PICKED OUT FOR YOURSELF -
YOU'RE JUST THE MAN I WANT -
HERE - MR. SAMSON - TAKE THIS BROOM AND GO DOWN AND CLEAN UP THE BASEMENT - THERE'S A PILE OF COAL DOWN THERE WAITING FOR SOME GIANT LIKE YOU TO COME ALONG AND WRESTLE WITH - AND DON'T FORGET THE LAWN MOWER HASN'T HAD A GOOD WORK OUT FOR MONTHS - - AFTER YOU'VE CLEANED THE BASEMENT YOU CAN CARRY THOSE TRUNKS UP TO THE ATTIC - A SANDOW LIKE YOU NEEDS EXCERCISE OR HIS MUSCLES OF STEEL WILL BECOME RUSTY - DO YOUR STUFF -
